One thing we can assure the reader — there will never be a black heavyweight champion, or a colored champion in any division for that matter, at least as long as the present generation endures. The Ethiopian has been eliminated from every competitive class, Johnson being the last of his race to be wiped out.

Classes are Clear.

There hasn't been a colored featherweight of caliber since George Dixon passed away; there hasn't been a ranking ebony lightweight since the demise of Joe Gans, the last good colored welterweight passed away with the retirement of Joe Walcott, and there hasn't been a capable dusky middleweight since Sam Langford graduated into the heavyweight division. There are a few ponderous colored heavyweights, any one of whom could give Willard a hard battle, but they must mingle among themselves hereafter. They mustn't play with the paleface boys any more.

The day of the colored pugilist has gone, never to thrive again. Johnson will never fight again, for the simple reason that he is dethroned and broken in sprit, and would prove easy for the mediocre "white hope" now. There will be no mad scramble among promoters for Johnson's services, and the former champion should be content with living peacefully on his chicken farm near Paris.

A New Idol.

A few weeks ago Johnson was champion of the universe; now he is a middle-aged negro, sapped of his strength, shorn of his power, with his source of income completely cut off.

Willard, the gawky cowpuncher from Kansas, is the idol of the pugilistic world, and already has begun realizing on his newly acqufred championship. He richly deserves whatever he can accrue from being the titleholder, for he strove valiantly to gain possession of the crown. Any other heavyweight would have become disheartened and abandoned the task after the first few setbacks. But not Willard. He plodded along indulgently and now he is reaping his reward.

Many ugly rumors of "fake" have followed in the trail of the Willard-Johnson affair, but as yet nothing has been proved to show it was a pre-arranged affair. Willard is the champion, and will continue in that capacity for several years.

Hikes to the Stage.

It is hardly likely that Willard will engage in a ring fight again for at least a year. He can get theatrical booking for half a year, and the other half he will spend in flaunting his championship in the faces of those who derided him when he was a mere "white hope," with no prospects of becoming champion.

Willard announces that he has drawn the color line, and that he intends to adhere strictly to this resolution. Even before he tackled Johnson, the new champion made it clear that he would never mingle with a negro in the ring again. So it will be a merry scrap among the white lads to determine who shall be the first to try out the wares of the new titleholder.

SENATORS HAVE ENOUGH TWIRLERS CANNOT PLACE STAN CRESWELL

Ottawa, April 24.—Stanley Cresswell, the left hander, who pitched for Peterborough last season, has written Manager Shaughnessy, requesting a trial. As Peterborough dropped out of the Canadian League all the White Caps are free agents. Creswell played his first professional ball with Ottawa under Louis Cook in 1912. He had great success in 1913, but did not do so well last year. Creswell expressed the opinion that he would do better work away from Peterborough, which is his home town. As the Ottawas have Kubat for the portside manipulations it is not likely that Creswell will receive a chance. The Senators seldom had trouble in whipping him last summer.

LACROSSE FOR Y.M.C.A. MEMBERS

First Practice Will be Held Wednesday Evening

That lacrosse is going to be a reality among the activities promoted by the Y. was assured last night when an enthusiastic group of the lovers of the national game met in the association, and elected their executive. The Y.M.C.A. is putting its efforts into getting out the young fellows and developing them. This is the only way in which the game can be revived. In doing this the Y. have the support of such men as Mr. Rollie Glover, George Robertson, Ray Best and several others who know the game from A to Z and will give their best to developing the game among the youngsters. The first practice is called for Wednesday, April 28 at 6.30 and a big turnout at that time is wanted. All men wishing to come out be at the Y.M. C.A. at 6.30 ready for work.

COMMENT As You Like it

WALTER F. TRIVETT, secretary of the Ontario Branch of the C. A. A. U. and secretary of the Ontario Baseball Commission is highly elated at the success of the movement to place amateur baseball in Ontario on a sound foundation. In the course of a letter received yesterday he states "We have today only two leagues in this city who are playing professional ball and I understand that at the present time even these two leagues have difficulty in securing enough teams to make up a playing schedule. This has been a great source of satisfaction to all lovers of amateur sport, and although we have tried repeatedly to extend our movement to the outside cities, towns and league, we have met with very little success until this past year.

This present season I have had the pleasure of having applications from the Niagara District League, the Hamilton City League, the Berlin Town League and many others who are desirous of protecting the players who compose the different leagues as far as playing other amateur games are concerned, and when it has been pointed out to them that we intend during the coming season to apply the amateur ruling strictly to baseball as well as hockey, lacrosse and football and all games in which these men complete, they have all signified their willingness to cooperate with us and reorganize their leagues or associations on strict amateur lines."

As for the Peterborough City Baseball League it might be stated that at the last meeting it was unanimously decided that it be an amateur organization. The local league has also endorsed the idea of forming an Ontario Amateur Baseball Association.

IT SEEMS probable that Quinlan, the local hurler, may figure in the City League this summer. An effort is to be made to have him reinstated. On May 24th, 1912, Quinlan pitched part of a game for the Peterborough Canadian League team against Guelph and has since been debarred from amateur sports. According to article four, section B. of the constitution of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association an athlete who has competed with or against a professional for a prize or where gate receipts are charged is ineligible to compete as an amateur but is eligible for re-instatement. The presence of Quinlan in the box would mean a great deal to the league.

THE O.H.A., it is understood, has stated that the application of the suspended Peterborough Intermediate hockey players may not be taken up till next fall because of there being no meeting of the executive. That excuse doesn't hold water in our opinion. It has been the case of other clubs suspended that when reorganization occurs the following winter, the players are admitted again. We want the boys in for the summer sports.

MR. C. MUELLENHAGEN of Flint, Mich., is in the city for a few days, renewing old acquaintances. "Mull," it will be remembered, played shortstop for the drafting room team in the Mercantile League two years ago. He was employed in the C. G. E. while in this city.

TWO CLUBS in the City League paid the entrance fee of twenty-five dollars before last night. They were East City and the Empire Athletic Club.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR CONCERT

Vocal and Organ Selections Made up Fine Program

The concert given by the choir of St. Andrew's Church last evening was worthy of a much larger audience. It was a most refreshing revelation of the possibilities contained in the combined voices of those who took part, while the solo work has rarely been excelled. The assisting artists were Miss Helen MacLaren, mezzo soprano, and Mr. Albert Downing, tenor, and Herbert C. Treneer, organist at St. Andrew's.

A selected program was rendered in faultless style throughout. Mr. Downing, who was heard here in the performance of Judas Macabbaeus, was in his element last evening, contributing several beautiful sacred selections with rare feeling and expression. Mr. Downing's voice is one of remarkable flexibility and is soft, clear and bell-like in tone. In addition to these qualities he has it under perfect control, which was ably demonstrated in a couple of selections particularly calling for this mastery. Many of his audience were as much taken with his encores as with his program numbers. His singing of "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," was one of the finest selections on the whole program, although given as an encore. In lighter vein was his work in "Mary of Argyle," a number peculiarly adaptable to a voice of such sweetness and clarity of tone. All his other selections were splendidly presented. "There Is a Land" being rewarded with enthusiastic applause.

Miss Helen MacLaren never sang better than last evening, her choice of numbers being most apt and appropriate. She was liberal in her encores. In response to one persistent encore she came back and sang "Annie Lawrie" in a manner that could scarcely be improved upon.

A duet, "Consider and Hear Me," by Miss MacLaren and W. Evans, was another delightful offering.

Mr. Herbert C. Treneer presided at the organ in his usual able manner. In response to an encore, he consented to give a representation of a street parade on the instrument. Away in the distance could be heard the faint tones of the band and drum gradually swelling in volume as the parade approached, then gradually dying away in the distance as the parade passed on.

The anthems by the choir were especially beautiful and rendered with a precision and harmony that bespoke long and careful training.

EXAMINATION OF METHODIST PROBATIONERS

Twelve young Methodist probationers in the Bay of Quinte Conference were in the city this week writing off examinations. Some were writing on their first and others on their second. The examinations were held in Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and were presided over by Rev. G. J. Lewis, B.A., secretary of the conference, and R. Bamforth, B.A., of Port Perry. Three days are usually required to complete the examinations, but the probationers finished them up in two days this year. Rev. RUSSELL MOTOR STANDS TEST TRIP

Runs From Toronto to Montreal Without Repairs or Adjustment

A DURABILITY TRIAL

Average Speed Was 25 Miles an Hour Throughout Journey

Special to The Review.

Montreal, April 23.—From Toronto to Montreal by motor car at the speed of an express train, averaging 25 miles an hour was a trip successfully terminated last night by a Russell six "30" car. The trip was in the nature of a durability test to demonstrate the capability of this car of standing the strain of ambulance and transport work on the heavy roads of France and Belgium. The car was one of the Russell Company's stock models. Leaving the Queen City at 2.31 yesterday morning the car crossed the boundary line of Montreal at 8 o'clock last night and pulled up outside the Windsor Station at 8.50. Th 360-mile trip was made with stops only for gasoline. No adjustment or repairs were made throughout the entire journey.

Mr. D. E. McVannell, the advertising manager of the Russell Company, was one of a party of four aboard the car. In speaking of the trip he stated that from Toronto to Kingston the roads were in excellent condition. At Prescott they became bad, and approaching Montreal they became worse. The trip was made for the satisfaction of the company regarding the quality of their car, and they are well pleased with the result of the test. The type of car used on this trip is the same supplied to the Government and a duplicate of the same car is now on exhibition at the White Rose Garage, Hunter St., Peterborough.

Those who made the trip were Mr. J. A. Martin, sales manager of the Russell Company; Mr. J. W. Gibson, of the Canada Cycle and Motor Co.; Mr. McVannell, advertising manager; and I. Spikeman, chauffeur. The latter is known to Torontonians in the business as a crack driver. At Ile Perrot the Russell car was met by Mr. J. R. Marlow, manager of the Montreal Agency; Mr. Kirby, of the Automobile Association, and others.

DO NOT WANT

Chancellor Bowles, mover of the resolution and one of the first to be for one, would be prone to deplore anything which would interfere with the great work in hand.

Electors Hide-Bound.

"Most of the time, 80 per cent. and sometimes 90 per cent. of the voters of Canada are hide-bound partisans," declared A. E. Ames. "All men think all other men hide-bound, but themselves[illegible] none need be offended by this [illegible]ment." He was against an election because of its effect on business conditions, already strained by the war, and the effect on the soldiers, themselves, who must be kept at the highest pitch of their efficiency. Men were subject to psychological and temperamental influences and how could they fight side by side if they were divided by the feeling that things were all at sixes and sevens at home? In Great Britain it was the practice of leaders and parties to confer to achieve a common purpose.

Men We Can Honor.

Rev. E. C. Cayley thought the essential point was to try to find out where the responsibility rested for bringing about an election. "It had been taken for granted," he said, "that the responsibility will necessarily rest on the present government. I submit that if the opposition and not the opposition press has not been behaving as it ought to behave, then the responsibility should rest on Sir Robert Borden. We rejoice that the leaders on both sides are men we can honor, but we cannot rejoice in the same way as to the members of the government, the opposition or the press on either side."

"Unfortunately, in the event of an election, graft charges would pay a large part and public men and party prejudice would rise to the occasion. Sir Robert Borden had had a hard time. His government had to do many things unexpected and new in a hurry. They had equipped an army in six weeks and of course there would be mistakes, but Sir Robert Borden should not be blamed for all that."

This year, California "Raisin Day" is to be celebrated in the "Golden State" on April 30th. The slogan on that particular day will be "Eat raisins." Beautiful Building Lots

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald is offering for sale some beautiful building lots on Benson, Geraldine and O'Carroll avenues. This property lies within two minutes' walk of the street railway and ten minutes' walk of the heart of the city. The city water, gas, light and sewer services are installed, the property being already completely surrounded by beautiful homes. The site is an ideal one, with a gentle southeasterly slope and being considerably elevated above the city and not in the immediate vicinity of any manufacturing industries, the air is always pure, healthy and invigorating. Nearly all the lots are already beautifully wooded with foreign and domestic shade trees. Two handsome residences are already under construction on this property, and several more will be erected this season, and for anyone contemplating the erection of a home there are certainly not lots in the city that offer equal advantages.

Copies of registered plan No. 149, which covers this property, may be seen, and all other information may be had, at the offices of Mr. R. J. Kidd, J. T. O'Connell & Co., C. J. A GENERAL ATTACK ON DARDANELLES

ARMY SUCCESSFULLY DISEMBARK

OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED FROM THE WAR OFFICE AND THE ADMIRALTY : : :

REPORTS ARE MEAGRE AND CONTRADICTORY

London Finds it Impossible to Get Clear Idea of the Extent of the German Movement

A SHOCK TO THE PUBLIC

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 26.—Official reports from Flanders are both meagre and contradictory, but it is generally believed in London that the Germans again are making desperate efforts to break through to French channel ports.

Some such recrudescence of a German offensive has been anticipated by war experts, but this movement, forestalling the long-predicted allied offensive, comes as a distinct shock to the general public.

It is impossible to get a clear idea of the extent of the German movement, but some special despatches to London papers describe it as so important that the Germans are even credited with the intention of bringing Von Hindenburg from the east to conduct operations, and Emperor William himself is reported as proceeding to the Yser front.

Operations in the North Sea are still a deep mystery, but speculation concerning them has virtually ceased on account of the interest in land activities.

A HARDSHIP ON THE LAWYERS

New Law Does Not Provide for Change of Interest on Loans

It is stated that the new moratorium law which came into effect April 8th, is working a hardship on local lawyers, in that it did not provide for the change of the interest on loans that were carried over. It provided that in cases where the persons holding mortgages can prove that they are unable to pay them because of the war the mortgages must be allowed to run. In some cases these have been acquired when the rate of interest was five and six per cent. and if renewed now it would mean that the persons holding them would have to pay six and a half, if not seven per cent. Instead of renewing them they seek shelter under the moratorium and continue the old interest. As the onus is upon the mortgagee to prove that the war has caused the failure to meet the payments an example will in all probability be made of some delinquents.

JOHN BUNNY DEAD

NEW YORK, April 26. — John Bunny, whose antics as a moving picture comedian have made millions laugh, died at his home in Brooklyn today.

DEATH CAME VERY SUDDENLY

Mrs. Samuel Barringer Was Ill Only a Few Hours

Mrs. Samuel W. Barringer, 144 London street, passed away at three o'clock this morning suddenly, having been taken ill only a few hours before. She was 59 years of age, and was born in Campbellford, coming to Peterborough to make her home two years ago, where she established a wide circle of friends. Before moving here, however, she resided at Hastings and Uxbridge. She was taken suddenly ill yesterday and removed to Nicholls Hospital, where she gradually sank until death ensued.

Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her death four sons, Walter, John and Charles of Peterborough, and William, of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. Clute and Mrs. J. H. Pringle, of Campbellford. One brother, Thomas Brooks, resides at Campbellford.

She was a faithful member of Murray Street Baptist Church, and was held in high esteem.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday at two-thirty to Little Lake Cemetery from the residence of her son, Walter Barringer, 143 London street.

Germans Claim 1000 Canadian Prisoners

To-day's Headquarters Statement May be Taken With Considerable Reserve

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, April 26. — (German official statement.) — "Germans hold Lizerne, on the west bank of the canal, which the French pretend to have reconquered.

"Also on the east of the canal conquered Terrain remains in possession of the Germans.

"The number of cannon taken by the Germans rose to 45, including four English.

"Northwest of Zonnebecke, German attacks continue.

"More than one thousand Canadians were taken prisoners.

"The total number of prisoners rose to three thousand. They include Senegal negroes, English, Turcos, Hindus, French, Canadians, Zouaves and Algerians."

MAJOR BEATTIE'S LETTERS ON LIFE AT THE FRONT

Graphic Description of Incidents in and About the Trenches

Two letters from Major Beattie, chaplain of the First Brigade, were read to the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cobourg. The Review publishes both letters, believing they will be of interest to many readers:

Dear Mr. Horn,—Will you please make record of the enclosed in the Baptismal records. The service at which the baptism of Pte. Sutcliffe took place yesterday was unique. We were assembled in a farmyard for service. The French farm yards are unlike Canadian ones. The house and stables are built to form a court, stables on three sides, and the house on the fourth. The centre of the court is invariably the manure heap and cesspool; around the walls is a four-foot brick walk. Here the men lined up, and, with a box on top of a barrel for my pulpit, covered with a blanket and a white table cloth, I conducted the service. The young man had his courage with him when he came forward, and, kneeling by the rude pulpit, responded to my questions in a clear and audible voice. Every man stood with uncovered and bowed head through the service. Among those present was Paul Skidmore from Cobourg.

On March 10th I went out to the trenches and buried the first of Cobourg's boys to fall, George Earle. There were four that evening, all from the same company. Picture if you can a score of men standing around four shallow graves of their comrades. To the right and felt and behind were the trenches of the enemy. While we were at the grave-

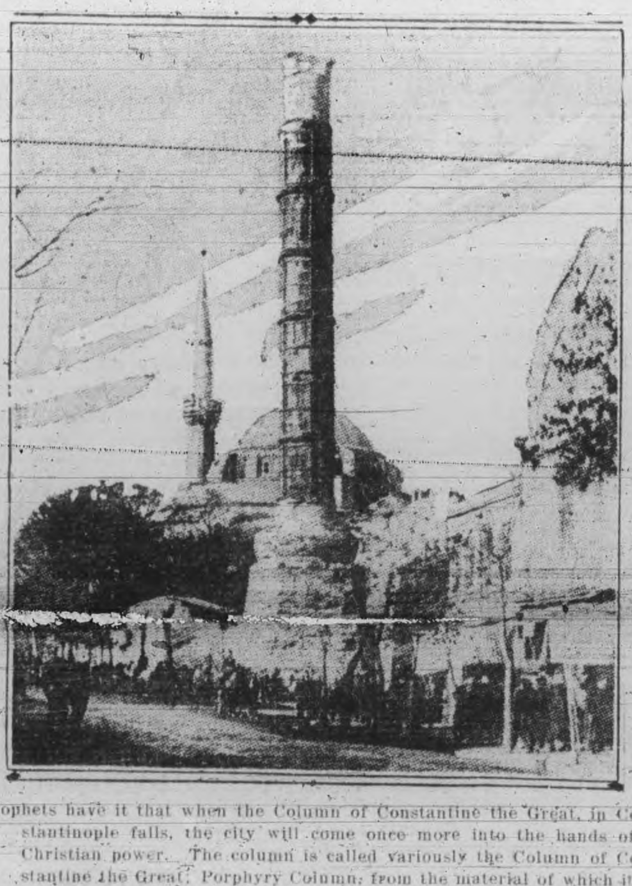
Constantinople Will Fall With Column, Say Prophets



Prophets have it that when the Column of Constantine the Great, in Constantinople falls, the city will come once more into the hands of a Christian power. The column is called variously the Column of Constantine the Great; Porphyry Column; from the material of which it is built; the Hooped Column, a reference to the metal rings about it; and the Burnt Column, from the damage it has sustained by fire. The story is that it was brought from Rome; that when it was first set up it was of eight porphyry drums, on a marble pedestal; and that it was surmounted by a bronze Apollo representing Constantine. The whole structure, being so associated with the founder of the city, was looked upon as an outward and visible sign of its good fortune. Beneath tis foundations are said to have been laid in secret the Palladium of Rome and a piece of the Cross and other holy relics.

ON LAND AND SEA

General Attack on the Dardanelles is Officially Reported

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 26.—The admiralty and War Office declared this afternoon that a general attack on the Dardanelles had begun.

An army, it was said, had been disembarked successfully.

The following official announcement was given out: "A general attack on the Dardanelles by fleet and army was resumed yesterday. Disembarkation of the army covered by the fleet began before sunrise at various points on Gallipoli peninsula, and, in spite of serious opposition by the enemy in strong entrenchments, protected by barbed wire, was completely successful.

"Before nightfall large forces were established on shore. The landing of the army and the advance continue."

Lt. Kirkpatrick Among Wounded

Among Peterborough people who had friends in the killed and wounded at Ypres, is Mrs. W. H. Dunsford, 784 Water Street, whose nephew, Lieutenant W. Kirkpatrick, of Toronto, Ont., is among those wounded. Lieutenant Kirkpatrick is the eldest son of one of Mrs. Dunsford's sisters. As noted in The Review some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Dunsford have a long list of relatives engaged in the fight in Europe, and Lieutenant Kirkpatrick is not the first to have been wounded or killed.

TWO SUNDAY ATTACKS CHECKED BY BRITISH

MILITARY NEWS

All the men of the 26th Battery at Kingston were inoculated against typhoid fever during last week, and there is a number of very sore arms, yet the men are doing their duties every day.

Major Gerald Hall, 26th Overseas Battery, Kingston, was in the city over Sunday.

Lt.-Col. Buell of Brockville, who is among the wounded, is a popular officer, well known here. His wound is not serious.

Lt. A. G. McClennan of Ottawa, with the second battalion, was with Lt. Ackerman's platoon. The former has been wounded in the arm.

Douglas Huycke, second son of His Honor Judge Huycke, came home from Toronto on Saturday and spent Sunday under the parental roof. He left this morning for Kingston, where he will take up a course at the artillery school to qualify as a lieutenant.

Failing in Two Movements Germans Direct Violent Bombardment at Ypres --- French Successful in Beating Attacks at Les Eparges

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, April 26. — (This afternoon's official statement)— "In Belgium, two German attacks moving out from Paschendrele and from Brodseinde were checked yesterday by British troops.

"The enemy thereuponn bombarded Ypres with violence.

"Our activities are being continued along the Yser canal.

"At Notre Dame de Lorette we repulsed a German attack. On the heights of the Meuse fighting is developing.

"An attack on Calonne trench reported yesterday was checked by our counter attack and the enemy was driven back. He subsequently made another attack further to the east in the direction of St. Remy, evidently striving to recapture Les Eparges.

"A violent attack preceded by fierce bombardment took place shortly after this movement on the eastern slopes of our position at Les Eparges, but the German attack resulted in failure."

ALLIED FLEET COULD FORCE NARROWS WITH ASSISTANCE OF POWERFUL LAND FORCES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 26. — A semi-official correspondent with the allied fleets in the Dardanelles writes that the narrows could forced if the occasion warranted the necessary loss of ships, but unless there was a powerful army ready to occupy Gallipoli peninsula, the Turks and Germans would immediately close the straits again and the fleet would have difficulty in fighting its way out again.

Mine fields constantly renewed, concealed batteries of heavy guns and howitzers, and a great number of movable field batteries at the command of the enemy, make the task, the more it is examined, assume tremendous proportions.

SERVED IN THE TOWN COUNCIL

Funeral of the Late John McNaughton Held This Afternoon

John McNaughton, who resided at 256 Bethune Street and was one of pioneer dwellers in Peterborough, died Saturday afternoon after a short illness. While out walking three weeks ago yesterday, he took a weak spell which hastened the end. He was in his seventy-first year and had lived fifty years of his life span in this city, pursuing the occupation of shoemaker up till five years ago.

Mr. McNaughton took an active interest during his life in the municipal management of the city and had the honor of serving for a number of years on the city council, part of his term being the years [illegible] 1885-1886 and [illegible]. He was born in Ireland and possessed his share of the wit and humor for which his countrymen are noted. He possessed hosts of friends in the city. He lived on Sherbrooke Street for a number of years later moving to Bethune. He was married forty-eight years ago to Miss Kingdon, who survives him.

The funeral took place this afternoon at two-thirty to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' Church, officiating.

86 DEGREES IN THE SHADE, SUNDAY

Sunday, April 25th, 1915, will take its place in the weather records of this locality as being one of the warmest April days ever known. Yesterday afternoon the official instrument was up to 86 degrees in the shade. The local observer says that figure is certainly the highest since 1896, as he has carefully gone over registers back to that date; and the previous highest was 81 degrees, April 30, 1899. The Toronto observatory gives April 22, 1842, as the highest on record in that city, with 89 degrees.

LINDSAY'S FIRE HALL DAMAGED

Blaze Believed to be the Work of Fire-bug

The Lindsay Warder says: Through the malicious act of some person unknown and who is evidently hostile to the interests of the town the fire hall was entered through the stable door last night about 8.15 and a match or lighted tinder thrown in the feed room where hay is kept, causing a blaze amounting to about $500 damage.

Fire Chief Jas. Bell had been in conversation with Ald. McGaffey a few minutes previous to the alarm of fire being given, discussing at the time matters relative to the fire brigade. The latter had just come away when Mr. Frank Adams came with hurried steps across the street announcing the news to the chief that the chickens had come home to roost and that the rear of the building was a mass of flames. The assistant, Wm. Elliott rang out the alarm, while Chief Bell immediately let the horses loose from the stalls and got a stream of water playing on the source of the fire. Afterwards another was directed to the loft, where hay, straw and a bin of oats was kept.

The fire made its way rapidly up the shaft through which the hay was thrown down in the feed room, catching in the cornice of the main building and into the attic, which forms a brigade support for the roof.

To cope with this the chief ordered the men to ascend the tower and get through a small opening, but they found it impossible, being driven back by the dense smoke which was wafted through the attic and finding an outlet by way of the tower.

It was then considered advisable to cut a hole through the roof, which was done on the south side, where a stream was directed to the precise spot, which had the effect of putting the fire out of commission in a few minutes.

Firemen Lost Garments.

The firemen are the greatest losers as all their personal effects which consisted of clothing and such like articles are destroyed.

The hay will be useless as feed, but may be used as bedding. The oat bin which contained several bushels of oats was partly filled with water but the grain when dried will be only slightly affected.

Ceilings Destroyed.

The ceilings are badly destroyed, the water having soaked through each compartment. The billiard table was another piece of furniture destroyed by water.

The firemen are worthy of much praise for the work done in subduing the flames rapidly.

Chief Bell returns thanks to the soldiers, who nobly assisted the brigade.

Night Constable Woods kept the crowd back and was a great assistant at the fire.

It is understood that the loss is fully covered by insurance.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1915

A BIG CASUALTY LIST.

SATURDAY the news came that a big battle had just been fought in which the Canadians had saved the day. Sunday a few names came over the wires, and this has been increased today. We know now that many a gallant Canadian has fallen, but the knowledge that they saved the situation and performed one of the most gallant feats of arms of the whole war, will be some compensation. They have died gloriously and not in vain.

TISSUE PAPER ROSES.

SOME PEOPLE have very peculiar ideas of the fitness of things. Imagine selling tissue-paper roses on St. George's Day! If such a day is to be remembered, only real roses should be used, especially when these flowers can be easily obtained. Almost everybody likes roses—real roses. Why not gratify the public taste properly on such an occasion? Are people to get a stone when they ask for bread? Then why offer a tissue-paper rose for a real one, above all on St. George's Day?

THE GERMAN PRESS CHANGING.

IT APPEARS that the German press is preparing the people of Germany for the collapse of the military projects that plunged the world into war last summer. The following extract from a recent article in the Boersen-Halle, the official organ of the German stock exchange, is of great significance:

> "The expenditure to cover the war loans, the maintenance of the invalids and the survivors of the killed, at the very least will require two milliard marks ($500,000,000) yearly. The damage to our national fortune is at present incalculable, and we are still a very long way from the end.
>
> "It ought not to be forgotten that the German who joined the colours in August with enthusiasm will not look on the situation created during his absence with the same enthusiasm when once he returns to his employment, finding wages decreasing and the cost of living increasing, while in all directions he will be compelled to assume his share of the unavoidable heavy taxes."

Not only does it seem to admit defeat, but also foreshadows great internal changes that may come as a result of an impossible and frightfully extravagant military policy. If a passage of this nature could appear in such a newspaper in March, what may we expect will be the mutterings if the spring campaign now beginning should prove disastrous?

ONTARIO RESPECTS THE FRENCH.

OUR EVENING contemporary has made another misstatement which we hasten to correct. The Examiner says, "The Review occupies a good deal of its valuable space to get a whack at the French-Canadian people and the French language." This is not true. The Review has no animosity against the French-Canadian people nor the French language, nor does it wish to "whack" them, as our contemporary expresses itself. We enjoy French literature and respect the great achievements and traditions of the French race. We do not forget that Canada owes much to the French, and that some of the finest Canadian traditions, some of the most brilliant pages of our history, are due to the French. It would be nationalism violent and rampant that would condemn anything and everything just because it was French. Some nationalists in Quebec have erred on this side, but that is their affair. In Otnraio we have respect for the French-Canadians and the French language. We teach French in our universities, collegiate institutes and high schools. We take pleasure in the fact that of the first two Canadians decorated with the Military Cross for conspicuous bravery on the battlefields of France, one is a French-Canadian. Not only is he a French-Canadian, but a grandson of Louis Papineau, one of those patriots, who struggled, perhaps misguidedly in some respects, for responsible government in Canada. In Quebec we recognize the French language as an official language, also in certain courts and in the Parliament of Canada. Surely these facts are proof that it is incorrect to say that Ontario is hostile to the French-Canadians and the French language, and, for the same reasons, the Review bears the same respectful attitude to them.

It is precisely because Ontario respects the French-Canadians and the French language that she insists on a working knowledge of English for the people of this Province. It is for the purpose of giving every child, French or English, or of whatever nationality it may be, its legitimate right to a proper education. Bishop Fallon has shown that in bilingual districts children knew neither English nor French. Bilingualism means neither one language nor the other. Surely the Examiner would not dispute the well-authenticated statement of the Bishop of London, nor advocate a policy by which French-Canadian children in Ontario would be deprived of a proper education; yet it appears that this is what the Examiner really does stand for.

LOVE OF COUNTRY.

IT IS STRANGE but true that many electors are more animated by a desire for the triumph of a party than for the well-being of their country. No doubt this proceeds as frequently from thoughtlessness as from ignorance or shame. But the fact remains, and the injury done to our beloved country, which many others would die to defend, is like a scar that cannot be removed, an injury irreparable.

It is foolish for our newspapers and our people to talk of scandals in Parliament when no effort is made by many of those who do the talking to send there reputable representatives. A man who, to please his prejudices or his party, will walk up to a ballot-box and vote for a man whom he knows to be depraved and against one he knows to be worthy, is more wicked than wise. These are the men who, in the main, are the real authors of our shame and of those detestable scandals that from time to time disgrace our country and our race. The man who loves his country will sacrifice his party prejudices and his private spites for the benefit of that country, but the man who has not yet risen to that exalted or even respectable state of mind will do neither. He prefers, under one specious pretence and another, to serve the devil, who alone can approve his misconduct. He is a hypocrite but not a patriot.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SOME of our Liberal friends show a remarkable familiarity with the directions on the wrappers of patent medicines, many of which are quacks. You know the old proverb—"Birds of a feather."

THE EXAMINER says some French-Canadians are eminently disloyal. Does it include Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who prevented Canada from providing three effective battleships for the defence of the Empire?

WALKERVILLE raised $15,300 in two days for the Patriotic Fund. That is good going. The goal is $50,000. Canada has plenty of coin yet for the war, if it is needed.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

A Free Country?

(Fels Fund Press Bulletin.)

Landlordism is a widespread institution in the United States.

The last census shows that more than half of the homes in the country are rented outright and that only 20 per cent. are owned free from mortgage.

In the fifty cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants, 74 per cent. of homes are rented, and only 13 per cent. are owned free of encumbrance.

In New York City more than 88 per cent. of homes are rented and only 3½ per cent. owned free.

In Chicago, 73.8 per cent. are rented, and only 12 per cent. owned free.

In Philadelphia conditions are practically the same.

In the Eighteenth Ward of Chicago there are 4,905 homes, and only 105 of them are owned free.

In New York City, in the Eighth Assembly District of Manhattan, there are but six homes owned free, while 11,962 are rented.

In the year 1880, 25 per cent. of the farms were operated by tenants. In 1910 the percentage had increased to 37 per cent. Only 42 per cent. of farms worked by their nominal owners were free of encumbrance.

The Weak Spot.

(Springfield Republican.)

The one weak spot in the German explanation of the sinking of the Falaba is to be found in the fact that it was a German and not a British torpedo that sank the harmless passenger ship and caused the drowning of 110 persons, including one American citizen. England may have many sins to answer for, but Germany cannot expect the United States or any other country to hold the British Government responsible for the acts of German submarines. The explanation and the disclaimer of responsibility for the death of Leon C. Thresher are too absurd to merit a moment's serious consideration.

Germany's Poor Showing.

(Kingston, Jamaica, Gleaner.)

This blockade began on the 18th of last month, and since then hundreds of ships have left and entered British ports. Neutral vessels have also been coming and going; the ports of France are not less busy because of the German submarine menace. This seems a poor showing after all Germany's swagger, but who is surprised? The only people who may have been deceived by Germany's threat were the German people themselves.

Effect of the Cause.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

"Wont' your wife sing for us?"
"Sure; I just asked her not to."

Book Reviews And Literary News

A PRINCE OF INDIA.

Since the war began, the splendour and endless wealth of our native Indian rulers has been brought to our notice in so gratifying a way that a novel shortly to be published by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton should prove of exceptional interest at the moment. The book, by Mr. Laurence Clarke—a new novelist,—is entitled "A Prince of India," and mirrors the dazzling existence of a present-day Indian Maharajah in his own dominion. In this case the prince is a young man, an Oxford undergraduate, and is in love with an English girl. The romantic and hairbreadth adventures of the Maharajah of Kathnagar, of the young lady, and of a certain clerk in the Foreign Office, form the theme of a story that is said to be exceptionally well written and vigorous.

The University of London Press will publish immediately "War Progress, and the End of History," by Vladimir Soloviev, with an introduction by Dr. Hegberg Wright. "The name of Soloviev," says Dr. Wright, "may not be a household word in so wide a sense as the name of Tolstoy, but he holds a higher plane as a thinker among the intellectual classes of Russia."

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Light to moderate winds, fair and decidedly warm today and on Tuesday with thunderstorms in a few localities.

PATRIOTIC FUND.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I saw some time ago that the Mayor proposed to take some of the money subscribed for the Patriotic Fund for our brave soldiers' families in order to do some city work. This might save some taxes but it is not what the money was subscribed for and I doubt if it would be legal to do so. It is said that many men who are able to but won't work are being pampered with this money.

Another thing it was understood that this subscription list was to be published but it is being withheld for some reason.

This is a public matter and a large sum was subscribed and I am sure those who subscribed would like to hear from the committee as to the above matters and as to how the fund is being distributed and as to the present conditions.

Yours truly,

SUBSCRIBER.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS.

Editor Review,

Sir,—There can be no doubt in the minds of those who were fortunate enough to have heard the Rev. R. L. Brydges, Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Church of England in St. John's Church yesterday, as to the advantages of, if not the absolute necessity for supervised playgrounds in Peterborough.

Let us all unite in helping the local Council of Women in starting the first one this summer but let us see to it that it is only the first of many.

An opportunity will be given to all to help on Saturday, May 8th, when each carnation bought in memory of mother, is so much towards helping mothers of our city, by helping the children.

Yours, etc.,

M.

BASE HOSPITAL.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I am sure that the citizens of Peterborough are proud of the medical profession of this city for the grand proposition to form a hospital at the front, and I hope that every worthy citizen will help this profession along.

Officers To Be Made To Resign.

ERIE, Pa., April 26.—T. V. O'Connor, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, arrived here Saturday to investigate the dynamite explosion which caused the death last Wednesday of Michael Leoroff, former secretary of the local union, and the injury of thirteen other persons.

"All the officers of the Erie Union will have to resign," said O'Connor, "and if they refuse we will find a way to put them out. Russians who belong to Russian societies are barred from our organization, and those who have gained admission here will have to get out."

Twenty-three persons are still held by the police in connection with the explosion.

FASHION HINTS

OUTDOOR CLOTHES.

During Lent They Are a Topic of Interest to the Athletic Girl.

The outdoor girl begins to take interest in sports clothes quite early in the season, many of them high away from regions where winter reigns to those where a milder climate prevails. And then all sorts of open air recreations are possible. She may ride or drive or motor or play tennis or golf, as her taste dictates. At the smart resorts modish clothes are important.

SMART NEW TENNIS COAT.

Suitable for wear on the tennis court is the sports coat of green eponge here shown. It has large patch pockets and a loose belt tying in front. A wide tie of the green eponge matches the belt. Flare collar and wide cuffs are of natural colored eponge.

Dickens' Full Name.

Charles Dickens was christened Charles John Huffam, or Huffham, as it is erroneously entered in the parish register. But when he became famous he dropped the last two Christian names, as he desired to be known as plain Charles Dickens, a wish respected on his tombstone in Westminster abbey, by his biographer and friend, John Forster, and by the scrupulously accurate Dictionary of National Biography.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Care of Hairbrush.

Where possible it is very much better to have the hair brushed by a second person, more especially where it is long and heavy. A woman can hardly carry her arm from the scalp to the full length of the hair, and it snarls and tangles until more is pulled out than is right.

There is also a great difference in the sort of brush used. One with bristles that are too stiff will scratch the scalp, often make it very sore and so cause loosening of the hair; one with bristles that are too soft will not be of much use in reaching the skin and stimulating the growth of new hair. A brush that is not perfectly clean will cause dandruff, an oily condition and effectually prevent a healthy growth. So, much attention should be paid to not only the quality, but the cleanliness as well as to the proper setting of the bristles of the brush used daily.

There is a splendid English brush with black bristles that seems to be almost perfect. The effect is to bring about a healthy glow on the scalp, while the hair is left soft and shining after a thorough brushing. Rather high priced, a good brush of this sort will cost over $2, but lasts for years if washed properly, so the cost may be considered worth paying.

The washing of hair brushes is very simple, yet a certain course must be followed: Tepid water with a good soap, the bristles well rubbed with another brush, a comb passed through and through so the bottom of the rows may be touched; two lathers, rinsing in warm water, then in cold, and a rubbing lightly with a towel that does not leave lint. These are simple rules.

The drying should be done by laying the brushes bristles down in a dry, warm place, but not on a radiator or in a hot sun. The heat of either will loosen the bristles. Where very dusty, as after the hair has been filled with dust from a trip or high winds, a teaspoonful of ammonia may be added to the soapy water. This effectually cuts out the greasy dust.

Reason will show that by laying the brushes down on the bristles the water will run out, whereas if placed on the back it will soak into the wood and in time loosen every bristle.

A little sifted cornmeal dusted into brushes and then brushed out often takes away the daily accumulation of dirt where a hairbrush is used constantly, thus saving too many washings. The very particular woman will be utterly confounded to note the appearance of a cloth used to wipe her hairbrush while she is going through her daily application. Where the dirt comes from is a question that can never be [illegible] be convinced that the most [illegible] care is needed every day if she wishes her hair to be free from dirt and her toilet appointments as fastidiously neat as she thinks they should be.

Bright Eyes.

Keeping the eyes bright is by no means a difficult matter. Every woman knows the value of bright, sparkling eyes as an asset to beauty. First avoid all eye strain. One of the greatest mistakes many women make is that of putting off the wearing of glasses long after they are needed. If you need glasses use them. There is no need to wear them constantly. Keep them for work.

Don't wake in a bright light or sleep facing the window. Have your bedroom window open, but the room dark.

Every morning and night wash out your eyes with a weak solution of boric acid, about one teaspoonful of boric powder mixed in six ounces of hot water and allowed to get cool. Apply this with an eye cup, and after one week's use the benefit will be felt and seen.

Beauty Hints.

Nothing restores a tired body and brain more completely than a refreshing bath and a change into fresh, clean clothing.

Get into the habit of keeping several changes of shoes and change your shoes every night when you come home. It is a great rest to tired feet.

Cold water is a splendid preventive of wrinkles, making the skin firm and smooth. The face should be washed in cold water every morning.

If those who perspire freely would use a little ammonia in the water they bathe in every day it would keep the flesh clean and sweet, doing away with any disagreeable odor.

About Wearing Veils.

A good cream applied to the face, carefully wiped off and followed with a good face powder is better than a veil on very cold days. The veil becomes moist from the breath. This causes the skin to chap and roughen, and it takes several days to get the skin back to a normal condition. Re[illegible]

To Maymie Knott.

[Not a rondeau.]

Oh, Maymie, not for all the land
Nor all the treasures in the sea
Would I resign my hope to be
The lucky winner of your hand!
I pine for you to beat the band,
Oh, Maymie Knott!
With shafts of scorn from those dear eyes
Wound not this heart that suppliant lies,
With Cupid's darts that tantalize,
Oh, maim me not!
—New York Mail.

Proud, of Course.

One very cold day Tom, in his first trousers, was walking out with his tiny overcoat turned back to its utmost limit.

"Tom," said his father, "button your coat."

The boy demurred.

"Look at mine," said his father.

Power and Economy
Combined with Permanent

The "McLaughlin Six," which we made last year caused an entire revolution in automobile construction—providing a most luxurious and powerful Motor Car at a moderate price.

Experienced Motorists throughout Canada showed their appreciation by creating such a demand that we were unable to meet it.

The result is that we have been assured of its popularity, and are able to produce them at and give an even better car—that is the car has many minor improvements in body refinements and mechanical details.

LOWER PRICES

The McLaughlin-Buick famous "Valve-in-Head" Motor develops most power with least fuel. Every Motor is guaranteed to develop and DELIVER more power than any other type of Automobile Motor of equal size of any make.

The "McLAUGHLIN SIX" is of the graceful Streamline design—has Delco starting, ignition and lighting system—dimming searchlights—disappearing tonneau seats—best hand buffed leather upholstering—English weatherproof top material—new vacuum gasoline feed—cantilever rear springs.

Every "McLAUGHLIN SIX" is GUARANTEED to run at least 17 miles to each gallon of gasoline.

SHOULD BE AS SAMUEL, A MAN WHO WAS ABOVE GRAFT

Rev. R. G. Peever, Points to Bible Character as Model for Private and Political Life — Must Take Stand Against Evil

A sermon of timely interest was preached last evening at George Street Methodist Church by Rev. R. G. Peever, who took for his theme "A Man Above Graft," a subject which he handled in an unbiased and able manner. Taking for his Biblical character, Samuel, he held him before the congregation as a man who was above deceit, wrong-doing, or evil conduct of any description, and who at the close of his life was able to say no man could witness against him as having defrauded, oppressed or bribed another. Samuel's life was unblemished before God and man.

Rev. Mr. Peever then referred to the present stirring times in the Province and Dominion. The new Premier, he said, referring to W. H. Hearst, was a worthy successor to the late holder of the office. Into these stirring times had come the problem of suppressing the liquor traffic, but there were many who seemed to feel that the Premier had missed a splendid opportunity for leading the people out from the blighting influence of liquor. But people must give him their strongest moral support, said the pastor, and trust to the commission to discharge its duties conscientiously.

Commended Premier Borden.

Another evidence of stirring times was the fact of Canada sending her sons to fight in the mighty European conflict. A war session of Parliament had just closed where misappropriation and graft had been exposed. But above these irregularities had been heard the voice of the Premier, and never had Premier Borden stood higher in the estimation of his country because of his bold and unfaltering attitude in his determination to wipe out such misappropriation and graft. All our other statesmen must take this determined stand, said the speaker. A common excuse heard in justification of wrong-doing and graft uttered by one statesman to another was, "Well, when you were in the position you did the same." That was a wrong argument altogether. The grafter today was a traitor. He was a double traitor. The man who would graft and misappropriate and benefit financially in times like these by sending supplies to our sons fighting in a foreign country that are unsuitable and which might mean death to them, was despicable.

Strengthen the Moral Life.

"The only way to offset and check the evil was to strengthen the moral viewpoint of the young life of the land. The Samuels and the Josephs must stand together to cleanse this young land. We must speak out strongly, sympathetically and courageously against evil conduct."

"I believe," declared the reverend speaker, "that ninety per cent. of the people of this great Dominion would like to have the searchlight of truth and honesty thrown upon evil and graft in the land and its rottenness exposed and an era of absolute honesty and upright dealing prevail."

People Were Apologetic.

Speaking of the attitude of people toward corruption, Mr. Peever felt that it was principally one of apology. But the fact remained that he who stole today from the government was stealing from his neighbor just as surely as though he stole from his pocket. Perverted ideals were also responsible for much evil. Some people's motto was "The least possible for the nation and the most possible for myself." If right would reign, it must be reversed to read, "The least possible for self and the most possible for others."

In conclusion, Mr. Peever said the only solution was to inculcate high ideals of public service into the minds of the people and work together, not as Grits and Tories to fight the evils of the land, but as true Christian citizens.

During the service a duet, "Watchman, What of the Night?" was splendidly sung by Miss Lottie Hanson and Mr. Charles Thorpe.

Miss Irene Booth Leads in The Review's Great Contest

Thousands of Votes Were Cast on Saturday and the Public Interest in the Contest is at Fever Heat — Miss Gorman Leads in No. 2; Miss Johnston in 3 and Miss Miller in District 4

ONE WEEK MORE OF "TRIPLE VOTES"

This is a Most Important Week — The Triple Vote Offer Will End Saturday Night — Your Friends Will Help You Now if You Explain The Vote Value of Their Subscription if Paid This Week

Saturday was a busy day in the Review contest office. Votes came in a veritable avalanche and nearly 50,000 coupon votes were cast for the different candidates. Splendid returns came from each district and the public interest in the great international tour contest is growing every day. Every one will have a favorite before many days go by and the contest promises to be a big success.

Miss Booth Leads.

Miss Irene Booth, District 1, leads the entire contest with a total of 24,075 votes. Saturday's vote in favor of this popular young lady was 5,950, and goes to show that she has a host of friends who are interested in her success. Miss Maude Bogue is in second place having made a gain of 3,725 on Saturday and Miss Olive Yelland is next in line with a total of 16,375.

In District No. 2, Miss Marion Gorman heads the list. Miss Gorman made a splendid gain on Saturday, 3,375 votes being turned in to her credit. Miss Mabel Young, who just started a few days ago is a close second and promises to be one of the strongest contenders of the contest. Friends of Miss Derry and Miss Ward also rallied to their support in fine fashion and Mrs. C. J. Hicks made a gain of over 2,250 votes.

Miss Olga Johnston in District 3 must have a host of good friends for this popular lady secured more coupons on Saturday than any other candidate. 8,750 votes were turned in to her credit and Miss Johnston now occupies first position in her district. Miss Newton of Cavan is, however, a very close second, and is doing splendid work in the way of getting subscriptions. Miss Teanie Boate, who is just a new starter in the contest is also deserving of congratulations. Nearly 3,000 votes were cast for her on Saturday and she has a large number of friends who will do all they can to make her the winner of a trip to the World's Fair.

Miss Olga E. Miller leads in District No. 4 with a total of 10,125 and is doing excellent work in collecting subscriptions. Mrs. Walter H. Kidd is second in line and Miss Lola Kemp of Keene is third. The votes cast so far represent only the coupons clipped from the paper and is evidence of the support the candidates are receiving from their friends.

An Important Week.

This is the most important week of the entire contest. The "Triple Vote" offer will come to a close on Saturday night. It is evident to the candidates, then, that they should secure every possible subscription before Saturday. Subscribers and friends should help now as their subscriptions will count three times as many votes if paid this week. Lose no time this week contestants. Get every possible subscriptions you can.

How a Little Lad Voted.

"Here's a vote for my favorite." He was a little chap with a rather tousled head crowning a full-grown crop of freckles, and he held before him a square of paper, a ballot in the tour contest—and not particularly "neatly trimmed along the border," according to Hoyle and the contest manager.

"She's going to win, too," he added.

Then looking up wistfully, he said: "Don't you think so?"

It was hard not to tell him "yes," but he went on:

"You see, this lady is my teacher and I have got the whole bunch working for her—every one of the boys and girls, too—and, golly, the way the coupons are pilin' up is sumpin' fierce."

The contest manager took the coupon and smiled, for it was only one, and polka-dotted with finger marks, but it reflected the spirit and interest which this sunny faced little chap was taking in his teacher, who had enrolled her name as a candidate in the transcontinental tour contest. Only a diminutive piece of paper, but it represented a message of affection, and a link in the endless chain of cause and effect from which successful organization is perfected. "Great oaks from little acorns grow."

"She's got to win," was his parting shot as he waved a hurried farewell; and scampered through the door of the contest department, apparently to make the rounds for the further collection of ballots.

And his favorite will surely win if all her friends are as staunch and true as this diminutive champion, from now until the close of the campaign. Deeply in earnest, he is bending every effort to pilot her to success, and her progress helped onward by the little lad who is so loyal, will be watched with interest.

His is the spirit that makes success possible, and the spirit will gradually become manifest throughout the contest territory, when the race is on in earnest, when all the candidates shall be eagerly engaged in accumulating the ballots which will mean success and a glorious trip across the continent.

How to Get the Votes.

Talk earnestly when you are asking for a subscription and when your friends see that you are really in earnest and want very much to win, it will be an easy matter. If "just in for fun to see if you could win" —you'd need not be surprised to find yourself at the bottom of the heap at the final count.

There is not one in the race who can feel sure of her laurels until the last vote is counted on June 5. Every candidate has friends who have promised to subscribe before the contest closes. The candidates should not let one opportunity go by them without exhausting its value in the way of securing these votes now. If such advice is heeded, there will be no regrets.

Use the telephone and make personal calls—anyone will do—be sure to get them all.

Those at the head of today's list should not allow a moment to slip by in which they may gain a vote, as all such will be needed when the real struggle comes. All at the bottom of the list should move heaven and earth until they get on top. It can be done, anything can be done if you only think it can and think hard enough about it. Nothing is impossible to the one who really does make a serious effort; things are only impossible to the half-hearted.

Several changes are likely to take place shortly and new leaders may be looked for any day.

THERE ARE QUITE A FEW IN THE CONTEST WHO DREAM THEY CAN WIN A TOUR TO THE WEST, INCLUDING FIRST-CLASS TRANSPORTATION, FIRST-CLASS HOTELS, FIRST-CLASS EVERYTHING FROM START TO FINISH — BY SENDING IN A FEW CLIPPINGS CUT FROM THE PAPER.

WAKE UP, MISS CANDIDATE! YOU KNOW THAT CAN'T BE DONE, SO PUT IN THE EFFORT YOU KNOW IS NEEDED AND GET AMONGST THE LEADERS.

Contest Bulletins.

This is the last week of big votes.

It is not too late to enter the contest. Send in your name today.

Go in to win—you have lots of friends supporting you.

Play fair—honesty always wins.

The young lady at the foot of the list today may be the leader tomorrow.

This is the most important week. Take advantage of your opportunity.

The contest office is open every evening till 9 o'clock.

Let your motto be, "Hustle, Hustle, and keep on hustling."

ODDFELLOWS AT DIVINE SERVICE

Anniversary of Order Observed by Parade to Murray Street Church

"Your oddity ought to be excellence. Your oddity ought to stand out before the eyes of the critics of the world for that which is right and worthy of men." These words were spoken last evening by Rev. J. R. Webb to the members of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges I.O.O.F., who assembled in the Murray Street Baptist Church, in commemoration of the ninety-sixth anniversary of the Order. The men of the Order were present in large numbers and they heard an eloquent exhortation to exercise true fraternal love, to weep with those who weep and rejoice with those who rejoice. The speaker placed before his listeners the love of Jonathan and David, as told in the first book of Samuel, and sought to show how that same love should be the sign of all Oddfellows.

Friendship, love and truth, the symbol of the Oddfellows should be practiced, particularly truth. The love Jonathan had for David discriminated and Oddfellows should discriminate. The preacher pointed out how there is great possibility of running mad over increase of membership, to multiply and become great. He urged that the order should discriminate and permit only those who were really worthy to become members. Jonathan loved David from the moment he saw him slay Goliath. The Oddfellows should admit to their Order only those who can kill their enemies. It would be better to have fifty worthy members than five hundred who were not worthy.

Rev. Mr. Webb referred to the custom of members weeping with those who weep, sitting by the bedside night after night of their sick brethren, sending floral tributes in times of death and comforting those bereaved. He also urged that members rejoice with those who rejoice. It is infinitely harder to rejoice with those who rejoice than to weep with those who weep. When an appointment is going and an Oddfellow gets it, another Oddfellow will grind his teeth and claim that he was just as worthy of it as the one who received it. Jonathan told David to take the highest seat and let him be beside him. This should be the spirit in the hearts of all Oddfellows.

In conclusion Mr. Webb touched briefly upon the secrecy of the Order remarking how Jonathan and David had a secret in common and both were blessed by the Lord. So with all Oddfellows, the secret they have should be open to the scrutiny of Jehovah.

A choir of male voices, assisted in the service. Mr. Asa Huycke also gave a solo.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR CANADIANS

Gallantry and Efficiency of Troops Thrills all Canada With Pride Declares Sir Robert Borden in Reply to Message Transmitted by J. J. Carrick.

A BRILLIANT SERVICE

OTTAWA, April 26.—J. J. Carrick, M.P., who is at the front with the Canadian troops, cabled to Maj.-Gen. Hughes that Sir John French telegraphed to Gen. Alderson yesterday as follows:

"I wish to express to you and the Canadian troops my admiration of the gallant stand and fight they have made. They have performed a most brilliant and valuable service. Last night and again this morning I reported their splendid behavior to the Secretary of State, and I have a reply from him, saying how highly the gallantry and determination in a difficult position are appreciated in England."

Sir Robert Borden sent the following cable yesterday to Gen. Alderson, commander of the Canadian division:

"Report of the splendid gallantry and efficiency of division under your command has thrilled all Canada with pride. Warmest congratulations."

Sir Robert also sent the following cable to Earl Grey in reply to a congratulatory message:

"Deeply appreciate your message. Canada is very proud that her sons have upheld so worthily the splendid tradition of our great pioneer races."

Lord Brooke, of Gen. French's staff, cabled Gen. Hughes:

"Hearty congratulations on magnificent behavior of Canadians."

Gen. Hughes replied:

"Sincere thanks for message. Please convey to Sir John and the Canadians the pride and joy of their comrades in Canada for the part they have so nobly played. The Canadians have justly proved that there was no surrender, and that, by whatever fault the guns were lost, they were not allowed to remain in possession of the enemy."

A Canadian Associated Press cable from London says:

"J. L. Garvin, editor of The Observer, whose sober judgment on various phases of the war have earned his weekly war notes a degree of respect, in an estimate of the Canadians' latest achievements, thinks that the Germans must have already sent news to Berlin that they are retaking the lost ground. Things certainly must have looked serious for the allies, even when the French advance again started.

"Fighting shoulder to shoulder with them the Canadians had their chance," continues Garvin, "and the men of the Maple Leaf set their teeth to dare all by a charge, which as a magnificent feat of arms, will stand out in all the annals of this war no matter what it may yet bring. The Canadians attacked the Germans, routed the enemy, captured many prisoners, won back their guns. They have given their brave blood and measure, but have the soldiers' recompense. By sheer valor at a critical hour they baffled the Germans and their asphyxiating gas bombs, and proved how the utmost, despite scientific deviltry, goes down before the indomitable hearts of free men. They have saved the situation dead or living; they have won laurels that cannot wither; through them the name of Canada is nobler in the world to-day and forever greater."

CRISIS AT YPRES PAST ENEMY PRESSED BACK

Use by Germans of Noxious Gases Caused a Temporary Retreat, But Allied Forces Are Once More on the Offensive and Greater Part of Lost Line Has Been Regained.

LONDON, April 26.—The critical stage of the battle precipitated by the Germans north of Ypres, on the British, French and Belgian lines, has apparently been passed, with the allies resuming the offensive and steadily pushing the enemy back. The big surprise gained by the use of asphyxiating gas bombs by the Germans appears to be overcome. A great deal of the lost territory was recaptured by noon yesterday, and latest reports from the battlefield were that conditions were developing favorably for the allies. The Germans attacked Saturday night at several points along the British front from various directions — north, east and southeast—but they were met by a counter offensive as fiery and determined as their own, and were not able permanently to gain new ground, says the French report.

The French War Office also reports that Friday night and Saturday morning and afternoon the enemy made strenuous efforts to avail himself of the surprise he had engineered the day before with his asphyxiating gas, but had no success. At break of day on Saturday, on the left bank of the Yser, where the Germans had penetrated, they succeeded in carrying the village of Lizerne, but the French Zouaves and Belgian Carbiniers immediately rallied, made a vigorous counter-attack, recaptured the village, and passed beyond it. It was discovered Saturday afternoon that the Germans were using two army corps in their attempted advance, and they continued to throw bombs filled with deadly gas. The French and Belgians were able to make rapid progress on their right, but their progress was slower on their left.

In the meantime, the British troops were forced to withstand violent attacks throughout Saturday night and Sunday morning. These ended with the British in possession of the field. Thus was the French right firmly held.

The Belgian War Office confirms the recapture of Lizerne, and reports that the Belgian artillery was able successfully to reply to the German artillery fire, which was directed against the whole of the Belgian lines. The Belgian aviators were hampered by a strong wind, but they were able to make useful reconnaissances.

Sunday's fighting was devoted by the French forces to the clearing of the Germans from the north bank of the Ypres Canal, to which they had penetrated in their rush.

Thousands Starving.

WASHINGTON, April 26. — Many are starving to death, others are committing suicide to escape the terrors of hunger, and thousands are on the verge of starvation in the Province of Szechuan, China, because of famine, according to advices to the State Department received yesterday from the American consulate at Chungking.

Danish Steamer Captured.

COPENHAGEN April 26. — The Danish steamer Nidaros, 631 tons net, has been captured by a German warship in the North Sea and taken into port at the Island of Sylt, one of the North Frisian Islands. The Nidaros left Aarhuus, Denmark, for England with a cargo of products.

TAKE POST IN AFRICA

Of Three Hundred Indians, Only Twenty Survive Assault

LONDON, April 26. — An engagement in East Africa which for bloodiness, considering the numbers engaged, surpassed even the fighting on Hill 60 in Belgium, is mentioned briefly in a War Office communique issued by the Official Press Bureau Saturday night.

A force of 300 Indian troops, holding the British post at Jassin, was attacked by 2,000 Germans, and surrendered the post only after the ammunition had been exhausted and only about twenty of the defenders remained, the commander of the force being among the slain.

The official statement covers the operations in the British East Africa protectorate between November and March, and says:

"An attempt by Indian and British troops to take Tanga in German East Africa was unsuccessful, and the force re-embarked and proceeded to Mombasa. Simultaneously an attack on a German outpost at Longido resulted in the Germans evacuating their position after suffering heavy losses. The British also drove the Germans out of British territory across the Umba river.

"The British post at Jassin, held by 300 Indians, was attacked by 2,000 Germans. Jassin was surrendered after its ammunition had been expended and the commander and 280 men had been killed.

"An expedition sent from Mombasa occupied the German island of Mafia, the German garrison surrendering unconditionally.

"Shirati, on Lake Victoria Nyanza, was attacked and occupied by the British. The German armed steamer Muanza was driven ashore and disabled. Subsequent fighting at Shirati resulted in the Germans being defeated and retreating in disorder."

Moral courage is a good thing, but don't mistake a tough pachyderm for it.

THE FIRST DIVISION PLAYED HEROIC ROLE IN BATTLE OF YPRES

Twenty-Two Officers Fall on the Field of Honor and Fifty-Eight Have Been Wounded—List of Non-Commissioned Officers Not Ready Yet—Three Lieutenant-Colonels Are Among the Killed.

OTTAWA, April 26. — After more than two months of trench fighting with losses comparatively small the first Canadian Division were given their chance last week in the great battle to the north of Ypres, and as official accounts have indicated they fought with splendid courage and effectiveness. But the victory gained cost Canada many of her brave sons. The official list of casualties thus far reported to the Militia Department at Ottawa show that during the fighting on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and which still is progressing the Canadians lost 21 commissioned officers killed and 59 wounded. Among those killed were three battalion commanders—Lt.-Col. Hart McHarg of Vancouver, Seventh Battalion; Lt.-Col. Arthur P. Burchall, of the permanent staff, and Lt.-Col. Russell L. Boyle of Crossfield, Alberta, Tenth Battalion.

The British War Office Saturday gave out the following official note:

"The fight for the ground into into which the Germans penetrated between Steenstraate and Langemarck still continues. The loss of this part of the line laid bare the left of the Canadian division, which was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops.

"In the rear of the latter had been four Canadian 4.7-inch guns, which thus passed into the hands of the enemy. But some hours later the Canadians made a most brilliant and successful advance, recapturing these guns and taking a considerable number of German prisoners, including a colonel.

"The Canadians had many casualties, but their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation. Their conduct has been magnificent throughout."

The 4.7 guns with the Canadian division are part of the heavy artillery brigade. They are 45-pounders from Montreal, under the command of Major Hall.

The list of casualties shows that practically the entire first Canadian division was in this heavy action at Ypres, which has seen more bloodshed in the fighting for important positions than probably any other centre on the western front. Prior to this engagement, the only one of any real significance since Neuve Chapelle, in which several Canadian battalions supported the British advance, the Canadians were billetted south of Ypres, and took their twenty-four hour shifts in the front line. It is evident from all accounts that the first fighting units from Canada were in the thick of the attack—the greatest battle in which Canadians have ever taken part in the country's history, and their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation."

This engagement is now going on with the Canadians still in the front line according to latest information.

Two lists were issued by the Militia Department yesterday. The first is made up of officers, killed, wounded and missing. The second list containing casualties of a few hours earlier consists of officers and men. The longest list, containing the names of non-coms. and men, is still in preparation and is likely to be issued in sections extending over several days. The latest list of officers is as follows:

Killed.

First Battalion—Major Albert E. Kimmins, Capt. George Crowther Ryerson, Lieut. A. D. Kirkpatrick.

Fourth Battalion — Capt. Donald Glover, Lieut. Cameron D. Brant, Lt.-Col. A. H. Birchall.

NOTABLES' SONS ARE SUFFERERS

German Retaliation Vented on Heirs of British Peers

LONDON, April 26.—There was received here Saturday a list of the 39 British officers placed in detention barracks, 10 of them in solitary confinement, by the German Government. In retaliation for the declination of Great Britain to accord honors of war to the crews of captured German submarines. This list, which was supplied to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin by the German Government, consists of the names of seven captains and 32 lieutenants.

Included in the list are the names of Lord Garlies, Alexander Fraser, master of Saltoun; Lieut. Goschen, son of Sir Wm. Edward Goschen, former British Ambassador to Berlin; Robin Grey, a nephew of the British Foreign Minister, and many sons of peers. Nearly all the prisoners belong to crack regiments.

AYSHA'S CREW ESCAPE.

Survivors of Emden Landed In Arabia Only To Be Attacked.

BERLIN, April 26.—(Via London) The crew of the German warship Aysha, composed of men who escaped when the cruiser Emden was sunk by an Australian warship in the Indian Ocean, Nov. 10, have escaped again from allied patrol ships and arrived at the Arabian harbor of Lidd on March 27. They covered by sea the 300 miles from Hodeida to Lidd.

After reaching the coast the sailors attempted to continue their journey overland, but were attacked by Arabs, supposedly at the instigation of the British. After three days' stubborn fighting the attacks were repulsed and they reached the road to Hodaches, where the railway was open. The adventurous Germans suffered heavy losses.

Says War Will Be Long.

GENEVA, April 26.—Gen. Dankl of the Austrian army is of the opinion that the war will not soon come to an end.

This Austrian commander, who has been active in defending the Carpathian passes against the Russians, expressed this opinion to Major Lanner of the Swiss army, who is also correspondent of Basel Nachrichten.

He declared the war would last for a long time, and said he could not fix even an approximate date for its end.

AUSTRALIA AND FRANCE DEDICATE THEIR BUILDINGS AT THE PANAMA EXPOSITION

ANOTHER MESSAGE FROM THE KING

Third Descriptive Article by The Review's Special Correspondent at the Exposition

(By MARION TAYLOR.)

"The King is much gratified to know that Australia is represented at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to celebrate the success of an enterprise by which, thanks to the great work of the United States, the old world is drawn closer to the commonwealth of the southern seas. His Majesty wishes al success to the Australian pavilion."

The above cablegram was received by the Australian Commission on the occasion of the dedication of the Australian pavilion. It was read by the Hon. Alfred Deakin, president of the Royal Commission from Australia, and was followed by "God Save the King," played by the Young Australian League Band, after which heads were bared as three cheers were given lustily for "our King."

A word about this student boys' band on tour of the world. It numbers thirty-five strapping young fellows from ten to twenty years of age, under the direction of Lieutenant J. J. Simonds, of the Australian army corps, a wealthy man who practically gave up a seat in the Federal House, which might in time have led to a prime ministership, that he might devote his time to the welfare of the students in the colleges of Australia. A band of Tmerican boys had made a tour of that country about a year ago and been received and entertained so magnificently that the young Australians came to California by the express invitation of the Exposition management. After completing their trip through the United States they will cross the water to Europe, meeting all expenses by concerts en route. It is a great education for the boys, and cements international friendship as well.

At the close of the impressive dedicatory exercises, in which President of Exposition Moore and Mayor Rolph took part, there was an exhibition of aboriginal boomerang throwing and stockwhip manipulation by "Saltbush Bill." The cracks of the whip resembled the noise of Gatling guns, and so dexterous was "Bill" that with a sixty-foot whip at long range he cut a cigarette out of the mouth of his assistant, and repeatedly cut in twain paper quills held in his own left hand, using for the latter, however, whips of shorter length. A paddock of kangaroos also added to the pleasure of the guests, these animals never failing to interest the public.

The Australian pavilion is notable for its architectural beauty and its exhibits comprise methods of irrigation, stock-raising, farming and allied industries. Weapons of the aborigines are shown, and there is also a splendid collection of hardwoods. We found the biggest crowd, however, surveying the jewel section. Australian opals are deservedly famous, and the collection embraces some superb specimens. One, a black opal, loaned by an American lady residing in Australia, attracts much attention, its value being $20,000. Then there are nuggets of gold from New South Wales, including a facsimile of the famous Ballarat nugget, valued at $42,144; to say nothing of yellow sapphires — one worth $12,000, and a tray of pearls from Queensland labelled $3750.

New Zealand has a pavilion alongside that of Australia, where it demonstrates its great wealth and the undeveloped resources of its country, especially in agriculture, which offers great inducements to the settler, a feature also of its display in the Agricultural Palace. Wools, flax, refrigerated meats, model school and steamships lend much charm to this exhibit of a very beautiful and healthful colony.

Yesterday the French pavilion was dedicated, and it is with feelings of the most profound emotion that we chronicle it. In our early youth we picked lint for the soldiers of the Franco-Prussian war. Eleven years later we were in Paris, where — so wonderful are the French—not a scar was visible to remind one of her days of tribulation. The felled trees had been replaced by others even more luxuriant in foliage, so that the boulevards were exquisitely beautiful in their dress of vivid green. One day, however, stands out in memory above all others. We were gazing from the incomparable Arc de Triomphe upon that striking scene below when a thoughtless tourist turned impulsively to the guide and asked, "Is not this the arch under which the Germans entered Paris?"

He quivered as though an electric shock had struck him. And then his body grew rigid. We thought at first he would not answer the cruel question, but politeness prevailed, and, with a quietly-spoken "Oui, madame," he turned away. Ah! sunshine, flowers and laughter in that gay city, but underneath a gaping wound that forecasted a reckoning when the day of opportunity should dawn. Is it any wonder that when the same foe drew nigh that city last autumn we anguished with poor France and later rejoiced with her when deliverance came?

And how the people turned out yesterday! People of all nationalities. The splendid French band numbering sixty-five members, nearly all of them Grand Prix men, played the inspiring "Marseillaise" as perhaps only that band can play it, and when President Moore expressed his pleasure at the weather, saying "May it be a token of the bright days in store for France," strong men wept, and "Vive la France" rang out repeatedly. On the platform, erected beneath the tricolor of France and the stars and stripes of America, were gorgeous baskets of flowers, including the historic fleur-de-lis. There Albert Firman, commissioner general from France, gave the dedicatory address in his native tongue, and received a bronze plaque commemorative of the occasion. He made a touching allusion to the gallant little kingdom that has earned the admiration of the world, in the following words: "The glorious cities of Belgium, so cruelly torn by an impious war, have desired to take part in our manifestation, and brave Belgium will be represented here at the side of France, its faithful ally." Perhaps the highest tide of emotion was reached when Governor Johnson's representative said: "This is the year the French people have expunged the word 'impossible' from the lexicon." Then it was that the people clapped their loudest. As President Moore said: "This is the most important, the most significant, the most human event the Exposition has received."

The French pavilion is a perfect reproduction of the Palais de la Legion d'Honneur, which stands near the Cadossa station in Paris. The original structure was built in the eighteenth century for the Prince of Salm, but during the revolution that gentleman lost both his place and his head, and Napoleon I, seeking a home for the Legion of Honor, founded by himself, settled upon the charming building so faithfully duplicated at the Exposition. The "jason" containing the exhibits of the belligerent nations has just arrived, but it will take a little time for this installation, so we must leave their description for our next article.

Cuba's pavilion is close to that of France, and its dedication took place today with General Enrique Loynas del Castillo, commissioner general and hero of eighty battles, as chairman. It is a charming building of Spanish architecture with a central court, in which a fountain alternately colored white and blue throws its spray into the air. Standing on government ground, Cuba desires to present it to the United States for an army club house at the close of the Exposition. Its exhibits include native embroidery, shell work, lace, paintings, building moleds and interesting kindergarten specimens.

The Argentine pavilion is one of the handsomest on the grounds. The republic appropriated $1,700,000 for its participation in the Exposition. A theatre, large ball-room, reception rooms and various dioramas are features of this building which is to be the scene of many brilliant gatherings. Its varied industries are found in the exhibit palaces. Bolivia has also a Spanish-American structure ornamented by most beautiful carving, and containing interesting features of a camparatively little-known country.

Turkey has erected a typical pavilion surrounded by domes, minarets and spires. Its cost was $300,000, and the silks, rugs, carvings and inlaid ornaments promise a rare exhibit when installed.

Italy has a most imposing group of buildings, where an elaborate exhibit of the Italian silk industry, pottery and other industries, together with wonderful models, will be made later. Portugal has a very ornate pavilion, white in color, which strikes a new note in the midst of so much Travertine. It is low and rambling also, making a great contrast to Cuba's building next door, which is two-storied and with a high tower at one corner.

Siam has an unique distinction inasmuch as its pavilion was entirely constructed and set up there, then taken apart and transported to the Exposition, where native workmen are rapidly putting it together. That little country spent a quarter of a million dollars on its exhibits, and the king's brother, Prince Rejani, is exposition commissioner. It is perhaps the most gorgeous miniature palace on the grounds.

China shows her modernity in her reproduction of some of the famous palaces of the "Forbidden City." For their erection Chinese workmen were admitted to the United States by special act of Congress. All materials, even to the dwarf trees for garden decoration and which are said to be several centuries old, were brought from China. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars they set apart for their exhibits and buildings. The carved teakwood furniture inlaid with mosaics, the embroidered screens, exquisite solid silver pagodas in miniature, and rare china almost stagger the beholder.

Japan also is wonderful, more so indeed than any other country in the Orient, because she has been steeping herself in European civilization and adding its glories to her own. In our first article we described "Japan beautiful," situated in what is called the "zone," but there is yet another, the main government exhibit, that we must mention here, for it is one of the largest in the foreign area, comprising nearly four acres. Its temple was erected in Japan and shipped to this country, and its large and exquisite garden transplanted, trees, sod, stones and all—even the gold fish for the ponds—in order that people might have an insight into the landscape gardening of the Mikado's realm. The gold fish are by no means ordinary specimens. Their gorgeous tails spread out elaborate gossamer lengths in the water-like dowagers with trained dresses.

Then who has not read of Nikko, the beautiful? Well, here it is in miniature in one of the buildings adjoining the temple, where may also be seen models illustrative of the silk industry for which Japan is famous. Handsome reception rooms are set apart for the Japanese commission, and in one charming little house the ceremony of tea-serving is gone through at stated intervals, an observance quite intricate and different to our own.

Central America is represented by Honduras and Guatemala. Both pavilions, though differing in form, are striking. The latter gives afternoon concerts, when the marimba, a native instrument, is played. Holland has a very stately building flanked by minarets and carrying a clock tower; it represents a manor house of the Netherlands, and contains elaborate exhibits illustrative of her rich colonies in the East and West Indies. There are also reception and tea-rooms, where pretty Dutch girls serve the fragrant beverage.

Scandinavia is not behind. Norway's building suggests an old castle and its interior reveals a quaint court, rest rooms, typical exhibits and a cozy corner where Norwegian lassies in native dress dispense refreshments. Denmark, which brings to us lovely memories of our beloved Queen Mother Alexandra, is modelled after Hamlet's home, Kronberg Castle, at Elsinore. It was constructed by the Danes resident in the United States, the Danish government loaning the handsome furnishings. In one of the exhibit palaces, however, Denmark has a wonderful display of china and jewelry on her own account.

Sweden's pavilion covers thirty square feet, all its exhibits being under one roof with the exception of its pictures, which are in the Fine Arts Palace. Its great tower makes it resemble a church, and housed within it is a comprehensive display of "slojd" work, including embroidery, lace-making, tapestry-weaving, wood-carving, porcelain and jewelry. The celebrated Nobel foundation is given representation in the Central Hall of the building, that splendid institution awarding five prizes—each amounting to $36,000 — annually to the individuals who have made the most distinguished contributions to physics, chemistry, medicine, literature and toward the furtherance of peace.

Under the heading of States and Territories, we find the pavilion of the Philippine Islands, which forms a quadrangle surrounding a court where its Constabulary Band gives daily concerts. Split bamboo matting is used for wall surfaces in its construction, and the native translucent capis shell for window panes. In the left wing, Filipino are engaged at their various handicrafts, including hand-made mats and hats, the latter being said to excel the well-known Panama hats. There is also a magnificent display of hardwoods, and in an orchid conservatory are rare specimens of that exotic bower.

Hawaii has a fascinating pavilion where one may see realistic moving pictures of its famous volcano, or gaze upon the gayest-colored fish ever seen in an aquarium, while listening to the sweet native music sung by the Hawaiian Glee Club.

The California Host building is the largest state structure ever erected at any exposition, and with its exhibits represents an expenditure of more than two million dollars. It covers five acres of land and follows the old Spanish mission style of architecture. A statue of Junipero Serra, father of the missions, adorns the centre of a court in which orange trees predominate. Fifty-eight counties have their displays in this building, each one with its distinctive features and a subject in itself. A splendid ballroom and reception rooms lavishly furnished—all combine to make this a notable headquarters.

New York's state building is one of the handsomest and the most costly, with the excepton of the California building. In the matter of interior decorations it surpasses any on the grounds, for it has been prepared solely for social purposes, the New York City building—the only municipal one at the Exposition—housing the displays representative of the metropolis. The state building resembles a great Fifth Avenue mansion four stories in height, the second floor for the occupation of the governor and his suite. The interior lighting is by batteries of searchlights concealed in massive ornamental coffers.

The New Jersey building will be the headquarters of President Wilson when he comes. It is a reproduction of the old barracks at Trenton, built in 1758, which during the revolution were used by the British and Hessian troops. The most remarkable piece of furniture is "Governors' Chair," made from a piece of wood from each state in the Union, a silver plate on each section giving the name of the governor in office when the chair was constructed.

Oregon, for her building, has reproduced the Parthenon of Athens, in log and bark from its great forests, only where the ancient edifice had marble columns the Oregon building has columns of giant tree trunks. When the fog comes rolling through the Golden Gate — as occasionally it does — Oregon's great lounge-room, with its giant fireplace heaped with glowing logs and its floor strewn with richly colored Navajo Indian rugs, is a haven of comfort and delight.

Pennsylvania's building is a replica of Independence Hall, Philadelphia. Maryland's building is of brick, a reproduction of the home of one of her most famous citizens, Charles Carroll, who was one of the signers of the declaration of independence; its historic [illegible] interesting specimens of colonial furniture. Massachusetts' is another building containing rare relics of colonial times. It stands in a commanding position and is a reproduction of the old Boston State House. In addition it is the only building boasting a golden dome at the Exposition.

Virginia, called the "Mother State of Presidents," presents Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington. It contains many heirlooms that belonged to him, loaned by a Virginian lady. Ohio has a handsome building as befits the state that has sent more presidents to Washington than any other. She proudly exhibits busts of Presidents Taft, McKinley, Hayes, Harrison, Garfield, and Grant. Illinois has, as her chief treasure in her large building, a Lincoln room, containing busts, pictures, priceless letters and documents of that great man to whom America owes so much. If anyone can visit that sacred place without a quickening of the pulse, he is less than human.

Texas designed her building to recall the famous Alamo. Utah reproduces one of her great copper mines in the interior of her pavilion. Washington, among other relics, presents a prairie schooner of "the days of old, the days of gold, and the days of '49." With these waggons emigrants trekked across the continent during those historic times, using the body of the machine as a boat, when rivers had to be crossed. The great salmon industry is also demonstrated in this large and handsome building. The Indiana pavilion is smaller than some of the others, but is a veritable gem; early English in architecture, even to the "lych" gate. Its library reminds one of a baronial mansion, elegant in its rich carved galleries and dignified character. The lighting of its drawing room is so unique that we must refer to it. Two large vases, like those used for flowers out of doors — only reaching two-thirds of the way to the ceiling —are placed at each end of the room, and the arc lights are hidden in their bowls, diffusing a soft golden glow that is charming. It was here that former Vice-President Fairbanks gave a reception to Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall when they were here for the formal opening of the Exposition two or three weeks ago. There are other state buildings, but we have specified the most notable.

On April 3rd the handsome Press building, which is located to the right of the main Exposition entrance, was dedicated, and for the first time in the history of the United States the federal government officially designated the famous battleship Oregon to participate in a ceremony of that kind. The army also was represented. A message was received from Secretary of State Willaim J. Bryan over the direct Western Union wire, in which he mentioned that while we, in California, were enjoying sunshine, Washington was being treated to a blizzard. He then touched a button, and the stars and stripes unfurled in our midst to the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." There were the usual speeches from officials, including an eloquent and well-deserved tribute to the humble reporter, the man who does most of the real work of the newspaper and who is not always paid according to his ability.

Then—for "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," even in the newspaper business—the fun began. An effigy of Dull Care was buried in a newly-made grave, although Gloom pleaded for him. The Judge being merciless, several Joys, clad in white, chased the sable-robed Gloom away. Dancing of the nations followed. First of all, ebony Somalis from Africa, straight as a reed, flung their sweeping white robes around to a fantastic measure. Next came the Maori girls of New Zealand, some of them tatooed in signification of their higher rank, and they seemed to greatly enjoy the "funeral." The gentle chocolate-colored Samoans followed and as they danced we thought of poor Robert Louis Stevenson and the home he loved at Apia, surrounded by the kindly natives, of whom he always spoke so feelingly. Indian and Turkish girls also took part, and the Hawaiian singers discoursed sweet music. Finally taps were sounded and salutes fired by the army and navy, and the exercises were closed. The unique program was in the form of a tombstone on which was inscribed:

"Here lies Dull Care, the unloved child of Woe and Misery, buried by the Press Club of San Francisco, April 3rd, 1915."

LOGS IN THE WAY.

Sixty thousand logs began to move down Eel's Creek last week. They are the property of the Peterborough Lumber Company and represent the tail end of a drive of 125,000 pieces of timber which they attempted to bring down last summer. Through a combination of unfortunate circumstances half of them were stranded high and dry along the bed of the creek owing finally to the lowness of water. The last logs of the first or successful drive reached Stoney Lake July 7th, the rest being left for this spring's freshet. This year the Peterborough Lumber Company let the contract of bringing them down to the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., who commenced operation last week. A gang of men was sent north on Monday and by the end of the week had moved the drive over two miles on its downward course, using the flood water for the purpose. Eel's Creek is full of water, there being eight feet over the sill of the dam at the present time. This will be utilized as required to float the logs onward.

CORN IMPROVEMENT.

The greater part of the report of the Ontario Corn Growers' Association, now ready for distribution, is taken up with valuable hints on the breeding of seed corn. Methods of improving the yield of husking and silage varieties are given by both college trained specialists and by practical farmers, with the result that the report contains what may be termed the latest word in corn growing.

The raising of alfalfa as an alternate crop is advocated, and some excellent pointers are given concerning its cultivation.

The report also contains a homely but very timely talk by an Essex county man on "The Value and Intelligence of Birds on the Farm," which will be found most refreshing as well as informing reading. A brief but suggestive article is also given on the use of electricity on the farm.

RUSSIANS HELD THEIR GROUND

Against German Assaults on Several Points

PETROGRAD, April 26.—Russians standing on the defensive, had to sustain German attacks on several fronts, Saturday and Sunday. In the Carpathians, a large increase in the German artillery is reported on the whole front, indicating that the enemy has brought up fresh units. Repulse of a series of persistent attacks in the region of Uszok Pass by rifle fire and hand grenades, is reported from the Russian headquarters yesterday morning.

Revival of warfare in Russian Poland was signalized by German attacks in units varying in size from two companies to one battalion on the Russian advanced positions between Kalwarya and Ludwinow. The Russian War Office says that all these attacks were easily repulsed by the Russian fire and that after one of these repulses the enemy fled in disorder.

The new Russian aircraft, called the Ilza Mouretz, figured in an attack on the Neidenburg station in East Prussia, where they destroyed a portion of the railway line and caused a number of fires.

The citizens of Walkerville are raising $15,000, which will complete the amount of $50,000 promised to the Canadian patriotic fund. Already $35,000 has been subscribed.

MAJOR BEATTIE'S

side two shells from trench mortars fell in or near the trench. Machine guns opened on our left, and rifles cracked out their unwelcome warning all around us. The star flarelights and searchlights of the enemy gave us from time to time light to see in what a gruesome business we were engaged.

Big Battles.

Big battles are being waged. Last night I went to a garret window and watched the artillery duel. We wait to hear of the victory on our left corresponding to the one on our right on March 10th. For hours at a time the roar of guns is like the roar of an angry summer thunderstorm. Shells whizz and scream through the air like mad demons. One shell fell in the street near here yesterday killing a sergeant. The place I slept one night last week had the corner blown off and a gable end blown in and numerous holes all around. A village nearby is a complete wreck. However, the tide is with us, and victory will surely be ours. Our men are very confident and in the best of spirits. It is astonishing how quickly one gets used to danger. While I write the windows are rattling just as if a door were banging downstairs somewhere.

With very best wishes for all, I am, very sincerely,

WILLIAM BEATTIE.

Letter No. 2:

March 19, 1915.

Dear Mr. Horne,—I did not get the enclosed posted, so will bring the news up to date. Monday night I went into the trenches at one end and went through the labyrinth and out at the other. Have a doubt that most people think of the trenches as one long straight line or ditch in the fields, in which men stand watching for the enemy over a pile of sandbags. As a matter of fact, in going through the trenches one walks about four miles in going one. Then, too, they (the trenches) are not always connected up. At one place we had to leave the trenches, climb up over the parapet and walk over the field in front of the trench toward the German trench in order to enter our other line of trenches. While going over this open with my guide, the Germans put up five of their bright star flarelights and turned their searchlights on us. We bit the dust, that is, we threw ourselves flat in the mud, and lay perfectly still until the lights went out, then up and on a few steps more, and again down in the mud. All the while bullets whizzed around us. The terrifying "ping" of those bullets as they whizz by or strike nearby is something one cannot describe—it must be experienced. I can assure you I was glad when we reached the other trench in safety. To my horror, though, three hours later, I found my guide bringing me out over the same place again. Then before leaving the trench to come home we had a bit of excitement. It was just 12 o'clock midnight.

A Night in the Trenches.

I had just arranged to come out with a party when a terrible rattle of rapid rifle fire began on our right, and word came down the line, "Stand [illegible]" every man hurried out of his dugout. For some time it went on. Flare lights were put up by our side and our men fired. The attack, however, did not spread to the portion in front of us, and half an hour later I was led out over the open field behind the trenches, where I got a road that I knew. The road is commanded by enemy rifle fire, machine guns and artillery. It was pitch dark and all one could see was what rose against the bit of brighter skyline, or when a flare light would go up. Of course, every tree and stump resolved itself into an enemy with stealthy tread toward me. Was I frightened? Well, that lonely road I knew well was the place where snipers had picked off several of our men, and I confess without shame that I was mighty glad when I got back to my billet in safety. That is but one night's experience in the trench. Think of our boys doing this night after night for four nights at a stretch. Every man who lives and deals in the trench is a hero. It is one thing for a chaplain to go into the trench once in a while, and to go as I go night after night up to the outposts behind the trenches, but these brave fellows who go in for four days, subject to sniping, rifle fire, machine guns, trench mortars and shell fire, are worthy of their country's best honor and support.

Who Goes There?

I was on my way to the advance post the other night, and was challenged by a sentry who shouted out in the darkness, "Who goes there?" "Friend." "Advance and be recognized. Who are you?" "Major Beattie, chaplain, First Brigade." "Oh, Hello! Major B," replied a Cobourg boy. "This is Major Ralston's billet." I went in and joined Major Ralston, Lieut. Craig and Ted MacNachtan, and spent a jolly hour discussing events. Ted came on with me to the outpost, where we buried a man in our battalion graveyard in a field 50 yards from where Ted had been lurking four days on watch. As the four of us stood around the shallow grave, with the stillness of the night broken only by the swish of bullets, and the distant crack of an occasional rifle, one's sad heart turned on the home far away that in a day or two would receive the little yellow missive saying "Your son was killed in action." May God comfort the sorrowing [illegible]

Yours very sincerely,

WILLIAM BEATTIE.

PRIVATE CASEY HAD PIG'S FOOT

Ordered to Throw it Away He Hit an Unexpected Mark

MOOSEJAW, April 26. — "Private Casey, throw that pig's foot away!" roared Corporal Forbes of the 46th Battalion to Joseph Casey; who was unsuccessfully endeavoring to open both his hands above his head during physical drill at the Armories recently without losing the precious pig's foot he had pilfered while on an excursion through the commissariat department. Casey, who was a good soldier, even under the most extenuating circumstances, obeyed orders without delay, letting both his arms fall with a swish, and letting go his hold of the tasty morsel at the same instant. His promptness was the beginning of his undoing, however, for the stolen foot never wavered in its course until it had administered a good whole-souled kick to Corporal Forbes' nose.

In an instant there was a guard surrounding Casey, and in another he was ushered into the military offices, and thence out of the 46th Battalion forever. This wounded Casey's good Irish soul, and a few days ago, when he was in the bar of the Cecil Hotel, he saw a number of the soldiers of the battalion. Revenge is sweet, thought Casey, and he at once proceeded to avenge his military disgrace upon the bodies of the representatives of the battalion there present. He was making excellent headway when the police arrived on the scene and effected a rescue of the besieged party.

In police court Casey pleaded guilty to creating a disturbance in a public place and to being a vagrant, and Justice of the Peace Spotton handed him thirty days' fatigue duty in the guard room presided over by the Mounted Police in Regina.

REV. ARTHUR PHELPS AT CHARLOTTE ST.

Rev. Arthur Phelps, son of Rev. L. Phelps, of Mark Street Methodist Church, occupied the pulpit in Charlotte Street Methodist Church last evening, preaching a very thoughtful and elevating sermon. Rev. Arthur Phelps has just been ordained and takes a circuit this year. He graduated from Toronto University and is regarded as one of the brightest of the younger ministers in this conference. His theme yesterday was along the line of what is real in life. He believed that people were laboring under false ideas of life, believing that certain things existed which did not, and under a misapprehension in regard to the great things of life.

At one of the services yesterday Mr. R. F. Downey, of the finance committee, reported a most encouraging condition of affairs financially in the church, which showed that they had never been so good in the past ten or fifteen years.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY TO HOLD QUARTERLY MEETINGS

A meeting of the Children's Aid Society is slated to take place early in May and the indications are that a considerable amount of business will have to be dealt with. Under the new act the society is compelled to hold quarterly meetings instead of the one annual meeting, and at each of these meetings the business is handled by the officers and executive. In this way all matters are kept up to date and the business not allowed to stand over.

Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill said this morning that there are more children confined in the Shelter than there has been for some time. He was unable to say exactly how many had been placed there last week but he knew of six. These included the children of the Whitehead and Tamblyn families. Mr. Goodwill says whenever an attempt is made to look after neglected children and when they are placed, [illegible] to be properly cared for [illegible] necessary—there are people in the city who make it their business to interfere and suggest that the children be returned to their parents, apparently forgetful of the fact that the society is trying to do what is best for the children.

With his fourteen years' experience in Brazil, Rev. Mr. McEwen was able to speak authoritatively of the country and its people and of the progress of missionary work, in which he was assisted for many years by his wife. Mrs. McEwen died in 1912.

HE GETS CHANCE TO TO DO BETTER

Frank Oliver Avery, who has been on remand for non-support, came up this morning before the magistrate and was granted a month in which to make good. Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, of Knox Church, was present and vouched for the respectability of his wife's people. The circumstances of the case are that Avery left his wife last October and went away looking for work without telling her, and did not write to her much. His wife gave birth to twins during his absence, and having no means of support was forced to accept assistance. Now, however, Avery says he and his wife have made up, and he is going out to work on the farm until business is better for him. He is a plumber by trade.

REVOLT AT SINGAPORE TURKS' WORK

Dramatic Details of Outbreak Are Given in Letter

EUROPEANS SHOT

CHICAGO, April 26. — A special corerspondence letter to the Daily News from its London correspondent says:

"Sufficient details of the recent Singapore riot are beginning to leak through to indicate that it was the most extraordinary native outbreak a British colony has experienced since the Indian mutiny. Dramatic details are given in a letter I have seen just received by a Mr. Lloyd of Kirby, Essex, from his son, G. J. Kirby, stationed at Johore.

" 'The Singapore affair,' he writes, 'has been very terrible. The local newspapers were not allowed to be sent out of the place, and we have depended on wandering Chinese for scraps of information.

" 'A friend of mine returned last night, however. He went through it and knows all about it.

" 'Thirty-three names of dead Europeans have een published, seven of whom were civilians, but the latter are only those who were in no volunteer regimental association of any kind. Really the majority of the killed were civilians, clerks or business men belonging to local corps. Any number under a hundred may be dead, as a matter of fact, while the rebels killed may be 300 to 500. The mutiny has been coming for a long time. It was probably finally hatched by the Turks in Singapore, who comparatively are really very few.

" 'The Fifth Light Infantry, Mohammedan Indian troops, broke out from two different barracks simultaneously and simply ran wild. One barrack is next to the golf course. When the mutineers had rushed out on to it the players merely thought a sham fight was on and went on with their game until some of them were shot down. Two of those shot dead with their golf clubs in their hands were a major and a captain in the Royal Garrison Artillery.

Women Feigned Dead.

" 'Then on into the road rushed the mutineers, firing at every white man and woman in sight. A doctor and his wife were shot in their automobile. The doctor was killed outright. His wounded wife escaped death by feigning it after staggering to a ditch and flinging herself down there. Another man and his wife were murdered n their automobile, and mutilated. Outlying bungalows were attacked, the Chinese servants being passed over and Europeans searched for. My friend found three killed in one house; the bodies had lain there two days.

" 'Meanwhile at the other barracks two of the British officers were murdered. The mutineers guarding the German prisoners shot down theri loyal fellow sentries of the Singapore Fifth Rifles, and, opening the gates, let all the prisoners out, arming some, I believe. There was a pitched battle in defence of the government house. Sixty volunteer civilians pluckily charged 300 mutineer soldiers, who fired into them and turned tail. At the point of the bayonet these civilians chased them clear of the town.

" 'I should have said that at the first outbreak, every white civilian was called up and armed. The Japanese consul called out the Japanese reservists, and any ships of the allies in near waters were wirelessed for. Eventually there were British soldiers, sailors and volunteers, French and Russian soldiers and police in action against the rebel Bengalis in one way or another.

" 'The cause and effect may never be fully known. The German prisoners, who had all along been treated with much laxity, may have engineered the whole thing. Anyway, it was well timed.

" 'There were many remarkable incidents during the mutiny. The second night, for instance, an overworked volunteer, who walked in his sleep was challenged by a sentry and was shot as he flaled to give the password.' "

FOUND WORK AT POLICE COURT

The railbirds were as plentiful as ever in police court this morning, even though the weather was nice outside. For a wonder, there happened to be in their number one man who wanted a job, and he got it through the kindness of Police Magistrate Dumble. "If there is any man among you," said his Worship, "who wants a job plastering, let him stand [illegible] a second [illegible] then up went the hand of a man, William McKinley by name. William was anxious for work, as was apparent by the look of earnest thankfulness that flitted momentarily across his face. The magistrate, deeming the air outside was better than inside the court, cleared the room, and brought William up to the desk, giving him instructions where to find a job in the north part of the city. It was perhaps a lucky thing for him that he went to the police court this morning, probably having nowhere else to go. At any rate it brought him a job, and he departed after gratefully expressing his appreciation.

Unless Board of Trade Can Arrange for Better Service

The President of the Board of Trade has received letters from circulation managers of the Toronto papers and one from J. T. Arundel, general superintendent of the C.P.R.

The correspondence has to do with the train service. The time table will be changed at the end of May and as a result, Mr. Arundel writes, "We will not be able to take the morning papers to Peterborough as we are doing now, as the train concerned will leave shortly after midnight."

This being the case the papers will come on the passenger train, which means a later delivery.

It is suggested that the Board take the matter up and this action will be taken.

EVIDENCE IN ACTION FOR $1500 DAMAGES

Mother of Wesley White Recites Circumstances Under Which Her Young Son Was Injured by Discharge of Dynamite Cap

A special sitting of the County Court, presided over by His Honor Judge Huycke, at which the case of William and Wesley White of Campbellford vs. Thomas Sampson, Luman Jordan and William Jordan is being heard, was opened this morning at ten o'clock. The case arises from the accident which befell Wesley White, the seven-year-old son of William White, on the 17th May, 1914. The boy was playing around the home of Luman Jordan, owned by William Jordan, in Campbellford. The property was rocky, and to permit the construction of a fence, William and Luman Jordan employed Thomas Sampson to execute blasting operations. When Wesley White was playing on the property on Sunday, May 17th, 1914, he found a dynamite cap, which exploded in his hand, and caused him to lose two fingers and a thumb on his right hand and also caused injury to his face and body. Through Solicitor G. N. Gordon, William and Wesley White are suing the three above named defendants for $1,500 damages. I. A. Humpheries of Campbellford is acting for the defendants.

Mother Testifies.

Mrs. William White, mother of the child, was the first witness called. When Wesley met with the accident he was seven years of age. They have been living n Campbellford for over a year, coming from a farm. Her husband is unable to work, so she works and helps to keep the family.

On the day of the accident she was away from home. She had heard blasting on other evenings at the rear of Mr. Jordan's house which is on the next lot to their home. William Jordan is the father and Luman Jordan is his son. Both Luman Jordan and the Whites are tenants, and the land is owned by William Jordan. There is no fence between the properties. The ground at the rear of their houses is rocky.

The accident occurred on Sunday and on Friday she had heard blasting operations being carried on at the rear of Luman Jordan's house. She had also seen William and Luman Jordan measuring the land off, intending to erect a fence. It was usual for the neighbors to go over and look over the ground after the blasting was completed. There are many children in the neighborhood and they play usually n the vicinity of the blasting. Wesley had often played there. There were no fences or lines to keep animals or children out. The blasting she witnessed was being done by Luman Jordan, Thos. Sampson, John White and James Graham. She thought the children played oftener than once a day on the Jordan property; in fact it was a playground.

When she returned home the day

GERMAN HEADQUARTERS STATEMENT

BERLIN, April 27. —The official statement says: "Attacks on the German line by very strong British forces completely broke down with extraordinary heavy losses to the enemy, who were partly flanked by artillery fire. Germans still hold the bridge head on the Yser canal at Lizerne. Up to the present we have taken fifty machine guns in fighting around Ypres. Our guns now command an important railway junction and military headquarters at Poperinghe, eight miles west of Ypres."

The report also tells of the failure of French attacks at various points along the line.

"Germans sustained heavy losses."

"Today along our front the artillery of the enemy has shown a certain amount of activity. Our artillery replied with success, and, by strong fire, proved of useful help to the French. These troops made an attack on Lizerne, which yesterday fell into the hands of the enemy, but which was wrested from them again this afternoon."

OWNERS OF DOGS MUST HUSTLE

Business in Licenses is Not Booming

Either a shortage of ready money or procrastination has caused fewer dog licenses to be taken out by owners that were issued at this time last year. There are only three more days open in which to get the necessary license, so dog owners had better hustle or else they run chances of being summoned to court. May 1st is the limit of time allowed.

On April 26, last year, business was brisker in this line as the records showed 207 licenses taken out. However today, Chief Thompson for the information of reporters showed his book which recorded only 95 issued.

UNION LABEL

A DISPUTE BETWEEN A BANK AND A CUSTOMER.

DISPUTES between a bank and its customers over the amount of exchange charged have been more or less frequent, and in view of this the dispute is interesting in its results. According to the reports, a draft, presumably at sight, for $19.50, with a bill of lading attached, was made on a firm in an Ontario town. The draft was drawn with exchange and the bank presenting it added 25 cents for this purpose, making the total amount $19.75. Apparently the item was negotiated and collected by the same bank—that is to say, a branch at one point negotiated the draft and sent it for collection to its own branch at the place of domicile. The drawees protested against paying the amount of exchange demanded, contending that under Section 93 of the Bank Act the exchange which the banks could charge was limited to 1/8 of 1 per cent. with a minimum of 15 cents. Section 93 states that the bank may receive, in case of a bill discounted at one branch and payable at any of its places or seats of business, in addition to the discount thereon, a percentage not exceeding 1/8, with minimum of 15 cents. Section 94 provides similarly that if the bill is payable at a point where the bank has no branch the exchange charge is not to exceed 1/4 per cent. with minimum of 25 cents.

The dispute in the above-mentioned case ended in a victory for the drawee and the bank is said to have refunded the 10 cents overcharge after considerable correspondence. Although the amount was small, a principle of some importance was involved. The question, to a certain extent, bears on the rates charged by the banks for discounting or cashing bills drawn by wholesalers and manufacturers on their customers throughout the country. In case of all services of this kind the charge made by the bank should suffice to reimburse it for actual costs or disbursements and give it reasonable remuneration for the work performed.

As regards the costs or expenses in connection with a transaction like this, it is possible to determine them with some measure of accuracy, but as regards what would constitute reasonable remuneration for the bank, there is room for difference of opinion. When it is remembered that the financial reports of Canadian banks in recent years show increasing profits ranging from 12 to 17 per cent., it is clear that the banks have been receiving an exceptionally generous remuneration. Many of them have been paying for a number of years a dividend of 12 per cent. per annum, and rolling up from undivided profits a reserve fund that in some cases exceeds their capital stock. There may be plenty of cases of overcharge, and, to remedy such, the customer should know what the bank is allowed to charge. Banks are in a position to take advantage, through the carelessness of a clerk or otherwise, of a customer's ignorance of the restrictions on a bank.

GERMANY'S FAILURE ON SEA.

THE OFFICIAL Admiralty summaries of the loss inflicted by the enemy on the British mercantile marine since the beginning of the war furnish a most gratifying proof of the method and completeness with which the German flag has been swept from the seas, says a writer in the London News and Leader.

Our losses in merchantmen on the high seas have, thanks to the vigilance of the British navy, been reduced with almost mechanical precision. The last statement issued by the Admiralty covers the period from the outbreak of war down to March 17th — thirty-two weeks — and if this period is divided into four equal parts of eight weeks, it will be found that in each successive period the losses were more or less exactly halved. Here are the figures for ships sunk by enemy cruisers:

August 5 to September 30	27
October 1 to November 25	15
November 26 to January 20	8
January 21 to March 17	4

Looking at these figures, it is a little difficult to recall the indignation with which the comparatively long and successful run of the Emden was regarded in many quarters in this country, where it seemed to be imagined that the mere declaration of war would drive all the enemy's ships to the bottom.

Two of the German commerce destroyers, the armed merchantmen Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and Cap Trafalgar, were sunk in the first of the above four periods, but it was the destruction of the Emden on November 9th that knocked the bottom clean out of this particular part of the German war plan. In the fourteen weeks that preceded that event, Germany's cruisers sank 41 of our merchantmen, but in the subsequent eighteen weeks they accounted for no more than thirteen.

Three other German cruisers besides the Emden were lost in the second period of eight weeks. The Konigsberg was trapped and subsequently destroyed in the Rufigi river, on the east coast of Africa; the Geier was interned at Honolulu; and the Karlsruhe, as the admiralty announced, met her doom in the West Indies.

In this period only fifteen merchantmen were sunk (seven being victims of the Emden), as compared with 27 in the first; in the following period the losses were again about half, totalling no more than eight. There came now, also, an event which ranks with the reduction of Tsing Tau as the greatest blow Germany has suffered in the outer seas, namely, the destruction of four of the five ships commanded by Admiral Von Spee, the four ships aggregating more than twice the tonnage of the four regular cruisers that had been already accounted for.

So, after four months' fighting, Germany was left with only three fighting ships on the high seas. Of these, the Dresden, the only survivor of the Falklands battle, was destroyed on March 14; the armored liner Prinz Eitel Friedrich is interned in Newport News. There remains only the Kronprinz Wilhelm, another armored liner. (This vessel has since arrived at Newport News and then interned.)

Realizing his failure, the enemy has now called the submarine to his assistance, and so far the new plan has had a certain measure of success. German submarines accounted for as many British merchantmen in the last eight weeks covered by the admiralty return, as German cruisers did in the first eight weeks, namely, twenty-seven.

If, therefore, German cruiser attacks on our commerce were to be regarded seriously early in the war, there are some grounds for regarding the submarine substitute in the same light. But it is when we compare the actual performances of the enemy craft with what Germany—and the German admiralty—expected them to do, that the whole thing begins to look rather ludicrous.

The beginning of the organized submarine attack on our shipping was trumpeted abroad as a "blockade," by which all ships of whatever nationality, were to be prevented from reaching, or scared from attempting to reach, a British port.

What has been the actual effect? Here are the figures, taken from the admiralty returns, showing the arrivals and sailings of overseas steamers of all nationalities to and from United Kingdom ports (over 300 tons only):

First eight weeks of war	9,188
Last eight shown (January 17th to March 17)	11,730

So far from there being a falling-off in the use of British ports, therefore, there was an increase of no less than 27.7 per cent. between these periods; and the average weekly arrivals and departures were 43 higher in the first four weeks of the "submarine blockade" (February 1 to March 17) than there were in the preceding four weeks.

Another very noteworthy point is that although we lost as many merchantmen by submarines in the eight weeks, January 21 to March 17, as we did by cruisers in the eight weeks, August 5 to September 30, the former were, generally speaking, far less important vessels; for, while those we lost in the earlier period averaged 4,373 tons apiece, the later victims (January 21 to March 17) averaged only 2,600 tons.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE WAR has got to Egypt. The first casualty has been the hanging of the young yahoo that tried to assassinate the Sultan.

IN SPITE OF all that Liberals may say about a war and an election, we believe an election would cause no interference with the knitting of socks nor the buying of war stamps. Canada will do her duty in this war in spite of the Grits.

A NEWS ITEM says that Calgary is to manufacture munitions of war soon. We were under the impression, possibly a mistaken one, that Calgary's big gun, Mr. R. B. Bennett, was well stocked with ammunition.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

A Civic Experiment That Failed.

(Brockville Times.)

About four years ago St. John, N. B., tried to improve its municipal administration by adopting the much vaunted system of government by paid commissioners. It promised well, but in a short time the very undesirables which the commission plan was designed to drive out of municipal public life contrived to squirm their way back into office, and now the leading citizens of St. John, N. B., with a list of two thousand names at their back, are asking permission to revert to the old aldermanic system. Government by paid commissioners is not the panacea it seemed to be.

There is only one way in which good civic management can be obtained, and that is by leading business men in a community offering themselves as volunteer managers, and by the people supporting them. The people themselves are responsible for the kind of municipal management they get. If they use intelligent judgment they will get intelligent management of their civic affairs. If they listen to the clap-trap of incompetent meddlers, they will get bungling management.

Two Ducks and a Drake.

(Beck's Weekly.)

A certain A. B. Harvey, who, I presume, calls himself a Canadian and regards himself as a loyal subject, was asked by the parliamentary committee whether a horse which he had sold to the Militia Department for $90 was one which had been previously exchanged for three ducks. "No," said Harvey; "two ducks and a drake."

"Canadians" who take ninety dollars of the money of the people of Canada for a worthless animal, and hand that animal over to the rulers of the country knowing that the lives of Canadian soldiers may depend upon its soundness, are not needed in this country, and if their neighbours can induce them to emigrate (there are recognized methods of doing so), it will be a good thing. A. B. Harvey would be more good to the Dominion and the Empire if he were in Germany fighting for our enemies or helping to club British prisoners over the head, than he ever will be as a resident of Canada and a purveyor to the Militia Department.

You Never Can Tell.

(Providence Journal.)

Easy-going people in the United States are accustomed to say that Germany has no idea, and has never had any idea, of combating the Monroe Doctrine. But these same people would have said a year ago that Germany would respect the Belgium neutrality treaty.

Canadian Postal Laws

Under the Post Office Act, sections 65 and 66, the Postmaster General has the exclusive privilege of receiving, collecting, conveying and delivering letters within Canada.

Bills and accounts, whether in open or sealed envelopes, as well as circulars or other printed matter enclosed in envelopes sealed or ready to be sealed, are "letters" within the meaning of the Post Office Act.

There is a penalty under section 136 of the Post Office Act which may amount to $20 for each letter unlawfully carried.

It has been brought to the attention of the Post Office Department that some business firms, desiring to avoid paying the war tax which became effective on April 15th, propose making arrangements for the delivery of accounts, bills, circulars, etc., through means other than the post office, contrary to the Postal Act, and a warning is hereby given that the Post Office Department intends to insist that the law shall be rigidly lived up to, and will in no circumstances allow these parties to avoid paying the one-cent tax which has been imposed for war purposes.

All letters conveyed, received, collected, sent or delivered in contravention of the Post Office Act will be seized and necessary steps immediately taken for the prosecution of the offenders in all cases where the law has been contravened.

When Knights Were Bold.

When knights were clad in complete armor from top to toe it was essential that they should bear some sign by which their followers could distinguish them in battle, and this was the function of their armorial bearings. Knights who omitted to wear their own arms ran considerable risk, and it is related that at the battle of Bannockburn the last of the De Clares owed his death to his omission to wear his bearings. He was slain unrecognized, whereas had he been known he would have been held prisoner for the ransom or as a hostage.

ENTHUSIASM OF PACIFIC TOUR CONTESTANTS IS PLEASURE TO BEHOLD

Candidates Are Exerting Every Effort to Pile up a Big Total of Votes This Week — Many Coupons Were Cast Yesterday for Favorites — Subscribers Are Urged to Pay Their Subscripton This Week

The great voting contest is gaining in interest every day. Several votes were registered yesterday for the different contestants, and in District No. 1 Miss Booth made a gain of 1,925 votes. Miss Yelland added 725 votes to her credit, and some of the other candidates in this district made gains.

In the second district Miss Mabel Young made a splendid gain, 850 votes beng turned in to her credit. Miss Ward also received several coupons, and Mrs. Hicks made a gain of 1,150.

Miss Teanie Boate made the biggest gain in District 3, adding nearly 1,200 votes to her credit. Miss Newton added 1,075, and Miss Johnston made a gain of 625. The public is becoming intensely interested in the great contest, and this should be the biggest week of all. Triple votes will be given on all subscriptions secured up to Saturday night, and those who have promised assistance to candidates should do so now. This is the most important week of the contest.

Enthusiasm Increases.

"On with the contest," is the cry that grows louder on each succeeding day, and as the competition advances renewed energy is being exerted by the active candidates to secure the much coveted daily coupons and paid-in-advance subscription ballots. Each day brings about a revelation of something new about the trips over the continent that the successful bidders for the high honors will take as guests of the Review.

The enthusiastic candidates are getting busier and are doing things in dead earnest. The goal of success is nearer; the candidates who yesterday thought her sister candidate had some advantage or perhaps felt somewhat indifferent to the proposition has taken courage, for today some good Samaritan who bobbed up serenely gave her hope and started her off on the road to success once more. This game of vote-getting is an art—a study, as it were. Practice means much to the inexperienced, but after all, the fundamental principle upon which the whole thing is based is made up of two-thirds effort. A tip to her who will win: "Hustle, and then hustle, and before you know what has happened you will have reached the much desired position in the list for which all are striving.

There is no such thing as a handicap in this race; all are given an even break. Away we go, one and all in the spirited race which will decide who will be the winners. The candidates who lead one day need to fortify their positions lest the noiseless approach of opponents away down the list will mean the capturing of their positions. It is often the case that the last to enter proceeds on a triumphal march, and by either steady gains or by mighty strides advances to the front.

The candidates do not believe that they have a corner on the votes, but the votes are the things that count. After you get them voted and they are counted, no one can take them away. While one candidate pauses to review the standing of others, she may fall behind, thereby giving way to the ones who are constantly accumulating the ballots that count, and are forging ahead regardless of where they stand in the list, but with one purpose—the resolution to WIN.

The majority of the candidates so far have not caught the real enthusiasm and consequently are in the rear. The total sum of their courage has only been equal to collecting a few clippings which their friends have cut from the paper. We would ask them one question: Do they honestly believe such a trifling effort will land them at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in June? Why are some of the candidates in the contest at all? Obviously they had a purpose in entering. Why do they not show what that purpose is by the vote schedule? That is the acid test of effort in a contest.

Now, Miss Contestant, wake up whilst the going is easy—whilst the sun is shining. Don't leave it until too late—this effort—or when the sun has set. This is the triple vote period, so "Make hay while the sun shines."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

The Strange Behavior of a Striped Pussy Cat.

TABBY THAT LIKED TO FISH.

Unlike Most of Her Race She Was Not Afraid of Water—Puzzles and Games For Little People to Ponder Over and to Play.

As every boy and girl knows, nearly all cats dislike water. Indeed, if pussy only dips her foot in a little puddle she begins to shake her paw in a most comical way. Cats can swim if they are obliged to, but few will do so of their own accord. The demure looking feline in the picture is an entirely different creature. She seems to love the water. When only a kitten she surprised her little mistress by jumping into a shallow tank after some minnows that were swimming about. Later, when she grew up, she was observed going to a brook that flowed some distance from the house. There she crawled to the edge of the stream and, with one paw outstretched, would catch many minnows in her sharp claws. Quite an unusual pussy, don't you think so?

A CAT WHICH WENT FISHING.

Game of Clairvoyance.

In this game one of the company standing outside the room is, strange to say, able to tell what is passing inside. A dialogue such as would have to be carried on between the principal players will best describe the game, and show how it is to be played.

The questioner stands inside the room, the clairvoyant is outside the door.

"Do you remember how the room is furnished in which we are sitting?"

"I do."

"Do you remember the color of the chairs?"

"I do."

"Do you know the ornaments on the mantelpiece?"

"I do."

"And the vase of flowers?"

"I do."

"The old china in the cabinet?"

"Yes."

"You think there is nothing in the room which has escaped your notice?"

"Nothing."

"Then tell me which article I am now touching."

"You are touching the vase of flowers."

The vase of flowers being the only thing mentioned preceded by the word "And," the clairvoyant knows that is the object which will be touched. The mystery of the game, of course, consists in puzzling those of the company to whom the secret is unknown.

It is easy to arrange with the partner for any other catchword, and in fact it is desirable to vary this frequently, especially if the same couple accept an encore, or repeat the performance where there are some of the same audience.

Tug of War a Good Game.

Provide a strong one inch rope about twenty feet long with knots near each end at intervals of a foot. Select the same number of contestants for each side, and let them take their places at opposite ends of the rope; the object is for one side to pull the other side across a given mark. This game is not suited to women and girls and should be limited to men and boys. In a contest the side winning should score five points. Usually it is best to require the winners to demonstrate their superiority by taking two trips out of three, or three out of five.—Country Gentleman.

Good Kittens.

Lie by the fire and purr me a song,
Gay little, gray little cat.
Stretch on the hearth till you're half a yard long—
That's where the good little kittens belong.
Down where the fire is happy and strong,
Stay little, gray little cat.
Yes, if you like, you may play with my shoes;
Kittens are pleasant, not hard to amuse.
Lively, intent little cat—
Ready for playing whenever you choose,
Never unhappy or down with the blues,
Cheerful, content, little cat.

KIDNEY TROUBLE AFFECTED HIS SPINE

Suffered For Forty Years Until He Used "Fruit-a-tives"

BRONTE, ONT., OCT. 31st. 1913.

"For about forty years, I was troubled with Lame Back brought on by Kidney and Bladder Trouble. I was never confined to my bed with the trouble, but it affected my spine and I had to rest for a time. I took advertised remedies which never did me any good. Then I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. They did me more good than any other remedy.

My son suffered from the same trouble and frequently had to leave off working, but "Fruit-a-tives" remedied it for him. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney and Bladder Trouble to use "Fruit-a-tives".

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Rumors that Italy was about to declare war on Austria and on Germany as well, led to a good deal of selling today in the wheat market here. As a result prices closed unsettled at a range varying from 2⅜c decline to ¼c advance, compared with Saturday night. Corn suffered a net loss of 1⅜c to 1⅝c, oats of ⅝c to ⅞c, and provisions 7½c to 17½c.

Increased country offerings put pressure on corn. The market was also handicapped by the slowness of cash demand. Argentine crop damage news appeared to have lost influence. Oats were governed chiefly by the action of corn. Rains also favored the bears.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

It is officially announced that an Austrian gunboat has been damaged by the Serbians on the Danube.

Russell George Williams, the one-year-old son of Aubrey Williams, of Kingston, had his skull fractured by a fall from his high chair, and died yesterday.

At the point of a hatpin, Miss Anna Goldsmith, aged 18, of New York, took two young men to a police station for passing remarks about her new hat.

Travelers arriving in Quebec from the north from the Lake St. John region, report that Saturday morning between four and six o'clock, snow fell, covering the earth.

Charles Burnham, aged 45, a painter, was fatally burned at Arden, N.Y., when he stumbled against the railing on the steps of his home and ignited a box of matches in his vest pocket.

The Danish steamer Slesvig was stopped yesterday by a German torpedo boat off Falsterbo and ordered to unload the cargo of coal which it was carrying from England to Norrkoeping.

Louis Lanstrum, aged six, and Edwin Johnston, aged seven, sons of residents of Norma, near Kenora, were drowned on Sunday afternoon when a motorboat in which they were being taken across the lake, struck a log and sank.

IT WAS A NICE STEAK.

And the Emergency Chef Thought His Cooking Improved It.

"My, but I'd like a big juicy steak," said Patrolman Timothy Sullivan smacking his lips.

"I'm with you," echoed Policeman John Smith.

"And I'll get the steak if somebody'll cook it," said Policeman George Moss, who happened to be in the South Chicago station at the time.

The steak was brought and Policeman Leslie Fisher offered to act as chef. He took the thick pieces of beef down to the old stove in the basement of the station on which patrolmen on night duty prepare "emergency grub."

A short while later Fisher placed the steaming steak in front of Tim, George and John. After a large portion of the steak had disappeared in great gulps Tim, frothing at the mouth, expressed his opinion of Patrolman Fisher between hiccups. And each hiccup was accompanied by a creamy spurt of lather. John, with one hand to his mouth, dragged Fisher to the stove and smelled the frying pan.

"Which can of grease d-did you use?" he spluttered.

Fisher pointed to a can on the shelf. John looked at it and blanched.

"S-soft s-soap," he cried, spitting suds.

"As a c-cook you'd make a good b-barber," frothed Tim. "We wanted a (hic) m-meal, not a shampoo."

"Well, no one has ever complained of my laundered steaks before," argued Fisher, with a twinkle. "You see soap"—

He ducked out of the door just as a frying pan and a can of soft soap crashed against the jambs.—Chicago Tribune.

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above — they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger — it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Evidence in Action

of the accident she found Wesley injured. He had suffered the loss of the first two fingers and thumb on the right hand; his body and face are also marked. He was brought to Peterborough the morning after the accident, and confined to Nicholls Hospital. It was a long time before he could take off the bandages. The doctor's bill was $35, the fees of an assistant $10, and the hospital bill was 70 cents per day. He cannot use his hand at present, as one day recently he tried unsuccessfully to pick up a piece of coal from the floor. The lifting section of his right hand is gone. The marks on his face are deep.

Health Affected.

The boy himself is an average boy, fairly smart and clever. With respect to other boys he is inclined to be playful. His health was affected for a long time after the accident. While he was injured the hand was dressed according to doctor's instructions. The dressings had to be purchased. The injury was permanent, and she estimated the damage would exceed many thousands of dollars.

"How much did you pay Nicholls Hospital?" asked Mr. Humpheries.

"Seventy cents per day."

"How much altogether?"

"It isn't paid."

"Will you swear that bill isn't paid?"

"No one in my family ever paid it."

"Did you know the town of Campbellford paid it?"

Mr. Gordon objected to the question, and that line of examination was discontinued.

Bills Still Unpaid.

The bills of Dr. Carmichael and Dr. McCullough are still unpaid. Neither medical man ever sent her a bill.

Witness swore she saw William Jordan on the Jordan property during the days following blasts. He was looking over the work. She also saw William Jordan marking out the line for a fence. This was in May, 1914, before any blasting was done. She could not say exactly when the work of blasting was first commenced. She judged it was about the first week in May. She was present two or three nights when blasting took place.

"Who was handling the caps?" asked counsel for defendant.

"Thomas Sampson."

"Did you hear Thomas Sampson warn your boy to keep away?"

"No."

"Did you know he was warned off Jordan's property?"

"No."

"Did you know he was found lighting matches in Jordan's kitchen and was kicked out?"

"No."

When she left her home on the Sunday in question the children were playing in the yard. They did not go to Sunday school that day. Alfred Dawe, who was visiting his grandmother in Campbellford, was with her boys. As to the details of the accident, she knew only what people told her. The boy is in Part II. or second class of the public school, and witness stated it is her intention to give him an education.

"And when he gets to be 17 or 18 years of age he might get married?" asked Mr. Humpheries.

"Not with my consent. I think too much of my boys to give them away at that age," replied witness.

"How many boys have you?"

"Six."

Did Not Have Clothes.

In reply to Mr. Gordon, witness said she did not send her children to Sunday school that day because they did not have good enough clothes. The reason they did not have clothes was because she could not afford to buy them. She made her living by working out, as her husband had been ill for years. She intends educating this boy with the money she earns and the assistance of the other children.

The case is proceeding.

CHERRY GROWING.

"The Cherry in Ontario," by E. F. Palmer, B.S.A., is the title of Bulletin No. 230, forty pages, well illustrated, which is being distributed without charge by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto, to those interested in this branch of fruit growing.

The relationship between the sour and sweet varieties of cherries is thoroughly discussed, it being pointed out that the latter are much more tender in bud, and consequently are less generally grown, the number of sweet cherry trees being less than ten per cent. of the total. Fall planting of the young cherry trees is recommended, and at distances not less than 18x18 feet for sour and 24x24 feet for sweet varieties. In the matter of pruning, low headed trees with rather open centres are advocated. Low-lying, undrained land should be avoided in planting a cherry orchard, as the trees do not thrive with "wet feet."

Methods of picking, packing, and marketing the fruit are fully described, with illustrations of the most desirable packages. The most suitable varieties to plant, cost of production, insect enemies, diseases, etc., are given in detail. Three leading cherry growers also contribute articles based upon their individual experience, which is not the least valuable feature of the bulletin.

SEVERE FIGHTING CONTINUES TO NORTH-EAST OF YPRES

War Office Report That the General Situation in Flanders Remains Unchanged—Despite Gallant Resistance of Canadians Enemy Has Captured St. Julien, an Unimportant Village—Britain Optimistic.

LONDON, April 27.—The British War Office has issued the following statement respecting the battle around Ypres:

"First—Severe fighting to the northeast of Ypres still continues, the general situation remaining unchanged. Our left flank, in readjusting its line to meet the altered conditions due to the forced retirement of the French, had to face to the north and to extend to the west beyond St. Julien.

"This extension weakened our line for a time, and after a very gallant resistance by the Canadians against superior numbers, St. Julien was captured by the enemy. Our lines now run south of that place.

"Second—Our troops to the east of Ypres have borne the brunt of repeated heavy attacks, which they stubbornly opposed throughout the battle in an entirely unexpected situation, which has demanded the exercise of gallantry and fortitude by the men, and quick resource and other military qualities by their commanders.

"Third—Attacks were also delivered Sunday by the Germans on the east of the Ypres salient. In spite of the use by the enemy of asphyxiating gases, the attacks were repulsed, and German officers and men were captured.

"In the fighting during the last three days we have inflicted very heavy casualties on the Germans. Our losses also have been heavy. The German wireless report that four British heavy guns were captured is untrue.

"One of our aviators dropped bombs on the Courtrai station yesterday afternoon and destroyed the junction. Although wounded, he brought his machine safely back to our lines."

The capture of St. Julien, as reported in the British official statement, is not important, this town being on the extreme northern verge on the British lines, and being about three miles northwest of Ypres. It was on the line of the British advanced trenches, occupied by the Canadians. The British forces are evidently waiting for a favorable opportunity to rush this village.

While the majority of those capable of forming an opinion believe that the Germans by the stroke they have delivered against the British, French and Belgians, are once again aiming at Dunkirk and Calais, there are others who believe that it is only a feint in force to draw the allies' reserves while preparations are being made for an attack at some other part of the long line.

Whatever are the intentions of the Germans, they certainly made a coup, which, while it did not break, did dinge the allied lines. The Canadians, who were holding the British portion of the lines, were the first to recover them, and in an encounter the praises of which are ringing throughout the Empire—recaptured the ground they had been compelled to give, and, since then, with their comrades, have successfully withstood the German assaults.

The Belgians and French, who received the blast in fuller force, and who were driven back across the canal between Boesinghe and Steenstraate, were not much slower in recovering, and, according to the French official reports, succeeded in regaining possession of the canal banks and much of the surrendered territory to the east.

There is no inclination here, however, to belittle the initial success of the German sweep and the work that is before the allied armies before the situation can be fully restored.

The official reports throw little light on the progress of the battle, but news from Holland gives the information that the cannonade Sunday night was more severe than ever, and that long trains of German reinforcements going to the front are passing equally long trains of wounded bound for the base hospitals. There is no likelihood, therefore, that the battle will be over for some days to come, as the Germans have made immense preparations in men and material for their offensive, which has temporarily forestalled that of the allies.

That there is no shortage of either men or munitions is shown by the fact that the Germans are at the same time conducting an offensive in the heights of the Meuse, where they have made an unsuccessful attack, according to the French official report, in an effort to recapture Les Eparges.

British optimism in the outcome is encouraged by the success of the allies in repelling similar attacks last October when they were less well equipped than the Germans, whereas now there is believed to be little to choose as between the opposing forces in either numbers or the machinery of war. The battle has had a marked effect in recruiting, which enjoyed a considerable boom yesterday.

A bombardment of extreme violence enabled the Germans to gain a foothold on the summit of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, but the French soldiers retain their trenches captured on March 25, about 350 yards from the summit. From these positions the enemy can be dislodged at any time by a vigorous attack.

Royal Fund Grows.

LONDON, April 27.—The National Relief Fund of the Prince of Wales yesterday reached the total of $25,000,000.

CANADIANS IN RESERVE AFTER FOUR DAYS' BATTLE

Congratulatory Messages Pour in on the Government—London Loud in Praise For the Canadians.

OTTAWA, April 27.—"Canadians covered themselves with glory. Their heroism is most highly appreciated at headquarters. In reserve yesterday after four days' fighting."

This message, received by cable yesterday from J. J. Carrick, M.P., who is at the Canadian headquarters at the front, brought much relief here. The Canadians will now have a rest after their terrific work. A further list of officers wounded in the recent fighting near Ypres was received at the Militia Department last night. A feature of last night's list is that it includes members of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, who are known as the 15th Battalion of the overseas force.

This disposes of the rumor that Col. John A. Currie, M.P., and his regiment had been captured, and that they were the 1,000 Canadians whom the Germans claim to have taken prisoners.

Nothing whatever has been received by the Department concerning the artillery nor concerning the report from Berlin that the Germans had captured one thousand Canadians.

A sample of the way in which the glorious achievement of the Canadian troops and their heavy losses is taken in Canada as found in a telegram from Major S. C. Scobell, of St. Catharines, Ont., to Gen. Hughes, "Am ready to go to front to help fill gap."

Messages of a congratulatory nature continue to pour into the Government, and a wave of intense patriotism is evidently sweeping the country. Sir George Perley, acting High Commissioner for Canada in London, cabled:

"All London is praising the conspicuous gallantry of the troops."

Hon. Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, says:

"Britain is proud of her Canadian brothers." The Prime Minister answered: "I am most grateful for your message, which will be deeply appreciated by the people of the Dominion."

More names of Canadian officers wounded in the great Canadian attack north of Ypres were received in Ottawa last night. They include one major, two captains and five lieutenants.

Probably no battalion has suffered so heavily in the great engagement north of Ypres as the fourth, commanded by Lt.-Col. Birchall, who was killed. This battalion lost three officers killed and 14 wounded, which includes the second in command, Lt.-Col. Buell and both majors, all of whom were wounded. The fourth had a reputation as being the most efficient fighting unit in the division and was praised after a recent inspection by Gen. Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, who is in command of the Second Army, of which the Canadians are a part. The battalion comprises companies recruited from counties near Toronto, including Peel, Haldimand, Dufferin, Cayuga and Bruce.

Russians Repulse Austrian Attack at Uszok Pass.

PETROGRAD, April 27.—Operations in the eastern theatre of the war are now confined for the most part to the Carpathian region. Few and unimportant movements are possible in Poland because the roads are impassible.

Defeated in their repeated attempts to turn the Russian flanks, the Austro-German forces, under Gen. Litzinger, are now concentrating their attacks on the Russian centre in the region of the Uszok, the village of Polena being the key of the position. While the Austrian official report announces the defeat of the Russians in their attack on the heights of Ostry and before the Uszok Pass, the Russian official despatch last night reports a victory over the enemy.

Kaiser Is Rushing West.

AMSTERDAM, April 27.—Emperor William is rushing to the Flanders front on his special train to direct the operations against the allies at Ypres and along the Yser front, according to advices received here from Berlin yesterday.

These unofficial reports state that the Kaiser was in Cracow when the new Flanders battle opened, and that he immediately hastened to Berlin, where he stayed only a few hours before continuing his journey to Belgium.

Deny Visit To Vatican.

ROME, April 27.—(Via Paris.)—Both the Vatican and Prince von Buelow, the German Ambassador to Italy, deny the report printed in The Paris Figaro, April 20, that Prince von Buelow had visited Pope Benedict to bid the pontiff farewell, believing that his departure from Rome was imminent.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR AUTOISTS

Changeable silk, rubberized raincoats are new and attractive. They are cut in fall raglan and the reverse in stone gray. The convertible collars make them thoroughly rainproof.

Storm proof veils are newcomers. They are made of a peculiar weave of voile with a stain striped border. No matter how wet they may become they dry in perfect condition. They come in all the serviceable.

Dusters of Palm Beach cloth come in very pretty new models for spring and early summer wear. One especially noticeable has a stitched box pleat running from the neck down the back. It is caught by an applied belt four inches wide, which comes around the waist and gathers the fullness then falls from the tucks across the yoke. It has patch pockets, large white horn buttons and full drop sleeves.

One very pretty case for a man is in pigskin, lined with tan moire, and is fitted with blackelite toilet articles which resemble amber. The fittings include a shaving glass which is large and arranged to be hung or to stand.

When tires are ridden soft there is too much action in the side walls which must eventually result in the same injury to the fabric that occurs to a wire when bent numerous times at a given point. This excessive heating softens the rubber cement and blowouts follow.

A simple method of locating a wrist pin is by short-circuting each spark plug in turn, noting the sound of the engine when each plug is shortened. When the knocking sound lessens you have located the cylinder with loose wrist pin.

When the carburetor float fails and a new one is not procurable "getting home" is a matter of using one's wits. Generally it can be accomplished by cutting down the supply from the tank so as to correspond with the flow through the needle valve.

In order to become familiar with the location and "feel" of the lever it is advisable for motorists to use the mergency brake occasionally in ordinary work. This is suggested so that in the event of an emergency there will be no fumbling in using it. Also this occasional use will reveal when the brake is out of order.

A frequent and unsuspected loss of power is due to spark plug leaking. Most plugs leak when run very hot, and for this reason it will prove an advantage to make an occasional test at the end of a trip by dropping a little oil around the packing joints and watching for bubbles. The leakage can be stopped by taking up on the packing gland of the plug.

Don'ts for Autoists.

Don't cut corners. Keep to the right.

Don't hog the [illegible] keep over to the right.

Don't turn in middle of block. Go to the street intersection.

Don't cover your rear number with a spare tire. Be a real sport.

Don't forget your rights or presume on your advantage, either horsepower or official.

Don't keep your intention a secret. Stick your hand out for the benefit of the car behind.

Don't charge full speed over a wet spot in the street. Skidding is no respector of horsepower.

Don't stop your automobile beyond the property line at street intersections. Pedestrians have the right of way there.

Don't swing to the left toward the middle of the street without looking behind. There may be a big truck at your elbow.

Don't knock the police department if it enforces an ordinance that you assisted in making into a law.

Averaged 68.97 Miles.

Not only did Otto Walker win first place in the recent 300-mile Grand Prize motorcycle race at Venice, Cal., but he surprised everyone with the event by spinning his little two-wheeler around the course at an average speed of 68.97 miles an hour. Both promoters and fans predicted that the time for the event would not exceed 60 miles an hour. Not only that, but everyone of the first six riders to finish made better than an average of 60 miles. Just fifteen seconds after the winner, Paul Pankhurst, crossed the tape. Then came Carl Goudy, Bob Perry, Fred Ludlow and Marty Graves.

First-Aid Squad.

A motorcycle first-aid squad is to be employed by the Automobile club of St. Louis. These riders are to patrol the roads leading to St. Louis rendering assistance to any automobilist who may have met with a mishap. The motor-cyclists are also to investigate road conditions, mapping out the best routes to take to points of interest near the Missouri metropolis.

Don't forget the cross streets. A car coming out of a street to your right has the right of way over you, as you have over the car coming out of a street on your left.

Warnings To Italy.

ROME, April 27.—(Via Paris.)—An energetic campaign is being conducted in the Italian press on behalf of the allies. Every day there appear telegrams from Petrograd warning Italy that if she does not soon intervene she will lose everything. It is said the allies have decided to give nothing, in case they are victorious, to a neutral power which, in the words of Jules Cambon, the French diplomat, "rushes to succor the victor."

The newspapers also publish long reproductions from the French press stating that Italy's participation in the war is imminent.

Argentina To Extend Trade.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The establishment of a new steamship line between New York and Buenos Ayres, financed by business men of Argen- [illegible] Government, has been provided for, according to Ricardo Coll, editor of The Buenos Ayres La Razon, who reached New York yesterday aboard the British steamer Tennyson.

Mr. Coll said the project would be discussed at the Pan-American financial conference to be held in Washington May 24.

USE CHLORINE

Sir James Dewar Says Germany Has Hundreds of Tons

LONDON, April 27.—At least one distinguished British scientist has no doubt as to the nature of the widely-discussed thick yellow smoke which has been emitted from advanced German lines, and which an official French communique describes as producing "the effect of complete asphyxiation upon our troops, which was felt even in our second line of positions."

Sir James Dewar, president of the Royal Institution, asserted to a Daily Chronicle representative in terms that left no room for doubt or uncertainty that this latest and most diabolical German weapon to be directed against the allies is liquid chlorine. He said:

"For some years Germany has been manufacturing chlorine in tremendous quantities. The Germans undoubtedly have hundreds of tons available for this terrible purpose. If, say, several tons of the liquid are allowed to escape into the atmosphere, it immediately evaporates and forms the yellow gases referred to in the official report and if the wind is blowing in a favorable direction, it is the easiest thing in the world for the Germans to inundate the country with poison for miles ahead. The fact that gas is three times heavier than air makes escape from its disastrous effect almost impossible, for it drifts like a thick fog along the surface of the ground, overwhelming all whom it overtakes."

POOR SPIRITS TO BE BARRED

Lloyd George Will Prohibit Sale of Immature Liquors

LONDON, April 27.—The British Cabinet gave further consideration to the drink problem yesterday, and to-day the intention is that Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George shall submit the Government's liquor proposals to the House of Commons on Wednesday.

Although the Cabinet's plans are not finally adjusted, it can be authoritatively stated that the following are the main heads under which the Government intends to take actions:

(1) Prohibition of the sale of immature spirits.

(2) Encouragement of the brewing of lighter beers.

(3) Special public house restrictions in the munitions area.

(4) Reduced hours of sale generally.

(5) Compensation for interests affected.

It is understood to-day that there may be a new regulation prohibiting the sale of immature spirits under a certain age and restricting the manufacture of the heavier types of beers. Good spirits and light beers will be encouraged.

Went For Cat; Got Bad Shock.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 27.—Norman Taylor, chief engineer of the tug Morrison, is in the hospital in a very serious condition as a result of burns and shock received when he came in contact with an electric power line containing 22,000 volts, late Sunday night.

Taylor climbed one of the high poles for a cat which had run up to the cross arms. When he reached the top he placed one hand on the cat at the same time his foot came in contact with a ground wire running down the pole. He was knocked off and fell horribly burned. The cat was burned to a cinder.

RAIDER INTERNS

Men Two Sick to Make Dash Says Commander of Kron Prinz Wilhelm

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Lieut. Captain Thierfelder, commander of the German commerce raider, Kronprinz Wilhelm, late yesterday informed Collector of Customs Hamilton, at Newport News, Va., that he would intern his ship for the war in American waters.

The commander presented this note: "Herewith I have to officially inform you that I intern."

No explanation accompanied the communication, but later the German commander said he had intended to attempt a dash past the allied warships off the Virginia Capes, but that the illness of more than sixty of his sailors with beri-beri would make that impossible before expiration of the time that the U. S. Government granted to make his cruiser seaworthy.

TO MOBILIZE SOON.

Third and Fourth Canadian Contingents To Be Sent to Camps.

OTTAWA, April 27.—The important announcement was made at noon yesterday by Maj.-Gen. Hughes that the third and fourth Canadian contingents will be mobilized at the earliest possible moment.

The troops in training at different divisional points in the various provinces will now proceed to camps for additional training as follows: Nova Scotia, Aldershot; New Brunswick, Sussex; Quebec, Valcartier; Ontario, Kingston, Niagara Falls and London; Manitoba and Saskatchewan at Sewell; Alberta and British Columbia, cavalry, at Calgary; British Columbia troops other than cavalry at Schiedam Camp, north of Kamloops.

J. P. Nannetti Dead.

LONDON, April 27.—Joseph Patrick Nannetti, member of the House of Commons for the College Green division of Dublin, died last night.

He'll often forget.
But if he owes you a grudge
He'll remember, you bet.

PURCHASING BOARD NAMED

Appointed by Government to Purchase Supplies

OTTAWA, April 27.—The following purchasing commission was appointed by the Government yesterday: Hon. A. E. Kemp, Minister without portfolio; H. Laporte, formerly Mayor of Montreal, and Geo. F. Galt, of Winnipeg, son of Sir Thomas Galt, who was at one time Chief Justice of Ontario.

This commission will purchase all supplies for the Canadian Militia Department, all supplies in Canada for the British War Office and the allies.

Hon. Mr. Kemp is chairman of the commission, and it is understood that it will be necessary to appoint a large staff the handle the immense amount of business that will have to be transacted. It will be conducted similarly to other Departments of the Government.

Mr. Laporte is a well-known business man of Montreal, and has a splendid record.

Mr. Galt is one of the most responsible and respected business men of the west.

The value of the composition of the commission is in the close touch which will be maintained between the Government and the purchasing commission, Mr. Kemp being a member of the Cabinet.

KAISER'S FLEET COMING?

German Merchant Captain Says It Is Headed for Halifax.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 27.—Headed for the Atlantic coast of Canada is a German squadron, bent on bombarding important cities and fortifications there, according to a letter received yesterday by Capt. Carl Brauch, master of the German bark Dalbek, interned here since July 23, from a friend who is a deck officer of the German navy.

"Eight days before the German fleet bombarded Scarborough, Hartlepool, and other ports, received a letter from the same friend telling me that the German fleet would strike for the British coast, and I thought that statement was laughable," said Capt. Brauch. "Since it came to pass I am convinced that the move of the squadron to the Canadian coast may not be a myth." The letter has been on the way since March 24.

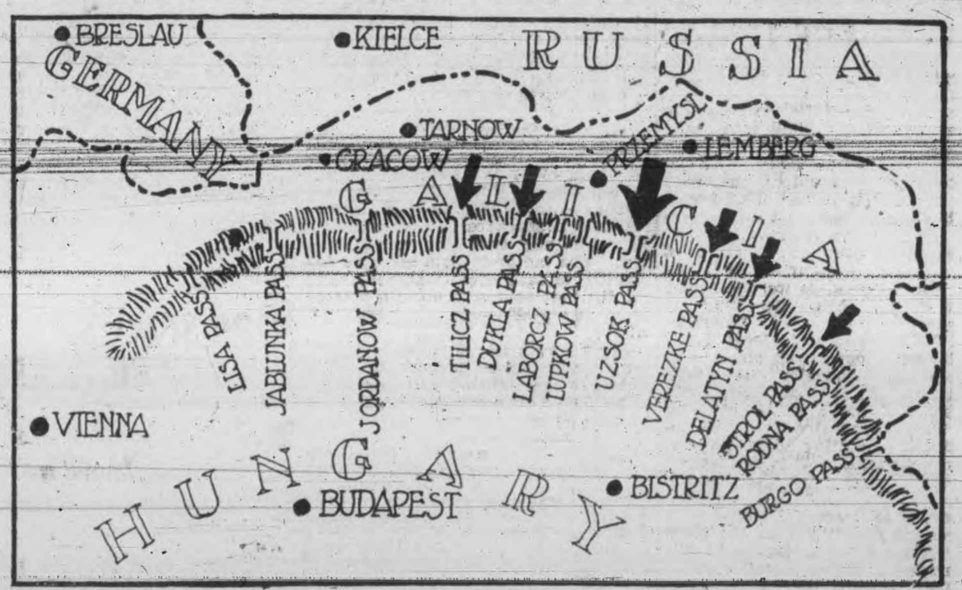
WOODSTOCK TAX RATE.

Woodstock, April 26.—Paring by the Finance Committee of the budget submitted by the Board of Works for street improvement effected a reduction of $2,000 in the amount asked for by that body, and lowered the tax rate to less than 25 mills including the war tax.



A natural wall, stronger by far than the great wall of Pekin, obstructs the Russian advance and guards the beautiful cities of Budapest and Vienna. The mountain passes of the Carpathians are the gates to Hungary.

Whoever attacks Hungary from the last must first jass the mighty mountain wall. After that a flat and fertile plain lies at the feet of the conqueror, over which to sweep onto the two great cities of the dual monarchy and describe a semi-circle northward through Bohemia into Germany itself.

With Przemysl in the discard the Russians, favored by improving weather conditions, are pushing forward into the mountains, and latest reports declare that most of the minor passes are already open to them. The Uzsok pass, the giant of the channels through the mountains, is still to be taken. Some terrific battles are now being waged for the control of this thoroughfare, as it is of sufficient size to permit of the hauling of big guns.

Possession of the smaller inlets is almost worthless without the Uzsok, as only infantry and very light artillery can be brought through them.

But the obstacle is the gigantic one. At the western extremity the great semi-circle begins on the Danubian plain near Vienna, and the Western Carpathians swing up towards the northeast. Then come the Central Carpathians, which will be found due south of Cracow.

Following the semi-circle round, we come to the long stretch of the Eastern Carpathians, which divide Galacia and the Bukowina from Hungary. Next is the Transylvanian highland, a quadrilateral lying within the arm of the semi-circle and reaching right to the Danube. Where the Eastern Carpathian mountains divide, at the Strol pass, between the waters of the Visso and the Golden Bistritza, and send ramifications west and south.

The Strol pass is otherwise known as the Kirli Baba pass, which, as announced recently, has been stormed by the Russians.

The whole of Transylvania is a highland, which, on its western, or Hungarian side, slopes gently to the interior and has easy passes, but on its eastern and southern frontiers has [illegible] walls, which give it the appearance of a tremendous natural fortress, and render difficult an approach from Roumania.

The southeastern and southern walls of the quadrilateral are called the Transylvanian Alps. Here is the highest part of the system. Lastly comes the Sretenye mountains, which extend to the Danube, and together with the Miroch mountains on the right.

Through the Verecske Pass runs the railway from Lemberg to Munkacs. The Delatyn is in Russian hands, and has been the means of the two incursions upon Hungary.

The most northerly passes are the Rodna and Borgo, at the southwestern corner of the Bukowina. Then come the Torgyes and the Bekas, close together. In the southern wall the Predeal pass is on the railway line from Bukharest. Next on the south is the famous Rotenturin, or Red Tower pass, through the narrow gorge of the Aluta, where runs another railway from Bukharest. Lastly, there are the Vulkan, Teregova, and Iron Gate passes. The latter is by the Danube, and lets through the railway from Craiova, in Roumania, to Temesvar.

The gates of Hungary. Russian troops are now believed in possession of all Carpathian mountain passes indicated by small arrows. The large arrow indicates the Uzsok pass, largest of all.

SPORTING NEWS

BOSTON RED SOX EIGHTEEN CARAT TEAM ACCORDING TO EXPERT HUGH FULLERTON

(By Hugh S. Fullerton.)

Here is the team!

There is left among us one real ball club and this is it:

It has the best outfield in the world. It has the best pitching staff of the day. It has a classy infield. It has speed. It has hitting power. It has steady and experienced catchers.

Besides that its nearest rivals have gone back, and those that are coming up have not yet reached the top class.

The team is the Boston Red Sox.

It played the best ball of any team in the country after it got settled to its work last year. Its manager gained a year of experience and proved himself a stronger leader than was believed.

Barring a run of frightful luck against it, the injury of two or three star regulars and one or two pitchers at critical stages and it should gallop home with the American league pennant.

Let's look it over. It has not changed much. Carrigan has little need of recruits. He has three worries: First, will Heine Wagner come back? Second, will Joe Wood return to top form? Third, will Dick Hoblitzell play as he did last fall, or as he did last spring?

Two of these questions seem answered. I waited to get straight and authentic reports on Wagner and Hobby. Wagner seems to have overcome his rheumatism, and is reported in great shape and going magnificently. Hobby, according to reports, is going great guns again and it looks as if the slump at Cincinnati that let him out of the National league was merely temperamental.

One need study the team only briefly. Carrigan and Cady are experienced catchers, and better, they are fitted well to their pitchers. Leonard need not live up to his great performance of last year to win for the team. With Leonard going well, Wood back in shape, Ray Collins better than ever and inspired with hope of world's series coin, the remaining pitchers will not have to do much. Carrigan can use Foster less frequently and make him more effective. Shore is one of the best comers in the business and Bedient may be due to join the front ranks again.

That infield looks like a million dollars with Hoblitzell and Wagner in perfect shape, and if they are not Carrigan is remarkably well fortified with Del Gainer to play first in case of accident and Bill Sweeney likely to come back.

Sweeney suffered at Chicago from exactly the same trouble Hoblitzell had at Cincinnati, incompatability.

Carrigan is carrying an understudy for each infield position and has plenty of outfield material to sub for Speaker, Hooper and Lewis.

There is scarcely a flaw in the ball club. It looks as if only accidents can beat it.

POOR BUSINESS.

The Chap Who Turned the Trick Didn't Get a Square Deal.

At a political meeting in the east side of London C. T. Ritchie, then a cabinet minister, delivered an address, but after it was over it was found that Mr. Ritchie's overcoat had been stolen. In order to save Mr. Ritchie any annoyance Sir Thomas Dewar, the chairman of the meeting, sent the sum of 10 shillings to a certain quarter of the constituency well known as a thieves' haunt. Very shortly three overcoats were brought around to the hall. Mr. Ritchie picked out his coat from among them, the other two were honorably returned to the thieves, and everybody felt relieved that the incident had terminated so satisfactorily.

A few days afterward when Sir Thomas Dewar was on his rounds canvassing a man tapped him on the shoulder and asked if he could have a word or two with him.

"Certainly," answered the candidate.

"How much did you send for the coat?" he was asked.

"Ten shillings," was the reply.

"Well, guv'nor, do you call that fair? Do you call that business? I only got a shilling out of it, and I was the bloke who pinched it!"—London Standard.

Cause For Apprehension.

"I object to that man on the jury," said the lawyer for the defense.

"On what grounds?" asked the court.

"I was instrumental in getting him married."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Self Evident.

"A man has invented a trousers pocket which a wife can't discover."

"He wasn't a married man."—Baltimore American.

Too much rest simply means rust.—Sir Walter Scott.

INTER-CATHOLIC BASEBALL LEAGUE MAY BE ORGANIZED

T.A.S. Likely to Have Team in City Lacrosse League—Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last Night

The meeting of the Catholic young men of Peterborough, held last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, did not accomplish a great deal, but the large number on hand and the enthusiasm displayed fully warrants the step being made to advance athletics. The reason for such little headway being made was because St. Peter's parish had not organized. The Sacred Heart parish had its athletc club and the Immaculate Conception parish had its athletic club, but St. Peter's had not made a start. When the meeting was called to order last evening Rev. C. J. Phelan was elected temporary chairman. In a few opening remarks he expressed his willingness to co-operate with any movement to enhance sports, and also regretted that St. Peter's was not as yet organized. Mr. Fred McGrath reported progress in the Church of the Sacred Heart, and Mr. M. O'Heron for the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

In view of the fact that St. Peter's was without an athletic committee, it was thefeeling that before anything definite could be done such a committee should be appointed. The following were elected: Messrs. G. McFadden, E. Dillon, Sam. Hoolihan, E. Reynolds and Ab. Quinlan. The meeting decided to leave the matter with the three committees, and the committees were instructed to get busy at once.

It is probable that an inter-Catholic baseball league will be formed, and a lacrosse team entered in the City Lacrosse League. Track sports will also be given attention.

GOOD BASKETBALL IN INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE

Charlotte St. Five and Knox Church Team Had to Play Overtime

The intermediate church basketball league got away to a good start last night. All six teams were on deck, and, even though it was a little warm, the boys thoroughly enjoyed the sport. Most of the teams had not played together before, and considering this the brand of ball was very creditable, and this opportunity for the boys to get together will have a tendency to hold them till they can get playing baseball. It will also give them a taste of the indoor game so they can get busy early next fall and develop this league to a larger extent.

The first game was between George Street and Murray Street, and the former hadn't any trouble in immersing their Baptist brethren. Both teams played hard, but the Methodist boys were the better shots, and this won them the game. The first half ended 6 to 0, while the final score was George Street 17, Murray Street 1. Copp was high scorer. The teams:

GEORGE STREET—Copp, Hilson, Head, Thorndyke, Hamilton.

MURRAY STREET — Routley, Lapp, Lewis, Webb, Pringle.

Overtime Game.

The Charlotte Street and Knox boys had to play overtime, Knox winning out by two points. This was the best game of the evening. The score was close all through, neither team at any time having more than a three-point lead. In the first half the checks stuck very close and there was very little scoring. In the second half the boys on both teams got started and it was nip and tuck right to the finish. When time was up the score was 10 all. In about a minute overtime Knox scored the winning basket, making the final score Knox 12, Charlotte St., 10. The teams:

CHARLOTTE STREET — Skuce, Lebar, English, Austin, Stuart.

KNOX — Montgomery, Martin, Smythe, Webster, Clarke.

All Saints' Down Mark Street

These two teams showed that they have got material that will make basketball players. All they need is practice. These boys had never been together as a team before, and Mark Street lads deserve a lot of credit for entering a team, as they have a very small group to pick from. The Mark Street team worked the ball down to the basket many times, but failed to cage it. The All Saints' group also made a fine showing. They are just getting organized and they show the right spirit by getting out a team. They will develop and make a good showing before the league is over. The final score was All Saints' 8, Mark Street 3. The teams:

ALL SAINTS' — Blake, Webster, Lebar, Gollop, Murdiff.

MARK STREET—Lipsett, McIntyre, Nellist, Gillespie, Hagerman.

Referee, Carson. Scorer, Thorndyke. Timer, Gumpricht.

McGill Men Will Reinforce Pats

MONTREAL, April 27.—The offer of Capt. Percival Molson and Lieut. George McDonald, of McGill Canadian Officers' Training Corps, to raise another company for the Princess Patricias, to supplement the force organized by Major Hamilton Gault, which has suffered considerable loss in the war, has been accepted by the Militia Department at Ottawa. Word was received here yesterday to this effect.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

EACH of us is dead sure that if our true worth were understood by our associates life would be one grand sweet song.

Some persons will believe anything if the consideration is forthcoming and proves to be amply sufficient.

Don't agree with too many people. If you do you may be in danger of becoming popular and thus be a nuisance.

You can't fool some people, and they wouldn't be worth it if you could.

Sometimes a man with a swelled head has had a fresh application of brickbat, and sometimes he is only needing it.

By the time that we have learned all the things that we oughtn't to know and have tried to forget them it is time to die.

The average man's intelligence is about equal to the strain that is put upon it.

Discipline is undoubtedly a good thing, but a little spontaneous combustion gets it a-going.

Twice as Useful.

"Let me sell you this splendid and useful book, 'Every Man his Own Doctor.'"

"No use for it."

"But you may have some day."

"I think not. When you get out a work entitled 'Every Man His Own Mother-in-law' come around and we will talk business."

Cautious.

He wanted much to marry her.
His love was strong and quite unshaken.
But still he hesitated when
He thought about the price of bacon.

Sufficient.

"So you want the ballot, Katie?"

"I certainly do."

"Can you give a good reason for wanting it?"

"You bet I can."

"What is it?"

"Because."

Good, but Inadequate.

"His intentions are good."

"Well, why doesn't he do better, then?"

"He never seems able to intend hard enough."

Wanted to Know.

"Pa!"

"Yes."

"What kind of clothes do they use on a clotheshorse?"

Size of an Atom.

"Radium emanations," said Professor William Crookes in a lecture in London, "are due to the breaking down of the atom of radium, and electricians are constantly flying off with about two-thirds the speed of light (182,000 miles per second). These electrons are now looked upon as being absolute units of negative electricity. To try to illustrate their size is difficult. Imagine one drop of water magnified to the size of the earth (8,000 miles in diameter). An atom would then be about the size of a walnut or a cricket ball. Now magnify the cricket ball or atom to a cube of about 100 feet each side. The electron would be about the size of this dot (.)—one one-hundredth of an inch in diameter. The mind cannot conceive such figures."

PRISONERS OF GERMANS SHOT DOWN

But Humane Treatment for Germans Will be Continued

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 27. — Lord Kitchener told the House of Lords today that British prisoners have been insulted, maltreated, even shot down by their German captors. He had been forced with reluctance to accept this maltreatment as literally true.

At the same time Churchill told the House that just and humane treatement of German prisoners would continue, despite Germany's conduct in this respect.

Panama Pacific Exposition

A trip to California will afford the traveller an infinite variety of attraction. The C.P.R. is ticketing passengers via Chicago and the many routes thence to San Francisco returning via Vancouver and their own line, or passengers can go via C.P.R. and return via Chicago. The quick trains to Chicago via the C.P.R. and the Michigan Centre have the most modern C.P.R. equipment so that everything necessary to make travelling comfortable is assured. In addition to the visit to Chicago passengers can travel via Omaha and Denver or via Kansas City. The route via Salt Lake City or via Williams, whence the Grand Canyon of Arizona is visited can be chosen. The orange groves at Los Angeles and San Diego are well worth a visit at this season of the year and the Coast Line to San Francisco can be taken through Santa Barbara and Monterey. San Francisco is an interesting city but probably the Exposition is the greatest attraction at the present time. Of the numerous buildings, the Americans and all visitors claim that the Dominion of Canada is the handsomest and most attractive, while the exhibits from all over the world are interesting. A visit to Victoria and Vancouver, thence through the Canadian Rockies is the most magnificent of all railway journeys, while the company's hotels, which are built in the most attractive spots, have everything that the traveller can desire.

LETTER BROUGHT BACK MEMORIES

Mr. J. J Turner Sen. Hears From Former Ship Mate on the Ramsay

Strange indeed are the workings of Fate, an exemplification of which was experienced this morning by J. J. Turner, Sr., when he opened his morning batch of mail.

But before more is told it is necessary to go back a space and tell of what led up to the strange thing which calls forth this little philosophical remark. Last January Mr. Turner spied a picture in a copy of Toronto Saturday Night showing a trim forty-foot sailing yawl which attracted his favorable attention by its lines and all round spick and span appearance. Underneath, it stated that the boat was owned by D. E. McTaggart of Brisbane, Australia. Mr. Turner got in communication with the owner and here comes the funny discovery that 46 years ago the same D. E. McTaggart was a small boy upon the sailing vessel "Ramsay," where Mr. Turner was then working as sailmaker, his first job after coming out of his apprenticeship.

The remarkable discovery was brought about by Mr. Turner's letter to his former shipmate on the "Ramsay" for it brought back to the memory of the latter, some incidents of his early life aboard the vessel. The letter which Mr. Turner read through with gradually increasing astonishment this morning, related many incidents of the days spetn on th Ramsay which were practically dozing in oblivion in the mind of the local manufacturer. The letter asked Mr. Turner if he remembered a little boy who used to be on the Ramsay acting as captain's assistant. When he came across that part of the communication it all came back to Mr. Turner. It recalled the time when he led the crew and passengers around the deck playing a cornet in honor of Father Neptune when they were crossing the line. [illegible] McTaggart and some other boys to escape from the vessel and McTaggart has since carved out a very substantial slice of this world's goods by pursuing the occupation of sheep rancher in Australia. Always fond of boating he had sufficient means to build a racing yacht called the "Niobe" and it was a picture of this craft shown in Saturday Night that brought about the correspondence between the two and consequently renewed friendship. Mr. McTaggart congratulated Mr. Turner upon his successful career in the tent and sailmaking business and wished him every success.

Wednesday evening at eight o'clock the Employed Boys' Club will elect their officers for the year.

Special swimming lessons will be given to any member of the Boys' Department who is unable to swim, commencing May 3rd to 8th. There will be no excuse for any member of the "Y." not learning to swim as this week is for their benefit.

"Ned" Simmons Sends a Letter

Dear Father,

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well. We have been in action and are out for a rest for a few days. We had only one casualty.

I do not know how long we will be here but I think our next move will be a little more exciting. The Canadian gets a great name here, in the artillery. All the boys are feeling fine and are anxious for Berlin. We have a fair time when we are out here. We had a field day of sports yesterday.

Give my best regards to all.

The letter was dated April 13.

- THEATRICAL -

"BRINGING UP FATHER."

The eminently successful comedy cartoon series by George McManus, entitled "Bringing up Father," now running daily and Sunday in the New York American and hundreds of other live newspapers throughout the United States and Canada, has been made the nucleus of a musical comedy for stage production by Mr. Hill, whose theatrical efforts for the past fifteen years have been directed exclusively to kindred offerings. As a result thereof, he enjoys the unique distinctinon of having made a million dollars by exploiting cartoon plays. "Bringing up Father" like the numerous other more or less successful commonly called 'funny pictures,' have gained their enormous popularity because they evoke a momentary innocent amusement, produced by a ludicrously crude caricature representing a being not entirely human. Everybody looks for the funny page, whether its Drayman or Banker, and they all laugh. It is natural to suppose that a two hour and a half entertainment embodying about all of the best element of McManus' satirical art, interspersed with catchy musical numbers and a chorus of capricious maidens to add zest, would prove more than ordinarily amusing to business weary men and women of all classes. It was easy sailing for a dramatist to write a humorous play from the material furnished by the American's pictures. 'Tangoish' whistleable music is not difficult to secure, good singers, comedians and dancers are plenty, therefore it was easy picking for Mr. Hill, especially so after the unlimited publicity the title has had through the American. I guess the reader will agree with the writer that about the hardest task in the entire combination fell to the lot of McManus, who is obliged to rack his fertile brain continually for new material for his daily smile fest. I wonder if George reaps as large a harvest of shekels as do the New York American or Gus Hill.

MAJOR G. W. BENNETT MORTALLY WOUNDED LEADING OUR BOYS

Gallant Officer of 57th Regiment Gives up His Life at the Battle of Langmarck

Once again the war has struck home. This time city and county mourns the death of big hearted, jovial, Major George W. Bennett. It is hard to realize that Major Bennett has gone. To many, very many friends and acquaintances, the news is painful. It leaves a pang that will not soon depart.

Major Bennett was mortally wounded as he lead the Canadians—many of them Peterorough boys. How many others laid down their lives is not known. But it is an easy matter to picture the big major leading his gallant lads against the enemy, at that fierce battle at Langmarck. It takes away some of the sting to know that ceath came on the field of honor and in such a cause.

Word reached the city last night that Ma.or Bennett had been wounded. Early this morning it was announced that he had been killed and confirmation was given by the receipt of a message from Ottawa notifying Mr. J. J. Bennett, who resides at 191 Perry Street, that his brother was no more.

Was Born Leader.

The late Major Bennett was born in the township of North Monaghan fifty years ago and with his father and brothers worked on the farm. As a boy he was popular with his companions who recognized in him, a leader. He possessed the qualities of leadership—qualities that won for him success in life. He had served as clerk of North Monaghan township council and in government positions, the chief being the superintendency of colonization roads, a position he held with credit, for some years and up to the time he joined the first Overseas Canadian force.

He was always interested in the militia. His connection with the 57th Regiment extended over a period of thirty years. The officers and men of the regiment will miss him. The news last night that he had been wounded, was on the lip of every officer and soldier at weekly drill, and Lieut.-Col. Walker, officer commanding took the occasion to express his own regret and that of the regiment in general. In an effort to ascertain further particulars Major Eastwood sent a cable.

Major Bennett was a keen hunter. Where others would fail in pursuit of game, "Farmer" Bennett would succeed. He was a member of the Ketchecum Hunt Club and in speaking of his death, this morning, Mr. F. L. Roy said he was a splendid type of man and one of the most likeable members of the party.

His parents are dead. Besides his brother, J. J. Bennett, deceased leaves one sister, Mrs. R. Pope, Montreal.

Flag at Half Mast.

With the announcement of Major Bennett's death, Mayor Buller ordered the flag on the city hall to fly at half mast. His Worship stated that it was not in accordance with military procedure but he judged that it would be but fit and proper to fly the flag at half mast on this occasion.

Message From Premier Hearst

The following message from Premier Hearst was received in the city this morning:

Please extend to the family and friends of Major G. W. Bennett the sincerest sympathy of myself and colleagues. We mourn his loss and will revere his memory and gallant heroism.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR AUXILIARY AT WATERWORKS

Plant Will Have Capacity of Four Million Gallons Per Day

HYDRO STATEMENT SHOWS SURPLUS

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission held yesterday afternoon it was decided to have William Kennedy, Jr., of Montreal, prepare specifications for an auxiliary plant in connection with the local powerhouse, the plant to have a capacity of four million gallons per day. When the specifications are received the Commission will ask for tenders. It has not been decided as to whether the plant will be operated by steam or a gasoline engine or whether a combination of steam and electric power will be used as Mr. Kennedy recommended that tenders for both be accepted and then a decision arrived at.

The expenditure for the proposed plant will likely be in the neighborhood of $20,000. It is probable that the people will be given an opportunity to vote upon it although it may be possible to go on with the work under the Peterborough Private Bill, if the City Council approves of the step. It was the feeling of the Commission that the people would not be satisfied if they did not erect the auxiliary plant and they also felt that if the ratepayers were asked to vote on the expenditure, they would endorse it. Commissioner Hicks was confident that the electors would be in favor of it as the waterworks department has a surplus and the electric department is a revenue producing item.

"Utilities Commission" Car.

It was decided to have the words "Utilities Commission" on each side of the motor truck which has been purchased for the waterworks department.

Report Shows Surplus.

The report of the Hydro-Electric department of the Commission for 1915 up to March 31st was submitted to the meeting and showed a substantial surplus.

PLANT LIFE

Subject of Address Given by A. K. Hone B.A.

The C.L.A. Society of Charlotte St. Methodist was addressed last night by Mr. A. K. Hone, B.A., of the Collegiate staff. He gave a very interesting and instructive exposition of plant life. He described by means of a chart the various parts of a plant and used lantern slides to illustrate the wonderful and intricate cell structure of roots, stem, leaves and flower. He explained how the sap is drawn up into plants and trees and distributed. This is done by the leaves, by root pressure and by capillarity. Root pressure is caused by the cells taking in so much food material that pressure is exerted in an upward direction and in some trees reaches a remarkably high degree. Capillarity is caused by a liquid being in a very fine pipe or stem and as the stem of a plant is made up of many fine pipes or chambers the sap is drawn up partly by this force. The address was made very clear and close attention was given by the audience.

A piano duet was rendered by Misses Rehill and Carr and a solo was sung by Miss E. Stevens, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Walton, both of which were well rendered and highly appreciated.

SAW PETERBORO' BOYS EMBARKING

Word has been received in the city from Mr. Charles Thornton, who is with the Royal Engineers in Halifax. In an interesting letter to Mr. F. K. Spriggs, of the Bell Telephone Company, with which he was connected in Peterborough, he writes that he saw several Peterborough boys embarking for the Old Country and said good-bye to them. Among the number were Stewart Laing, who has been promoted to sergeant, Ernest Langford, Allan Munro, and Lee Spriggs, a brother of Mr. F. K. Spriggs. All the boys were looking fine, he said, and in high spirits.

AWAIT FURTHER WORD OF LIEUT. H. MATTHEWS

Cables Are Sent in Effort to Get News About Peterborough Boys

No further word has been received up till late this afternoon about the condition of Lieutenant Harold S. Matthews of the Field Artillery who was reported as being wounded in the list of casualties given out at Ottawa last night, of any of the other Peterborough boys with the same division or with the Second Battalion, in the command of which Major G. W. Bennett fell. Mr. T. F. Matthews stated to The Review this afternoon that he wired the Adjutant-General at Ottawa for more particulars and also cabled the agent of Matthews-Blackwell Co. at London, England. No replies have been received from either. Mr. B. F. Ackerman, whose sons, Lieutenant Charles Ackerman and Sergeant Arthur Ackerman, served with Major Bennett, had received no word at three o'clock this afternoon.

LIEUT. HAROLD S. MATTHEWS.

Lieutenant Harold S. Matthews was one of the most popular of the Peterborough boys at the front. His brilliant career in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute was brought to a fitting close when he passed first of the ninety-three who tried entrance to R.M.C. Vivian Fessenden, who has also answered the call, stood third. Harold Matthews maintained that high position all through his three years at R.M.C. and when he graduated he won the Governor-General's silver medal. His career in the world of sport was commensurate with the success in his studies. While in Peterborough he figured prominently on the rugby field and was a member of the O.H.A. junior team in 1910-11. On entering R.M.C. he won provincial recognition for his work with the hockey and rugby teams.

BIG ADVANCE MADE ON HEIGHTS OF MEUSE

French Take Guns, Bomb Throwers and War Material, Causing Heavy Losses to the Enemy

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, April 28. — (Official afternoon report.) — "To the north of Ypres we have continued to make progress, particularly on the left, where we took six machine guns, two bomb throwers, much war material and several hundred prisoners, including a number of officers. Losses of the enemy were heavy.

"At a single point on the front, not far from the canal, we counted over six hundred bodies of German soldiers.

"On the heights of the Meuse we advanced about two-thirds of a mile, inflicting very heavy losses on the enemy and destroying a German battery."

BELGIAN HEADQUARTERS STATEMENT

LONDON, April 28. — The official announcement given out from Belgian army headquarters reads: "The situation on 27th April at six p.m. showed that German artillery was evidencing little activity on the front held by the Belgian army. French, aided by Belgian artillery and infantry, have taken Lizerne and several German trenches in the direction of Hetsas, more than one hundred dead being counted on the battlefield. The booty comprises six quick-firing guns and two hundred prisoners. The attack continues."

FRENCH ARMORED CRUISER LOST

BERLIN, April 28. — Military headquarters announces that the British attempts to reconquer lost ground in Flanders have all failed, that German troops stormed French entrenchments in Champagne, that French attacks in the forest of Le Pretre have failed, and that Germans hold Hartmann's-Weilerkopf, where there have been no new French attacks. The overseas news agency gives out that the French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta has been torpedoed by an Austrian submarine. Part of her crew were saved.

PARIS, April 28. — The ministry of marine announces the destruction of the Gambetta, presumably by a submarine in the Adriatic.

Build Hospitals for Convalescent Soldiers

May be Located at Valcartier and Among the Thousand Islands

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Ottawa, April 28. — The Militia Department has under consideration the provision of hospitals for the convalescence of soldiers returned to Canada from the front. A large site at Goderich has been offered the government but medical officers think it would be too far from seaports and therefore too long a trip by rail for wounded men.

The Engineering branch of this department has under consideration, the building of a hospital at Valcartier. A site nearer Quebec and one among the Thousand Islands has also been suggested.

COL. CURRIE SAFE

May Mean That Highlanders Were Held in Reserve

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, April 28. — The usual weekly cable from Col. Currie arrived today, saying simply, "I am safe." It was sent from Hazebouck, and seems to dispose of the theory that his regiment (the 15th Battalion) were at St. Mihiel.

It is possible the Highlanders were in reserve.

German Design Fails Offensive Weakening

ADVANCE DEFINITELY CHECKED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 28. — The Times correspondent in northern France says the German design to turn the left of the British position at Ypres and drive the allies out of Belgium, has failed. The battle still rages furiously but the German advance is definitely checked.

A deep plan to force a passage of the Yser canal has failed, and the allies are again firmly established on the eastern side of the canal. Large reinforcements have been brought up, and the line has been strengthened and consolidated.

There are signs that the German offensive is already weakening.

GERMANS FIRED ON ORPHANAGE

PARIS, April 28. — Refugees are coming in from Poperinghe, Belgium, which is being shelled by the Germans. The Germans fired on an orphanage, killing three nuns who were assisting in the removal of children, and injuring several inmates.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED

Contradictory Evidence in Claim for Damages of $1500

Judge Huycke reserved judgment yesterday in the case of William White and Wesley White vs. William Jordan, Luman Jordan and Thomas Sampson for $1500 as damages for injuries to Wesley White, which were caused by alleged negligence on the part of the defendants. It was claimed the defendants left a dynamite cap in a post hole and it was found by the child. It discharged and blew two fingers and a thumb off the boy's right hand and also marked his face and body. Evidence for the plaintiff went to show that the boy found the cap in the post hole, but during the evidence for the defence two witnesses swore they saw the boy climb into Jordan's house and come out with the cap.

ERECT TABLET

The Review has received intimations that a tablet or other suitable memorial should be erected to the memory of the late Major G. W. Bennett. Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., and Mr. R. Ruddy, K. C., have each promised subscriptions to a fund for this purpose. If any other [illegible] desire to make subscriptions, it would be well to do so immediately. If done through the Review they will be acknowledged each evening.

WAR HORSE WANTED DOOR.

The sun was blazing down on a field of hot, tired horses and excited troops, all waiting for a raw-boned animal to obey the urgings of its rider.

"Bring up that horse," shouted one of the officers; "you'll get into trouble if you don't."

"I'm as tired of it as you are, sir, but I can't help it. He's a cab horse, sir, and he won't start till he hears the door shut, and I haven't got any door to shut," was the reply.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1915

THE LATE MAJOR G. W. BENNETT.

THE WAR came very close to Peterborough late last night, when the news came here confirming the worst fears for Major G. W. Bennett. The popular and highly esteemed major has fallen in the heroic and desperate battle at Ypres, where the Canadian forces saved the situation and won glory for their King and country. His death is deeply regretted by the citizens of this city, who, one and all, had hoped that fortune might spare him for a safe return. But wars have no respect for persons, and this city sorrows in its loss, but is glad it has men brave enough to lay down their lives for their country. Major Bennett has made the supreme sacrifice.

THE LATE LIEUT. C. W. DAY, M.A.

PARTICULARLY SAD was the news that Lieut. C. W. Day, of Kingston, fell back dead almost at the same time as Major Bennett fell leading the charge of the Second Battalion at Langemarck, near Ypres. Lieut. Day was a classmate of the writer at Queen's University, and was one of the most brilliant students that have gone to that university. In 1912 he graduated in Arts with the degree of M. A., and was for a time lecturer in the Science Faculty. He won, among other prizes, a valuable scholarship at Harvard University, and, since his graduation, has been doing post-graduate work at the great American university, where he would likely have received his doctor's degree, the highest degree in a univrsity, this year. He was very young, being about twenty-five years of age, and had the prospect of a most useful and brilliant career. Now, he lies dead in France, having given up everything, degrees, medals, career, life, for his country. Lieut. Day was a member of the famous year 'Twelve in Arts, other members of which are on active service. We are safe in saying his Alma Mater will not let his heroic sacrifice pass without a suitable memorial in the halls where he first won distinction.

WHY AN ELECTION?

TO READ the opinions expressed in the editorial columns of most Liberal newspapers, there is no valid reason for holding an election. They assert that an election now would be, not for the discussion of political questions, but merely for a snap verdict of the people.

This is a partizan perversion of the facts, for a perusal of the political questions that will be discussed in the event of an election, shows them to be as important and as great as those of any previous election in Canada.

The Liberal Opposition has, in the first place, challenged the whole scheme of war taxation that the Borden Government has inaugurated to enable Canada to meet the necessities of this great war. They have said the new taxes were not war taxes at all, but merely increased protection, because the money raised was not to be used directly for the equipment of soldiers. This is a most shallow and picayune reason. In the United States new taxation was necessary because of the war, the taxes were called war taxes, that title was not challenged, and the United States is not at war with any country. Remember, the Liberals thus challenged, on such slight ground, the Government's fiscal war policy, openly called on them to go to the people, in face of the great war, and their own pledged word to maintain a party truce. On this question alone the Borden Government would be justified in consulting the people.

But there are other questions even more important. There are the great railway problems concerning the N. T. R. and the G. T. P., and the policy in regard to the C. N. R. If the first two lines are to be taken over by the Government and operated as publicly owned enterprises, the approval of the people should be obtained. Already, the Government has a forty per cent. interest in the C. N. R., and that is a step in this direction. Sir Wilfrid Laurier opposes the Government's railway policy, but his some-time minister of railways, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, approves it, at least that part concerning the N. T. R.

Then, the West has been given increased representation by the Redistribution Bill, passed about a year ago, and they want this representation now. They are entitled to it under the constitution, but they cannot receive it until an election gives them representatives in the Parliament of Canada.

There is also the question of the Senate. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier stumped the country before the Liberals came into power in 1896, he included Senate Reform as a main plank in his platform, yet sixteen years of office, in which he had large working majorities, passed without one single attempt to carry out his pre-election promise in regard to the Senate. The present status of that body is incompatible with Canadian democracy. It interferes with the parliamentary representatives of the people. It has become the tool of a minority and thwarted the will of the people as expressed in their elected representatives. It has, by its abject surrender to the minority in the House, ceased to be a revising chamber in any sense of the word, and has, therefore, forfeited its right to exist any longer in its present absolute and irresponsible position. Reform of the Senate is a very intricate and important question. It is a constitutional problem, affecting an important and influential part of the Parliament of Canada, and is to be approached with great care and caution, as is any question involving a change in so important a thing as the national constitution. The question embraces all the difference of opinion that arises between a single-chambered and a double-chambered Parliament.

In view of all these very important questions, all of which imply wide differences of opinion and policy, as well as other minor questions, there is not excuse, but pressing need, for an election. These problems should be settled, but they cannot be answered without the consent and support of the people in a general election. The Borden Government will not go to the people merely for the sake of an election. No Government rejoices in the turmoil and chances of an election. If the Borden Government goes to the people, it will be because it should do so, because there are many great and important questions, for the settlement of which its policy should have the approval of the Canadian people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IN THE LIST of officers wounded appears the name of Lieut. Matthews, of this city. It is not known at this writing how serious his condition is. He has won honour and distinction by participating in a bloody but brilliant battle, and his many friends in this city hope that he will speedily recover from the wounds he has received.

AMONG the many gallant Canadian officers who fell in the recent battle, none will be regretted more than the late Major Kimmins. Especially in the Niagara District will his loss be felt, where he was a highly esteemed officer of long standing in the old and well-known Seventy-seventh Regiment.

IT HAS been suggested that efforts should be made to bring Major Bennett's body to Peterborough. Certainly this should be done if possible. Also, there should be some suitable memorial raised to the gallant soldier who has laid down his life.

OFFICERS from Hamilton have figured prominently in the casualty lists of the recent battle. They have acquitted themselves like true soldiers of the King.

SAYS the Toronto Mail and Empire: "Let us have political peace," says the Laurier organ, wearied with shouting, "Not war taxes, but graft taxes."

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Unprepared.
(London Daily Telegraph.)

This is no "absent-minded beggar" war, but a contest in which we and our allies have suddenly been called to meet on land and on sea two nations whose preoccupation, as their histories attest, has been the preparation for and waging of war. Germany, and in a less marked degree Austria-Hungary, for many years employed her best intellects in perfecting the military organization which is, by their will and at their selected moment, being submitted to the supreme test. The British people, apart from their navy, entered upon hostilities practically unarmed; they had no army as armies are estimated on the continent.

The Way to Produce Capital.
(British Land Values Monthly.)

Capital is the result of labour applied to land, and, given the necessary knowledge and skill which the war may not destroy, there may be no cause for alarm provided the natural opportunities to produce wealth are open to labour. It is the choking and deadly grip of monopoly which is to be feared most in the anticipated "long period of depression," and the policy of the land values group of a direct tax on the capital value of the land can be tried with confidence as a safe and sure means of escape from this doleful-looking aftermath of the war.

Wilson's Position.
(London Daily Chronicle.)

No doubt he is in a difficult position, for which every allowance must be made. The Allies are fighting for their lives and they cannot afford to play with the essentials of their campaign. The United States is not fighting; and its people cannot help viewing the war mainly as a spectacle. Their remoteness from our hemisphere always tends to make them regard questions of foreign policy concerning their relations with European powers with an amount of care and study far less than they devote to the affairs of their own continent.

American Attitude.
(Ottawa Free Press.)

We can perhaps appreciate the cool, canny and collected business sense of the United States holding absolutely aloof, considering only "America first," making money out of the misfortunes of the belligerents, conserving its resources so that at the close it will hold a position of enormous commercial and financial advantage; but when President Wilson asks us to admire anything else in the attitude of the United States—well, it is rather hard to refrain from saying some cutting things.

As to Jarley.
(Exchange.)

"That man Jarley is without any exception the most inaccurate man I ever knew," said Dobson. "Tell me, Jones, does he ever get anything right?"

WAR TAXES.

Editor Review,

Sir,—Some of our Grit friends are helping on the trace between the parties (as they call it) by going around saying the war taxes are not being used for war purposes. Well, if they are not, who's paying for the war? If the Borden Government is using war taxes to pay for the crazy extravagance of the late government in soaking Canada for millions upon millions for the N.T.R. that isn't needed and for the new line from Quebec to Moncton which Hon. George Graham admits was a silly piece of waste then what taxes are going to pay for the war? It is easy to calculate how much the war is costing us in money and it is easy to see how much comes in from war taxes. After that it is easy to tell what has happened without lying about it.

FOE'S ADVANCE FORCES ANNIHILATED BY ALLIES

No Germans Now Remain on Left Bank of Yser Canal -- Big Offensive by Allies Likely on St. Julien

ON THE BELGIAN FRONTIER, April 28.—Yesterday's reports indicate that the terrific losses of the Germans in their great efforts to repulse the allies on the Yser have been merely thrown away. It is now certain that the remnants of the German attacking force which managed to pass the Yser and take possession of Lizerne have been almost annihilated.

No Germans now remain on the left bank of the canal. Fighting far more terrible than that which took place in the autumn, when the canal ran red with blood, has thrown the Germans back to the right bank.

The Germans were driven out of Lizerne Monday, when their last man left the place as a consequence of the terrible accuracy of the British artillery. On that little wedge in the lines the allies' efforts were at once concentrated. So severe was the fighting that only smashed walls and dead opponents were found when the British advance took place.

Bloody fights have been raging for two days along the canal, on the front from Steenstraate and Lizerne to Boesinghe, where the Germans were shelling the road to Elverdinghe to stop the sending of reinforcements. Around the most northerly part of this section the fiercest encounters took place. Heavy reinforcements brought up by both sides were launched in the battle. The allies had been preparing a tremendous move forward, which again cost the Germans heavy losses and rendered futile most of their work of the previous days.

All along the section of the line due east and west from St. Julien towards Gravenstafel the British thundered into the German trenches a murderous hail of shell. It was this movement which threatened the rear of the German line fighting on the Yser, coupled with the magnificent qualities shown by the men on the canal itself, that caused the Germans hurriedly to evacuate the hard-won ground.

All indications point to the fact that the offensive has now definitely passed to the allies, who, having brought up reinforcements, are now attacking. The tide seems to have turned, and it is strongly believed that the allies will now undertake a big offensive along the St. Julien front and will inflict tremendous losses.

The Germans have been retaliating by dropping bombs upon places behind the allies' lines and are now rushing all available troops to the St. Julien line to meet the advance of the British. In this neighborhood the decision may be looked for.

On another front, the Eparges-St. Remi-Calonne trenches, where the German attacks were also violent, the initiative has also passed again to the allies, after the German attacks were completely repulsed. The French here are now taking the offensive and administering terrific punishment to the enemy. Fighting was particularly bloody in this region, the French War Office citing as an example the fact that nearly 1,000 men are estimated as killed at one point alone on this front.

Hartmanns-Weilerkopf summit did not long remain in the hands of the Germans. The French Alpine chasseurs not only retook the topmost peak yesterday, but advanced about one-eighth of a mile beyond. They are now creeping down the eastern slopes.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Advices from Trebizond say that the average number of deaths daily at Erzerum from typhus and smallpox is 1,000. Massacre ad famine have been the lot of the inhabitants of various villages.

Seven Italian workmen were killed and eleven injured yesterday when there was a premature explosion of dynamite in the cut-off trench at the new Kensico dam, near White Plains, N.Y., throwing out forty tons of rock.

By special order of Maj.-Gen. Hughes, three prominent military band leaders have been appointed as a special committee to arrange a code of martial and patriotic airs to be officially adopted for parades and reviews.

Twenty of the soldiers of the 36th Battalion at Hamilton refused vaccination and as some of the officers were doubtful whether such a measure could be strictly enforced the score of objectors were allowed to go about their duties until word is received from headquarters.

FREE TRIPS TO ENGLAND

LONDON, April 28.—Free trips to England and return are foreshadowed for skilled workmen in the United States and in the colonies of Great Britain who are willing to fill the shortage among the armament firms in the British Isles.

Francis D. Acland, financial secretary of the Treasury, announced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the Government was taking steps to obtain such help in the production of munitions of war. Free transportion would be arranged, he said, if suitable labor were discovered without displacing men already effectively engaged in those countries.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, April 27.—Wheat futures opened ⅝c to ½c lower, oats ⅝c to 1c lower, and flax ⅝c to 1c down.

Sentiments expressed today were to the effect that prices were high enough meantime, and, while there was no fear of a slump in the old crop month, the outlook on the new crop was exceptionally bright.

At noon the range in fluctuations was ½c on the two near months, and ⅝c on October. Loading was light in all futures.

The cash demand was only fair, and offerings were heavy for Nos. 2 and 3 northern wheat. There was a fair demand for cash oats, but nothing doing in barley or flax.

Total inspections on Monday were 415 cars, of which 312 were wheat and 66 oats.

There was a recovery from the low points of the day of 1c to 1¼c on May and July at the close.

Wheat futures closed 2c to 2½c lower, cash 2¼c to 3c lower on contract grades, oats 2⅛c to 2¼c lower, and flax 1¾c down on both grades.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, April 27.—There was practically no demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba wheat or new crop American wheat today, and cables generally reported the English markets quieter, with an easier undertone. In sympathy with the weakness in the Winnipeg option market for oats, and the break in prices of 2c to 2¼c per bushel, the local market was weak, and prices declined 2c per bushel. There was no improvement in the demand, and business generally was very quiet. The export trade in spring wheat flour continues quiet, but the tone is firm. Millfeed firm. Butter unchanged. Cheese firm. Eggs active.

CHEESE MARKETS.

STIRLING, Ont., April 27.—At today's cheese board, 366 boxes were offered, and [illegible]

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., April 27.—The cheese board met here today. One hundred and eighty-five cheese boarded; all sold at 16 13-16c.

Be Fair to Your Watch
Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.
Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

EVIDENCE IN LIBEL CASE

Examination of Chief of Police Thompson by Crown Attorney Hatton and Cross Examination by Mr. Ruddy, K.C.

A full report of the evidence in the charge of defamatory libel preferred against The Review by Chief of Police Thompson is given herewith. It is the report of the court stenographer and gives questions and answers. The charge was read as follows:—

"That Thomas W. Whalley, at the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, on Monday, the 5th day of April, 1915, without legal justification or excuse did publish in the newspaper known as "The Daily Review," of which you are Managing Director or proprietor, that Daniel Thompson, Chief Constable of the said City of Peterborough, was permitting friendly relations between the Peterborough Police Force and the management of the Brock Street Rink and owner of the "underworld" which is likely to injure his reputation by exposing him to hatred, contempt, or ridicule, or designed to insult him, contrary to the Criminal Code."

The Defendant does not plead nor elect, nor admit anything.

Evidence of Chief Thompson.

Chief Thompson was examined by Mr. Hatton as follows:—

Q.—What position do you hold here, Mr. Thompson?

A.—Chief Constable.

Q.—Chief Constable?

A.—Head of the Police Department of the City of Peterborough.

Q.—You have laid information that defamatory libel has been published in regard to you and your force?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Upon what do you base that charge?

A.—Upon the number of letters published in the Daily Review newspaper known as the Daily Review, Peterborough.

Q.—Published where?

A.—In Peterborough.

Mr. Ruddy, K.C.—I make objection to any issues coming in except the issue of the 5th, the one complained of. If there is libel it must be the libel referred to in the information and I submit that nothing else ought to be received in the evidence. I object therefore to other issues being brought in.

Q.—In what issue did it appear, the article you complain of?

A.—In the issue of April 5th, 1915.

Q.—That is what you particularly complain of, is it?

A.—Yes, one.

Q.—What is the date?

A.—April 5th, 1915. (Paper produced.)

Q.—This is in a column and headed "Letters to the Editor" and signed by "Ratepayer?"

A.—Yes.

Part Complained of.

Q.—And what particular part of that, if any, do you take exception to?

A.—The last part of the letter.

Q.—The last clause?

A.—Yes, particularly.

Q.—The last clause particularly, and it reads as follows—"Is it not time law-abiding ratepayers of this city wake up and take notice? We all know who pays the cost of our police department. But who gets the protection we pay for? It might be interesting to many ratepayers to know who owns the "underworld" institutions of this city. How long will the indulgent ratepayers permit the present friendly relations between the police force and the management of the rink." Is that what you particularly take exception to?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—And with regard to the word "underworld" have you any objection to that word being used in connection with your Force?

A.—Yes, I have.

Q.—What meaning do you take from that?

Mr. Ruddy—That is not evidence, I object to it.

Crown Attorney—I submit it is a proper question; this is a charge of defamatory libel, and if the word has a meaning, it ought to be shown.

Mr. Ruddy.—It is objected to.

Crown Attorney—I am asking witness what meaning he takes from that word and I propose to ask some other witnesses what meaning they take from it as used in this connection, if I have your Worship's permission?

[illegible] waiting for his answer.

A.—The meaning I took from the word "underworld" in the way it was written in the paper was a place of low moral standard, the resort of people of low standard and low character.

Q.—Yes, and the article charged you with protecting that class of people?

A.—It charged me or the Police Department of being on friendly relations with the Brock Street Rink, that is, after it mentions the word "underworld."

Q.—This word "underworld" was it used in connection with any place in this city?

A.—Yes, in connection with the Brock Street Rink, further up in the letter.

Q.—The place referred to is what place?

A.—The Brock Street Roller Rink.

Mr. Ruddy—Of course I do not want to be taking objections but it would seem the article itself would show all these things; it is not for the witness to say.

Magistrate—It refers to some place and it should be made definite.

Mr. Ruddy—Your Worship will see it is not for the witness to give the meaning; it is for the jury.

Magistrate—No, he is giving us what he took for it. Who is the proprietor of this rink?

Chief Thompson—Mr. McNish is the present lessee.

Q.—Well had any articles been written to or in connection with this rink prior to this one?

A.—Yes.

Magistrate—There had been articles of what nature? You had better put them in.

Chief Thompson—April 1st, in the editorial.

Mr. Ruddy—These are what I am objecting to, your Worship. The charge is of libel on April 5th. I object to any other issues being brought in.

Chief Thompson—Under letter of the editor, here is an article referring to the Brock St. Roller Rink.

Magistrate—Only April 5th is referred to. I do not know that you can put in any other—you might on a separate charge.

Crown Attorney—I refer to R. V. Molleur, 12 Canadian Criminal Cases 8.

Mr. Ruddy—This is not a case of appearance without knowledge.

Crown Attorney—We do not know what the defence is.

Mr. Ruddy—No defence of the kind raised, your Worship.

Magistrate—Marks issue of April 1-15 as an exhibit.

Q.—Any other articles you complain of about that time?

A.—What date is that you have there?

Q.—April 3rd.

A.—In this aper there is an item, which although the Police Department is not mentioned, it simply goes to show that the writer on the 5th has been following up.

Mr. Ruddy—I do not know what article he refers to. It goes to show that the writer means when he refers to the Brock Street rink, and it brings in connection with it the Helen Brown case.

Q.—What case was that?

A.—It was a case that occurred here a short time ago where a young girl died from the results of an illegal operation.

Mr. Ruddy—You will see this objection; surely it is not in order for the witness to give the meaning of these articles, it is for the court and jury. All I can do is make objection to it, if your Worship allows it, I must hold to it.

Crown Attorney—There is an article referred to by the witness that I would like to have marked.

Magistrate—This is not referred to in the information.

Crown Attorney—I can refer to some cases and you can take them into consideration after and shorten matters up.

Magistrate to Mr. Ruddy—Do you object to this paper of the 3rd of April?

Mr. Ruddy—Yes, your Worship, I object to it.

Crown Attorney — These articles are all of the same class.

Magistrate — Yes, finding fault with the rink as a place that leads to evil life sometimes.

Crown Attorney—And that it was under the protection of the police.

Magistrate—There are police in the town and this place is in the town, but there is no reference to it here.

Crown Attorney—But there is in the one objected to.

Magistrate—And these all lead up to it.

Q.—Had your attention been called to either of these articles by any of the citizens?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Have you any particular case in mind?

A.—I have been spoken to a number of times.

Q.—By whom? Citizens?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know their names?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the tenor of these remarks that were made to you in connection with these articles?

A.—Well the tenor of them was they wanted to know where I was associated with place of the "underworld" and with the Brock Street Rink, and if it was a place of that kind.

Q.—Yes, anything else?

A.—No, I do not think so.

Q.—It was just a question then.

A.—Yes. In consequence of this I went to see Mr. Whalley at his office.

Q.—Did you see him?

A.—Yes, I did, and I objected to the letters, especially the letter of the 5th in the paper.

Q.—You did not go to him then until after the lettter of the 5th.

A.—No I did not, and he wanted to write me an apology in the paper, in fact started to write it out on his desk and I told him I did not want an apology from him, that I did not think he held any animosity towards the Police Department, but that I wanter an apology from the man who wrote the letter. He advised me to write him a letter in regard to that so he could show it to the man who wrote the letter. I wrote a letter to him on the 6th April making my objections and asking for an apology within twenty-four hours.

Q.—An apology from whom?

A.—From the man who wrote the letter.

Magistrate—He is not responsible for the man writing the letter, only for publishing.

Chief Thompson—I wrote a letter to Mr. Whalley; he said he wanted to show it to the man who wrote the letter. I wrote the letter personally to Mr. Whalley. I can show you a copy fo the letter.

Mr. Ruddy—Put a copy of the letter in.

Chief Thompson—The letter is in my copy-book.

Mr. Ruddy—He has a copy; let him put it in.

Chief Thompson—I did not say I could put it in; I have a copy.

Mr. Ruddy—Show it to his Worship that will do.

Crown Attorney—Get the copy.

Chief Thompson produces copy of letter to Whalley:

Peterborough, April 8, 1915.

To the Editor of the Review,

Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 5th inst. under the heading of Letters to the Editor, the writer refers to the Brock Street Rink as a place of the underworld and in the above mentioned the writer infers that I am on friendly relations and associated with institutions of the underworld. Unless a public apology is made on the front page of your paper within twenty-four hours an information will be laid under the criminal code.

Respectfully,

D. THOMPSON,

Chief Constable.

Crown Attorney—Will your Worship mark that?

Magistrate—What came of it?

Crown Attorney—Nothing came of it.

Magistrate—What is the object in putting it in?

Crown Attorney — Just evidence that apology was asked for and apology refused.

Magistrate—Can you bring in the writer of this action?

Crown Attorney—We do not have to; we do not know the other man.

Magistrate—I do not see what this letter has to do with it.

Crown Attorney—I do not think it has much to do either.

Q.—Was there any truth in your having any connection with the people of the Brock Street Rink or the people who went there?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Have you any connection?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Have you any interest in it or connection with it?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Ever had?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Anybody complain to you about your allegec connection with it—any citizens?

A.—Well I have been spoken to about it.

Mr. Ruddy—You asked him whether any one complained about him having connection with the rink and the witness was about to say something and my learned friend interrupted him; I would like him to answer.

Q.—Any answer to that question I asked; I said did any of the citizens complain to you of your allged connection with the rink as published in the papers?

A.—No.

Q.—They did not complain?

A.—No.

Q.—Nothing said except what you stated before, that they were asking for information apparently after this article was published?

A.—I do not think so.

Q.—Well you say some of the citizens did ask you about it; could you tell us one, the name of one?

Yes.

Q.—What is his name, or her name?

A.—Mr. Roy.

Q.—What Roy?

A.—The photographer man.

Q.—Do you remember the conversation that took place?

Mr. Ruddy—It cannot be evidence in any Court, your Worship.

Magistrate—It is necessary to show this article was the subject of ridicule or contempt.

Mr. Ruddy—Is that the way to show publication by what people say about it?

Magistrate—It is the way to show the article came to the knowledge of citizens, for they spoke to him about it.

Q.—Do you remember what was said, Chief?

A.—The conversation did not last long. I met him on the street and he said it was too bad such things as that were allowed to go through the papers; he said he thought it was insulting, and if it were written about him or his name mentioned in connection with it he would consider it an insult.

Q.—And you say that Mr. Roy said that? What Roy was that?

A.—The photographer — Fred. Roy.

Q.—Anybody else, Chief, that you can recollect?

A.—Yes, the Rev. Mr. Webb came to me.

Q.—In conection with what?

A.—In connection with the article in the paper.

Mr. Ruddy—This is objected to, your Worship.

Q.—And he came to you; subject to my learned friend's objection; any conversation with him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Recollect what it was?

A.—Particularly along the same lines as Mr. Roy, he said it was too bad the man who was writing these things could not be stopped or made prove them.

Magistrate—I do not suppose what other people felt about it can be considered.

Crown Attorney—Oh, yes, I think so. I am just showing it came to the attention of citizens and left a bad impression on their minds concerning the Police Force and the Chief in particular.

Q.—Remember anybody else that came to you?

A.—Yes, Mr. Roland Denne.

Q.—Do you remember what he said?

Mr. Ruddy—Also objected to, your Worship; this is not the way of proving this case.

A.—He said he thought it was time something was done to prevent such publications going out broadcast through the country.

Magistrate—He condemned it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Remember anybody else?

A.—Mr. Richard Winch spoke to me.

He is an old resident here, is he?

A.—Yes, I understand he has been here a number of years.

Q.—Remember what he said?

A.—He condemned it. He said if the article were written and his name mentioned in connection with it, he would consider it insulting.

Q.—These newspapers that were put in—where did you get them?

A.—From one of my constables, Constable Blade.

THE CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Cross-examination by Mr. R. Ruddy, K. C.

Q.—When did you first get on the Police Force, Mr. Thompson, in the City of Peterborough?

A.—July, 1910.

Q.—What time?

A.—I started on the 1st July, 1910.

Q.—On the 1st of July, 1910?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was Mr. John Meharry on the police force at that time?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And how long did Mr. Meharry continue to remain on the Police force after you came?

A.—I canot just give the date, but I think in the neighborhood of probably a year or a little more than a year.

Q.—Probably two years?

A.—It might have been; I am not sure about that.

Q.—Did Mr. Meharry during the time he was on the Police Force operate this rink?

A.—He did previous to my coming here.

Q.—After you came here?

A.—Yes, I expect he did, I knew he was connected with it.

Q.—For how long?

A.—Shortly after I came here I found out that.

Q.—How long did he continue to operate the roller rink and remain on the Police Force?

A.—Up till he resigned, I do not remember the date.

Q.—I suppose the records of the Police Commissioners would show that?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You attend the meetings of the Police Commissioners?

A.—I do.

Q.—Did you have any complaints about Mr. Meharry running the roller rink and also acting as constable?

A.—I had made objection myself to the Commissioners shortly after I came here.

Q.—You made objection yourself, you say?

A.—I did, after I got the power to establish a book of rules and regulations which were not in force when I came.

Q.—Is there any record of your having objected to the Police Commissioners do you think, in the books?

A.—In which book?

Q.—In the book of the minutes of the Police Commissioners.

A.—I think there ought to be.

Q.—And if the minutes do not show anything of that kind, you might be mistaken?

A.—Oh, no. I am not mistaken, sir.

Q.—You say objection was made shortly after you came here?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And can you tell us how long Mr. Meharry continued to operate the roller rink and act as constable?

A.—Until sometime in 1912.

Q.—So if that is true, he would be acting in that manner for two years after you came here?

A.—Close to that I think.

Received Complaints.

Q.—Did you have complaints about matters in the rink from time to time, from citizens?

A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—During those two years?

A.—Yes, I had complaints during those two years; not in the rink, but of noise outside the rink.

Q.—Rowdyism?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you or anyone else on behalf of the Police Force lay information or summon any person for that conduct?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How often did that occur?

A.—I cannot tell.

Q.—Cannot you give any idea?

A.—Any time we caught anybody there acting in a disorderly manner, we had him before the Police Court.

Q.—Was it a matter of frequent occurrence?

A.—No.

Q.—How many times did you have anyone summoned for disorderly conduct?

A.—I cannot say.

Q.—More than once, or more than half a dozen times?

A.—I cannot say.

Q.—Would the police records show that?

A.—They would not show; they would show disorderly conduct, but not where it was from.

Q.—Do you know the names of any of the parties you had summoned?

A.—No.

Q.—You are speaking now of the summers of 1910 and 1911?

A.—I cannot say whether it was 1910, 1911 or 1912.

Q.—When did you last have anyone summoned for disorderly conduct at the rink?

A.—Well I think there was probably a case, one or two cases, I am not sure, in 1914.

Q.—One or two cases?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember the nature of the charge?

A.—No, in the summer there was no—the rink was not running in the summer time of 1914.

Q.—But I am speaking of the time it was running.

A.—I do not think it was running in 1914.

Q.—Was there any license issued for 1914?

A.—I do not think so. I do not think there was. I think Meharry came and asked if he could open up for one day, but I refused unless he took out a license.

Q.—He asked you in 1914 if he could operate the rink without a license?

A.—To open it for one day. He asked me if I thought there could be any arrangement made for him to pay for the opening up of one day.

Q.—I see; for a license for one day? Mr. Meharry knew nothing about the license by-law?

A.—He ought to.

Q.—What did you tell him?

A.—I refused him.

Q.—That was in 1914?

A.—I am not sure whether it was or not.

Q.—Do you know of your own knowledge whether Meharry had a license in 1914 to operate the roller rink?

A.—He did not have to my knowledge.

Q.—As a matter of fact I understood he had. How is it?

A.—I am not prepared to say whether he had or not. Up to 1914 I never reported them; they were issued without my report.

Q.—It was under a new by-law you had to report? And when did you start to report on such licenses?

A.—In 1914.

Q.—I am speaking of 1914. Did you make any report in 1914 about a license?

A.—I do not remember making any report.

Q.—You do not think there was any license in 1914?

A.—I do not think so.

Q.—You swear it was not operated as a roller rink in 1914?

A.—It was not operated to my knowledge as a roller rink?

Q.—You are Chief, and will you swear this?

A.—I am saying it was not operated to my knowledge.

Q.—Might it have been operated without your knowledge?

A.—I do not think so, not for any length of time; it might for a few hours, but ont for any length of time.

Q.—Have you had any complaints recently about the rink, about the roller rink?

A.—From where?

Q.—From citizens.

A.—No.

Q.—Did you say complaints were frequent in 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1913; is that so?

A.—Well I think the greater part of the complaints were received during the time Meharry was on the Police Department.

Q.—During that ime?

A.—Yes, and there were convictions made in that time by people acting in a disorderly manner outside the rink, in fact, I am not sure but that Meharry did not prosecute himself on one or two occasions.

Q.—So the facts are that the Police Force and the management of the rink were associated together for a period of two years, as constables; is that not so?

A.—No.

Q.—That is not so?

A.—No.

Q.—Why not?

A.—Because you would not give me a chance to answer. There are only two members of the Police Force on duty when Meharry was here, that are now on.

Q.—I am talking about the members of the Police Force during those two years. Is it not true, Mr. Thompson, that for two years the members of the Police Force for that time, and the management of the rink were associated together as constables? Isn't that so?

A.—Well he was on the Police Force and must have been associated if on the Police Force with the other members of the Department.

Q.—Yes. Now was it owing to complaints from citizens that Meharry was removed from the Police Force?

A.—No sir; owing to my first objecting to the Police Commissioners, shortly after I came here.

Q.—That objection took a long time to be acted on?

A.—It was not my fault, it was the fault of the Commissioners.

Q.—Well then, you had no power to discharge him?

A.—No sir. He was on the Force before I came.

Q.—I understand you to say then that Mr. Meharry acted as policeman these two years, contrary to your objection and without your approval?

A.—He did.

Q.—And he was removed sometime afterwards?

A.—Yes.

Q.—I am instructed that citizens complained about him, Mr. Thompson. You say you attend the meetings of the Police Commissioners?

A.—Oh yes, citizens complained to me.

Q.—Frequently?

A.—Well, I would not say frequently, but I think a number did.

Q.—And to the Police Commissioners, did they not?

A.—I cannot speak for them.

Q.—I am instructed Dr. McClelland appeared before the Police Commissioners and a number of others with him; do you remember that occasion?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And appeared on more than one occasion?

A.—I do not think they appeared before the Board on more than one occasion.

Q.—Do you recollect them appearing on one particular occasion?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember finally a resolution of the Board being passed with reference to this matter.

A.—Oh, yes, the matter was brought before the Board but I do not know the resolution you refer to.

Asked to Resign.

Q.—Was Mr. Meharry discharged or did he resign?

A.—He was asked to hand in his resignation.

Q.—When was that?

A.—I think in 1912.

Q.—And he quit the Force on July 15th, 1912, did he not?

A.—Yes, in consequence of the rules and regulations that no person could be a member of the Department and enter into any other business.

Q.—The Police records show—the records of meetings of the Police Commissioners show—that Dr. McClelland and others appeared before the Commissioners on April 27th, 1911, and made complaints, do you recollect that?

A.—Yes, I recollect that.

Q.—And Dr. McClelland was referred to the Crown Attorney; do you remember that?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Then the Police records show that subsequent to that a resolution carried that Constable John Meharry be notified that his connection with the roller ring is inconsistent with his duties as Police Constable and he must sever his connection therewith; that was passed according to the records on May 2nd, 1911. And notwithstanding that notice, Meharry still continued to operate the rink; that is a fact is it not?

Q.—Until finally he was asked in June, 1912, to hand in his resignation to take effect July 15th of the same year. That is the history of the matter. Was any complaint made by any of his brother members on the Force about his acting in that capacity, at any time, to you?

A.—The sergeant, I think, and I used to talk the matter over.

Q.—I am asking if any of his brother constables made any complaint either to you or to the Commissioners?

A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—I understand Meharry had been on the force for a long time?

A.—No, I do not think for a very long time; I think he only put in about three years.

Q.—Three years?

A.—Yes, about three or four years.

Dect. Newall—He was on the Force 6 years.

Chief Thompson—He might have been.

Q.—And have you got the same constables on the Force now that you had up to July, 1912?

A.—Well I have some of them, yes.

Q.—What members are still on?

A.—Detectives Newhall and Meagher.

Q.—I am referring to constables; what others?

A.—I do not think there are any others.

Q.—I want you to let me know.

A.—I do not think there are any others—yes, unless Sergt. Brown. I am not sure but I think he came in 1911. Sergt. Brown came in 1911 and the Acting Sergt. came in the [illegible]

Q.—So that they are still on the Force?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Is that in addition to the two mentioned?

A.—Yes.

Q.—No objection was made by Detective Newhall to John Meharry?

A.—I do not remember any.

Q.—Nor any objection made by Detective Meagher?

A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Any objection made by either one of these other gentlemen you mentioned?

A.—I do not think so. I made the objections.

Q.—Do you detail a policeman out to look over the rink during the time it is in operation?

A.—I have a number of times detailed special men, when I got complaints; men in plain clothes not detectives, but other men, and endeavored to get to the bottom of the complaints I received.

EACH DISTRICT IS A CONTEST IN ITSELF

Each Contestant in The Peterborough Review Pacific Tour Race Should Have a Campaign Manager—Each District is an Individual Contest and Participants Must Live in District From Which They Enter

The candidates already enrolled in The Review contest are beginning to straighten their thinking caps, shove them on more firmly, and figure on various plans of securing votes in abundance.

The Transcontinental tour staff had some pleasant little heart-to-heart chats with a number of candidates and several prospective candidates, who dropped in at the contest headquarters yesterday. Its members were greatly impressed by one thing—the necessity of the vote-getter enlisting the support of a hustling male campaign manager to promote her candidacy.

The campaign manager may be any one sufficiently interested in your progress, and who comes in contact with enough people every day to make his work in your behalf effective. Perhaps the very individual who appears to you to be always effacing himself might be the very one whose efforts will carry the most influence.

There are scores of bright, breezy young men who are just pining to be asked to help you by assistance and advice in securing the effective ballots. How about that live brother—either your own or some other girl's brother? Or father (consult him often anyway); or husband, of the married aspirants for the trip; or that nice young man; perhaps one man in the office, or, better still, your employer? If you go at it the right way you can get him interested. Or that man who lives in your block and whom everybody likes—you know the one we mean.

And postmasters, why, what perfectly splendid campaign managers postmasters or their assistants make.

You see, there are so many places—offices, business concerns, lodges, cigar stores, etc.—where men go and where they can secure votes galore, but where you will never have an entrance. Take a friendly hint based on past experience. Rustle around and secure a good masculine campaign manager. Better still, get two or three.

While working alone your campaign may progress as smoothly as a perfect "buzz wagon" on a macadam road, but some day there will come a hitch in the easy running. You will be down in the dumps. It will be necessary for you to have some wise counsel to infuse new life and wisdom into your campaign. A different plan of action than the one you have been carrying out may be needed. There's where he comes in, with cool-headed judgment, suggestions and encouragement. That is the time when you will appreciate the value of a man in a woman's contest.

There is nothing more important than picking a pilot (and a captain and first mate if you can secure them) safely to guide your ship of effort through the channel of progress into the harbor of success. Whom are you going to interest?

Every district is a contest in itself. The candidates in each district only have the other candidates in their district to compete against for a trip offered for that district.

It is not necessary to write the name and district number on each and every ballot clipped from The Review, where several are to be sent in at one time. Simply tie them in neat packages of a hundred or less, put your name on the top one, with your district number and a slip of paper stating how many there are in a package so that we may verify your count. Do not forget the name and district number. We have received some in the last few days and there was nothing written on them to indicate for whom they were intended.

The date is plainly printed on each ballot in the paper and no ballots received at The Review office after the date mentioned on the coupon will

Do not forget that this is "Triple Vote Week." Your friends will help you now and you should impress upon them the necessity of doing so. Three times as many votes will be given now as later on and it is really important that all those who have promised help should do so before Saturday.

Candidates living outside Peterborough will have the privilege of mailing their subscriptions any time on Saturday. So long as the letter bears the post mark of Saturday, May 1st, the business will be counted according to the Triple Vote Schedule, even though it is not received at the Review office until the following Monday.

Greece Sure To Join.

ROME, April 28.—Despatches received here yesterday state that Greece's intervention in the war is inevitable, and that she will cast her fortunes with the allied cause seems to be a foregone conclusion. CANADIAN MAYORS TO SEE GOVERNMENT

The Mayor of Winnipeg has been endeavoring to get the Mayors of the various towns and cities in the Dominion to form one large deputation and wait upon the Premier at Ottawa with the view of forming definite plans to solve the unemployed problem. The Mayor of Winnipeg wired Mayor Buller and urged that His Worship take the matter up, re- [illegible] culty in Winnipeg has become too big to solve locally. Mayor Buller felt that Peterborough is capable of caring for the unemployed but advised the Mayor of Winnipeg that he is willing to co-operate. The date the deputation will meet in the capital will be announced later.

CANADIANS REINFORCED

Large Draft of Men is Safely Landed in France

LONDON, April 28.—Advices received here last evening were to the effect that a large draft of reinforcements for the Canadian troops situated in the Ypres region had been safely landed in France.

Since early morning, trainloads of wounded, including a large number of Canadians, have been despatched to various parts of England. Reports from the hospitals say most are doing well. The most seriously wounded remain on the continent at the bases. A remarkable feature noted here is that when first the news was known on Saturday Canadian on leave rushed back to their depot anticipating that reinforcing drafts would be called up.

Pte. Prior and Corpl. Johnson, of the First Battalion, here in hospital, state that the men little know what they are going to. Even before last week's big battle the Canadians had a unique time, with ten-mile route marches, daily drills and parades. The day before the great attack they had had no fewer than three parades. Johnson agrees that the honors fall on the Fourth Battalion.

There is great anxiety here for the exact extent of the Canadian casualties, as no official information is given out.

STILL NO CLUE

Goderich Murder is Shrouded in Mystery

GODERICH, April 28.—Inspector Reburn, of Toronto, sent here Monday by the provincial department, co-operated with Crown Attorney Seager and Chief of Police Postlethwaite in investigating the mysterious death of Robert Bean, of Colborne Township, but so far no light has been shed on the strange circumstances surrounding the murder.

As far as can be ascertained the murder, which was deliberate and well-timed, was not for the purpose of robbery, but of revenge for some fancied injury, or prompted by some deeper motive. The body lay on the road after it fell from the buggy, but there were no indications of robbery as the pockets were not disturbed.

Mr. Bean was returning from a visit to a friend at about twenty minutes to eleven and when opposite the home of Col. Varcoe fifteen minutes later a shot was fired. Col. Varcoe and his son heard the report and immediately after a voice called "What be ye doing there." A second shot occurred and then two vehicles were heard going opposite ways.

No notice was taken by Col. Varcoe, but some time afterwards Ernest Patterson informed him that a body was lying on the road.

FOSTER OUT

Member for Kings N. S. Resigns His Seat

OTTAWA, April 28. — A. Dewitt Foster, M.P. for King's, N.S., has sent in his resignation as a member of Parliament.

In the dying days of the session Sir Robert Borden virtually read Mr. Foster and Mr. W. F. Garland, M.P. for Carleton, Ont., out of the Conservative party.

Both of them had become involved in war contracts

The executive of the Liberal-Conservative Association met at Stittsville yesterday to determine the status of W. F. Garland.

Thirteen members of the executive were present, six of whom urged Mr. Garland's resignation and seven of whom favored him as a candidate again. A motion was put asking Mr. Garland to resign his seat, but was defeated, and an amendment endorsed by the seven which favored waiting on Premier Borden to ask him to "explain the situation more fully" was carried.

This is the first time in Canadian political history that a Premier took such strong action regarding members of his party, who failed to live up to the standard required of members of Parliament.

Germany Talks About Long War.

LONDON, April 28. — A telegram to The Evening News from Copenhagen quotes the German counsellor of state, Herr Gottschalk, as saying that systematic efforts were being inaugurated in Germany for the purchase of sufficient foodstuffs for a four years' supply. This is being done, it is said, on instructions to German Chambers of Commerce from Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, on the ground that Germany "must be prepared for at least this length."

Herr Gottschalk is on his way to Sweden and Norway to organize a system for making these purchases.

An Invitation to Out of Town People to Come to Peterboro' to Shop — Fares Will be Refunded and Special Bargains Will be Offered by Nearly Every Store in the City

ONE WEEK FROM MAY 17 TO 22

The merchants of Peterborough extend a formal invitation to all the people within a radius of 50 or 60 miles of this city, to come to Peterborough during the week before the "twenty-fourth"—a week set apart, during which all the out of town customers will have their railway, boat fares, etc., refunded according to the schedule by the stores listed.

It is not necessary to come by either boat or train to get your fare refunded; you may come by auto, horse, vehicle, aeroplane, or simply walk, and if your purchases amount to the sum set opposite to your home place in the schedule you will be entitled to your return fare in cash.

The people of Peterborough and those accustomed to shop here know that there is no better city or town in the province where greater buying opportunities are offered than right here. However, there are still many people who do not know or realize this. To acquaint such people with the facts enumerated above, the merchants have prepared this great fare-refunding sale.

The merchants want to acquaint more people with the buying power, and with the excellence and high standard of Peterborough stores. It will be shopping worth while. The merchants have made extensive preparations for this six-day special sale.

'Tis timely this sale. The summer needs are upon us, and it is just the time to do your summer shipping.

The merchants will enumerate their special inducements in the advertising columns. Read this paper.

You do not get your full value of any paper unless you read the advertisements. Then when you do your shopping, you know just exactly where you are going and what you are looking for.

Shop with care. The merchant who advertises has something to sell and is not afraid to send out his message.

When entering a store, ask to see this or that article advertised and you will be directed promptly and save much time.

Ask for Refund Slip.

Don't forget to ask for the refund slip at the first store which you visit of those listed on the schedule. The schedule containing the full list of all the participating stores will be published in this paper.

Take this slip with you to the other listed stores, and have the clerks enter the amounts of your purchases, then when you have finished shopping take your slips to either the Review or the Examiner and get the cost of your fare back according to the schedule. It is up to you out-of-town shoppers to appreciate this.

It won't cost you anything to come to Peterborough during this big Fare-Refunding Sale.

SIX MORE OFFICERS ARE KILLED IN ACTION

A Total of One Hundred and Twenty-five Officers Have Been Killed, Wounded or Captured in the Ypres Battle

OTTAWA, April 28. — A further long list of casualties among Canadian officers was received at the Militia Department last night, bringing the total casualties among officers in the recent fight up to about 125, with probably more to come. Last night's list contains the names of six officers killed and twenty-three reported wounded or missing. One officer, Capt. W. Clarke Kennedy, of Montreal, previously reported killed, is now reported alive and well, while Lieut. W. Fitzpatrick, of Pipestone, Man., who was previously reported as seriously wounded, is now reported killed.

The Canadian division is reported to be again among the reserve troops to-day, and it is likely that they will be kept out of the firing line for some days pending a much-needed rest and the filling up of the many gaps in the list of officers. Last night's list tells of particularly heavy losses in the Second Battalion, under command of Col. David Watson, of Quebec, and also in the Fifth and Eighth Battalions, composed of western Canada troops. In the Second Battalion practically every company lost one or more officers, and in one company only a single lieutenant has escaped. There is no word yet as to what has happened the Fifteenth Battalion, under command of Col. John Curre, M.P., including the men from Toronto and district.

The continued absence of official details lends color to the belief held here that this battalion has possibly furnished most of the bag of prisoners which the Germans claim to have taken. There is also no news in regard to the artillery officers of the heavy brigade, but it is asserted that all the Canadian guns are now in the possession of our men.

Last night's casualty list was as follows:

Killed.

Second Battalion — Major G. W. Bennett, Capt. W. Lockhart-Gordon, Lieut. Herbert N. Klotz, Lieut. C. W. Day, Lieut. W. J. Doxsee.

Reported Killed.

First Field Ambulance—Lieut. W. Fitzpatrick.

Third Battalion — Lieut. Lyon Evans.

Fifth Battalion — Major H. M. Dyer, Capt. E. Hilliard, Major G. S. T. Pragnell, Lieut. L. P. C. Tudon.

TO BE IN BY MAY 15.

Italy Will Attack Austria In a Couple of Weeks, Says Garibaldi.

PARIS, April 28. — Col. Peppino, Garibaldi, who is here for a few days to conclude arrangements for sending the remainder of the Italian volunteers home, has given a remarkable interview, in which he says positively that Italy will declare war upon Austria on or before May 15.

"Italy will attack Austria certainly," he said, "not later than May 15, and possibly sooner.

"Two campaigns will be started simultaneously, one against the Austrian Tyrol, which will consist chiefly of artillery work and will probably be very slow, and another along the coast from a point at the rear of Trieste, where fourteen classes of troops are already under arms.

"In the first line of invaders against Austria there will be 800,000 men against Austria's 200,000 who are now awaiting the attack. Our navy is far stronger than the Austrian navy, and will undoubtedly permit the movement of troops across the Adriatic for attacks elsewhere. The entire campaign will be finished well before winter."

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

Q.—You have a number of times, you say?

A.—Yes, a number of times, to get a foundation for complaints made.

Q.—And you say you have had men in plain clothes go there?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Get any results?

A.—No, not from the immoral standpoint.

Q.—Well, you are qualifying; from what standpoint did you get results?

A.—I got results in the usual way of my constables on beats reporting disorderly acts in any districts, and acts of disorderly conduct at or near the Brock street rink on nights of hockey matches and so forth.

Q.—You did get results, and did convictions follow for disorderly conduct?

A.—In every case reported.

Q.—Can you tell me about how many convictions there would be?

A.—You wanted to know that before; I told you I could not.

Q.—Could you give us any idea of how many there would be; would there be a dozen?

A.—Might be.

Q.—Would there be twenty?

A.—No, not during my time.

Q.—Can you give us the nature of the complaint, having heard the evidence?

A.—Which complaint?

Q.—One that you secured conviction for disorderly conduct?

A.—No, sir, I cannot.

Q.—Cannot tell me anything about

A.—Yes, I remember one or two cases of fighting near there, this side of the rink.

Q.—Any inside the rink?

A.—No; I do not think there were any cases inside the rink.

Q.—Did you ever have any girls summoned from there for disorderly conduct?

A.—No.

Q.—Or women?

A.—No.

Q.—Or men?

A.—No.

Q.—Any offences by men to women in the rink or outside it at any time?

A.—No.

Q.—You never succeeded in having anyone summoned?

A.—I never succeeded in getting sufficient information to have anyone summoned.

Q.—You had complaints of that nature?

A.—I had complaints of it being used for immoral purposes, but have never been able to get any information. I have detailed my matron to see if she could, but she has been unable to get any, and the complaints usually come from the one source, from Brock street.

Q.—From people who would be able to see?

A.—I think all the complaints I have received were from the same people.

Q.—From people who would be able to see if they desired to do so?

A.—They say so.

Q.—And people whose word you would believe?

A.—I will not say that.

Q.—Will you class the whole three as that kind?

A.—I will not answer that question.

Q.—Did you believe what they were telling you was true?

A.—I received the complaint in good faith and investigated and found

Q.—Did you have it investigated in court?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—How did you know it was not true?

A.—I did not have any evidence to bring it to court.

Q.—You stood in judgment on the matter yourself?

A.—I did that far.

Q.—You say you have had a number of complaints?

A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—And are these people, who are generally believed — are they in the neighborhood there, and people whose word is generally believed and of good repute?

A.—I would say so; if they came to me for an investigation, or complained, I would certainly investigate.

Q.—And you think from where they live they would have an opportunity to see what goes on?

A.—They ought to.

Q.—And still you say your force have never been able to summon any person for this kind of conduct?

A.—What kind of conduct?

Q.—Immorality?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—You have not been able?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever take a hand in the investigation yourself, personally?

A.—Investigation of the place, do you mean?

Q.—Yes.

A.—I have went up there at nights, when even the men I had detailed did not know I was there.

Q.—You went up yourself?

A.—Yes, but that was during the time Meharry was a member of the force, and I went to see if there was any laxity in my men.

Q.—As a rule, you turned the matter over to someone else?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And did you turn over these complaints to others?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you acted on the information which they brought you?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you ever see any of these posters, Mr. Thompson (poster exhibited)?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you see them?

A.—I had occasion to reprimand one of my constables for passing one on his beat and not taking it down.

Q.—How many of these did you see, Mr. Thompson?

A.—I remember seeing one at the corner of Brock and George streets and that was the one I spoke to the officer about.

Q.—Any others?

A.—I do not remember seeing any others. I told him to pull down all he saw.

Q.—Did you know they were posted up all through the town or city?

A.—I knew they were posted by the one I seen.

Q.—Did you inquire whether any others were posted?

A.—I did not.

Q.—You saw one?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see it advertised in the Examiner?

A.—I do not remember reading it; I do not bother much with that class of news.

Q.—Policemen on their beats would be able to see these?

A.—They ought to be. They wouldn't be much good on the beat if they wouldn't.

Q.—And what were you saying a moment ago; did you instruct a policeman to take one down?

A.—I did—to take all down.

Q.—When did you give that instruction?

A.—I cannot say.

Q.—It would be before Good Friday?

A.—I cannot say.

Q.—Aren't you pretty sure it was not before Good Friday?

A.—It might have been before or after, I cannot say. I was going up George street and saw the one on the corner of George and Brock streets, and met an officer close to the crossing, and told him to take all down he came across.

Q.—It might have been after the opening night? Probably was?

A.—I would not say.

Q.—Now, what was your object in telling the police constable to take them down?

A.—Because I received a letter from the City Council — not from the Council — but from the Peterborough Light and Power Company about a year ago asking me to assist them in protecting their posts and not allowing posters on them.

Q.—That was the object?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And you had poles under your supervision as well?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You say John Meharry is still connected with the rink?

A.—I think so.

Q.—And who else?

A.—The present lessee or license holder is a Mr. McNish.

Q.—Where does he come from?

A.—From Toronto.

Q.—How long has he been in Peterborough?

A.—I cannot say, Mr. Ruddy.

Q.—How long have you known him?

A.—Probably a month.

Q.—And what is he,—what is his occupation?

A.—Running roller rinks.

Q.—And you do not know anything about him since he came here?

A.—No.

Q.—What has he been doing since he came here?

A.—Running the Brock street rink, I understand. He got the license for it.

Q.—Well, now, an application was made this year for a license. Who made the application?

A.—Mr. McNish.

Q.—He made the application? Were you seen about it before you got the written application?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—By whom? Mr. Meharry?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—By any person else?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—When did you get the application?

A.—It was brought in by one of the city clerk's girls.

Q.—When did you get the application?

A.—Well, I cannot give you the date—I can give you the day—it was Saturday.

Q.—Saturday would be the 3rd. Your application came in the day after the rink opened?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And was dated the 3rd? Then what was your duty then upon receiving that application?

A.—To report on it.

Q.—To report to whom?

A.—To the city clerk.

Q.—Did you make [illegible]

A.—Yes.

Q.—When?

A.—On Saturday.

Q.—The same day?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You got the application on the third and reported on the third?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What are your duties under the by-law with regard to making a report? What have you to report?

A.—That the man is a proper party to have a license.

Q.—Nothing else?

A.—Not in connection with that. There is in some other licenses.

Q.—In this, what naturally is your duty?

A.—To report that he is a fit and proper man.

Q.—You reported the same day that he was a fit and proper man?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You have told us the man was a stranger; did you have any references with regard to McNish?

Magistrate objects on the ground that the questions have no bearing on the case and that the Chief is not on trial.

Q.—And you decline to answer, Mr. Thompson, whether you had any references at all with regard to Mr. McNish.

Crown Attorney—He is not bound to answer.

A.—I decline to answer.

Q.—Did you know he was associated with Mr. John Meharry — you knew of course he was associated with Mr. Meharry?

A.—He told me he had leased the rink for the season.

Q.—And you knew he was associated with Mr. Meharry?

A.—I did not know any more than that.

Q.—Will you swear that you did not know Meharry was running the roller rink associated with McNish?

A.—I did not know that; I certainly swear to that.

Q.—Did you know Meharry had any interest in the rink this year?

A.—I have not spoken to Meharry in regard to the rink for a year. I think it is a year since he came to me to ask if he could open it for one day and I refused, and I have not spoken to him in connection with the rink since.

Q.—So that you had no reason to believe that Meharry had severed his connection with the rink?

A.—No more than this man told me that he had leased the rink.

Q.—Did he tell you he was manager?

A.—No, running it on his own initiative.

Q.—You know now that is not the fact?

A.—I do not sir.

Q.—At any rate, you reported to the City Clerk on the same day that you received the application?

A.—I did.

Q.—Did you not make any enquiries about Mr. McNish's character?

Crown Attorney—This was ruled out by the Magistrate.

[illegible] from yourself?

A.—Only from himself.

Q.—And you then in writing on that same day, same hour I suppose too, recommended Mr. McNish as a person of fit and proper character to run a roller rink?

A.—I did.

Q.—Do you know when the license was in fact issued by the City authorities? When did McNish obtain the license?

A.—I cannot say definitely, sir. I think it was in the neighborhood of probably three or four days after that the license was issued.

Q.—The records show it was the 8th; would you know different from that?

A.—No.

Q.—If the license was issued on the 8th, then they opened on the 2nd, did they?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And they had been operating the rink—the rink had been operated from the 2nd April until the 8th without any license?

A.—The application was made but the license was not issued.

Q.—The truth is they operated the rink six days without any license, including Good Friday? Did you, yourself, know they had no license on Good Friday?

A.—Well I knew on Good Friday, yes.

Magistrate—When was the license issued?

Chief Thompson—He made application on Saturday, the following day, I sent an officer up to the rink the following day, your Worship—the license was issued on the 8th—and Mr. McNish came to me and I asked him if he did not know he should have had a license, I think this was Saturday morning, and he said he was not aware he had to have a license for the rink, that he had operated rinks in different towns and in only two other cities did he have to take out licenses, and he was not aware that he had to here. I asked him when he leased the rink if Meharry did not tell him he had to have a license and he said he did not.

Q.—You did then an the occasion of his application to you speak of Meharry?

A.—Just in that way; I asked him if Meharry did not tell him he would require a license, after he had told me he leased the rink.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—He said Meharry did not tell him.

Q.—Have any clergymen made complaints about the roller rink during your time?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—What clergymen?

A.—I think Father McColl and Rev. Pogue came to me one time. I cannot recollect the year now, it was probably in 1911, 1910 or 1911.

Q.—What representations did they make to you?

A.—Their reasons for coming to me as a deputation was; if I was aware that immoral conduct was taking place at the Brock Street Rink, and I asked them for what information they had, and they said they had none, only what they were told.

Q.—I suppose the information Father McColl would have would be confidential?

A.—I assured him if he disclosed to me any evidence, the case would be taken up and gone on with, or I would investigate and see if I could get any evidence.

Q.—Can you fix the time of this?

A.—Over a year ago; I think probably in 1911; no, it would be after Meharry had left the Force.

Q.—You would rely on what Father McColl would say?

A.—Yes, they might be able to fix the year.

Q.—More than one interview?

A.—I do not think so; they complained of children being there and away from school.

Q.—No other complaints you remember?

A.—I do not think so.

Q.—Did any other clergymen make

Danger For Judges?

TORONTO, April 28. — The novel suggestion that a judge might be guilty of an indictable offence if he gave judgment in favor of alien enemies was heard at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning, when the Hollinger Mines moved to dismiss the action brought against them by the administrator of the estate of Steve Samulski, a workman, who was killed at the mines. His parents residing in Posen, would be the beneficiaries of any judgment, and they are alien enemies.

Judgment was reserved.

Canadians Were Poisoned.

LONDON, April 28.—The British War Office, in a statement last night supplementing its previous charges that the Germans in their fighting are using noxious gases, says:

"Medical evidence shows that Canadian soldiers have lost their lives in the recent fighting, not from fighting, not from wounds, but from poisoning by gases employed by the enemy."

Japan Holds to Demands.

PEKIN, April 28.—President Yuan Shi-Kai and his councillors were in conference yesterday concerning the demands presented to the republic by Japan. No information yet is obtainable concerning the decisions reached by them. The reply of the Chinese Government to the latest Japanese communication will be given within a week, the Chinese wishing to give Japan no excuse for a repetition of the charge that they are procrastinating. There are no indications of Japan withdrawing from her attitude as already made known.

Three Queens at Matinee.

LONDON, April 28.—Three queens—Queen Mary of England, Queen Alexandra, widow of King Edward, and Queen Amelia, widow of King Carlos of Portugal, attended a royal matinee at the Drury Lane theatre yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the American Women's War Hospital at Paignton.

Lady Arthur Paget organized the matinee.

Huge Cement Order.

MONTREAL, April 28.—The Dominion Government has awarded the Canada Cement Co. a contract for 2,500,000 barrels of cement. Next to the contract for cement for the Panama Canal, this is the largest order ever given for this commodity. The cement will be used in Welland Canal extensions.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

A state of siege is reported in a despatch from Copenhagen to have been declared at Budapest, the capital of Hungary.

Sub-Lieut. Medlicott and a mechanic were killed yesterday in an accident to a naval seaplane at the Calshot air station in England.

German agents are reported to be collecting all the copper coins available throughout the Balkan States and forwarding them to Germany.

EVIDENCE IN

complaints to you about the roller rink?

A.—No, I canont recollect any other clergymen coming definitely about the roller rink.

Q.—Well speaking to you any place?

A.—I think there has been some, in talking to other clergymen.

Q.—Could you mention who had been objecting to you about it or calling your attention to immorality there?

A.—I think Mr. Rollins has spoken to me; I would not be sure. I have so many clergymen coming to me about one thing and another it is hard to keep track of them.

Q.—Did any body of women come to you and lay a complaint about the roller rink?

A.—No, I cannot recollect any.

Q.—Or any woman?

A.—I cannot recollect any, Mr. Ruddy.

Q.—The roller rink came up at the time of the discussion of the woman police?

A.—I think so.

Q.—There was some discussion about the roller rink at that time?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it said it was an immoral place at that time?

A.—It was suggested; they asked me if I had ever been able to find anything there of that reputation and I never have been able to secure a conviction.

Q.—Never able to get anything to issue a summons?

A.—No.

Q.—What is your belief about it yourself, Mr. Thompson? Do you believe it is an immoral place?

A.—No, I do not.

Q.—You do not believe it is? You mean a place of immoral conduct?

A.—I have never been able to find anything to change my opinion.

Q.—Now then, what is it you complain of in this alleged libel?

A.—What do I complain of? I complain that the writer of that letter says or states that the Brock Street Rink is an immoral place and that the Police Department are on friendly relations with it.

Q.—What do you complain of as far as the publisher is concerned?

A.—The fact of his letting or allowing that to be published?

Q.—You do not suggest that he has any malice towards you?

A.—No I do not believe he has.

Q.—Nor never had?

A.—No; it wouldn't be well for him if he had.

Q.—Well what is it then that you object to?

A.—I object to that letter being published. I object to that matter being sent broadcast through the country.

Q.—With regard to what?

A.—With regard to the Police Force.

Q.—What word is objected to in this article for slandering or libeling you?

A.—(Reads)—"It might be interesting to many ratepayers to know who owns the "underworld" institutions of this city. How long will the indulgent ratepayers permit the present friendly relations between the police force and the management of the rink."

Q.—Apparently there had been at some time a rather friendly relation between the Police Force and the rink?

A.—This definitely states at the present time.

Q.—Yes, but is that not so?

A.—No, not as a friendly relation to the rink. There never was. There was a friendly relation between Meharry as constable and the members of the Force.

Q.—There appears, I say, at some time to have been friendly relations between Meharry and the Police Force?

A.—Friendly because they knew one another, just the same as they know you.

Q.—And they were fellow constables?

A.—At that time, when he was a member of the Force.

Q.—Then do you allow institutions which require a policeman to operate without a license?

A.—No sir.

Q.—What do you do if they operate without a license?

A.—Well if they refuse to take out a license we summon them to Police Court.

Q.—Suppose they do nothing and continue to operate under the eyes of the police—simply continue to operate the institution? Do you allow institutions which require licenses to operate in that way?

A.—They do not—no.

Q.—You do not allow them?

A.—No, and this was not.

Q.—If you did allow this to operate without a license, it was an exception?

A.—I did not allow it to operate without a license.

Q.—But if you did allow it to operate without a license, it was an exception?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Why?

A.—Because I have applications there now in the City Clerk's office for licenses, and they are operating.

Q.—Operating without a license? What institutions—name them?

A.—If you go down to the Sergt. he will give you the names.

Q.—Name one institution in this city, operating without a license, a theatre for instance.

A.—There are none of the theatres at present.

Q.—Any institution without a license?

A.—A milkman.

Q.—Now, Mr. Thompson, are there any institutions at the present time operating without a license?

A.—No, not that I know of.

Q.—Any institution such as a roller rink operating without a license?

A.—No sir.

Q.—Nor has been, as far as you know?

A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—This would be an exception would it not.

A.—No.

Q.—Well why?

A.—Because the roller rink has a license.

Q.—This did operate without a license for eight days?

A.—I have given theatres, moving picture theatres, a week to get out their licenses.

Q.—And allowed them to operate in the meantime?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—What theatre?

A.—The Royal Theatre; the Tiz-It. He came to me and said he did not just have the money and asked if a week would do and I said yes.

Q.—You need not have done that unless you liked?

A.—I used my own discretion.

Q.—And that was an act of friendship to the Tiz-It.

A.—No sir.

Q.—You had it in your power to say, you cannot have a license for the Tiz-It, and you said, you can have it. Isn't that an act of friendship to the party or the Tiz-It?

A.—No sir. I consider it an act of accommodation to the ratepayer.

Q.—That is the way you put it?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—You say it was not an act of friendship?

A.—No.

Q.—And was it not an act of friendship to give Meharry the privilege of operating the rink on Good Friday without a license?

A.—How do you bring Meharry into this?

Q.—Oh, you do not know about Meharry? Was it an act of kindness to allow them to operate this place on Good Friday without even an application for a license? Was it or was it not an act of kindness.

A.—Well I am not prepared—I do not understand you.

Q.—I think the question is plain, Mr. Thompson. You do not care to answer?

A.—I might do Mr. Whalley the same kindness. I do not suppose he would object.

Q.—You do things like that?

A.—I am good-natured enough, yes.

Q.—You object to the word "underworld?"

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Do you remember the Mae Edwards Players who came to this city on March 13th, 1915?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember them being here and putting on a play in the Opera House on that day, March 13th, 1915, called "The Romance of the Underworld?"

A.—I do not know that I do; I do not attend the Opera House very often.

Q.—Isn't attending the Opera House part of your duty?

A.—If I think it is an immoral play I attend to it.

Q.—And you mean to tell me a play called "The Romance of the Underworld" came here and your attention was not called to it?

A.—I heard of it.

Q.—You know it was playing there?

A.—I heard it was.

Q.—You took no objection to it?

A.—No, because I do not think the management of the Opera House would allow anything immoral.

Q.—You are Chief; it was put on and you never said a word about it. It might have been alright, I am not saying it wasn't, but you did not investigate it?

A.—What has that to do with this matter?

Q.—You object to that word "underworld?"

A.—Yes but Mr. Ruddy, it can be considered very different; it depends on how it is written and what it is meant for.

Q.—Yes, just what you want to make it mean, does it not?

A.—Just exactly.

Q.—(Reads)—"In an item of news in your issue of Saturday we read, 'unknown to the police department the roller rink was operated yesterday without a license having been taken out. This afternoon Chief Thompson sent an officer to inform the men in charge that they must take out a license immediately.'" You would not object to The Review publishing that about you?

A.—I do not know where they get their information that it was unknown to me.

Q.—But you would not object to that?

A.—No.

Q.—It was published apparently for your benefit? (reads) "This afternoon Chief Thompson sent an officer to inform the men in charge that they must take out a license immediately." This refers to something apparently written for your benefit, to show you were on the alert, isn't that so?

A.—I would not say so; it would not show I was on the alert; it was not unknown to me. I knew it was operated; I did not prohibit it being operated.

Q.—But there was no license, you knew that? As provided in by-law No. 1281? That is so, is it not, Mr. Thompson?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—(Reads)—"Chief Thompson knows that a license for the roller rink cannot be issued without his consent [illegible] cation, (possibly the Chief does not read the Examiner). Therefore Chief Thompson knew the rink had no license and he knew it was being operated on Friday in violation of the by-law." That is true is it not?

A.—To a certain extent it is; Mr. McNish did not know—

Q.—Never mind what he knew; you know that statement is true, is it not?

A.—To a certain extent.

Q.—(Reads)—"He knows it is his duty to prevent, or arrest, or summon before the magistrate those who violate the law in that open, defiant way."

A.—I object to that "open and defiant way."

Q.—That statement is true?

A.—No. He did not do it in an "open and defiant way."

Q.—Why did you not do your duty in this case?

A.—I did do my duty.

Q.—You claim you did?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—(Reads)—"If, according to the item, a license was taken out on Saturday afternoon, then Chief Thompson must have signed the application for it and consequently recommended as a fit and proper person to operate a roller rink a man who to his knowledge openly violated the law the day before." That is true too, is it not?

A.—No; he did not openly violate the law; he did not know he required a license.

Q.—You are apologizing for him?

A.—No, I am not.

Q.—Do you think Meharry did not know he should have a license?

A.—I do not know, I did not see Meharry.

Q.—Is there a good deal of complaint in this city about immorality generally speaking, Mr. Thompson? A good deal of complaint, generally, about the City of Peterborough?

A.—Well I do not know how to answer that question?

Q.—I am asking you whether there is or is not?

A.—I think there is, without foundation, by gossipers.

Q.—There is a good deal of complaint?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Now then, from the publication standpoint and with the knowledge of the evidence before us — a daily paper published in the City of Peterborough whose duty it is to publish everything that concerns the public good—you know a publisher has that duty, don't you, of publishing news about public institutions in the city, whether for or against them—do you approve of criticism of these public institutions?

A.—I have nothing to say about criticism.

Q.—You do not complain of publishing criticism of it, and you have told us there is no malice?

A.—There is a difference between criticism and slander—a large distinction.

To Crown Attorney.

Further evidence of Chief Thompson, taken by Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton:

Q.—I understand you came here, from what you said, in 1910, and Meharry was on the force and at that time he was engaged in, or with, the rink on Brock street?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And you stated to my learned friend that you registered a complaint against his connection with the force as soon as you knew it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—On what ground did you register the complaint?

A.—I brought the matter before the Board of Police Commissioners on the ground that I held Meharry could not do his duty efficiently, as I wanted him to do it, and be connected with the roller rink or in other business outside that would require the patronage of the public.

Q.—Would that apply to any other member of the force?

A.—Yes, to any member of the force.

Q.—To any business he was connected with outside the membership of the force?

A.—It would, according to the rules and regulations.

Q.—You told me there were no rules and regulations when you came here first with regard to members engaging in outside business?

A.—No, sir; there were none when I came.

Q.—You were instrumental in seeing the rules and regulations were passed and enforced and also that Meharry was one of the first men to fall under the axe?

A.—Yes.

Q.—There was apparently some time between July 1st, 1910, and the time he actually resigned?

A.—There was apparently considerable discussion in connection with the Board and the printing of my book of rules and regulations, which cost considerable, and I think about a year had elapsed, or more, before they came out, before the Board adopted them as rules and regulations to govern the Police Department. Then they were in the Review office a considerable time before they were delivered back to us.

Q.—Yes. Meharry, — was he asked to resign at once?

A.—I think the resolution was passed that Mr. Ruddy mentioned that unless he sever his connection with the rink he would have to resign his position, and at that time he was agitating with someone to sell out his share, and the Board felt they would give him that chance if he could do so.

Q.—So the delay was to allow him to dispose of it?

A.—Yes, and he found he could not, so I advised him to put in his resignation.

Q.—There were a number of complaints in regard to the rink on Brock street during the two years that we have just spoken of, 1910-1911 and 1912?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were they as to what took place inside or outsde the rink?

A.—The complaints I received were mostly in connection with the noise at the rink.

Q.—With regard to the inside of it?

A.—Yes, and outside, too.

Q.—There were some informations [illegible]

A.—Yes.

Q.—Inside or outside the rink?

A.—Particularly outside the rink.

Q.—The rink was not licensed at that time?

A.—No.

Q.—When was the rink first licensed, do you know?

A.—I just forget the date; the bylaw Mr. Ruddy mentioned will show it.

Q.—The rinks were not required to be under bylaw until that was passed?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—You do not remember the date?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—With regard to complaints that came before you: did you attend to them?

A.—I did.

Q.—Promptly?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you ever neglect to take any complaints or refuse in any way?

A.—Never.

Q.—You did not report, you say, as to licenses until 1914. Is that so?

A.—I think it was the beginning of 1914 that the bylaw was amended.

Q.—Part of your duty to report?

A.—On certain licenses.

Q.—Was this one of them?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were there any complaints with regard to the rink in 1914?

A.—Not to my knowledge. It was closed up then.

Q.—Any complaints in 1915?

A.—No.

Q.—Or of the police department?

A.—I never saw anything except this letter in the paper.

Q.—At the time Dr. McClellend and others appeared before the Police Commissioners—they appeared before the Police Commissioners, not before you?

A.—They appeared before the Board of Police Commissioners; I was present.

Q.—You stated they were referred to the Crown Attorney?

A.—I think they were; the Board referred these people to the Crown Attorney.

Q.—Did you consider it then out of your hands until he acted?

A.—No, sir. I took every precaution to allow no disturbance or improper conduct around the rink and also made it a special beat for the constable to go through Chambers St. up to Brock street so he would be in close touch with the rink every time he went around.

Q.—With regard to this license spoken of that the rink has at the present time; I understand from evidence you gave my learned friend, Mr. Ruddy, that the rink opened on Good Friday, April 2nd?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And when did you first have knowledge of that; that it was in operation?

A.—Saturday morning.

Q.—That was the next day?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you do anything then?

A.—I sent an officer up to see the management. I did not know who was running it then. I told him to see Meharry, and he came back and told me McNish was running it, and he came down.

Q.—Yes. You interviewed hm?

A.—Yes. I asked him why he did not make application for a license, and he said he did not know he had to have a license, and I asked him if he had leased the rink, and he said yes; and I asked him if Meharry did not tell him he would require a license, and he said no, and I then proceeded to ask him where he had been operating.

Q.—Did he obtain a license?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Within a reasonable time?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you at any time given the theatres or other houses here a reasonable time in which to obtain their licenses?

A.—Yes, I have been advised to do so by the City Council.

Q.—Have you treated the roller rink in any manner different to that in which you have treated other houses in this city?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you any friendly relations with Meharry or the present licensee of the rink?

A.—I have not.

Q.—Other than the relations with other licensees in this city?

A.—No, sir. I might explain that when Mr. McNish came to me he asked me to give him a few days to have his bank account transferred from Sudbury to Peterborough—that was on Saturday.

Q.—You did not think that was an unreasonable request to make?

A.—No, I did not. I consented to the request, and the following Monday was Easter Monday and the banks were closed.

Q.—The rink opened on a holiday, Easter Monday was a bank holiday, and the license was taken out a few days later?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did the man skip?

A.—No; he paid his license.

Q.—With regard to this so-called roller rink: Meharry, I understand, has been the owner of that rink for some years; it is understood, we do not know whether he owns it or manages it, or what he does, but outside of the roller rink business what else has the rink been used for?

A.—Have had meetings there — political meetings.

Q.—Ever play hockey there?

A.—Yes; ice skating and hockey.

Q.—So it is used in winter time for ice skating, hockey, political meetings, and so on?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And with regard to the complaints that have been before you, have any been in connection with the hockey matches, do you know, for disorderly conduct?

A.—Oh, yes.

Ruddy—I understand, Mr. Thompson, that all convictions were from the roller rink, during the time the roller rink was running?

Thompson — I cannot say; but I do remember one or two from the roller rink, of young boys, 16 or 17 years old, doing some swearing around there, and I remember two occasions of fights that took place after hockey matches.

Ruddy — I meant the roller rink.

Thompson — Those are the only two cases I can remember.

FIVE NURSES GRADUATE FROM NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

Miss A. E. Empey is Presented With Prize for Best Bandaging

The dignity and nobility of few professions or callings have been so lavishly and eulogistically extolled as that of the devoted nurses. The present stirring times into which the country is plunged resulting in thousands of men being wounded only serves to thrust her calling more and more into the public eye and consequently the very word nurse seems to summon to us the picture of a nurse bending over a wounded soldier with tender solicitude and care. Peterborough as a city should have every cause to be proud of her nurses. Some are even now acting as Red Cross nurses in the hospitals at the front. Others have pronounced their willingness—nay their eagerness—to go and do their part. In view of this it is encouraging to note that other nurses are coming out to take their places in the work of replenishing the ranks.

Miss Marguerite Hughes Hanmer,
Miss Lila Cecilia Roberts,
Miss Edith Gertrude B. Howson,
Miss Gertrude May Fife,
Miss Effie Adaline Empey.

These five young women dedicated their lives last evening to this noble profession, the occasion being the exercises in connection with the 1915 Nicholls Hospital graduating class. The ceremony was unusually impressive and extremely pretty. The five young ladies occupied seats on the platform almost hidden by great bouquets of flowers, in fact the platform was turned into a veritable flower garden. Mr. Richard Hall, chairman of the Nicholls hospital trustees for many years, again officiated in the capacity of chairman and referred to the pride which citizens should feel in the modern euqipment of the Nicholls Hospital and the efficiency of the staff. He was pleased to again have the honor of welcoming the large audience to the graduating exercises. Without further reference he called upon Rev. J. P. Wilson to deliver an address, a duty which the reverend gentleman fulfilled in a highly capable and suitable manner.

Rev. Mr. Wilson said graduation day was often considered a day of emancipation from study and discipline which subjects time, pleasure, and liberty to the attainment of knowledge. While the acquisition of a diploma means the end of formal instruction, graduation day was really a commencement day of new duties, lessons and responsibilities. The nurse's calling was a noble one, and only high-souled, courageous women should undertake it. The woman who founded the nurse's calling, Florence Nightingale, was rightly called "Angel of the Hospital."

The nurses present who were graduating should keep in mind that they had such a calling and that its great principle was devotion to God and humanity. They should trust themselves to God, who could sustain them in all their trials and difficulties. Only that trust could glorify the oftentimes distasteful services they would be called upon to render. It would reveal to them that there were no small acts in their service. Even a cup of cold water given to fevered lips in the name of humanity would be divine. In closing his eloquent and inspiring message, he said "Go out, young ladies, on your God-given mission, bind up the broken-hearted, heal the sick, comfort the dying, remembering that your opportunity is not to the body alone, but to the spirit as well."

Address to Graduates.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. N. H. Sutton who outlined to the young ladies some things they would do well to avoid as they went into the nursing field. He cautioned them against being tempted to talk unwisely to their patients as cases have been known where this had taken place, the patients' temperature being sent up.

The taking of affirmation and presentation of prizes followed and as each young nurse received her diploma and her badge she was given an enthusiastic ovation.

Dr. A. E. Hammond had the honor of presenting to Miss A. E. Empey one of the graduates, a prize for best bandaging. In conferring upon her this prize Dr. Hammond referred to the necessity of being able to skilfully bandage a patient. He con-[illegible] warmly and referred to the high average of seventy-five per cent. which the nurses must take in all their examinations. Beautiful solos were contributed during the evening by Miss Dorothy Allan, Mr. Maurice Park, Mr. Asa Huycke and a pianoforte selection by Miss Ada Sanderson.

After the program a large number of the young people remained, also the nurses, and a very enjoyable dance was held followed by refreshments.

Bring Maj. Bennett's Body to Peterboro'

Prominent Citizens Suggest This Action Might be Taken

It is suggested that a movement be undertaken with the object of having the body of the late Major Bennett brought to Peterborough for interment. Several prominent citizens have made this suggestion. The matter would have to be first taken up with the adjutant-general at Ottawa.

The Masons, to which Major Bennett belonged, may decide to take action on their own behalf.

ARE MAKING FOOTING GOOD

Troops on Gallipoli Peninsula Take 500 Prisoners

FORTS SHELLED

LONDON, April 28.—A joint War Office and Admiralty statement issued last night on the Dardanelles operations, says:

"After days of hard fighting in a difficult country the troops landed on Gallipoli peninsula are thoroughly making good their footing with the effective help of the navy. The French have taken 500 prisoners."

The statement appends the following which, it says, is officially published at Cairo:

"The allied forces under Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton have effected a landing on both sides of the Dardanelles under excellent conditions. Many prisoners have been taken and our forces are continuing their advance."

French troops have occupied the village of Kumkaleh, on the Asiatic side of the entrance to the Dardanelles.

This announcement was made officially in Paris:

"During the disembarkation Sunday of the allied forces at the Dardanelles, French troops, comprising infantry and artillery, had been designated particularly for operations at Kumkaleh, on the Asiatic side. This mission was completely and successfully fulfilled.

"Aided by the cannon of the French fleet and underneath the fire of our enemy, our troops succeeded in occupying the village, and have continued its occupation, despite seven counter-attacks at night, supported by heavy artillery.

"We took five hundred prisoners, and the losses to the enemy appear to have been considerable.

"The general disembarkation of the allied forces continued under good conditions."

Nearly 300,000 men of the Anglo-French forces have been landed on the Gallipoli peninsula, says a despatch from Saloniki yesterday. This expeditionary force comprises, it is reported, veterans drawn from the French front, where they have been replaced by drafts of Earl Kitchener's army. This story the British censor refused to confirm, but allowed it to be published without guaranteeing its authenticity.

It is believed that the allied armies will be opposed in their operations against Constantinople by 500,000 Turks. These troops have been drilled, some of them for several years, by German officers. Estimates of their fighting quality vary from contempt to respect. The Turkish forces are said to be divided in two armies and officered by Germans. The first army is commanded by Field Marshal von der Goltz and the second, the Dardanelles army, is commanded by Gen. Liman von Sanders. It is said that the Turks have concentrated 300,000 men alone on the Gallipoli peninsula. Many German officers have recently arrived in Constantinople, and the Turks are said to have had time to construct 500 miles of trenches.

The Daily Mail's Athens correspondent, telegraphing Monday, says:

"The bombardment of the interior forts of the Dardanelles, which began Sunday, continued yesterday and resulted in heavy damage to the forts. It is reported that the forts on the coast near Symrna also were bombarded, but this report has not been confirmed."

SHOT WHILE ESCAPING.

French Soldiers Had to Crawl Away From Gas-Laden Section.

PARIS, April 28.—Describing the results of the asphyxiating gases used by the Germans, French soldiers say that the connecting trenches were so choked with fugitives who had fallen unconscious that many soldiers were compelled to climb out and make their way toward the rear over the open ground.

As soon as the Germans perceived that the French were leaving their trenches over ground they opened up an intense rifle and machine gun fire along that portion of the front, which is about three miles in extent. It was this fire which caught the wounded brought to the hospital, they having been picked up by French troops held in reserve. These reserves, counter-attacking, carried the greater part of the trenches which had been evacuated.

PLAINTIFF WILL ACCEPT $250

At a special sitting of the Surrogate Court today, presided over by His Honor Judge Huycke, the case of Mary Head vs. William H. Walkey, executor of the last will and testimony of the late William J. Bennett is being tried. The amount claimed is $490 for caring for the deceased from September, 1911, till August, 1912. F. D. Kerr is acting for the plaintiff, W. H. Moore, K.C., for the defendant, and Geo. H. Shaver of Toronto, for a beneficiary in England.

According to the evidence the plaintiff was engaged to be married to the late William J. Bennett and when he became ill with pulmonary trouble she was willing to wait upon him. During the summer of 1912 two tents were located on the farm of the plaintiff's father in Otonabee. They were occupied by the plaintiff and the deceased. Deceased made a will by which Miss Head was to be bequeathed an amount but he went to England in August, 1912, and between the time of his arrival in England and his death he made a new will and Miss Head was not a beneficiary. The amount she claims is made up of charges for services rendered at $10 per week and interest on the amount. In the witness box this morning she stated she was willing to accept $250 as settlement. The case is proceeding this afternoon.

A GOOD PROGRAM.

All Saints' choir provided an excellent program in the parish hall last evening. The choruses, solos and other numbers were well received.

FASHION BRIEFS.

Hip-line lengths are the established ones for coat suits. Long sleeves, high collars, many buttons, large pockets and many of them, or slitted laces where pockets should be, with the slits boldly bound in braids or linings in contrasting colors, are other style decisions.

Match collars and cuffs to blouses to some remote color note or the costume; at Atlantic City colored lawn collars and cuffs are among the smartest style tendencies observed.

There were also worn many black striped blouses worn with collars and cuffs of the Puritan type, topping jacket and sleeve cuffs.

New petticoats of crepe de chine or of muslin, are made with featherbone extensions. In reality these are forerunners of a return to the modes of the old-fashioned skirt extenders which were worn after the hoop skirt styles had had their day.

PRISONERS AND GUNS CAPTURED

French and Belgian Troops Continue Progress on Right Bank of Yser Canal

ZEPPELIN IS WRECKED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, April 29. — (This afternoon's statement)—In Belgium, we have continued to progress in conjunction with Belgian troops in a northerly direction. On the right bank of the Yser canal we took 150 prisoners as well as two machine guns.

There is nothing new on the heights of the Meuse, nor in the Vosges.

The enemy has bombarded by means of flying machines and using incendiary shells, the open town of Epernay, occupied exclusively at the time by hospital detachments.

Definite information which has come to hand sets forth that a Zeppelin airship which eight days ago threw bombs on Dunkirk was seriously damaged by our artillery. Finding it impossible to navigate further, the machine was wrecked in trees between Bruges and Ghent.

RUSSIAN SUCCESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, April 29. — The Russians achieved noteworthy success in the occupation of Loubnia, a small village north of Uzsok Pass, which commands an important railroad line by which Austrian operations in this region have been rendered possile.

Waited in the Snow and Rain for an Inspection by General

Pte. Heber Rogers with the second battalion of the first Canadian contingent, writing to his mother under date of April tenth, in part says:

"Last Thursday we had another hike of about fifteen miles and are now billeted near another town. This is the best billet we have struck yet. The old man and woman are very kind to us and the man is always coming around taking an interest in what we are doing. They have not had any English here before. There is a big brick building with the house on one side and our barn on the other. We sleep in pea straw and everything around the place seems very clean. The best of it is we wash in a basin in the back kitchen.

We have a great addition to our battalion now, three ladies are running a soup kitchen which is an automobile, and they travel around with us. They also pay for everything themselves, which amounts to a great deal. It is open at noon when they give soup and bread to the fellows, and also at five o'clock they have tea and coffee and cocoa with some biscuits. Everything is free and the other day they were giving away soap and socks.

Yesterday we had an inspection by the general of every man. We were lined up in a large field for about two hours before he came. During that time a storm came up. It rained and snowed until we were nearly frozen. Then it cleared off and the general came. In his speech afterwards he had great praise for our battalion in regard to looks, and also for our work during the short time that we were in the trenches. Monday we have another inspection by General Smith-Dorien, as we are now in the second army.

Yesterday Gordon Graham and I took a walk to the Belgian frontier, which is only about three miles away. The country around us is much better than where we were before as there are more hills and the country is fairly rolly.

GERMANY HAS BROKEN THE AGREEMENT

Number of Elderly British Officers Have Been Detained

DEMANDS MADE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 29. — A Government paper issued last night says there are 27,200 male Germans above the age of 17 in Britain, and only 8,600 of them have been interned in concentration camps, the remainder moving around freely as citizens except for having to report to the police at regular intervals. At the outbreak of the war, all under 16 and over 44, all between those years not liable to military service, and all women and children were allowed to leave the country on giving the undertaking to take no part in the war. Only those liable to military duty or suspected of espionage were held. An agreement on such lines was made with Germany, but Germany has detained a number of elderly British officers, and in return for their release demands an equivalent number of German prisoners relasd.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 29. — There has been given out by the Belgian military headquarters an official report as follows: "Several points on our front, such as Ramscapelle, Pervyse, Lampernisse, and Osvleperen, have been repeatedly bombarded.

"Belgian artillery has vigorously co-operated with the French in their attack against Steenstraate.

"Our aviators have shown great activity."

RAILWAY SERVICE SUSPENDED

VERONA, April 29. — Railway service on the Austrian side of the frontier has been virtually suspended for ordinary purposes. All lines are being used to carry troops to the Italian frontier.

IN MEMORY OF DEAD HEROES

In response to the suggestion of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., in yesterday's Review that a memorial be erected to the late Major G. W. Bennett, several citizens have expressed themselves as desirous of supporting the object. It is felt that the memorial should be raised to all the Peterborough men who have fallen or may fall in the present war, and a meeting of citizens will be shortly held to start a fund for this purpose. In support of the object the following gentlemen have promised subscriptions:

J. H. Burnham, M. P.,
R. Ruddy, K. C.,
R. J. Soden,
D. M. Minicola,
R. M. Waddell,
Judge E. S. C. Huycke.

The charge of the Second Battalion will go down in history as one of the brilliant episodes of the present war. It was a great success and contributed in a large measure to the defeat of the German offensive at Ypres. Major Bennett and Lieut. Day of Kingston fell almost at the same time and close together. Major Bennett led the charge, and was followed by other Peterborough men who may have fallen. They have brought honour to Peterborough and it is only fitting that their noble deeds should be commemorated.

Liberal Protest is Discussed by Federal Member

The Review saw the Federal member today and asked him what he thought of the Liberal protest against an election. "I think," said he, "that the Globe's protest is founded wholly on the danger of raising the feeling at a time when we should be united. This is in fact the basis of all protests, as they are called, against an election. Let us look at this matter honestly and see what there is in their statements. First of all, does the Minister of Militia complain, or any of his staff, or does the Government of Sir Robert Borden, that if a campaign is brought on, it will mean disaster? It does not, and it alone is responsible for the good conduct of the campaign, which, if it were affected at all by the election, would mean certain destruction to the Government. If the Government is willing to accept the responsibility, what is the Liberal party so anxious about? Is it that they wish to sidestep bilingualism, which is the back, front and body of the Liberal platform just now, since the bulk of the Lieral party and Liberal influence in the House of Commons and Senate today is French? Does the Liberal party wish us to fix our eyes on the trenches and wholly ignore this and other business at home? If our boasted motto is, "Business as usual," let us go on with it, even to elections. If the Government cannot consult the people on vital home problems and carry on abroad our share in the war at the same time, it will go down and out. But who set up these prophets of disaster as infallible guides of the party in power? If we have an election, the Prime Minister will tell us why. He is quite competent and reliable. We needn't worry. As for wrecking business, surely if that were the only difficulty, now would be the very best time to have it."

Asked as to the recent utterances [illegible] Burnham said:

"I was astonished at the statement of the Rev. Professor Bland of Winnipeg, to the effect that political partyism was a curse to humanity. That gentleman probably would prefer to da away with the people's mouthpieces and institute something else. He ignores also the very patent fact that religious partyism is the very essence of Protestantism. The reverend gentleman is a little inconsistent."

Public Works.

"By the way, I overlooked the fact that the Government was denied also the approval of the people of its policy of continuing public works during the progress of the war. This policy was fiercely opposed by the Opposition, from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the farthest back-bencher on the Liberal side. My own opinion is, and that of the Conservatives in general, as expressed in the House, that we should build our public works now while times are slack, and not invade the labor market when there is plenty of other employment. After much bickering in the House and in committee, we got through large estimates for this purpose, but the opposition of the Liberals was such that it has become a distinct party issue and as such can only be decided by the people. It is useless for the Liberal newspapers to say that they did not oppose anything material. How can they say that in the face of the fact that they wish to cut down our appropriation of $25,000,000 for public works to something very small and significant?"

TURKISH BATTALION CAPTURED BY ALLIES

TESTS OF MILK

Reports May be Published Every Three Months

Whether the results of milk inspections made by the sanitary inspector should be published was one of the topics considered briefly by the property committee last night. At the next meeting of the committee, Mr. Spence will be asked to present his yearly inspection report, and, if satisfactory, the results of inspections may be published every three months thereafter.

It was decided that the board of works should construct a walk across the market square and also a concrete platform around the weigh house at the market, at the expense of the property committee.

Cows, Keep Off.

On motion, the police department will be instructed to prevent the tethering of cows on King Edward Park.

SUBMARINE PRISONERS

Have All Privileges and Rations Accorded Other Germans

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 29. — In view of the widespread belief that German submarine prisoners in Great Britain are being treated with severity, it was explained in the Commons today that the only difference between their treatment and that of other prisoners is that they are kept separated from other German prisoners, pending the fitting up of a fortress where it is proposed to keep German submarine prisoners hereafter. Mr. Macnamara said: "They are at Chatham and Devonport detention barracks, and they have all the privileges and rations accorded other prisoners." The speaker added that this included the right of officers to have servants clean their quarters the privilege of smoking room and gymnasium, permission to write and receive letters, and facilities for obtaining German and English books and money from friends.

BETTER SERVICE ON C.P.R. FOR PETERBOROUGH

To have the noon train from Toronto arriving in Peterborough at 11.13 instead of 12.13; to have the afternoon train going west leave at 3.23 instead of 4.23; to have the "local" run from Tweed to Toronto instead of from Havelock to Toronto; to have freight from Toronto arrive in Peterborough at seven a.m.; to improve the freight service from Peterborough east and if approved by the surveyors and engineers to have the Port McNicholl line connected to the Lake Shore line by a division running from Peterborough around the head of Rice Lake, were in short the promises made by C.P.R. officials to Peterborough today. The officials, C. B. Foster, A.P.T.M.; M. G. Murphy, D.P.A.; A. Price, A.G.M., and Wm. Dockrill, Tr. P.A., were on their annual inspection tour. They arrived in Peterborough last night and the special car remained over

TO MARK ALL THE GRAVES

Adjutant-General Gives This Information by Wire

PREMIER'S TRIBUTE

Lieut. Matthews is Suffering From Gas Poisoning

At the request of Lt.-Col. Walker, the adjutant-general at Ottawa was wired last night with the object of learning what was possible in regard to bringing the body of Major Bennett to Peterborough.

The reply stated that a special officer would have as his duty, the marking of the grave of Major Bennett and of all Peterborough men who might be called upon to give up their lives in battle.

The movement to have the body brought here is one that is generally endorsed but as yet no definite action has been taken, as it is a matter that cannot be taken up hurriedly.

Premier's Tribute.

Premier Hearst has paid a very warm tribute to the memory of the late Major Bennett. The Premier said:

"The government and the whole staff at the parliament buildings mourn his loss deeply, he said. "He was a capable, conscientious and earnest official, one who not only won the confidence and respect of his minister and the government generally, but of the legislature and the public with whom he was broight into contact as the superintendent of colonization roads.

"I have personally known Major Bennett from boyhood. I looked upon him as a personal friend and I feel his loss very keenly. He was one of the very first men in Ontario to offer his services, when the war broke out, and he will long be remembered by his grateful countrymen."

The best news to reach the city during the last twenty-four hours is contained in a cable message received by Mr. T. F. Matthews from the Matthews-Blackwell agents in London. Lieut. Harold Matthews was not wounded as reported but he is in a hospital, suffering from the effects of gas poisoning, from which it has been reported, so many men met their death on the field.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman have not had news regarding their two sons. A message from Lt. Charles Ackerman might be of comfort to many other homes as in his last cable, he reported all the Peterborough men well. If he has escaped, and is able to do so, he may have something to say of his comrades.

Demands Of Italy

Conditions Under Which She Will Enter the War.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Rome, April 29.—From persons in touch with Italy's attitude, it is learned she will enter the war, if she ever does enter it on these conditions: First, that she shall strike when this desultory trench warfare has ended and all allies are ready for concentrated action so that Austria and Germany shall not have opportunity to concentrate a large force agaist her.

Second, it shall be clearly understood what territory is to be awarded Italy in the event of victory.

Third, that after the war Italy shall form a fourth member in the alliance with Russia, France and England.

Meanwhile Italy continues negotiation with German powers also seekink to convince them that she is determined to remain steadfast in [illegible] ernment asked whether any agreement had been reached with the central empires replied, "Nothing has been done and nothing will be done." Deputy Barzilai, a native of Trieste who has represented Rome in the chamber of deputies for twenty-five years said, in speaking of the unveiling of a memorial to Garibaldi's volunteers next Wednesday, that this event will be an official declaration of war against Austria. It will be a challenge of the Latin to the German world."

SOME HIKERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 29.—James and John Sutherland, cousins, arrived from Portland, Oregon, yesterday, walking most of the distance, and immediately enlisted in the 37th battalion for overseas service, which was the object of their journey. They were born in Scotland, but have lived in Canada fifteen years.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1915

CHLORINE BOMBS.

THE EVIDENCE seems to be firmly established that the Germans are using bombs that spread poisonous gases when they burst. This is contrary to The Hague Convention, and is not to be wondered at when it is remembered how Germany has violated the other rules of civilized warfare. It has also been claimed that Germans bayonetted Canadian wounded. This statement has less to support it, but it is on a par with other atrocities of the German huns. These things all go to show that this war is not one between two opposing civilizations, but between humanity on one side and savagery on the other. It is real culture against barbarism; Christianity against force and brutality. War, even when waged with strict adherence to international conventions, is bad enough, but a resort to such things as chlorine bombs shows how desperate is the struggle, to what lengths the German brutes will go, and how decisive must be their defeat before any adequate settlement will be possible. It also seems to necessitate similar measures by the Allies, although to do so is degrading. However, the following paragraph from the Globe points that way:

> "Sir James Dewar says chlorine gas, which the Germans are using to poison their foes, is thrice as heavy as air, and therefore drifts along, under compulsion of a breeze, so close to the surface of the earth that no one in its path can escape its fumes. It seems almost time to dig the great Lord Cochrane's secret war plan for the annihilation of Britain's enemies out of the pigeonhole it occupies in the War Office. It was rejected as too inhuman for use, but it cannot be much worse than the German poison bomb."

HAS FORGOTTEN SOME THINGS.

THE TORONTO STAR says:

> "We have no particular admiration for the Senate. But it is only fair to say that the Senate has not obstructed or delayed any measure required for the carrying on of the war."

The Star has a convenient memory. It has apparently forgotten all about the Senate's action in sinking three Canadian dreadnoughts. Those ships would now be off the coast of Calais driving the Germans back or battling in the North Sea, had not the Senate, instigated by the Liberals, vetoed Sir Robert Borden's measure to render effective naval aid to Great Britain.

NEW ELECTION LAW.

THE NEW ELECTION LAW will greatly tend to purify elections of those creatures who sell themselves and their country for a few dollars and of their seducers. The next election will be fought out under the protection of an act passed last session at Ottawa which removes all objections and sources of delay and enables a petitioner to expose and punish with the utmost speed those who tempt people to sell their principles and themselves for a few dollars. The lesson of the closing days of the session, when Sir Robert Borden publicly read two of his own supporters in Parliament out of the Conservative party, for corrupt practices, will not be lost on those who might otherwise give way to corrupting the electorate or receiving bribes. A government returned by even partial corruption cannot be administered honestly, and the rage of the people over the perfidy and corruption recently exposed will not be lost, in view of the new act, on any members of the electorate that otherwise might tempt fate and trust to escaping the clutches of the law. This appears to be the general opinion of the Canadian press.

THE BUGLE BLAST TO CANADA.

READERS of the newspapers and followers of the course of the war must long ago have become [illegible] more intense and critical day by day. Great Britain is faced not alone by outside enemies, but by labour troubles and by lack of those immense internal resources in the matter of food production that Germany and Austria-Hungary possess. She cannot feed herself, and is compelled to rely largely on other countries for a supply of the necessaries of life. In such case, the duty of her children is distinctly plain. It is noteworthy of her enemies that they are not only thoroughly united, but that they are enduring with what fortitude they possess the rigid military enforcements that are placed upon them for the conservation both of food and material. Every man, woman and child, from the Kaiser down, have been put on rations. The idea is three-fold, to guard against any possible emergencies, to mislead the foe into over-confidence, and, by thoroughness, to bring such pressure to bear as will hasten the final decision. Britain is pursuing the same course. She has not yet found it necessary to place her population individually on short rations, but she has found it desirable to take over munition factories in order to insure supplies that mean either life or death to the nation. Meantime, Germany, by cowardly submarine assassination, is endeavouring to starve her people and cripple her resources.

With such a state of affairs existent, it is hardly necessary to explain to stay-at-home Canadians how best they can fulfill their manifest duty and show the burden-bearers how completely they possess their sympathy. But the bugle blast has its rallying power in peace as in war. To all the people, and to farmers, breeders and settlers in particular, the Patriotism and Production movement that is in progress is blowing its bugle, or, in other words, carrying its message. Its object is to arouse all and sundry to the part they are called on to play. That part does not of necessity mean harder work, nor increased acreage; but it does imply the exercise of every faculty in attention and vigilance. It does imply, in order to secure increased and improved production, by which alone cultivators of the soil can contribute towards the credit of the country and empire, the greatest care in the selection of seed, in the breeding of livestock, and in economy of the land.

DEFICIENCIES THAT MUST BE MADE GOOD.

GREAT BRITAIN imported 185,125,000 bushels of wheat from August 1st, 1913, to July 31st, 1914. Russia exported 163,267,000 bushels, and Roumania 45,642,000 bushels in the same period. How much will these two countries export this year?

Great Britain imported from August 1st, 1913, to July 31st, 1914, 54,207,000 bushels of oats. Russia exported 34,750,000 bushels; Germany 25,077,000 bushels, and Roumania 17,196,000 bushels. The last three countries in 1915 will hardly export a bushel. How is the deficiency to be made up?

Great Britain, from August 1st, 1913, to July 31st, 1914, imported 46,169,000 bushels of barley, Austria-Hungary, 8,064,000 bushels, and Roumania, 18,941,000 bushels. How much is Canada going to do to make up the large shortage?

TIME TO MOVE.

THE PRESENT German ambassador's job is too small for him, says an exchange. In addition to making his own law and his own facts, he goes over the heads of the government to which he is accredited, and with which alone he has any business, and lectures the American people on what to do if they "desire to observe true neutrality." If Count Bernstorff's remarkable "memorandum" was merely an outbreak of Berlin's nervousness, he should have said so. If it was his own make, then he is too full of Prussian jackbootism (as John Hay used to call it) ever to become a diplomat. In any case, what use is he at Washington?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE SCENERY and costumes of the Forbes-Robertson production of Antony and Cleopatra were burned in a vacant lot when Mr. Robertson closed his season in a little prairie town out West, because it was cheaper to do so than to pay freight back to the East. This is economy that the railroads should be made to pay for.

AN EIGHTEEN-POUNDER'S shell costs five dollars to manufacture. There must be a delightful feeling of reckless extravagance every time a gunner sends one of these five-spots to the Germans.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Woodrow Wilson's Chapter of World History.
(Toronto Telegram.)

The actions of the United States Government are nobler than the talk of President Wilson.

President Wilson is a scholar, and must be familiar with the historic analogy which associates the allies with the struggle against Germany, just as Holland was associated with the struggle against Spain.

England looked across a narrow sea and realized that if the might of Spain overwhelmed Holland, England's turn would come next.

The United States looks across a wider ocean and fails to realize that if Germany overwhelm's the allies, the American Republic's turn will come next.

Queen Elizabeth, with all her caution, timidity, frugality and delays, wrote the not ignoble chapter of England's relationship to Holland's fight against Spain.

Britishers look back on that chapter of English history today and are proud of England and of Queen Elizaeth.

Americans will live through the centuries to come, in the security of a continent whose peace and liberty has been safeguarded by the destruction of German militarism. These Americans will not be proud of their native land when they study the speeches of a President who talked neutrality when the only other free nations on earth were giving their sons to fight and die for liberty. Woodrow Wilson is writing his own chapter of American history in his own way. That chapter will not be the most glorious in the annals of the great Republic.

The War's Most Dramatic Feature.
(Providence Journal.)

A factor to be considered in noting the mishaps of British men-of-war is that the shipyards are busy night and day adding new vessels to the fleet, of the very latest pattern — vessels much more efficient than the one[illegible] [illegible]tive control of the sea is perhaps the most dramatic feature of the entire war. The way she has held the German navy in check, despite the occasional foray of a submarine, is nothing short of epic in its scope and significance.

The Late Major Kimmins.
(Hamilton Herald.)

Major A. E. Kimmins, of Winona, who was killed in the battle of Langemarck, had many friends in Hamilton. A gallant soldier, he was also upright, honourable and companionable as a citizen. The major was an active member of the Elgar choir, and since going to the front he corresponded regularly with Mr. Carey, the choir's conductor.

Canada's Opportunity.
(Ottawa Journal.)

There has been an economic as well as a spiritual awakening in Russia. If the manufacturers of this country are alive to their best interests and will co-operate with the Government, the inauguration of a direct line from Canadian to Russian ports, as the logical result of an enormously increased trade between the two countries, is well within the realm of the probabilities of the next few years.

MR. TODD'S STATEMENT.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—I have now decided to make Peterborough my home and shall continue my work here.

The services in the church will be resumed next Sunday, May 2nd. In my former letter I said if I took up the church work again, I would start with a clean sheet. To that end we start with a new roll book and henceforth only those who subscribe to the new regulations and are in harmony with the local society will be recognized as proper Christian Scientists. I want to further say to the general public, that a number of people have for years, been circulating statements about myself and the church, which are absolutely false, and they refuse to meet to discuss the same, and have ignored all my letters. It is but fair that the stranger who is not acquainted with the facts should know that I am prepared, at any time, in either civil or religious court, prepared to meet every charge in a proper way.

Certain people circulating falsehoods for 10 years may have had weight with some people. However, I am pleased to say I have lived through it, in good health, body and mind and will go on in the strength and guidance of God who has protected, sustained and supplied to the present time.

I had hoped that this old erring condition would have worn itself out 'ere this, that these people had been redeemed and got into the right line of work, to help us. Since this is not the case, we can only leave them in the care of Divine Love, and the following quotations.

The first is attributed to "Abraham Lincoln." "You can fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time." Also Mrs. Eddy in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, page 448, 192, 464: "It is Christian Science to do right and nothing short of right doing has any claim to the name." We are not Christian Scientists until we have left all for Christ." "Falsity has no foundation. The hireling fleeth because he is an hireling and careth not for the sheep. Neither dishonesty nor ignorance ever founded, nor can they overthrow a scientific system of ethics."

Peterborough must move onward, outward and Heavenward.

Thanking you for valuable space.

Yours sincerely,

R. J. TODD.

INEXPENSIVE ENTERTAINMENT

War Has Not Increased the Price of Gram-o-phone Records.

It is pleasing to note in the face of [illegible] ties and luxuries alike, that one article — the gram-o-phone record — contributing in no small measure towards the pleasure and entertainment of the people, has not increased in price since the beginning of the war.

In a statement recently issued by the Berliner Gram-o-phone Company, Limited, of Montreal, manufacturers in Canada of the famous "His Master's Voice" Victor Records, they state that in spite of the tremendous improvements in the Victor Records of today over those of former years, the methods of manufacture, the constantly increasing army of world-famous artists who sing exclusively for the Victor Records, and the range of music obtainable — unequalled in any other form of musical reproduction — their prices have remained the same.

As in all lines of business, the cost of materials and labor has increased greatly, and it requires considerable fortitude and confidence in the future to maintain the prices of more prosperous times. Realizing, however, that, in times like the present, music is one of the chief sources of relief and entertainment, and because the Victor Records form perhaps the greatest, and in most cases the only medium between the people and the fine music and the great singers and musicians of the world, it was decided to continue to offer these records at the same prices as always.

As is well known, Victor Records are entirely "Made in Canada" in a large and up-to-date Montreal factory by hundreds of skilled Canadian workmen. The materials are gathered here from all parts of the world, where they are converted into the wonderful black discs that delight the millions. With the sole exception of the original recording of the artist's voice, which for obvious reasons must be done where the artists are to be found, everything connected with the manufacture of "His Master's Voice" Victor Records is "Made in Canada."

A HAPPY THANKSGIVING

A Story Showing That There is no Rule Without Exception.

(By EUNICE BLAKE.)

"Goodby, John," said Amy regretfully. "I'm sorry to part with you. Indeed, my heart is almost broken. I'm sorry you're so impractical. If you were content to come down to hard work we could remain together. We could be frugal and saving while young, which would insure us a competence when we get old. But this visionary disposition of yours renders that impossible. You say you are going to seek your fortune. Do you suppose you can find a fortune anywhere easier than right here? Indeed, you will have more difficulty in attaining it where you are not known and where you have no one to give you a lift when you most need it than here."

So spoke Amy Tarrant to John Esterbrook the day he left her to go out into the world, as he told her, to make his fortune. He was indeed of that order we call visionary. He believed he would succeed, but he had no definite idea of how he would succeed. He had no aptitude for drudgery.

"I'll admit, sweetheart," he said, "that it looks pretty dark ahead—that is, for me. You will doubtless make up your mind to the practical, the inevitable, and marry some man who will be a hard worker. He will provide the necessaries of life for his family and make you comfortable. I am of a different kind. I can't force myself to do what I dislike to do, and what I like to do doesn't pay. But some day I may find some way of making what I like to do pay. The world requires other things besides food, clothing and a place to live in. There are persons whose business it is to instruct, others to amuse, others to excite the imagination."

"Oh, John, there you go again! Such persons have just as hard a time as—usually a harder time than—those who buy and sell molasses or boots and shoes."

"Nevertheless I am one of that class and must take my place with them. If I find something whereby I can make money that is a pleasure to me as well, you may hear from me. Till then farewell."

John Esterbrook was wrong in his reckoning [illegible] was wholly wrong. For ninety-nine persons in every hundred the only way to be comfortable and lay up a competence is hard work, whether they like it or not. However, John looked for employment which might lead to work that he would enjoy. He had a literary taste and considered newspaper work a part of literature. That led him to seek employment in an editorial room, and he found an inferior position in the service of the Spottswood Eagle.

Of the first five years of John's work in the newspaper business little can be said. He drifted from one department to another, not because he was too dull to do the work assigned him, but because his heart was not in it. He was also careless, and carelessness is a fatal trait in making up material for the press. He managed, however, to keep in harness because he was liked, his popularity coming from an infinite good nature and a dry humor with which he caused his and other persons' mishaps and shortcomings to appear amusing. If taken to task for a blunder he would soften it by a joke so apt that it assured his forgiveness. Then, too, John had in him a keen appreciation of the foibles of human nature. He realized that all persons like to have the shortcomings of other persons except themselves shown up in an amusing way.

One day one of John's fellow workmen said to him, "Why don't you put some of these funny things you say in the paper?"

"I have never thought they were worth it," John replied, but it gave him an idea. For a month he kept memoranda of what seemed to amuse others and, putting the best of them in proper form, offered them for the humorous column. They were used, and more appeared the next week. Then some one suggested to John that he put his name to them. The work did not appeal to his ambition, so, instead of using his own name, he chose a substitute—Uncle Bill. From that time forward something funny appeared in the Eagle every week signed "Uncle Bill," and after awhile these bits of humor began to be copied in other newspapers. Their reception was slow at first, because there was an especial zest in them that required a little time to percolate through the skulls of those who read them. Their author had been quite awhile in educating his associates to catch on to them, and it would have required an equal time to educate the public had it not been that they appealed to certain persons who introduced them to others and they grew in favor.

One day John was asked how he would like to devote himself to the exclusive work of writing humor for the Eagle. He replied that he didn't think he could write funny stuff to order, but he would try it. He found that [illegible] humor into ordinary items which were going the rounds of the newspapers he could greatly increase his supply. He was given a column called "Uncle Bill's Sayings," and it was not long before it was noticed that the circulation of the paper was rapidly increasing.

John Esterbrook had proved his case, though he had stumbled into the proof. He spent a few hours each day hunting for items into which he could infuse his quaint humor and a couple of hours more in making them over. His work occupied him for four or five hours each day and was accomplished without the slightest effort. He was doing exactly what nature had intended he should do, what he had hinted to his sweetheart was a possibility, and, since the circulation of the Eagle widened, his salary increased.

Meanwhile, though John had left Amy Tarrant free to make a home with a more practical man than himself, he had not forgotten her. Amy hadn't married. She had given her heart to John, and it was not hers to give to any one else. There was another reason why she did not marry. Her mother was a widow, and there were several young children, all of whom required Amy's attention. Amy was an attractive girl and had several suitors, but she had sent them all away, conceiving it to be her duty, as it was her preference, to remain at home, where she was the mainstay of the family.

Indeed, this was necessary, for, though Amy worked eight hours a day at an office, she being the only productive one of the household, she could not earn enough to pay rent, buy food and the necessary clothing.

Such was the condition of affairs in the Tarrant family when Thanksgiving day approached. One of the younger boys heard his mother and his sister Amy discussing what they should do for a Thanksgiving dinner, Amy suggesting that hamburger steak was the best they could provide for meat. The boy whined that they should have turkey and, though informed that the bird would cost 30 cents a pound, was not a whit better satisfied to do without it.

The day before Thanksgiving Mrs. Tarrant and Amy before the latter went to her work had a final conference as to how they should get up a dinner for the morrow. There were absolutely no funds, and Amy could not draw even the few dollars that were coming to her until the end of the week. Nor was there anything in the larder except a few potatoes. The outlook was dismal. Amy went to her work, intending to ask for enough of her weekly salary to provide at least a meal sufficient to stay the children's appetites, but she was informed that such advances were contrary to the rules of the office. She returned after business hours to inform her mother of her failure and was approaching the house when she saw a man standing at the door. As she drew near she recognized John Esterbrook.

"Why, John," she exclaimed, "what brought you here?"

"Well," replied John, "your predictions as to my laziness having been fulfilled, I've invited myself to take a Thanksgiving dinner with you. I haven't had a real good one since we parted."

"Oh, dear! What shall we do? We haven't a cent with which to buy a dinner."

"That's a disappointment, isn't it?"

"Not only to you, but to us. Mother and I wouldn't complain if it were not for the children."

"Haven't you anything in the house?"

"Nothing." A tear stood in her eye.

"Well, I have a little change left. I reckon I'll have to pay it out for something to fill the children's stomachs. Suppose we go now together. The markets will not be open on Thanksgiving morning."

She walked away with him and as they proceeded sympathized with him at his ill success, reminding him of their conversation when he went away and how she had warned him that without hard work, whether he liked it or not, he would never get on. He replied that he remembered her words very well. He had done some hard work, but confessed that he had not enjoyed it. Indeed, he had disliked it so much that he had given it up.

"Aren't you doing anything now?" she asked.

"Nothing that I consider work."

They stopped at a market in which a profusion of eatables was displayed, and as soon as John could get the attention of one of the men in white coat and apron he began his purchases with a ten pound turkey, a quart of oysters, a bunch of celery, to say nothing of cranberries, vegetables, nuts, raisins and other delicacies. Then he asked Amy what necessaries were required. She was too astonished to reply. So he pulled a fat roll of banknotes from his pocket and paid the bill. Then they walked back to Amy's home, taking with them a beefsteak and other articles for supper that evening.

After supper John threw off his facetiousness and made a clean breast of it to Amy. It rather mortified him to confess that he was making a living [illegible] human foibles, but when he informed her of the fine income he was receiving she brightened, and he felt after all that he did not suffer in her estimation.

The next morning was occupied by Amy in preparing a Thanksgiving dinner, and when it was ready John appeared with sweetmeats, of which he said the supply they had laid in the day before was altogether too scant.

All voted the dinner the finest they had ever eaten and the day the most enjoyable they had ever spent. Amy consented to marry John on condition that she be not required to separate herself entirely from her mother and the children, and the liberal John provided for them. Indeed, he knew not how to take care of money, and his wife became the family purser.

Lesson V.—Second Quarter, For May 2, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xix, 1-12. Memory Verses, 4, 5—Golden Text, Prov. xxix, 25—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The work of the devil is not a pleasant meditation, but it is necessary that we should know our great adversary so as to successfully resist him. The topic of the lesson today is Saul trying to kill David, and ever since Cain killed Abel the devil has been very busy killing people. He is spoken of in Heb. ii, 14, as having the power of death; but, although he has been permitted to follow his occupation so long, the time will come when he shall be sent to the lake of fire forever and there shall be no more death on this earth (Rev. xx, 10; xxi, 4; I Cor. xv, 26). Meantime it is the believer's privilege to be delivered from fear of death and from all bondage in connection therewith (Matt. x, 28; Heb. ii, 15). All envy and jealousy and strife are also of the devil and should not be tolerated in a believer (Jas. iii, 14-16; Eph. iv, 30, 31).

Although chapter xix or a part of it is our lesson chapter, we must look at xviii for the connection. The first four verses of chapter xviii are thrillingly beautiful in their assurance and manifestation of the love of Jonathan and David, but we shall come to that topic in our next lesson. After David's victory over Goliath Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and the women sang his praises, magnifying him much more than Saul (xviii, 5-7). This made Saul angry and jealous, and twice he tried to kill David with a javelin, but each time David escaped (xviii, 8-11). While God may allow His saints to be sorely tried, persecuted and even slain, no real evil can befall them, for in the resurrection they shall be as manifestly without injury as were Daniel's friends when they came out of the furnace or Daniel himself when he came out of the lion's den.

Because the Lord was manifestly with David and he behaved himself wisely (or prospered, xviii, 5, 14, margin) Saul became afraid of him, removed him from being head of the army and made him captain over a thousand. But all Israel and Judah loved David (xviii, 12-16). The rest of chapter xviii tells how Saul sought to get rid of him by subtlety; but, failing in that scheme, he became David's continual enemy. Chapter xix opens with a command to Jonathan and to all the servants that they should kill David, but Jonathan advised him to hide a little while until he could talk with his father. The result of this interview was that Saul swore to Jonathan that David should not be slain, so Jonathan brought him back, and he was in Saul's presence as in times past (xix, 1-7). So far so good, but a man liable to give way to an evil spirit at any moment cannot be trusted. How sadly suggestive the opening words of verse 8, "And there was war again!" So it has been, and so it shall be until the devil is removed from the earth and the air, and the whole age in which we are now living is described by our Lord as a time of wars and rumors of wars, famines, pestilences and earthquakes (Matt. xxiv, 6, 7), but the time will come when the nations shall learn war no more, for He who alone is able to do it will make wars to cease unto the end of the earth.

In the war with the Philistines David was victorious again and slew them with a great slaughter, and the Lord wrought another great salvation for all Israel (verses 5, 8). But there was war again in Saul's heart and home, for the evil spirit was yielded to, envy and anger had control, and the javelin almost did its deadly work with David (verses 9, 10). Again the Lord was his shield and deliverer, and the weapon did not prosper (Isa. liv, 17). As some one has said, the devil is very persistent, and so David had not much peace. Now he seeks to kill David in his own house, and his wife, Michal, proves to be his human deliverer, helping him to make his escape through a window and putting an image in his bed, for when she said to the messengers that he was sick Saul then sent to bring him on his bed. Saul was so angry when he found how his daughter had deceived him that he spake of killing her (verses 11-17).

What fearful control of Saul the devil did obtain! And it is so still that if the Spirit of God is resisted the adversary comes in with great power. If people will not receive the truth God allows them to receive a lie (II Thess. ii, 10-12). David, seeing himself so persistently persecuted, fled to his friend Samuel at his home in Ramah, and they both went and dwelt in Naioth. Three times Saul sent to take him there, but each time the Spirit of God hindered and even took hold of Saul himself as he went after him (verses 18-24). We have a right to sing from the heart: "If God be for us who can be against us?" "The Lord is my light and my salvation. Whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life. Of whom shall I be afraid?" (Rom. viii, 31; Ps. xxvii, 1.)

There is great comfort also in Isa. liv, 17, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper, and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn." See also Isa. l, 7, 10, and ii, 12, 13, with Heb. ii, 14, 15; I John iii, 8.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

All plate and silver ware which is in regular use and not stored in such a way as to protect it from discoloration should be carefully polished once a week. It is best to have a regular time for this purpose.

Never use sand or scouring soaps, pumice stone or gritty washing powder for silverware or any other polishes the nature of which you do not understand. Many of them will scratch the silver and others will discolor it beyond repair.

Articles recommended for the polishing of silver, if not much stained, are whiting, either fluid, dry or moistened with alcohol or sweet oil; prepared chalk, cream of tartar, milk or a solution of alum.

To apply these use chamois skin, velveteen or pieces of old woolen or flannel underwear or pieces of old linen tablecloths. An old toothbrush or nailbrush with soft bristles might be used if preferred.

To wash silver prepare suds with boiling water, in which dissolve about an ounce of hard white soap to a quart of water and add a teaspoonful of soda. Into this put the silver pieces and boil them for a few minutes. Pour off the suds, pour over the silver clean boiling water, wipe dry on a clean towel without draining and polish with a piece of chamois skin.

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORRIN, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STEWART, 299 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

ONLY THREE DAYS MORE OF "TRIPLE VOTE OFFER"

Subscribers Are Urged to Help Their Favorite Candidate Before Saturday Night — Your Subscription Now is Worth Three Later on — Read the Contest News Every Day — It Will Help You to Success

Speculation is already rife as to who will enter the charmed circle of four at the close of the contest for the free tours across the continent.

The different candidates are already watching the other candidates in their district, and all are planning ways and means to secure substantial returns in votes and corersponding rapid advances.

One thing is certain, no mysticism, charm or legerdemain will enter into their success. Planning their campaign by the light of the moon, while it is shining over their left shoulder, or carrying th left hand foot of a rabbit captured in a graveyard, will not further their interests. There is no luck about this campaign. The moon and the seven stars, the ground hog and his shadow, a black cat, Friday and the thirteenth, crossing your fingers behind your back, or throwing salt over your right shoulder, none of these has any part in the making of the success of those who accumulate the necessary numbers of votes to secure the honors from their district.

The open sesame that will throw wide the doors of success is just energy, determined and undismayed. It is energy that will push your standing far ahead, and the lack of energy that will cause you to fall back.

If there ever was incentive to work it is for those candidates fortunate enough to have enrolled their names so early in the contest. They have an advantage which will cease to be of any use unless they avail themselves of it by reaping the first harvest of votes which lies about them in such profusion.

There are opportunities now that will be gone later. Perhaps some candidate from another district is planning to write postcards into your district, asking support from those people you are depending on, but have neglected seeing.

The real interest the active candidates and their friends are taking in the race is becoming apparent, and a number of letters have been received from prospective candidates who are anxious to know whether it is "Too late to enter the contest."

The question is easily answered. The contest is hardly started, and any one can enter at any time during the contest.

There is no dout that some of those who are making good progress were just as skeptical of success as are many who will hesitate to enter. Generally, the candidates who deliberate well on their chances of winning before enrolling are the ones who are victorious at the end.

A feeling of timidity and hesitation often goes before great achievements.

Most certainly there is no sense in acknowledging yourself defeated before you begin. Many will say, "Oh, I would just hate to enter and then not win." But how are you to tell you will not win? What reason is there for you to believe that you should not be among the fortunate ones?

Being skeptical of success in any venture you know your effort will bring success is many times the incentive to greater effort, and the consequent accomplishment of what you start out to do. Timidity, however, is reprehensible.

The trip will be a glorious one, and it would really be a great pity if you were to lose it through a little timidity or sense of false pride.

Write the Contest Manager or 'phone him and give him an opportunity to have a personal chat with you. The Contest Department will be kept open every evening between 7 and 9 p.m., particularly for the convenience of candidates who find it impossible to call during the day. Every candidate should call at this office and receive instructions as well as all the printed forms which are necessary for the carrying on of a successful campaign.

The Triple Votes.

Do not forget the necessity of getting every possible subscription before Saturday night. Tell your friends that you need their subscriptions now, and show them the splendid number of votes you will receive if they pay you before Saturday night.

Mr. Subscriber, don't delay your subscription longer if you intend helping some of the candidates, or if you have promised a subscription, see that your favorite gets it at once. The young ladies will now want to see just where they are at, and to withhold your order will place the lady you wish to go on the trip in a position that she will not know whether to count on your votes or not.

DO IT NOW. This is the most important week of the contest.

AN AUXILIARY PUMPING PLANT

Utilities Commissioners Receive Communication From W. H. Pretty C. E.

The meeting of the Utilities Commission Tuesday afternoon received the following letter from W. H. Pretty, C.E., of the Trent Canal:

141 Hunter St. East,
Peterborough, Ont.,
April 10th, 1915.

The Chairman of the Utilities Commission,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir, — In reference to the question of the auxiliary pumping plant now under consideration for the city, I beg to submit for your consideration as follows:

The installation of an auxiliary power plant at some convenient place within or near the city limits consisting of two or more independent standard units, each unit consisting of a high speed steam engine direct connected to a three-phase electric generator of voltage and cycle suitable for feeding directly into the city electric mains.

The site should preferably be one where fuel and coal could be conveniently delivered by canal and railway — and advisably away from dwelling house — the writer's experience being that the latter item is more important than is generally assumed by people.

Electric power for driving pumps, etc., could be transmitted to the existing waterworks at any time and when not required for water works purposes, the electric energy could be turned into the city electric mains for general use, through a system of feeders.

Such an auxiliary plant should yield a small profit on capital invested since it could run at or near full load continuously and would have the advantage as an emergency scheme of being always ready and under test. It is well known to engineers that the average emergency plant generally "rusts out" more quickly than it "wears out" being in fact almost human in its behaviour from this standpoint.

It is even probable that a supply of water for emergency purposes could be obtained from the Little lake by an independent motor driven pumping plant, the clean appearance of the ice taken year by year is indicative of good and clean water in several places in the lake area.

The above suggestions are from the writer's experience worth considering — details can be left over for the present.

Yours very truly,
W. H. PRETTY,
A.M.T., C.E.

The letter was courteously received by the Commissioners and the secretary instructed to acknowledge it.

Increase the Pressure.

It was decided that the superintendent be instructed to re-lay Hunter St. from Aylmer St. to Belmont Ave. with 8-inch pipe, to relay the main of Water St. with 6-inch pipe and to lay an 8-inch main on Hunter St. between Belmont and Walton St. and to lay a 14-inch main on McDonnel St. from the end of the present main to Cambridge St. This will materially assist in increasing the water pressure in the western portion of the city.

The superintendent reported on a petition for a main on Donegal St. from McDonnel to Dublin Sts. estimating the cost of a 5-inch main at $963.00 and the revenue at $50.00.

The superintendent also reported on a petition for a main on London St. to supply four services on London St. and Donegal St. estimating the cost of a 5-inch main at $402.40 and the revenue at $33.40.

ALD. STRATTON'S VEILED STATEMENTS RESENTED

DISPOSAL PLANT SITE AGAIN

Board of Works Members Indulge in Some Discussion Relative to Past Councils' Handling of the Proposition — Whole Council Will go to Toronto on Friday

A sharp arraignment and criticism of the business acumen of previous councils in regard to their handling of the selection of a site for the sewage disposal plant featured a rather lively meeting of the city board of works committee last night. The member that threw the stones was Alderman Stratton, who indulged in a controversy with Mayor Buller upon the matter and who refused to be convinced that all the transactions concerning the selection of a site and drawing of plans had been properly done.

How It Started.

One little communication from City Solicitor Gordon stirred up the chewing match, which ended with no one being a whit further ahead. The letter was to the effect that a meeting of the Provincial Board of Health was billed for Friday in Toronto, when opportunity would be given for the presentation of arguments for and against the site that has been selected. The Mayor followed up the reading of this letter with a hearty invitation to all the council who felt like going to Toronto to do so. He reviewed the steps that had taken place in regard to deciding on the site now in view, and emphasized the fact that the selection of it was made upon the consent and advice practically of the Provincial Board of Health engineers. The city engineer had been instructed to proceed with plans, but these had been rejected once because of the action of the Provincial Board, and a new set of blue prints had to be made. These were now practically completed, but the matter was again held up by the provincial body, who had sated that the plant for Peterborough was one that was to be new in the province, and they were taking particular trouble to ensure it being satisfactory.

Mayor Buller then explained that objection had been taken to the site by the township of Otonabee, who didn't want it placed there. The Mayor proposed to have ex-Mayor Bradburn accompany the deputation, also ex-Aldermen Johnston and Duncan, all of whom had been in the council at the time the provincial engineers had stated plainly that the site selected was the best one and that there would be no kicks raised by the provincial board. As their evidence would be the best possible kind in Toronto, the Mayor said he proposed to have them go up; in fact, as Mayor, he had a perfect right to ask them, and had already done so. Alderman Stratton was agreeable to to the council going up, but what was the use of taking up ex-members of the council? There were enough aldermen in the council this year to satisfy the provincial board that consent had been given to the site selected.

Didn't Need Ex-Members.

Alderman Stratton said he took the stand that the council did not require them. Their verifications were not needed, if that is why they were to be taken along. Alderman Duffus said his experience with deputations was that one, or perhaps two, men did the talking, and the remainder were merely figureheads occupying the benches.

Aldermen Stratton and Edgar seemed to sense that all the council were not wanted. They felt that Mayor Buller's invitation to them was scarcely cordial enough to convince them that their presence was really desired.

Alderman Green, chairman, favored taking up the ex-members.

Will the City Be Held Up?

This brought up a discussion upon the possibility of the city being held up by the Provincial Board in the matter of a site. Alderman Duffus figured it might be a costly experiment if the city attempted to settle down upon this particular spot. Mayor Buller explained how vastly much more it would cost if they had to build the plant two or three miles further down the river. The whole matter came down to the point where the council had to confess that they were but the wards of the Board of Health as far as selecting a site was concerned. This was resented by Alderman Stratton, who said it looked as if previous councils had not used good judgment. If they had, this would have been settled even before the plans were started. It should not have been permitted to drag on without a site being settled upon. If they had shown good business acumen that would have been settled long ago. Now it would probably have to be done by arbitration, and the city pay perhaps four or five times what was first estimated.

Alderman Green — "If they decide to drive us further down the river, we will have to go."

Mayor Buller resented the insinuations upon past councils. This matter was not as simple as buying a cow in a field. The personnel of previous councils had been as good as could be picked up in the city. The whole trouble was that they had been held up by the Provincial Board of Health. It was the board that had first agreed upon the site, and it was they who had caused the plans to be held up so long.

The matter finally was settled by a motion by Alderman Stratton and Mayor Buller that the council be a deputation to go up to Toronto on Friday to interview the Board of Health.

A deputation from Otonabee is also expected to be present.

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 25. — Another aged resident of Percy has passed away in the person of Mr. John Lamey, who had reached the advanced age of 78 years. The funeral was held from his late residence on Monday morning, and the remains were laid to rest in the R. C. cemetery. There remains to mourn his demise, besides his sorrowing widow, a grown-up family of sons and daughters, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

Mr. J. J. English is improving the appearance of his residence by the erection of a large and commodious verandah, which will add beauty to the external appearance.

The superintendents of the Mission Band in connection with the Methodist church held a mothers' meeting at the church on Thursday afternoon, when the mite-boxes of the members were opened and the contents counted, which added materially to the [illegible]

A funeral, surrounded with a great degree of sadness, was held on Friday last upon the arrival of the G. T. R. train from Lindsay, and proceeded to the Trent Valley Cemetery. The remains were those of Mr. Jones, a former resident of Hastings, but latterly an employe of the G. T. R. company, with headquarters at Lindsay, and who met a tragic death while at his work on the road, his body being almost severed in two. He leaves a widow and several small children to mourn his untimely end. The cortege was accompanied by a number of his fellow-employes and several members of the Orange Order, and everywhere were to be heard expressions of sympathy for the family and friends.

The cadets were on parade on Saturday last under the direction of Mr. Walter Thompson, and made a splendid showing.

Mr. G. Staples spent the week-end at his home in Bethany.

The Epworth League held a "rubber social" on Monday evening, when a very enjoyable time was spent. A good program was rendered by local talent, while ice-cream and home-made candy found a ready sale. The admission to the sale was a pair of old rubbers, and you may be sure there was quite a collection of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morton, of Oakland, Calif., who spent their youthful days in Hastings, were here on Saturday last calling on old friends.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. William Tate is still confined to her room through weakness following a severe attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. George Buchanan of Trent Bridge spent Thursday in town, the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. Carter.

Mr. Adam Humphries was in Keene on Tuesday last attending the funeral of his brother, Mr. Robert Humphries.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O'Neil spent Sunday with friends in Keene.

Mr. Lloyd Hess was in Norwood on Sunday.

Some of the farmers have completed the season's seeding, which is quite an early record, it still being only April.

Friends here of Miss Bella Waddell of the staff of Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, will regret to learn of her illness. Miss Waddell was formerly a resident here.

Mr. Ivan Tapping has gone to Toronto for a season.

Several cases of measles are reported in town, but are not of a malignant type.

WAR STAMPS WILL COST CITY $150

To Cover Extra Levy on Letters and Cheques

TAX COLLECTOR TO PAY FOR HIS OWN

It is interesting to note that the war tax will cost the city over $150 per year. In 1914 there were 3172 letters and from January 1st to March 31st of this year there have been 746 cheques while during the same period last year the number was 560. This increase is 30 per cent. and on this basis the number for 1915 have been estimated at 4000, this will call for $40 in war stamps.

At the meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon it was decided that cheques be issued for the stamps.

Tax Collectors.

The tax collector reported taxes to the amount of $15,741.13 have not as yet been collected.

Tenders for Debentures.

It was decided to advertise for tenders for debentures for $18,000, [illegible] and $10,000, city trust. In connection with this, Ald. Green remarked that should the city have to pay more than par, citizens should receive the preference. The other members of the committee acquiesced.

Ice Cream Licenses.

Ald. Stratton reported that he had looked into the matter of persons selling ice cream without a license. Chief Thompson informed him that no one is, to his knowledge, selling ice cream or soft drinks without a license and if there are cases he would like to be acquainted with the fact. Complaints in which no names are mentioned cannot be considered.

War Stamps for Tax Collector.

Tax Collector Green applied for war stamps which would cost him about $5 per month or $60 per year. In view of the fact that the collector is given a stated salary and he has to purchase his own stamps, no action was taken.

RECOMMEND THAT ACCOUNT BE NOT PAID

Relief Officer Miller Was Not Notified of Indigent Case

At the Finance Committee meeting yesterday afternoon an account from St. Joseph's Hospital for $38.00 for expenses of an indigent patient was received. Mr. Miller reported that he was not informed of the case until the patient was prepared to leave. In accordance with a resolution passed some time ago and by which no patients, except in emergency cases, must be admitted to either hospital unless Mr. Miller is notified, the meeting on motion of Ald. Green and Weir, decided not to pay the account.

TWO PRISONERS FREE FROM JAIL

Used Broom Handle on Padlock and Effected Their Escape

Fenelon Falls has a thriller in the [illegible] escape from jail of [illegible] men named Yorke and Miller who had been sentenced for breaking into the G.T.R. station.

Yorke is an old offender, but Miller is new at the business, and it is believed that Yorke engineered the get-away scheme. Early yesterday morning (about 6 o'clock) Constable Jones took breakfast to the prisoners and on his return some 20 minutes later the birds had flown. The padlock on the door, which was apparently of poor construction, had been forced and the young men made good their escape.

Constable Jones immediately organized searching parties and the surrounding vicinity was scoured, but as yet no trace of the culprits has been secured. A searching party even drove as far as Sturgeon Point but no sign of the missing men was discovered.

The jail is a small but formidable structure, and surprise has been expressed that the lock was in such a weakened condition that it could be forced open with a broom handle, as is surmised.

CASUALTY LIST GROWS

Four Officers Killed Thirteen Are Wounded And Fourteen Missing

Steadily Increasing List of Casualties Among Commissioned Officers of Canadian Division Has Reached a Total of 162—One Man in Every Three Hit—Corps Has Evidently Been Badly Cut Up.

OTTAWA, April 29. — Another long list of casualties among Canadian officers came in last night at Militia Headquarters. Four officers are killed—viz., Capt. J. H. McGregor, Victoria; Lieuts. F. R. Medland and W. P. D. Jarvis, of Toronto, and Lieut. George M. Williamson, of Montreal. Thirteen officers are reported wounded, of whom four are from Toronto and the rest principally from Montreal and Victoria. Seven officers are reported "wounded and missing," and seven "missing," with Toronto and Montreal again suffering most heavily.

The report of "missing" officers lends additional color to the belief that at least a portion of the Canadians are now prisoners.

Yesterday's cable of casualties states that they occurred on the 27th, indicating that the Canadians were in a severe action Tuesday, although it may be that the date is erroneously made out as referring to names just received of casualties in the battle of last week.

Last night's additional list of casualties among officers brings the total of the past week's fighting up to the staggering figure of 162, of whom 32 are killed, 116 are wounded, and the balance either wounded or prisoners. The total number of commissioned officers in the whole division engaged in the battle is approximately 600, and the figures above show that nearly one officer in every three has been hit. There is nothing official yet to show the total of casualties among other ranks, but it is certain that the whole Canadian division has been very badly cut up. So far the Maritime Province men seem to have escaped well, but the Ontario and western province men have suffered very severely.

Last night's list of casualties was as follows:

Third Battalion — Killed, Lieut. F. R. Medland, Lt. W. D. P. Jarvis.

Wounded—Capt. W. D. Allan, Capt. D. H. C. Mason, Capt. H. G. Muntz, Lieut. G. A. Smith, Major A. G. L. McNaughton.

Missing—Major A. J. E. Kirkpatrick, Major P. Anderson, Capt. J. E. L. Streight, Capt. L. S. Morrison, Lieut. B. L. Johnston, Lieut. G. E. D. Green, Lieut. D. G. Allan.

KAISER TO DECIDE

Fate of Pte. Lonsdale Depends on Emperor

BERLIN, April 29.—The supreme military court has confirmed the sentence of death imposed Dec. 29, on William Lonsdale of Leeds, Eng., a private in the British army for attacking a German non-commissioned officer at the military prison camp at Doeberitz. The verdict of the court is subject to the approval of Emperor William and the sentence possibly will be commuted. Ronald B. Harvey, second secretary of the United States embassy, attended the session of the court.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, the United States Minister at The Hague, and James W. Gerard, United States Ambassador to Germany, both took an interest in the case of Lonsdale at the behest of the Lord Mayor of Leeds, who sought to have the death sentence on the soldier commuted. In February it was announced that the court had commuted the sentence to 20 years' imprisonment. Later a despatch from Berlin stated that Lonsdale had obtained another appeal and that the case would be heard before the supreme military court April 27.

ATTACKS AT AN END

Germans Are Definitely Stopped Says Sir John French.

LOST GROUND IS REGAINED

LONDON, April 29.—"Our operations, in conjunction with the French, have definitely stopped the German attack."

In these words Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent, announces the conclusion of another German attempt to break through the allied lines around Ypres and along the Yser Canal, which brought about one of the most sanguinary battles of the war. Relative calmness has set in for this battlefield, the French statement says, the force of the German drive having been spent.

The allies have retained all the ground recovered in the past three days.

This, however, only brings to an end the second phase of the battle, for the allies have yet to win back some of the ground which they lost in the great German sweep. For this purpose they are now delivering counter-attacks against the German lines. Only at one place, Steenstraate, have the Germans managed to keep their footing on the western bank of the canal, while to the north of Ypres the positions remain much as they were, the allies making no claims to an advance there and the Germans reporting that all the British attacks have been repulsed.

To hold these lines the Germans have brought up further reinforcements, and Belgium, behind them, has been denuded of troops. The towns and villages in Belgium are being guarded by only a handful of sentries. Fighting also continues in Champagne, where the Germans make claim to the capture of 300 yards of French trenches, half of which were recaptured, in the Argonne and the Woevre, where the French are progressing, and in the Vosges, where the French retain possession of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf. It is probable that this mountain, which commands the plains of Alsace, has changed hands several times. This would account for contraditcory reports.

The French statement last night reports that the enemy directed an intense fire against the summit of this mountain yesterday, but did not launch any attacks.

FOOTHOLD IS ESTABLISHED

Allies Hold Positions Across Gallipoli Peninsula

MANY OBSTACLES

LONDON, April 29. — The British War Office issued the following announcement last night on the Dardanelles operations:

"In the face of continual opposition, the allied troops have now established themselves across the end of the Gallipoli Peninsula, from a point northeast of Eski Hisarlik to the mouth of a stream on the opposite side.

"They have also beaten off all attacks at Aari Bair, and are steadily advancing."

"The Turks have made considerable preparations to hamper any landings. Wire entanglements under the sea, as well as on land, and deep pits with spikes at the bottom were among the obstacles overcome by the troops."

It is expected that the operations against the Dardanelles will proceed slowly, as the Turks are strongly entrenched and their wire entanglements and trenches will have to be heavily shelled before the troops can make any serious attempt to advance.

Berlin continues to send out rumors designed to discredit reports of allies' successes in the Dardanelles. It was stated yesterday that a well-authenticated report has reached Berlin that the left wing of the allies landing force on the Gallipoli peninsula, which Gen. Liman von Sanders, the German commander of the Turkish forces, reported Tuesday as holding out, has now surrendered to the Turks.

"Halil Bey, former president of the Turkish Parliament, who is now in Berlin, received a telegram from Constantinople Tuesday night, saying that 8,000 French and British soldiers had been driven into the sea, and that 12,000 had been captured by the Turks, as a result of the attempt of the allies to land forces to attack the Dardanelles fortifications."

Berlin also reports that a wireless despatch received from Constantinople says:

"At the celebration of the Sultan's jubilee Tuesday the Minister of War announced the receipt of a telegram from the commander of the fifth army corps, Gen. Liman von Sanders Pasha, stating that the centre and right wing of the enemy had been completely defeated and that there was hope that the left wing also was beaten."

FIRE BRIGADE WAS CRITICIZED

Alderman Smale Thinks Blaze Should Have Been Better Handled

Criticism of work performed by the Lindsay fire brigade was heard at a meeting of council. The Warder says:

Second Deputy-Reeve Smale took the fire brigade to task last night at a special meeting of Town Council, claiming that they handled Friday night's fire at the fire hall in a manner not becoming an efficient fire department. In part Ald. Smale said: "I don't think that our fire brigade handled the water at all well that night. I was there and I know that they were yelling for water for four minutes before they got it. Besides they broke the hydrant."

Ald. Chambers—"But you must remember that the hydrant was a left-handed one, while nearly all the hydrants in town are right-handed."

Ald. Smale—"But, surely, that's no excsue. The firemen should know their business, and they should surely know where the left and right-handed hydrants are located."

Commissioner Williams — "There was a new fireman on that night and he happened to be the one sent to the hydrant to turn the water on. He turned the wrong way and broke the hydrant. I turned the water on, because I knew it was a left-handed hydrant."

Ald. Smale—"It was a small fire and should have been better handled. Our firemen did not do themselves credit. I'm not a kicker but we want to have an efficient brigade."

German Rifle Factory Bombed.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 29.—A French airman Tuesday threw four bombs on the Mauser rifle factory at Oberndorf, near Stuttgart. Each of these missiles reached its goal, and, according to the information coming to Geneva, considerable damage was done. A quantity of rifles, together with some machinery, was destroyed.

DWELLING WITH NINE INCH WALL

Permission to Build is Given by Board of Works

IN FIRE LIMITS

Local Men in Majority on St. Paving Operations

Requesting permission to erect a dwelling with a nine-inch wall, Mr. J. H. McDonald, contractor, waited upon the board of works last night. The house is to be built right on the fire limits on Hunter street, near the waterworks office, and is for Mr. Tom Lane, of the firm of Lane & Eano. Inasmuch as it would greatly improve the appearance of that corner, Mayor Buller moved that the permission be granted. The motion carried.

Of the fifty-five workmen employed on Charlotte street, an investigation conducted by City Engineer Parsons and D. M. Minicola reveals the fact thirty are local men and residents of the city; twenty are regular employes of Messrs. Foley and Gleeson, and the standing of the other five was not determined. When the mixing work is started, at least one-half of the regular employes of the firm will be moved from the street cleaning work to the mixing. The five whom the investigators were not sure about will be displaced if they cannot produce some kind of certificate of residence here. These facts were reported to the board of works by City Engineer Parsons.

Fight Caterpillars.

The board also decided to appropriate $250 this year for preventing a repetition of the caterpillar plague of last year. The engineer said he remembered the way the newspapers roasted him last year, and he introduced a suggestion to initiate spraying and grubbing early. His idea was voted a good one, and after some discussion it was moved that the sum mentioned be set aside for use in mitigating the pest.

CARPATHIANS

No Decision Yet Reached in Gigantic Struggle

PETROGRAD, April 29.—The battle of the Russian and Austro-German armies in the vicinity of Stryj, in the Carpathian Mountains, has entered its fifth day, with no signs of diminishing and with the outcome still undecided.

Fighting is progressing in the narrow mountain defiles, and there is little opportunity for the carrying out of manoeuvres.

The exceedingly strong Austro-German force, according to the meagre reports received here, is daily receiving reinforcements.

To the southwest of Stryj the Russians are still threatening Uszok Pass, which remains in German hands, though the summits immediately north and northwest already have been captured. The operations in this district are being rendered difficult by the heavy rains.

Minor activity is reported from Kalfarya, near the East Prussian border, where a German army is said to have been repulsed. The Russian fortress of Ossowiec is being subjected to a continuous light artillery fire.

A Russian giant aeroplane has paid a visit to the East Prussian town of Neidenburg, 24 miles south of Koenigsberg, where it dropped 1,200 pounds of explosives. The railroad terminal property appeared to have been seriously damaged.

At Suwalki a German aeroplane was brought down, but it fell within the German lines.

Punish Austrians Held in Siberia

OMSK, Siberia, April 29.—Governor Schmidt of the Omsk district issued an order yesterday, reprimanding the conduct and curtailing the privileges of Austrian war prisoners in this district who are declared to have been guilty of [illegible] comparative freedom granted to them.

These officers and men have been allowed virtually the same privileges as citizens. They have been treated with consideration by the inhabitants of Omsk, who surrendered to them the best lodgings and supplied them with food. According to the charges brought against them, they have violated all rules, shown disrespect toward Russian women, mutilated posted reports of Russian victories, and have been insubordinate, even to the extent of disorderly conduct.

Governor Schmidt ordered all prisoners at the village of Staroduboka to march to the nearest concentration camp, where they will be held under strict military discipline. They will be deprived of the privilege of accepting employment, from which they have been deriving considerable remuneration.

FEARS RE-ACTION

Archbishop of York Against Temperance Plan

[illegible] bishop of York, speaking yesterday at the York convocation expressed the opinion that if a great scheme of temperance reform were introduced during the war there would be danger of a reaction when the probibition was removed. Then, the archbishop said would "be real and regrettable intemperance."

In the lower house of the convocation the Dean of Manchester introduced a resolution against total prohibition. The resolution which was adopted was as follows:

"Resolved, that this house, while wishing to support all such measures as may, in the opinion of the Government be necessary for the strength and safety of the nation in time of war, would look with anxiety upon the total prohibition of the sale of alcoholic drinks."

A Physician's Opinion

A physician who uses Grape-Nuts in his family was recently asked his opinion of this food. He said—

"It is a concentrated, palatable, nourishing and healthful food. Sweetened slightly and moistened with good rich cream, Grape-Nuts makes a toothsome dish."

There's a reason for these excellent qualities in Grape-Nuts. This food is made of whole wheat and barley, thoroughly baked and processed to render it easily and quickly digestible — generally in about one hour.

Grape-Nuts contains all the rich nutriment of the grains, including the phosphorus, iron, sulphur, and other mineral elements so necessary for proper nourishment of body and nerve cells. It's a healthful food, and economical also.

LOST THREE BROTHERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, April 29. — Alex. Noble, 491 Queen street east, received in a letter from his home in Nairn, Scotland, news of one brother killed in France, another died of wounds, and a brother-in-law went down with the cruiser Good Hope in the South Pacific last November.

BETTER SERVICE

till 12.13 today when they went on east.

As soon as Mayor Buller learned the C.P.R. men were in the city he gathered together a deputation of influential citizens and waited on them. The deputation consisted of Mayor Buller, Ald. G. W. Green, B. D. Hall, W. J. Hopwood, W. H. Denham, T. F. Matthews, T. Barrie and E. G. Patterson. W. S. Dodd and Jas. Skinner, the local C.P.R. agents, were also present. The matter of connecting the Port McNicholl line with the Lake Shore line by a division running from Peterborough via the head of the lake was first discussed. The railwaymen were of the opinion that such could be the case providing the surveyors and engineers approved of it. However for the present it is not likely that anything will be done.

Papers Here at 11.13 a.m.

As the merchants [illegible] that freight from Toronto arrive here earlier in the morning the railway has decided to have the mixed train from North Toronto which now arrives here at 8.35 a.m., reach Peterborough about 7 a.m. This will necessitate the train leaving Toronto before the morning papers are off the press and as a result the papers will not arrive here till the noon train. The noon train, however, will arrive in Peterborough at 11.13 instead of 12.13 and the afternoon train going west will also run an hour earlier. Both trains will carry a cafe parlor car. The fact that they will run earlier, connects the train going east at noon with No. 20, the fast train from Smiths Falls to Montreal and the train going west at 3.23 p.m. will arrive in Toronto at 6.10, thus affording passengers to make connections with No. 19, the fast train for Chicago, which leaves Toronto about 6.30 p.m.

The freight service between Peterborough and points east will also be improved while the "local" which of late has been running between Havelock and Toronto, will ply as formerly between Tweed and Toronto. All changes in time will take effect June 1st.

HINDENBURG

Believed to be Responsible for Reckless German Waste

NORTH OF FRANCE, April 29.—Foot by foot, it is true, but after all, with considerable speed, our line is again being straightened out to its original positions north of Ypres, and the bulge caused by the savage onslaught of the two army corps, with which Von Hindenburg attempted to push apart the French and British armies operating in the district, is steadily being repaired. It seems fairly certain that Von Hindenburg is paying his long-promised visit to the western front, and this apostle of massed formations has been hurling his hordes to death with the same brutal recklessness as he displayed on the Vistula. His success has been even less than in Russia, for the allies' recovery from the first shock has been more rapid, and his original plan, which it appears was to effect a breach in our lines, may already be said to have failed.

Two Convicts Escape.

FENELON FALLS, April 29.—Dago Yorke and William Miller, two prisoners, confined in the local lockup awaiting transfer to the Central Prison, made their escape by forcing the lock of their cell shortly after six o'clock yesterday morning. It is not known whether they received any outside assistance, but it is thought probable that they did. They [illegible] the G.T.R. baggage room [illegible] April 26 and stealing a suitcase. Yorke was sentenced to 12 months and Miller to six months in the Central Prison.

CITY LEAGUE TEAMS PRACTICE SATURDAY

Dr. Wightman has very generously offered the use of Riverside Park to the City League teams on Saturday. Each team will thus be permitted to work in a good practice on the grounds on which all league games will be played. To avoid the teams "clashing" the meeting last evening decided on the following schedule for the afternoon:—

1.15 till 2.15—East City.
2.15 till 3.15—Classics.
3.15 till 4.15—Empire A.C.
4.15 till 5.15—Thistles.

No admission will be charged so a large [illegible] will likely be on hand to look over the various teams.

BIG INTEREST IN LACROSSE

When the "Y." boys got out last night with their lacrosse sticks it was like a big magnet, all the old ones passing by who had ever played the game simply couldn't stay away. They had to drop over and get the feel of the stick again. A good crowd of the boys were out, and there is a lot of lacrosse instinct lying dormant that will be wakened and developed during the coming season. From last night's showing the "Y." should be able to put an "A" class steam in the field. What is wanted is a city league to get all the boys going. George Robertson and Ray Best were both out with the boys last night, and are going right after the developing of a fast aggregation. Next practice, Friday, 6.30 p.m.

Basketball Scores.

The boys in the church basketball league had another big time in the "Y." gym. last night, when the Methodists, Anglicans and Baptists lined up against each other. Knox and Mark street was the first attraction, and the Presbyterian boys had things pretty much their own way, although the Mark street boys are playing a plucky game against big odds. Lipsett, Gillespie and McIntyre al had a share in the scoring for Mark street, while Smythe, Montgomery and Webster were the point-getters for Knox. The first half ended 12-4, the nfial score being 22-8 in favor of Knox. The teams:

KNOX — Webster, Montgomery, Smythe, Clark, Martin.

MARK ST. — Lipsett, Gillespie, McIntyre, Nellist, Hagerman.

Murray street and All Saints' played a hard and close game marked by lack of scoring. For the first half neither team could be accused of having its eye on the basket, although All Saints did cage one. Many times the Anglicans displayed considerable ability in passing and combination, but the ability to cage the spheroid was lacking. In the second half the Baptists scored eight points and won by 8-2. The lineup:

ALL SAINTS' — Blake, McLeod, Lebar, Gollop, Lundy.

MURRAY ST. — Webb, Webb, Lewis, Pringle, Crawford.

George street downed Charlotte street, and the fact that they were brethren did not dull their ardor or strenuousness in any degree. There is one thing certain to the promoters and followers of this league, and that is that all the basketball material is not in the senior league, for the material that is showing up in this intermediate league proves that there is a great future in the city for this best of indoor games. The George street quintet played together like a group of veterans, and the shooting of Copp was up to anything that has been displayed all season. The Charlotte street boys played a hard, consistent game, but the baskets failed to materialize. The first half ended 20-8, with George street leading. In the second half there aws very little scoring, the final score being 24-9. All the George street boys got into the scoring, with Howard Copp being the shining light. Likewise on the Charlotte street team the scoring was distributed among the whole team. The teams:

GEORGE ST. — Hilson, Copp, H. Copp, Thorndyke, Head.

CHARLOTTE ST. — Soden, English, Thompson, Austin, Skuce.

Referee, Carson. Scorer, Thackeary. Timer, McCarrell.

REST FOR CANADIANS

Division Retires to Rear Lines Weary and Badly Thinned

NORTHERN FRANCE, April 29.—During the last thirty-six hours the enemy attacked our lines east of the Yser Canal with redoubled violence in a last desperate effort to gain a footing on the western bank. They expended their force in vain. The allies still hold firm on the western side, and every attack was repulsed and enormous losses inflicted upon the enemy.

Appreciable progress has been made by the French north of the line and by the British in the south, in the direction of St. Julien. British troops now hold a new line of trenches north and northeast of Ypres. The Canadians, worn out by the four days and nights of unceasing struggle, have been relieved and retired to their rear lines for a much-needed rest. They retired covered with glory, but with their ranks badly thinned.

The most critical days were Saturday and Sunday. The Germans on those days brought up howitzers and heavy artillery to advanced positions. Then they threw shells of high explosives into Ypres and covered with a curtain of fire every avenue through which our reinforcements might pass. The destruction of Ypres is complete.

MANY DIE OF BRONCHITIS

Canadians Were Killed by German Chlorine or Bromide

LONDON, April 29.—Dr. John S. Haldane, who was sent to France to observe the effect of the gases used by the Germans in opening their attack near Ypres, reports that he examined several Canadians who had been incapacitated by the gases.

"These men," he said, "were lying struggling for breath and blue in the face. On examining their blood with a spectroscope and by other means I ascertained that the blueness was not due to the presence of any abnormal pigment. There was nothing to account for the blueness and their struggles for air but one fact and that was that they were suffering from acute bronchitis, such as is caused by the inhalation of an irritant gas. Their statements were to the effect that when in the trenches they had been overwhelmed by an irritant gas produced in front of the German trenches and carried towards them by a gentle breeze.

"One of the men died shortly after our arrival. A post-mortem examination showed that death was due to acute bronchitis, and its secondary effect. There was no doubt that the bronchitis and accompanying slow asphyxiation were due to irritant gas.

"The symptoms and other facts so far ascertained point to the use by the German troops of chlorine or bromide for the purpose of asphyxiation. There also are facts pointing to the use in German shells of other irritant substances. Still, the last of these agents are not of the same brutality and barbarous character as was the gas used in the attack on the Canadians.

"The effects are not those of any of the ordinary products of combustion of explosives. On this point the symptoms described left not the slightest doubt in my mind."

Dr. John Scott Haldane is an authority of the physiology of respiration.

Kitchener Wants Respirators.

LONDON, April 29.—The War Office is appealing for home-made respirators to enable the troops to fight German poison fumes, and the Women's Emergency Corps yesterday purchased a quantity of material for making the articles. Within a few hours of the publication of the appeal, one of the big west-end stores had a window display of respirators made in accordance with official requirements, which attracted large crowds. By noon some thousands of them had been sold.

"Hubby," said the observant wife, "the janitor of these flats is a bachelor."

"What of it?"

"I really think he is becoming interested in our oldest daughter."

Whole Council Will Deal With the Objections of Labor Council

ALD. EDGAR MOVES FOR SIX MONTHS' HOIST

No Indian ever thirsted more avidly for a scalp than do the Trades and Labor Council for the deposition from public office of Sanitary Inspector Spence. That is the feeling entertained by Mr. Spence, who claims to have information that the labor party have sworn to get him and get him right. The inspector is not suffering from chilliness in the region of his pedal extremities, but is more or less concerned, and rather than forsake his five-acre domain north of the city he will fight the matter to a finish. The question came up last night before the property committee, when Ald. Edgar moved that the question be given a six months' hoist, meaning that it be passed on for that period. He did not think that Mr. Spence should be forced to sell out and come into the city. The Trades and Labor people object on the ground that as the burden of taxation is so heavy, it is unfair that Mr. Spence, a city official, should escape his share. That is their outward visible reason for wanting him to come in. Mayor Buller figured that Mr. Spence was drawing a pretty small salary and he would like to see it increased. He moved, however, that the matter be received and dealt with by the whole council.

GOOD SINGING BY THE CHOIR OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Encouragement that should spur on the choirleader and members of All Saints' Church choir in their musical efforts, was given by the audience in attendance at the concert in the parish hall, Tuesday night. The program was varied and altogether enjoyable as was evidenced by the approval which the auditors gave.

All Saints' choir is an organization or nearly fifty voices and has as a leader, Mr. Geo. Chandler. Miss Maggie Flowers is the church organist.

Particularly popular with the audience were the glees given by the men of the choir and also by the combined choir, and the song "Jack's the Lad," sung by the boys, was also well received. Individual numbers by Mr. D. Welton; Miss H. Timm and Mrs. Trotter and a duet by Messrs. G. E. Chandler and T. H. Boddy delighted all.

The program:

A FINE OF $50 FOR SPEEDING

Cruel Treatment Toward Horse Not Countenanced by Magistrate

GIRL IN COURT

A Lakefield young man drove an automobile at an excessive rate of speed yesterday. He was approached by the police and brought down a stiff penalty this morning in the shape of a $50 fine. The only touch of leniency allowed by the magistrate was ten days in which to pay it and a request to the reporters not to publish his name.

Two other young men who were with him in the car were fined $5.75 each for being intoxicated.

Another victim had been caught cruelly treating a horse, said cruelty consisting of driving it when lame. He was fined $2.00.

A young girl arrested for vagrancy was a pitiable sight. She had no home and has been wandering from place to place. She broke down when talking to Police Matron McElhiney and was led crying from the court. A remand was granted in which a home will be found for her if possible.

The Child Father of the Man.

The playground movement has come to stay. The student of social conditions must inevitably come to the conclusion that modern society has too long neglected those who are to be the leaders of the nation in the future; that the child is father of the man was too long considered a mere figure of speech. The average citizen can now fully understand the fatuity that permitted the coming man and woman to run at large, unheeded and unhindered, during the formative years of their lives. As they grew to years of discretion, the law holds them responsible for all their acts of commission and ommission, yet that same law and that same society that made the law neglected them during the period when it was being decided whether they would grow up to be good and useful citizens or dromes in the human hive—too often criminals, parasites upon their more energetic, honest and capable brethren.

The childish mind that is busily engaged in healthful recreation, in developing its body, unconsciously perhaps, but none the less effectively, has no tie for the thoughts that should be postponed for future years when the matured intelligence is better able to separate the wheat from the chaff. The childish body that is being strengthened, that is storing energy and health, developing a proper tenement for the intelligence, a strong mind in a strong body, is a citizen in the making of which the nation may later be proud.

ARE SENT TO PRISON FARM

An event not chronicled in the social columns yesterday was the departure for the agricultural farm at Toronto of "Benny" Hobson, "Sunny Jim" Wilson and John Irwin. These three well-known citizens are taking a compulsory summer vacation which is expected to greatly improve their moral, spiritual and physical health, as well as relieve the city of the presence of a trio of nuisances. Each member of the party will spend six months on the farm. Unfortunately the three were not allowed to go unchaperoned, a Central Prison official being master of ceremonies.

Edgar Grose, who has been spending part of a nine months' term in the local jail, also left on the same train to finish out his sentence on the farm. G. N. Gordon has made application for Grose's release on account of his health.

SELF-DENIAL WEEK

The Salvation Army has — as an organization—given both to the religious and philanthropic worlds many examples of what great things can be done by fixity of purpose and unity of effort, among them none more striking than its Annual Week of Prayer and Self-Denial.

We understand the period set apart for this purpose for the present year is from May 2nd to 9th, and we are not backward in commending the Appeal to the generosity of our readers.

In addition to being a great influence for good in this country, The Army is a huge Missionary Organization, operating in no less than fifty-two countries and colonies, and preaching the Gospel in thirty-four different languages.

From what we can gather, its extensive Social Scheme for the amelioration of the physical needs of the poor and the outcast is being carried on with much success in other lands. Take India, for instance, where its Famine Relief Operations, Savings Banks, and Co-operative Schemes are proving of great blessing, and are exceedingly successful.

The resident officers, Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, together with the local co-workers, are extremely anxious that the contribution towards the Home and Foreign Missionary and Social Funds shall be a liberal one, and donations may be handed to either the officers or members of the Army.

Belgian and French Church Dignataries Ask Pope Benedict to Abandon Attitude of Neutrality

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, April 30. — Belgian and French cardinals, archbishops and bishops have united in an appeal to Pope Benedict for the Vatican to abandon the attitude of neutrality it has maintained since the beginning of the war. They say they cannot understand how the head of a church which is founded on the principles of right and justice can remain neutral without at the same time protesting against those who violate written or unwritten laws.

The Pontiff is urged to assume an attitude which would be epoch-making in the history of the papacy.

82 YEARS IN PETERBORO

John H. Mowry Passed Away This Morning

John H. Mowry, for eighty-two years a resident of Peterborough, passed away this morning at his residence, 297 Sherbrooke street. Some time ago Mr. Mowry was seized with a bad cold which settled on his lungs. His advanced years contributed to the end, which did not come unexpectedly.

The late Mr. Mowry was born in Ashburnham when it was but sparsely settled, and he was in business with his father, the late Mercello Mowry, in subsequent operations which helped to build up the place. Deceased was one of the authorities on early life in and around Peterborough, and he had many very interesting stories and anecdotes to relate.

It is not long since Mr. and Mrs. Mowry celebrated the sixty-second anniversary of their wedding.

Surviving, besides his widow, are four sons, Messrs. Martin and Richard, of Toronto; John, of Chicago, and Mercello Mowry, Charlotte St., and one daughter, Mrs. R. J. Weir, East City.

PROVINCIAL BOARD RESERVES JUDGMENT

Warm Discussion Over Proposed Site for Sewage Disposal Works

SOME ARGUMENTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, April 30. — An application by the city of Peterborough for permission to locate a sewage disposal works in the township of Otonabee caused a warm discussion before the Provincial board of health this morning. Legal lights and experienced engineers clashed frequently, and the board was given a mass of contradictory evidence.

The city of Peterborough was represented by Mayor Buller and City Solicitor G. N. Gordon, while the interests of Otonabee were looked after by E. A. Peck, formerly member of the Legislature; W. A. Anderson, reeve; E. Deyell, deputy reeve, G. Howson, J. O'Leary and F. Easson, councillors.

The city desired to locate the sewage disposal works in the township, on the opposite side of the Otonabee River. Legal representatives insisted that to make a success of the plant high ground must be secured, and none was available in Peterborough. The site chosen was at McMartinville where the ground was high. F. D. Kerr, for the residents of McMartinville, objected to the location, holding that they were comparatively poor men who had built nice homes. These people could not afford to go away for the summer, but enjoyed the air along the river. They would not enjoy it once a sewage plant had been established, said he. Mr. Kerr said if any man on his oath claimed the plant could not be located farther down the river he would prosecute him for perjury.

Both Mr. Kerr and Mr. Peck urged that at an additional cost of about $8000 a change of site could be made.

The board decided to reserve judgment.

MUST NOT TAKE LOGS

Magistrate Langley Issues Warning in County Police Court

A FINE OF $10

John H. Lloyd of the Township of Dummer, was charged in County Court this morning before Magistrate Langley with appropriating several saw logs owned by the Peterborough Lumber Company. He was defended by V. J. McElderry, of Peck, Kerr and McElderry. Lloyd pleaded not guilty. Mc. McElderry said they did not propose to dispute the taking of the logs, as that was admitted but the point of dispute was their value.

Mr Dickson Davidson, president of the Peterborough Lumber Company, was first witness. He said that in coming down through Stoney Lake, logs sometimes escaped from the booms, and an arrangement had been made whereby Mr. E. Brooks of Young's Point, was to collect these. The company missed quite a number of logs in 1914 and he had found some in different parts of Stoney Lake, but this spring he found some on Mr. Lloyd's farm. They bore the company P. L. mark. There were ten or eleven of them. They were valued from $25 to $35.

Examined by Mr. McElderry, the witness said Lloyd had offered to return them, after they had been found on his farm.

Robt. Miles, a resident of Dummer, recalled seeing Lloyd take some logs

FOE'S BLOCKADE UNDER COMPLETE CONTROL

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 30. — The Daily Mail says that German submarines sank eight British vessels outside the North Sea during February, sixteen in March, and only six in April, which means that the British Admiralty has got the German blockade under complete control.

LONDON, April 30. — Messages have been received in Sydney, Australia, and Wellington, New Zealand, from Lewis Harcourt, secretary of state for the colonies, congratulating the governors of those colonies on the "splendid gallantry and gallant achievements" of Australian and New Zealand contingents in the Dardanelles fighting.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, APRIL 30, 1915

A SNAP VERDICT IS NOT WANTED.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN has no need of a snap verdict. If he decides on an election in the near future, it will be fought on very important issues—questions so important that the people should be consulted. The election will not be called merely to get the support of the people for a government in war-time.

Sir Robert Borden's record is, however, sufficient for that purpose. He took a unique position in declaring to his own followers that the service of one's country is always to take precedence over private interest. He has shown a worthy readiness to investigate graft charges, and has allowed no interests, party or otherwise, nor technicalities, to stand in the way of investigations. The Government has met the exacting situations of a great war in a truly commendable manner. At the same time, the record of the Liberals, so far as improper conduct is concerned, appears in a bad light. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, during all the years he was in office, never reprimanded one of his followers in the way Sir Robert Borden did. Not until there was a change of government was there any investigation in the Department of the Interior, and that investigation has shown Hon. Frank Oliver to be hopelessly involved. So, if the Conservatives were even considering a snap verdict, their record is of such an excellent character that they could make an appeal to the electorate and be confident of success. There is really no choice between the two parties. The Liberals have nothing to go on, and nothing important to bring against the Government. But the Government does not have to go to the people merely on its record, good as it is. It will consult the people on half a dozen important problems, and consult them according to the established custom and the law of the Constitution.

TIME THE SECOND CONTINGENT WAS OFF.

THERE IS a feeling throughout the country that the Second Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force is being detained too long in Canada. Already it has had several months of hard training, and ought to be well on the way to the condition necessary for active service at the front. The First Contingent has won all the honours and made the big sacrifices. They should not be called upon to bear the brunt of Canada's part in the war against barbarism. It is not that anyone is anxious to see men exposed to the dangers of war, but at war we are, and we cannot win without maintaining large bodies of men in the field. Moreover, the Second Contingent is anxious to do its part, and chafes at the routine of concentration camps. The men are healthier when on the move, and, while an advance section has reached England, the feeling is that it is already time the whole of the Second Contingent was embarking for Europe.

WHAT IS THREATENED?

THE FOLLOWING appears in the editorial columns of the Catholic Register this week:

> "And now the Devoir is crying out for French war stamps, after playing fast and loose with the causes of the wars and our participation in them. The Devoir prides itself on its logic; one would imagine that the logic of silence were the only strength in this regard."

We have here the secret of the reason that the French-Canadians are not opposing the holding of a general election at this time. They are anxious to come to close quarters with the political parties on this, to them, the most important question of their history. Few will deny that this is the best time to settle this question. The sooner the better for all parties concerned. There are many things that the French are now beginning to insist upon, such as the bilingual post-[illegible] and every [illegible] public nature. Canada is likely to be more th[illegible] split into two camps. Strange to say, the French propose to deny to other nationalities what they are so vigorously demanding for themselves. At the present moment Sir Lomer Gouin is watching Sir Robert Borden, and threatens to bring on the Quebec elections one week ahead of the Dominion, to break them up. This is patriotism with a vengeance, but Sir Robert Borden is watching him. This procedure of Sir Lomer's looks like an attempt to force a "compromise."

MR. J. D. FLAVELLE, who has been appointed chairman of Ontario's new Board of License Commissioners, is one of the best-known business men in the province, says an exchange. He was born in Peterborough in 1850, but has lived in Lindsay since a boy of fourteen. For many years he was head of the Flavelle Milling Company of that town and associated with his brother William in store-keeping. He was the first president of the Canadian Cereal and Milling Company, but resigned office a year later. He is a younger brother of Mr. J. W. Flavelle, of Toronto. J. D. Flavelle is the best-known and most enthusiastic curler in Canada.

THE EVENT OF AN ELECTION.

AN ARTICLE in Beck's Weekly deals very sanely with the proposition of an election, and considers the general attitude of the people to such an event, should it be decided upon. The writer does not think an election will interfere at all with Canada's duty in prosecuting her share of the war, and that, if an election is decided upon, it should be to decide definite problems. Undoubtedly this will be the case. The article, in part, follows:

> "Those persons who are conscientiously or otherwise opposed to the holding of an election appear to me to be grossly exaggerating the disturbance which attaches to that periodical event in our political life. Professor Wrongs suggests that it will divert us from prosecuting the war with proper vigor. The Toronto Globe seems to think that it will interrupt the mourning in which it conceives the country to be enwrapped as a result of the heroic and glorious self-sacrifice of Canadians on the field of battle. Personally, I cannot see the slightest danger of its doing either. Politicians, and political newspapers, labour under a delusion which is common to all specialists, namely, that of seeing their own interests very large and other interests very small. I have noticed the same thing in stock brokers and hockey enthusiasts; each of them seems to think that the whole country is absorbed in the particular pastime which interests himself, whereas in plain fact there are thousands upon thousands of Canadians who never look at the stock quotations, and have not the faintest idea which team won the last hockey championship. . .
>
> "If the attitude of Canada towards the war were liable to be an issue in the election, things would be different. But nothing could be more purely parochial than the issues which the Liberal party has raised. They consist entirely of allegations of extravagance, unjust taxation, incompetence in the purchase of supplies. . . But the argument that a war election would be unfair to the Opposition and a violation of a 'truce' has been utterly abolished. The Opposition has deliberately invited an election by its whole conduct during the session just concluded. When the Globe asks that the country be protected from the 'recriminations' of an election campaign, and devotes the following three columns to the bitterest recriminations it can pen on the subject of Mr. Cochrane's railway policy, the binoculars, the war horses, the taxes, the 'mendacity' of ministers, and the infamy of those who criticize the Hon. Frank Oliver, it simply shows a sublime lack of the sense of humor."

AT THE END.

(To Our Soldiers — Westminster Gazette.)

The honour of England we gave in your hands,
Is it still fair? Without stain.

The children and babes such as Christ long ago
Took in His arms? They are safe.

The mothers and maids, were they holy to you,
What of their homes? Undefiled.

The stricken and starving you passed on the road,
What of their fate? They were fed.

The enemy wounded who fell by your hand,
What of their pains? They were heal'd.

The bodies of foes—who were menfolk like you,
Loved of their own? Laid to rest.

Your features are marr'd, there is blood in your eyes—
What of your hearts? God has seen.

Your garments are dyed—aye, they're deeply dyed,
What of your hands? They are clean.

"Happy are the people that are in such a case."

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Pres. Wilson's Hint.

(Beck's Weekly, Montreal.)

We must wait and see what President Wilson had in mind when he said the time of crisis was approaching. He is not much given to loose talking, and when he put it that way he probably had it definitely in mind that something is going on behind the scenes of which we know nothing. Indeed, when old Spain speaks up, as she did the other day, to claim her right to have a finger in the pie, it is a pretty sure sign that everybody else has been actively debating on the subject of pastry. President Wilson has a staff of very efficient, but not always official, helpers on whose services he can always count when there is something that needs doing, and men of this class have been slipping back and forth to Europe a great deal of late.

Orders to Sink Everything.

(Providence Journal.)

Men on the Tyne fishing boats that were sent to the bottom by the German U-10 say that the officer in command declared he had "orders to sink everything." This is war on a new scale. In past conflicts, private property has been interfered with as little as possible. Non-combatants have been put to the least practicable inconvenience. But Germany, in her [illegible] to isolate Great Britain — an impossible task — has determined to sink right and left. So four more ships are reported sunk. But the overwhelming majority of vessels bound to and from Great Britain are untouched. The attempt to starve or frighten it is a flat failure.

Responsible Government.

(Toronto World.)

We have not responsible government in Canada today. The cabinet is responsible to the House of Commons, and the House of Commons is to the people, but the Senate is responsible to no one. Senators cannot be called to account by the country or turned out of office. The Canadian Senate is the only irresponsible body in the world which has, in fact as well as in theory, co-ordinate power with the popular chamber.

Tests.

(London Daily Telegraph.)

There are three associated tests of national character in a great war; a people's attitude towards its enemies in the field; its attitude towards non-combatants in occupied territory, and its attitude towards the prisoners of war.

Still a Puzzle.

(Harpers' Weekly.)

We cannot understand why America did not lend the enormous weight of her influence to the cause of international morality by protesting against the violation of Belgium.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Winds mostly west and north, cloudy and cool with local showers today and on Saturday.

LABOR COUNCIL AND INSPECTOR SPENCE.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space to deal with a statement made at the meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council that the action of the Trades and Labor Council re Inspector Spence was a measure of retaliation because the inspector had stopped members of the Trades Council from trespassing on his property. As chairman of the Municipal Committee of the Trades and Labor Council I wish to give an emphatic denial to that statement. No member of the committee has ever been on Mr. Spence's property, and I personally do not know where it is situated, except that it is outside the city limits. The action of the Trades Council was not due to any desire to get after Inspector Spence, but to get after the City Council, who make a rule not to employ non-residents, enforce it very strictly with regard to a workman looking for a day's work but allow an official to draw a salary from the taxpayers, and then pay no taxes in the city that pays his salary. The excuse is that Mr. Spence's salary is so small that he cannot afford to live in the city. Well, there are hundreds of men paying rent and keeping a wife and family in the city on a great deal less than $700 a year. If it is the Council's opinion that Mr. Spence cannot live in the city on $700 a year, how can they expect the laborers employed by the city to do it on 22 cents per hour, with about 8 months work in 12. Personally I have no objection to the city giving Mr. Spence a raise, for I think $700 for a sanitary inspector — especially one that attends to his duties as well as Mr. Spence does—is a disgrace to the Council. But that does not alter the fact that the Council has a rule about non-resident workmen, and Mr. Spence should be made to live up to it like any one else.

Thanking you for the space in your valuable paper, I am

Yours truly,

R. MITCHELL.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Editor Review,

Sir,—The interview with our federal member in your paper yesterday shows how the Liberal Opposition at Ottawa stood opposed to the workingman these hard times when it opposed the expenditure the government wanted to expend on public works. Hon. George Graham and Sir Wilfrid wanted to spend 200 million dollars on the Georgian Bay Canal that the West says is no good to it and yet those gentlemen opposed a grant that would have pulled many a man with a family out of a hole. It won't take long to decide at the polls.

Even bridges in the rural districts were held up.

Yours truly,

P. B.

BOWSER'S LITTLE MISTAKE

And Mrs. Bowser Triumphs Over Him

By M. QUAD.

Mr. Bowser was just leaving the office the other afternoon when Perkins came along and said:

"If it gives milk I'll take a quart a day."

"What is it?" was queried.

"Your goat."

"But I have none."

"Then Mrs. Bowser has. There is one tied up in your back yard."

"Then he'll be untied darned quick after I get home!"

As he entered the car he saw a woman who lived on his block and had been shopping. She came over and sat beside him and asked:

"Will you have any goat butter to sell, Mr. Bowser?"

"How can I have?"

"Why, isn't that a nanny in your back yard? A boy was leading him in just as I came along."

"He was, eh? Well, that goat will be led out again so fast that his head will swim! I am not in the goat business."

At the corner when he got off a boy stood there to ask:

"Mr. Bowser, can't we get up a fight between your goat and my dog?"

Mr. Bowser turned pale and passed on without answer. He kicked open

PAID $12 FOR A THREE DOLLAR PIG.

the gate, rushed down the hall and looked out of a rear window and then turned to Mrs. Bowser with:

"So it's true?"

"What?"

"That you have been buying a goat."

"There's a goat out there."

"Yes, durn his hide, I see there is, and of all the silly things you ever did this is the worst! Got a goat, eh? Probably paid $10 or $12 for him, and of all the mean and useless animals on the face of the earth a goat is the climax. If you are ever left a widow you'll run through every dollar in three months!"

"Mr. Bowser," calmly replied Mrs. Bowser as the goat left some stove pipe to hunt for fish bones, "do you remember when you bought a horse for $250?"

"What of it?"

"Nothing, except that in about ten days you sold him for $100 to get rid of him. You bought him for a sound horse, but it turned out that he was wind broken, spavined, ring boned, nearsighted, vicious and twenty years old, and"—

"It didn't turn out anything of the sort! You got afraid to ride after him, and what could I do but sell him? And what has a horse to do with a goat? Of all the silly, senseless things a woman ever did this is the capsheaf. I'll bet $100 to a cent you paid as much as $15 for him!"

"And after a horse came a cow," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser. "I coaxed and argued, but you were bound to have a cow. You paid $40 for a red cow. She was guaranteed a new milk cow. The seller guaranteed that she would give ten quarts of milk a day. In one week"—

"In one week, Mrs. Bowser, you drove me into parting with her! You were obstinate and determined. You used to go out and annoy and torment her until she was half crazy. I sold her for $20 to save her life, poor brute. Look at that goat chewing an oyster can! Of all the fool things in creation a goat takes the cake. I can get a carload of goats for $2 apiece, but I suppose you paid $20 for this one!"

"And after the cow came a pig," continued Mrs. Bowser, with a sigh of regret. "You paid $12 for a three dollar pig, went to an expense of $5 for a pen, and in four days you sold the pig for $2.50 and smashed the pen into kindling wood. You thought it would be homelike to have a pig. You figured out a profit of $30 in three months, but"—

"But what?" shouted Mr. Bowser at the top of his voice. "You were down on that pig from the hour that I got him. You used to go out and pound him with the hoe handle and throw boiling water on him. I found marks on him where you knocked him down with a crowbar. I sold him out of a feeling of mercy, and you know it. Whoever put it into your ... $20 or $25 for a good for nothing, squint eyed, sap headed brute of a goat?"

"Then came chickens, Mr. Bowser—$25 for chickens and $10 or $12 for a coop, to say nothing of poultry books and patent food. You wanted to hear your own roosters crow in the morning. You wanted fresh eggs from your own coop. You were going to make enough profit on eggs in three months to pay for everything. In ten days you"—

"Yes, in ten days I had to sell what few hens remained alive for a quarter apiece. But why was it?" he almost yelled. "Who went out to that coop with a baseball bat and pounded those poor fowls into the earth? Who sneaked out and mixed paris green with their food? Who jabbed 'em with the clothes pole until the neighbors threatened to have her arrested? I lost money. But why? And what's that miserable critter of yours trying to do now bucking ag'in the barn in that fashion? Of all the silly, idiotic things I ever heard of in my life this buying a goat sweeps the board. If I'd even paid $2 for him you'd have brained him with a spade."

"And then you bought a dog," continued Mrs. Bowser, with a little pathos in her tones. "He was a setter. He sat and howled all night. Then came a patent fire escape, which escaped $30 out of your pocket. Then you bought some microbe killer and almost killed the cook and had to pay her $50 damages. Then some one told you to sleep in a hammock, and you fell and broke your leg. Was it after that you started in to disinfect the house and set it on fire and caused us a loss of $800?"

That was an awful dose for Mr. Bowser. He gulped and swallowed and turned pale, but he felt that the goat was the key of the situation. Just then, as if to favor him, the animal got a beef bone stuck in his throat and opened a circus of the funniest kind.

"Behold your purchase, Mrs. Bowser. Isn't he funny? Why don't you laugh? Better send up word to the idiot asylum and have about a hundred of the inmates come down and enjoy it with you. I suppose your next purchase will be a baby rhinoceros or a five legged giraffe. If I hadn't more sense than to"—

At that moment a neighbor's boy called to get the goat, saying he was much obliged to Mrs. Bowser for keeping it for an hour while he was making a pen. The girl also announced that luncheon was on, and further conversation was suddenly dropped. It was nearly night before Mr. Bowser could figure up results with any satisfaction to his side, and even as he chuckled a little he felt bound to caution himself:

"Mighty close shave that was. I made my mistake in jumping on to the goat too soon. Curious woman Mrs. Bowser is. She can remember every little thing clear back to the flood, and I've got to hold the reins of government with a tight band or she'll get the better of me some day."

The Finishing Touch.

The young man hesitated to believe the statement of her little brother that the young lady was not at home. He repeated the question, at the same time displaying a quarter. The boy eyed it longingly and again replied in the negative.

"But didn't she leave a message for me?" asked the disappointed swain.

"Yes," said the lad—and nothing more.

As one who sees a great light, the young man tossed him the coin. "Now," he said, "out with the message."

"She said she's not gonna see you any more and you're not to give me any money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

away from his place one afternoon. Some one brought them to his place the previous evening, or a day or two before.

Archibald Miles, a son of the last witness, remembered seeing the four logs the night they were placed there. Lloyd got permission from him to place them on his sleigh.

Michael Lynch, of the Peterborough Lumber Co. remembering seeing some logs belonging to the company in Mr. Lloyd's lot on March 4th this year, and on April 23rd. They were nine marked P. L.; and one other with a star and another T. L., not belonging to company.

Defendant's Evidence.

Lloyd was put in the box by his solicitor. He said he was a farmer living on the lake and had been doing business there. On one island was a log that had lain there three years and he took that. He got another one with the Rathburn mark on it this winter. He took both of them to his place. Regarding the condition of the other nine logs he said there was one fair one, the rest were all small, but practically sound. His conscience was clear that he was not doing anything out of the way when he went out with a team and sleigh and got the logs. He did not think the company would come for them.

"Did you attempt to conceal your actions," asked Mr. McElderry.

Magistrate Langley—"That is distinctly a leading question."

Lloyd said he offered to settle with the company, but they refused. He had never taken any logs before.

Examined by Crown Prosecutor Hatton, the defendant said he took them all out in the daytime. He did not know or think he was doing wrong and his conscience was clear yet.

Mr. Hatton—"Some of us have very elastic consciences."

Defendant was unaware that Mr. Brooks or any one else was picking up Peterborough Lumber Company's logs.

Magistrate Langley thought the crux of the whole affair hinged upon whether there was fradulent intent upon the part of accused. The evidence of the prosecution had satisfied him that neither the accused or any other man had the right to take the logs.

Mr. McElderry arrayed several skilful arguments to influence His Worship to acquit his client, but the latter was satisfied Lloyd had fraudulently taken the logs. He would deal leniently with prisoner. Mr. D. O'Connell asked permission to speak on behalf of Lloyd. The company did not desire to punish the offender at the expense of his wife and family but they wanted a punishment imposed that would protect the company and have a deterrent effect on others. Mr. O'Connell asked for payment of Crown costs and suspended sentence. His Worship preferred just a fine, and not suspended sentence.

Lloyd was permitted to go on suspended sentence upon payment of Crown costs which will amount to about $11.

Magistrate Langley said he would deal vigorously with offences of this character in the future, as logs must be protected. Restitution will be made by the logs being floated back into the lake at the most convenient time for the company.

LLOYD GEORGE MAY HAVE TO MODIFY HIS BUDGET

Proposals to Meet Drink Evil Opposed by Irish Nationalists.

LONDON, April 30.—The proposals introduced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to double the duty on spirits, quadruple the duty on wines, and to substitute an increase by graduated tax on beer—to encourage the use of lighter beers—were strongly opposed, and it is generally believed that the new taxes will have to be moderated before Parliament will accept them.

The O'Brienites, as a protest against an additional taxation on Irish whiskies and beers, brought about the first division in the House since the outbreak of the war by taking the unusual course of voting against the provisional resolutions bringing the taxes into force at once, to prevent withdrawals from bond while Parliament is dealing with the matter. The resolution relating to spirits was passed by a vote of 89 to 5, the minority being composed of O'Brienites.

The Nationalists also protested against the measure, but did not vote. The Unionists, who withheld criticism until all the facts could be placed before them, also abstained from voting.

Usually these provisional resolutions are carried without division, for should Parliament refuse to sanction the taxes, they are refunded to those who may have paid.

The Laborites promised to reply to the Chancellor's charges that a minority of the workmen, lured away by drink, were not putting their best efforts into the work of producing material, which is so badly needed by the soldiers at the front.

The extra taxes will be included in the budget which Chancellor Lloyd George will introduce in the House of Commons on Tuesday next, and the bill, which is an amendment of the Defence of the Realm Act, will be proposed for the second reading at a later day, when the debate on it will take place. Before that time the Chancellor has promised to place in the hands of the members a series of reports of independent investigators, on whose findings the Government decided to take the action it has.

Besides the Irish opposition to the spirit duties, many members opposed the new wine taxes on the ground that they strike at France, Australia and South Africa. The proposed appointment of a board of control, and the proposal to take over for canteen purposes the saloons in the munitions of war areas and to compensate all interests are generally approved by the members.

Regarding beer up to 43 specific gravity, there is to be no change. Above that there will be a graduated surtax to discourage heavy brews, rising to 36 shillings ($9) per barrel.

The duties on wine are to be quadrupled. Sparkling wines will pay 15 shillings ($3.75) a gallon.

Lloyd Geodge said that in areas producing materials of war or in which transport work is performed, and in some camp areas, the Government is to have complete control of the sale of drink.

Something About the Trip.

Few elements make San Francisco one of the most interesting cities of the world—location, climate, sights, people.

The Location—The city covers ... on the tip of a peninsula that separates San Francisco Bay from the ocean. The surface is broken by a score of hills from 300 to 750 feet high, which make possible an interesting outlook from nearly every window. The bay, framed by mountains set back from the shore, is sixty-five miles long and from four to ten miles wide. It is 450 square miles in area, with seventy-nine square miles of safe anchorage, eighteen to sixty feet in depth. Every ship that floats could ride on its bosom at the same time. The outlet is the Golden Gate, one and one-eighth miles wide, with a depth of sixty-three fathoms. General Fremont gave the gate its name from its resemblance to the Golden Horn at Constantinople. In such surroundings men have built and rebuilt a romantic city that must endure for all time.

San Francisco, one of the liveliest of seaports, is as full of novel sights as people from the five continents could make the capital of sun-land. Picturesque landscape, picturesque buildings and picturesque life are here. The American dominates a rare cosmopolitanism. Oriental, Latin, Teuton, Scandinavian, Slav,— each play its highly interesting part. The hospitality extended to every visitor who comes is the city's most joyous asset.

"I favor San Francisco above any other city as the place where the world shall be entertained in honor of the completion of the Panama canal," said President Taft, "because San Francisco knows how."

San Francisco may not be compressed into any verbal description; yet it is possible to list certain principal scenes and features and tell how best to reach them. With the suggestions herein contained, and the excellent city map on the opposite side of the page the visitor may go from place to place, and in doing so he will absorb much that is not set down here. He will learn that San Francisco, while justly likened to Paris, Constantinople and Naples, has a surpassing individuality of its own.

Climate and Clothing—The thermometer varies but slightly throughout the year. The average temperature in winter is 51 degrees, and in summer, 59. There are 280 sunshiny ... January and February, July and August. There is a spicy breeze from the sea, and an occasional fog that is a veritable elixir of life. The rainfall is confined almost entirely to six weeks, beginning the end of December. Umbrellas are practically unnecessary from May to November.

California is rightly known as the land of sunshine and flowers, and delightfully cool in summer and springlike in winter; but what to wear in San Francisco is a point upon which a few words may be helpful to the comfort of visitors. Light woolen or linen mesh underwear should be worn, no matter when one comes. For men, medium weight clothing is required and a light overcoat frequently necessary. Medium weight tailor suits are advisable for women, and a fur or feather stole or boa is indispensable any month in the year, for there is little hot weather in San Francisco such as in the east or middle west. While pleasantly warm in the sun it is cool in the shade, and at night nearly always cool.

The candidates should remember that all the world loves a winner.

The Review's trip to the world's fair and Canadian northwest contest, which has engrossed the attention of the people of this city and county as no other contest has ever done, still continues to be the main topic of conversation. One can hear of little else. On the street corners, in the post office, in hotel rotundas, in the town and the country homes, up and down the township concessions and side lines — everywhere that people meet. Everyone is talking about the contest and making a guess as to who will be the winner in this or that district, and who will poll the highest vote. Well, when people undertake to guess in a contest of this kind they have a pretty hard proposition.

The friends of the candidates from now to the last will rally round their favorites as they never did before. Readers and subscribers should see to it that the candidates they are supporting gets the votes and especially so this week.

The Standing.

This standing represents the votes cast up to 9 o'clock last night. In the majority of cases only coupons cut from the paper have been cast. Candidates may vote their subscription vote ballots if they wish, or may hold them in reserve until the end of the contest.

BUSY IN EAST

Germans Prepare Big Move on Neiman

BERLIN ANXIOUS

LONDON, April 30.—North of the Niemen river another big German advance is apparently gathering headway, and Russian advance troops are slowly retiring before the enemy, fighting as they fall back. The advance guards of a German army were reported last night as having passed Bossiany and as having approached the line of the Dubissa river. The artillery firing on this front is reported as growing more intense and collisions between reconnoitering parties are becoming more frequent. Isolated attacks, but none of them decisive, were delivered by the Germans against the Russian positions west of the Niemen and north of Warsaw.

An offensive of the Germans was checked north of Suwalki and in the Kalwaryia region, east of the East Prussian frontier, was checked without any particular effort.

After occupying Lubnia, which commands the railway feeding the Austrian and German forces in the Uszok pass, the Russians deefated an attack on a hill northwest of that point and they also defeated repeated and desperate attacks in the Gaulet Golonetzko district with Stryj as their objective, "all being successfully repulsed with the bayonet."

It is thought that the enemy might have persisted a little longer against the impossible in the west, but for the arising of a new anxiety on the eastern frontier, and it is taken as quite probable that the Russians have commenced to deliver some stroke that is creating immense alarm in Berlin. The reported capture of Lubnia, which is a point of vantage on the railway line feeding the German-Austrian forces in the Uszok pass and the threatened cutting off of a large army may have led to the hurried recall of Von Hindenburg, who is believed to have engineered the poison gas episode. It is peculiar of Von Hindenburg to be always trying some new trick, which usually gets him nowhere important.

RUM RATIONS ARE CONDEMNED

Heud of W.C.T.U Addresses Open Meeting of White Ribboners

A sweeping denunciation of the regulations which permit soldiers the use of rum rations was uttered last night by Mrs. J. Rutherford, head of the W.C.T.U. who addressed a gathering in Charlotte Street Methodist Church. She expressed her abhorrence of the conditions which were often responsible for young men of previously temperate principles, becoming addicted to drink while wearing the King's uniform and hoped the time would speedfly arrive when the boys who fought for the Empire would be protected from the curse of strong drink.

Mrs. Rutherford is a splendid platform speaker. She has a way of talking that forces home the truths she proclaims and her pleasant, well modulated voices makes it a pleasure to listen. In addition she has had such a breadth of experience and has been so long in the W.C.T.U. field that her views carry conviction and unmistakable sincerity.

She was introduced to the audience by Mrs. T. W. Whalley, president of the local branch of the organization. Mrs. Whalley referred to the petition which had been circulated in Peterborough and county asking the government to abolish the use of liquor among Canadian soldiers in England during the war. The petition had been signed by 1930 names which was not nearly as many as should be. She introduced the speaker as the first lady in the W.C.T.U. and was honored in having the pleasure of asking her to address the gathering.

In commencing Mrs. Rutherford said it was a pleasure to be introduced by Mrs. Whalley, especially because they were old friends. She launched into her subject without any delay and referred to the W.C.T.U. in its world-wide efforts to belt the world with the white ribbon which symbolized the organization. She was afraid that oftentimes its work was too much localized. It was good for one to get up on the mountain tops and catch a vision of the immensity of the field and work.

She then traced the history of the W.C.T.U. from the time it was started by devoted Francis Willard until today it is one of the strongest and most respected world wide institutions in existence. Its platform was broad and sweeping and was a plea for the abolishment of the big evils and curses of mankind today. Today it stood the strongest woman's organization in the world, its platform being the uplifting of humanity and the protection of the world, and adaptable to the needs and conditions of all classes and all lands.

Mrs. Rutherford drove home her arguments for temperance and prohibition with telling effect when she told of the habits of drink formed among soldiers. One Christian boy of twenty-two who enlisted in Toronto and a total abstainer was asked by his colonel in Ottawa to come and have a drink, but the boy she was proud to state had the courage to refuse. She wondered how those in authority and responsibility for the government of the land could be roused to a sense of the power they had to do away with the drink evil. Just so long as the wet canteen existed for the soldiers just so long was it impossible for the boys who went away temperate and strong to return pure. She related a pathetic instance that occurred in Toronto after the South African war. A young soldier enlisted. He had never taken a drink. That boy came back three years later but he did not come straight to his mother's home. His first visit was to a bar and late that night he was carried home hopelessly drunk. Every bar room door swung wide open for the boys in khaki that night.

In referring to the use of alcohol among soldiers she quoted extracts written by Sir Victor Horsely who condemned the use of rum rations and who stated that the reaction from the temporary stimulation it gave was detrimental to health and inducive to all kinds of sickness and left soldiers liable to frost bite and such ills. He was glad to say the medical profession held itself above any accusation of favoring the use of liquor. Mrs. Rutherford then went on to discuss the work and objects of the W.C.T.U. and at the close was tendered an eloquent motion of appreciation.

KELLY IS LOCATED.

Fred Kelly, who escaped jail at Orillia, has been apprehended in Toronto, and sentenced to fifteen days in jail for stealing from a store. After his term expires he will be returned to Orillia to serve his sentence of three months for selling liquor without a license. He will also be held on the charge of breaking jail.

Goes to Ottawa Branch of Woolworth Stores

Mr. Elrick H. White, Jr., the well known local young man who of late has been connected with the staff in Oak Hall, has accepted a position with the F. W. Woolworth Co., Ltd., and will be stationed in the large Ottawa branch in the capacity of basement manager. This lucrative position has come to Mr. White as a result of successful work with T. C. Elliot's store and later with Oak Hall, and it is only proper to expect that continued [illegible] in [illegible] position. Mr. White's departure from Peterborough will be deeply regretted by a host of friends whom he made both in business and social spheres. His absence will also be noted among those who have been staging amateur theatrical productions in which Mr. White always showed rare ability. He leaves on Monday for the capitol to assume duties and carries with him the best wishes of The Review, united with citizens in general, for success.

NO FROST ON THE PUMPKIN THERE

Chatham Couple Attired in Garden of Eden Styles

Chatham, April 30.—The residents of Wellington street east are greatly agitated over the actions of a certain lady resident of that locality and her daughter. These persons have evidently been pursuing a course of religious training which taught them that they were still living in the Garden of Eden. They were seen last evening sitting out on the boulevard near their home, enjoying the cool breezes of the evening with absolute- [illegible] -res from having full sway on their anatomies.

Several of the residents, who objected strongly to the spectacle, called the police, and Officer Merritt was dispatched with the interesting duty of taking the ladies into the house. Very soon he telephoned back for assistance, evidently not wishing to monopolize the assignment. Officer Dezelia was also sent post haste to the scene, and between them the officers succeeded in carrying the peculiar persons into the house from the range of curious eyes.

The husband and father of the two ladies expressed no surprise when he learned of the episode.

ALGONQUIN PARK

Advice has been received at the headquarters of the Grand Trunk that the ice in the lakes of Algonquin Park went out on Saturday, April 24th, and fishing will be early this year. The season for salmon and lake trout is open and the speckled trout season opens on May 1st. For the accommodation of those desiring to visit the district, the Highland Inn will open for the reception of guests on May 15th.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The observation trips conducted by the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. are certainly proving very interesting and instructive for the boys. Thursday afternoon the boys had the pleasure of visiting the Brinton Carpet Company. On arrival at the factory the boys were received by the officials of the company and divided into three groups, when they were shown the making of carpets and rugs. It is safe to say that the "Y." boys will be able to tell their parents when they have purchased a carpet if it is a good one or not.

The next trip will be to the Bonner-Worth Company on Thursday afternoon, May 13th.

The older boys' bicycle club will meet tonight at 7:30 to elect their officers and draw up their summer program.

Every boy who has a lacrosse stick is requested to turn out for practice Saturday morning at ten o'clock. There will be two groups formed, one for the junior boys and one for the older boys so every boy will have a chance to learn the game.

ATTACKING IN EARNEST

Allies Bend Every Effort on Passage of Dardanelles.

Seven Thousand Turks Have Been Captured in the Advance Along the Sides of the Straits Prisoners Have Revolver Wounds Inflicted by German Officers---Donkey Rase Employed by Allies.

LONDON, April 30.—A despatch from Tenedos says:

Two towers of black smoke hang over the neighborhood of the Narrows. All but one of the allied battleships that Wednesday were off the mouth of the straits have now entered, and the rumble of guns is continuous.

[illegible] detachments of the enemy. The French have advanced some distance on land and have [illegible] prisoners.

The landing of troops at the Dardanelles has been effective at least at four places, one on the Asiatic and three on the European side.

The prisoners taken by the allies in the land fighting already number 7,000, including many German officers. Among the prisoners are many with revolver and bullet wounds inflicted by their German officers, driving them to the attack while desperately endeavoring to prevent their retreat. The prisoners stated that the fighting has been of the most sanguinary character.

One of these landings was made as the result of a clever comic ruse. Covered by a vigorous fire from the British ships, nearly 1,000 donkeys, packed with dummy baggage and mountain guns, were put ashore at a certain spot. The Germans and Turks at once diverted a strong force in this direction; meanwhile the real landing force easily accomplished its purpose some distance farther up the coast.

A regiment of donkeys, decrepit animals, purchased cheaply, was annihilated.

A notable and decisive victory for the allies in an engagement with the Turks on the Galipoli peninsula and the Asiatic shore is reported here yesterday in a despatch from Athens. A stubborn resistance was put up by the Turks, but they were flung back in a 12-hour battle, fought on Wed-[illegible] The Turks retreated under cover of darkness. They suffered serious losses, including an entire battalion, which was surrounded and taken prisoner. Some despatches place the number of the enemy on the peninsula at only 60,000 men.

Practically all the French forces are advancing along the littoral east of the Dardanelles, sweeping the enemy before them as they proceed. In the meantime the Anglo-French fleet it heavily bombarding the forts of the straits.

The British forces so far landed have been entrusted solely with the task of occupying the Gallipoli peninsula.

Turko-German statement that 80,000 allied troops have been put ashore on the Dardanelles is taken to mean that the enemy is preparing for the admission that he is overcome by superior numbers. In the meantime many of the best German officers have been hurriedly ordered to Constantinople from Berlin.

Reports from Petrograd indicate that progress is being made in the attack upon the Bosphorus. The Turkish batteries in this strait mount guns of a calibre varying from 9.5 to 14 inches.

The Times' Petrograd correspondent telegraphs: 'According to details received by the Odessa correspondent of the Russkoe Salvo, the net result of last week's operations of the Russian torpedo boats off the Anatolian coast is four Turkish steamships and 24 sailing vessels destroyed. Considering the paucity of the Turkish transport resources, these losses are deemed considerable."

SERVICE HELD

Memorial Ceremonies at Ottawa Are Largely Attended

OTTAWA, April 30.—About 2,500 soldiers of the Ottawa garrison and overseas foces mobilized here participated in the memorial service on Parliament Hill yesterday morning in honor of the Canadian soldiers who have fallen on the battlefields of France and Belgium. The corps on parade were the 8th Mounted Rifles, 38th Infantry, 7th Artillery Brigade, the nurses' contingent, the G.G.F.G., 43rd Rifles, and Boy Scouts. Detachments from the Dominion and city police and the Ottawa fire brigade were also present. The Duke and Duchess and Princess Patricia of Connaught attended, together with Sir Robert Borden and several Cabinet Ministers, the militia headquarters' staff, supreme court judges and representatives of the local clergy, the City Council and school boards. At the conclusion of the ceremony on the Parliamentary plaza the troops marched past his royal highness.

Lord Bryce Will Act.

LONDON, April 30. — Viscount Bryce has been appointed to represent Great Britain on the commission to which, under the Anglo-American treaty of 1914, any issues between the two countries which might not yield to diplomatic adjustment, could be submitted.

HAVE LOST THE ENTHUSIASM OF FIRST DAYS

Germans Admit Failure of Costly Attempt at Ypres

LONDON, April 30. — The correspondent of The London Daily Express on the Belgian frontier telegraphs:

"The Germans admit the failure of their costly attempt to take Ypres by storm and crumple up the British left wing. There are several significant signs of this. Their retirement from positions northeast of Ypres is being steadily accelerated by incessant attacks by fresh British and French troops. Moreover, the German counter-attacks have been much feebler in the last two days, and their artillery fire has slackened.

The British are giving them no rest. Detachments of exhausted infantry from Passchendaele have been sleeping by the roadside near Bruges while waiting their turn in the congested traffic which fills all the roads of western Flanders.

No doubt the Germans are still trying to hold their ground with grim determination, but the enthusiasm evoked by their first successes near Ypres has vanished.

Holberg's Sinking Confirmed.

BERWICK, Scotland, April 30.—The finding yesterday near the south end of this island of a lifebuoy marked Kolberg is believed here to confirm the report made at the time the German cruiser Kolberg was sunk in the battle in the North Sea Jan. 24th.

In his report on the battle in the North Sea last January the British admiral Sir David Beatty, after mentioning the destruction of the armored cruiser Bluecher, said the German light cruiser Kolberg also was sunk. The German Government, however, later declared that Admiral Beatty's report concerning the Kolberg was false.

Cannot Lure Riley Back.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 30.—Thomas M. Riley, of Everton, Mo., released from prison in Ontario, Canada, on a pardon which Canadian officials maintain was intended for another, refuses to return to the Dominion to serve the fourteen years remaining of a fifteen-year sentence.

He made this declaration yesterday to Rev. H. H. Bingham, who came here from Canada to plead with Riley voluntarily to return to prison.

ROW IN CRACOW

Germans Demand Full Control of Austrian City

LONDON, April 30. — The Daily Mail's Warsaw correspondent telegraphs, via Petrograd:

"As a result of difference of opinion, such as caused the downfall of Peremysl, Archduke Frederick and Gen. von Hindenburg are now declared to be at loggerheads, as to the best method of conducting the defence of Cracow, which it is believed may be threatened by the middle of June.

The Prussians declare the city is more vital to German than to Austrian interests and demand forthwith a radical thinning of the population, coupled with the subordination of everything to military requirements.

Opinion of an Actress.

"What are a diplomat's responsibilities?" said the inquiring young man.

"They vary," replied the experienced official. "Sometimes a diplomat is the man who starts the trouble, and sometimes he merely takes the responsibility."—Washington Star.

FRED MERKLE BREAKS LEFT ARM FIELDING THROW BY MARQUARD

Boston Slams New Yorkers Gowdy Full House Homer

NEW YORK, April 30. — Boston defeated New York by the score of 13 to 8 here yesterday in a game that was started after an unusual complication had arisen over New York attempting to play Benny Kauff, who jumped to the Giants from the Brooklyn Federal League club just before play was called. Umpire Quigley at first declared the game forfeited to New York when Boston refused to play with Kauff in New York's lineup. Meanwhile Umpire Eason had been in communicaton with President Tever, and, according to a statement by Secretary John A. Heydler, of the National League, reported that he had received instructions to forfeit the game to Boston if New York persisted in playing Kauff, whom President Tener had declared ineligible. The clubs then took the field, after Manager McGraw of New York had called attention to the fact that Umpire Quigley had previously declared the game forfeited to New York. Kauff was not in the New York lineup when actual play began.

Under President Tener's ruling, as reported by Secretary Heydler, the game stands as played as a victory for Boston. The game was a see-saw affair, featured by long hits, and was called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness. Magee made two triples and a double. Murray hit a home run, triple and single and scored four runs. Cather also scored four runs, hitting a homer and two singles. In the fifth inning Gowdy hit a home run with the bases full.

Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, broke his left arm in the sixth inning when he fell trying to field a throw by Marquard. The score—

		R.	H.	E.
Boston	2010424—	13	14	1
New York	1213100—	8	14	3

Batteries — James, Hess, Crutcher and Gowdy; Marquard and Meyers. Game called in seventh; darkness.

SECOND LOSS FOR PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 30. — Brooklyn batted hard, and aided by errors of the home team defeated Philadelphia yesterday by 7 to 4. The score:—

Philadelphia	120000100—	4	9	6

Dell and Miller; Demaree, Oescher and Killifer.

PLENTY OF ERRORS IN THIS GAME.

ST. LOUIS, April 30. — Cincinnati beat St. Louis 10 to 9 here yesterday in a see-saw game marked by heavy hitting and numerous errors on both sides. The score—

St. Louis	500101200—	9	11	2

PLAYERS THREATEN TO QUIT FRANK SHAUGHNESSY AND CO.

Frank Kubat Will Play Pro. Ball Around Chicago — Smykal Also a Holdout — Lage Dissatisfied

Ottawa, April 30. — The Ottawa Baseball Club received a surprise in its mail Wednesday. It came in the form of a letter from Pitcher Frank Kubat, in which the star southpaw of the Canadian League announced that he had made up his mind not to come to Ottawa, but will play some professional baseball in and around Chicago. He has a position with the railroad companies there, and he states that he would be able to do better by sticking to it rather than coming to the capital for the summer.

Kubat intimated incidentally that a substantial salary increase might induce him to change his mind. However, the Ottawa Club is already up to the $1,400 mark, and they do not intend to exceed it. They wired Kubat that he would be suspended unless he forwarded his signed contract at once. Two months ago he accepted terms.

Smykal is working with a similar threat, but Manager Shaughnessy believes both will report when the time comes. They have all been ordered to report at Chatham on or before May 12.

Shaughnessy will go up on the 9th, and his pitchers are due the following day. Catcher Artie Lage has written the Ottawa Club asking that he be traded or sold to some other club. He is anxious to come back to the Canadian Leauge and offered to play one of the outfield positions if the Ottawas considered his catching unsatisfactory.

ROONEY MAY BE WITH SENATORS

Former Peterboro' Outfielder Offered Contract by "Shag"

According to Ottawa scribes, Fred Rooney, last year with the Petes, has been offered a contract by the Senators, and is expected to report and fill the vacancy caused by the absence of "Lefty" Rogers. The latest report of Rooney had him playing first base for Curley Blount at Youngstown, in the Central. Should Shaugnessy land the southpaw, he wil greatly strengthen his outer garden. Rooney is a first baseman, but "Biddie" Dolan forced him to the outfield last season.

but the exposure and nervous strain have had serious results with all the survivors, they all having to be sent back to England for a rest.

A cablegram from London, from George Maclaren Brown, European Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, received by Col. W. N. Ponton, reads as follows:—

London, April 29th, 1915.

Col. W. N. Ponton,
Belleville,

Congratulations. Richard writes night 26th most interestingly. Passed through great fight without scratch. Is all right. Also Lieutenant O'Flynn. Belleville boys came through splendidly, but few with wounds.

POLICE COURT

A serious charge was preferred against Harold Williamson of Smith Township this morning in County Court, when he was charged with having illicit relations with Edna Woodcock, a girl between fourteen and sixteen years of age in Norwood last July.

Williamson is a youth of about twenty-one, and was brought back from the west by County Constable Moore who returned yesterday. Williamson was arrested near Moose Jaw by the mounted police and lodged in jail there pending the arrival of a constable from Peterborough.

In court this morning the charge was read to him, the Magistrate informing him that he would be given an opportunity to consult a solicitor if he desired. Williamson said he would like a lawyer and agreed to be ready to go at 3.30 this afternoon.

A Good Reason.

"Why does she love him?"
"Why?"
"Yes; why?"
"He has more money than you might guess to look at him."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

IF the average person worked only when he felt like it the world would starve before Christmas.

The man who is miserable because a black cat crossed his path Friday always did hate cats anyway, so he excuses himself for his superstition.

Marrying seems to be a religion with some people.

The spider which tried seven times in succession isn't in it with the exploiter who scents a rich graft.

Getting away with a lie would be a much simpler matter if it were not for the numerous persons who are always around keeping tab.

There is no more ridiculous spectacle than to see a slow, stupid man trying to be a sport.

The Book of Nature.

At times of books I weary,
For reading makes me full
Of twisted, warped ideas
Not ripe enough to pull,
And then I turn to nature,
Its pages bright to scan,
Or in the crowded city
I read the book of man.

The sprightly printed pages
Present in full to me
A very fine idea
Of life as it should be,
But in the other volume
That men before me act
I get life stripped and naked
And as it is in fact.

The very fine romances,
The tale of love's young dream,
May start off with some trouble,
But end with pie and cream.
In life the paint and powder
Are very apt to rub.
The dainty little maiden
May finish at a tub.

Between the frames and covers
In fiction and in art
You get a race of people
Who live a life apart,
But in the book of nature,
Where truth on facts must wait
For all of its adornm[illegible]
They give it to you [illegible].

The Reward of Perseverance.

"Where is little Willie?"

"Alas, he has gone from us."
"How did it happen?"
"He found an old revolver."
"Yes?"
"And he tried to shoot it off."
"Yes?"
"But it would not work."
"Well?"
"So he tried, tried, tried again."

Not Saucy.

"He seems to care more for his dog than he does for his children."
"Is that so?"
"Yes."
"I wonder why?"
"Maybe it is because the dog never sasses back."

Naturally.

"He seems a breezy sort."
"Yes, he can't help it."
"Can't?"
"No."
"Why?"
"Because he is always putting on airs."

Generally.

"What is a diamond ring the sign of?"
"Sign of?"
"Yes."
"Sign that some silly saphead is living on prunes and potatoes."

The Summer Girl.

"Let us be engaged, Genevieve."
"All right, Percy."
"You darling. Now, I don't believe in long engagements."
"Neither do I, so we will let ours last fifteen minutes."

SOME BOMBS FOR ENGLISH TOWNS

Little Damage Done by Hostile Aircraft

IPSWICH, April 30. — A hostile aircraft—whether a Zeppelin or an aeroplane is not known—raided Ipswich early yesterday morning. Several bombs were dropped. One struck a house in Brookshall road. It was an incendiary bomb and it pierced the roof and fell into the bedroom of a little girl. Some of the furnture was set afire, but the child was rescued by her father, Harry Goodwin.

The flames spread to two adjoining houses, which within an hour, were almost destroyed.

Other bombs were dropped on Waterloo road. The aircraft then passed on to Whitton, where it also dropped explosives. So far as is known, nobody was injured.

Ipswich is in Norfolk country, and is a town of considerable commercial importance. It has a population of some 75,000.

A Central News despatch says that a Zeppelin was seen during the night at Bury St. Edmonds, Suffolk county, where it dropped bombs and set several buildings on fire.

GERMANY ON THE JOB.

Anti-Russian Pamphlets Distributed at Peace Congress.

THE HAGUE, April 30.—The entire session yesterday of the International Congress of Women was devoted to the discussion and adoption of two resolutions. The first provided for democratic control in framing the foreign policies of nations. As amended and adopted, this resolution recommended the nullification of all secret treaties and the participation in the adoption of future treaties, of the people, at least through the legislative branches of Governments.

The second resolution, presented by Miss Emily Balch, of Wellesley College, opposed the transfer of territory from one nation to another without the consent of the inhabitants.

Large quantities of pamphlets dealing with conditions in Poland were distributed among the delegates. This aroused some feeling on the part of the women, who characterized it as anti-Russian propaganda emanating from German sources. Dr. Zofis Golinska, of Munich, and Emily Napieralski, of Chicago, made speeches in support of the movement for the freedom of the Poles.

BLOOD OF THE VIKINGS.

The Men Whose Descendants Conquered Normandy and England.

The vikings and their followers who swarmed up the Seine and the Thames and whose descendants conquered Normandy and then England were bred of long years of independence and property rights, while those they overthrew were dependent and nonlandowners. They were the hardiest and boldest travelers of their time.

The Norwegian sealers still cruise about the sea as far north as it is open, and the history of polar exploration has been associated with Norway from Othar in King Alfred's time to Nansen in our own. In the Shetland islands the people still talked Norwegian in the last century, Greenland and Iceland were colonized from Norway, and from Iceland comes a literature in old Norwegian, still the language of the people, which ranks with the hero tales of the east, of Greece, of Germany and England.

The Orkneys, the Shetlands, the Hebrides and the Isle of Man were possessions of Norway for hundreds of years, and for more than 300 years Norwegian kings ruled in Dublin. Many of the Danes who conquered England were Norsemen, and the conquerors of Normandy were mostly of the Norwegian viking breed.—Price Collier in Scribner's Magazine.

Striking an Average.

"Why does a handsome man always marry a homely woman?"
"For two reasons."
"What are they?"
"One is because he wants all the compliments that come to the family."
"And the other?"
"Because he wants to even things up."

Neutral.

"Who goes there, friend or foe?"
"Neither."
"You must be one or the other."
"Not necessarily. Why should I be your friend? I can't borrow any money from you [illegible] why should I be your foe? I don't owe you any money."

Always Follows.

"He is a very promising young man."
"Promising, is he?"
"Yes."
"How much has he promised?"
"What?"
"I merely was asking how much he owes."

SPAIN IS IN THE FIELD

Prepared to Buy Quantities of War Supplies

NEW YORK, April 30.—Spain is also preparing for possible war.

A special commission of the Spanish Government, it was learned, has opened headquarters in New York for the purpose of buying 250,000,000 cartridges, several thousand war automobiles, and a large flotilla of aeroplanes.

The commission is also expected to order a number of submarines. They are to be of two tonnages, a large type for ocean cruisings and a smaller craft for the shallower waters of the Mediterranean.

The Bank of Spain has established large deposits for the purchase of war supplies with the National City and First National Banks.

BARRIES' LTD. IN NEW HOME

Department for Storing Furs is Now Open

Barries' Limited, have moved into their new store in the Barrie building, south of the Customs House and all business will henceforth be transacted there. The new structure is still incomplete but the portion to be occupied by Barries Limited, is far enough advanced to permit business. The barricade is still at the front door and will be until the front of the store is finished but persons can gain admittance.

In the near future the building will be described in detail but one department which deserves immediate mention is the dry, airy and cool storage system for keeping furs during the summer months, and the cleaning appliances the equal of which are not found in the city nor in a good many larger stores throughout the province. Already many citizens have taken the opportunity to have their furs stored away for the summer and all the furs will be subject to the new and up-to-date system of cleaning. Citizens desiring to have their furs stored can make all arrangements by telephoning 340 or calling at the new store.

VANCOUVER AFTER LOCAL ARTISTS

Inducements Made to Mr. John Allan and Miss Allan

Mr. John Allan, organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Church, and his daughter, Miss Dorothy Allan, soloist at St. Paul's, have received a splendid offer from St. Andrew's Church, Vancouver, to go there in similar capacities.

St. Andrew's is one of the largest, wealthiest and most important Presbyterian churches in Canada and is possessed of a magnificent four-manual Casavant organ with 92 speaking stops, a carillion, and many mechanical devices, and is rightly regarded by organists as the "plum" of the West. Mr. Allan did not know the position was vacant, as it has not been advertised, until receiving a letter from Professor Pidgeon of Westminster College, one of the elders of St. Andrew's, a month ago, asking if he would be available.

Rev. E. Leslie Pidgeon, B. A., a former pastor of Mr. Allan's at St. Thomas, now minister of St. John's Church, Vancouver, also recommended Mr. Allan most highly.

Mayor Buller also received a letter from the mayor of Vancouver, inquiring about Mr. and Miss Allan.

Mr. Allan naturally feels flattered at St. Andrew's action, coming about as it has done absolutely without any effort on his part. The splendid organ is undoubtedly a great attraction to Mr. Allan, but the unsettled condition of things pertaining generally throughout the country just now makes such a big removal a matter for serious consideration. If Mr. Allan does decide to go to Vancouver, he would not leave Peterborough until August.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS.

A rosy-cheeked youngster dressed in his best clothes entered the village post-office and carefully laid a huge slice of iced cake on the counter.

"With my sister, the bride's compliments, and will you please eat as much as you can?" he said.

The postmistress smiled delightfully.

"How very kind of the bride to remember me," she cried. "Did she know of my weakness for wedding-cake?"

"She did," answered the youngster, coldly, "and she thought she'd send yer a bit of it this afternoon just to take the edge off yer appetite before she posted any boxes off to her friends."

Lieut. Vivian Fessenden, reported wounded and missing, served under Captain Osborne, who is also reported missing. This would suggest that this company also was cut off and captured.

NOT REPORTED

In reply to a cable sent to the War Office, Mr. B. F. Ackerman has received word that as yet no mention is made of Lieut. C. Ackerman and Sergt. A. Ackerman, in the list of casualties.

Nothing further has been heard of Lieut. Matthews and Lieut. Fessenden.

ABSENT WHEN THE ROLL WAS CALLED

Lt. Vivian Fessenden of Highlands Reported Missing

In the casualty list issued last evening, Lt. C. V. Fessenden, of the 15th Battalion, is reported as missing. Lt. Fessenden, who is a son of Mr. Cortez Fessenden of the P. C. I. teaching staff, enlisted in Toronto with the 48th Highlanders. He is a graduate of the P. C. I. and R. M. C., which he attended with Lt. Harold Matthews.

"Pete" Fessenden, as he was known to his old P. C. I. associates, was among the first to answer the call. That he enjoyed the intricacies of his new career was shown by his letters home, the tenor of which would lead one to beleve that Lt. Fessenden was there in earnest.

His father received a message this morning announcing the fact that he is missing. Further details are lacking. It is the popular supposition that all those reported missing are ether prisoners or else their bodies lay in the no man's land between the opposing armies.

Sergt. Ross McHeard.

Among the list of casualties in the Second Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent appears the name of Sergt. Ross McHeard, who was wounded in the recent fighting in Belgium in which the Canadians played such a prominent part. Sergt. McHeard, whose home is in England, enlisted in Lakefield.

The committee also desire to thank those citizens who generously offered to contribute to the hospital's maintenance.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

A Vicar of a certain English parish was sitting in his study one morning when in burst the verger in a great state of excitement.

"Mr. ——," mentioning the curate's name, "wants you at once, sir," he exclaimed. "He has married two couples and married the two men to the wrong women, and he does not know what to do."

"Have they signed the register?" inquired the clergyman.

"No," was the verger's response.

"[illegible] again," said the vicar. "Tell Mr. —— I will be at the church in a minute or two to perform the ceremony."

In due course the incumbent made his way to the church and found the parties gathered at the entrance. Before he could say anything one of the bridesgrooms approached and said:

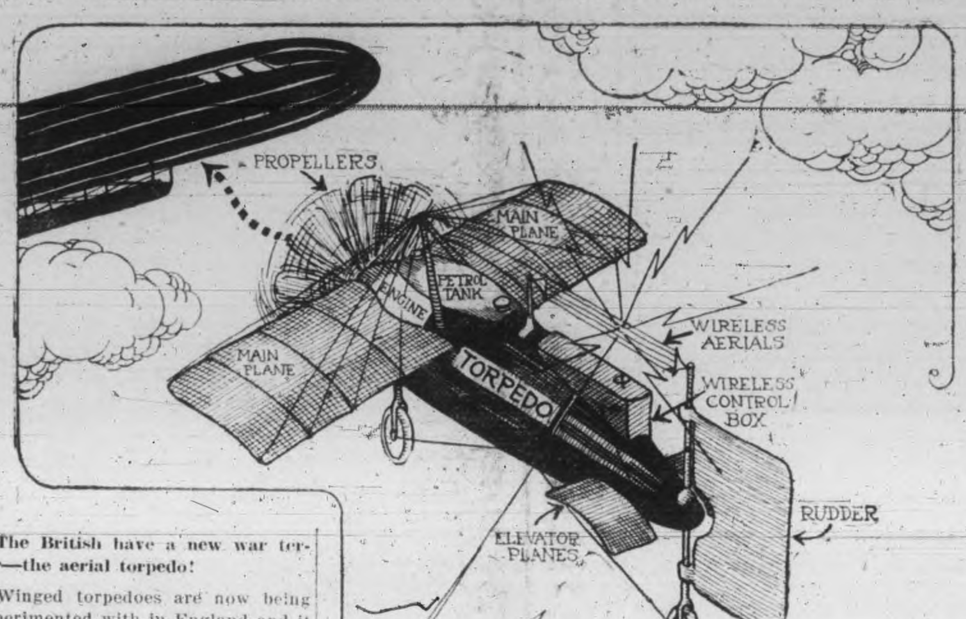
"We have been talking it over, sir, and we have made up our minds to remain as we are."

AMERICANS AGAIN WARNED OF RISK THEY TAKE ON SHIPS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, May 1. — In an official notice, published by the German embassy in every important city in the United States today, Americans are given renewed warning that they travel on ships flying flags of Germany's enemies at their own risk.

HOW WINGED TORPEDO WILL WORK BY WIRELESS



The British have a new war terror—the aerial torpedo!

Winged torpedoes are now being experimented with in England and it is expected that when the summer brings Zeppelin attacks on London, the wireless-controlled aeroplanes will be ready to carry their message of death.

The British got their idea from the wireless-controlled torpedo invented by John Hays Hammond, jr., and being tested by United States army officers.

If the wireless will control a torpedo in its course over the water, it can be made to do the same for an aeroplane, the British engineers believe, and they have set out to prove it.

A small monoplane, the body of which is a torpedo carrying a heavy and easily ignited charge, equipped with a light motor, propeller and rudders, all governed by an apparatus sensitive to wireless waves, is the plan.

After being launched into the air the torpedo-plane is entirely in the hands of an observer located aloft in an ordinary aeroplane. This lookout could direct its flight in any direction, making it follow the course of a Zeppelin until impact exploded its charge and sent the dirigible to its doom.

For night work the torpedo will be covered with phosphorescent paint which will permit the officer in the aeroplane to keep it in sight.

It has been pointed out the construction and engine of such a machine can be proportionately much lighter than an aeroplane—40 per cent. lighter, in fact. This permits of it carrying a powerful charge of explosive.

It has been further suggested that the same kind of a machine, if it is successful, could be dropped over battleships, or on the gigantic siege guns of the Germans.

DUNKIRK BOMBARDMENT TAKES MORE VICTIMS

Germans Still Cling to Cherished Idea of Occupying French Coast Nearest England

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 1. — This afternoon's official statement says: "No change has been reported in the general situation on the front since giving out the official communication last night. Ten more shells fell on Dunkirk during the evening of yesterday (Friday), and there were several victims."

LONDON, May 1.—London newspapers say the bombardment of Dunkirk means that the Germans still cling to their cherished idea of occupying the French coast nearest England, and more than one editorial writer today points out that Flanders still remains a critical theatre of operations.

ALL ATTACKS FAILED, SAYS BERLIN.

BERLIN, May 1.—The German military headquarters report says that all attacks of the enemy on the west bank of the canal northwest of Ypres, and on the east bank of the canal north of Ypres, resulted in failure.

THOUSANDS OF NEGROES HOMELESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

COLON, May 1. — More than half the city of Colon was swept by a disastrous fire last night. Ten persons are dead and several hundred injured.

Between ten thousand and twelve thousand negroes were rendered homeless.

The [illegible] is estimated at two million dollars.

Colon is in Panama, in Central America, and is mostly populated by blacks.

BUILD MATCH FACTORY.

Kingston, May 1.—Deseronto is to have a match factory conducted by the Rathbun Match Co. The capitalization is $125,000. The officers of the new company are: President and Treasurer, H. W. Rathbun; Manager, G. G. Gardiner; Secretary, L. E. S. Hodge.

The Conservatives of South Bruce held a convention at Formosa, and selected Mr. John Purvis, of Holyrood, the well known auctioneer, to contest the constituency in the party interests at the next Federal election.

The water in the St. Lawrence Rapids is six inches lower than it was a year ago.

48th HIGHLANDERS

Only twenty officers of the 48th Highlanders who left Toronto are left. The survivors include Lieut. Gordon Campbell, son of Mr. Peter Campbell who is located at one of the bases and has not been fighting.

TENNIS CLUB OFFICERS.

The Sacred Heart Tennis Club organized last evening and elected Rev. J. V. McAuley president and Mr. A. Letellier, secretary treasurer. Prospects for a successful year are very bright. Netting is to be placed at the rear of the courts to prevent the ball from travelling too far.

BODY IS FOUND IN THE RIVER

David McMahon Left His Home Early This Morning

HE ACTED QUEERLY

Either Fell or Jumped Into River North of Hunter St. Bridge

Rising from his bed at three-thirty this morning, David McMahon, an old man of eighty-two, made his exit through a window, and, wandering to the river bank just above the old planing mill in East City, either fell or jumped into the river and was drowned. His body was found held in shallow water by a pile of stones about eight o'clock this morning, by his son Frank, who had started out to search for him. The circumstances point to Mr. McMahon taking his life while in an unbalanced state of mind.

For some months Mr. McMahon had been acting queerly, his actions at night being particularly strange. His advanced age affected his mind, which had been in a tottering conditon, and he often rose from his bed and walked around the house during the night. This was known to the other occupants, who had taken the precaution of bolting all the doors to prevent any possible attempt on his part to leave it. This morning he rose between 3 and 4 o'clock, but no attention was paid to it.

Footprints to River.

An open window, discovered this morning, showed how he got out. Footprints were followed in the soft ground to the river bank, which ends in a drop of about eight feet. The water is shallow at this point, but the body was carried out several yards, until it finally was held up by a pile of stones. When the family arose this morning no attention was paid particularly to his absence, because they believed th old man had gone into his son's residence next door. When he was not found there they became alarmed, and a search followed, with the results mentioned. His son Frank went out in a punt and towed the body to shore.

Deceased was born in the county of Cork, Ireland, and came to Canada when 18 years of age. He lived in East City for a time, but moved to Otonabee, where he farmed for forty years, coming back to this city eight years ago, taking up residence at [illegible] Mark street. He leaves a wife [illegible] residing in the city, and four daughters, Mrs. C. Gainey, Mrs. Brooks, and Misses Agnes and Margaret.

A peculiar coincidence in the case is that just one year ago this morning the deceased accidentally fell into the river, but was rescued.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at nine o'clock to the Church of the Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's Cemetery.

DECISION MAY BE GIVEN NEXT WEEK

The deputations from Peterborough and from Otonabee which waited on the Provincial Board of Health yesterday in connection with the site for the sewage disposal plant have returned. It is expected that the judgment will be made known the fore part of next week.

PLENTY OF FIGHT LEFT IN GERMANS

London Times Sees Clear Proof in Events of the Past Ten Days

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 1. — The Times, referring to the bombardment of Dunkrik, says we have, in the events of the past ten days, the clearest possible proof that, far from being on the run, the Germans can at any moment resume an offensive in the west with great power and obstinate courage, with an ample supply of men and guns, and in a spirit that will stop at nothing.

The bombardment of Dunkirk is only one more sign of their settled purpose to reach the coast towns near England, and it ought to bring us with a bound out of that world of illusion in which the nation has been encouraged to gaze at facts through their mist of optimism.

Every motor owner should do his share in helping along with the good work by at least becomng a member of the association. Some member of the executive will wait upon you during the coming week and ask for your subscription.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1915

SOMETHING PETERBOROUGH NEEDS.

NOW IS THE SEASON when the sleeping earth suddenly awakes to new and vigorous life. It is the time when dull brown or dirty yellow blotches become green and when other colours brighten the great world out of doors. It is the time when the public parks once more become beauty spots.

Peterborough is blessed beyond the fortune of many cities in this regard. It is picturesquely situated and has a number of beautiful parks which the citizens should visit at this season. But this city has also many other parts of it that could be improved and made pleasant to the eye, with little relative expenditure. If this were done, it would be surprising how much would be accomplished towards making Peterborough a beautiful city.

Some large cities have their beauty spots concentrated in one large and very beautiful park. Central Park in New York City occupies eight hundred and forty acres in the middle part of Manhattan Island. Bronx Park contains six hundred and sixty acres, and Howard Park in Toronto comprises three hundred and forty acres. Large parks like these are fine assets to any city that can afford them, but one large park never made a beautiful city. Beauty spots should be distributed so that they would be scattered throughout a city as much as possible. That helps to prevent slum districts and other disagreeable aspects of urban life and stimulates private citizens to improve their residences.

Peterborough has possibilities for the development of breathing spots throughout the city. It has no park that can compare in size with the big parks mentioned. That should not be the object. But if these small open spaces were improved, it would go a long way toward making Peterborough one of the prettiest and healthiest places in the Dominion of Canada.

There does not appear to be much likelihood of progress in this direction unless there is some definite policy laid down on which the city can improve or develop from year to year. It requires, in the first place, a city plan, so that a certain amount of work could be done each year, according to this plan. It would require also an efficient administrator. Some citizens advocate a park commissioner or commission, but this is not absolutely necessary. The mere institution of a commissioner would not mean efficient administration. A proper man, who understands how to perform what is required, is the main thing, whether he is called a commissioner or overseer or alderman or something else. Every natural resource and advantage pertaining to Peterborough should be developed. It means dollars and dollars out of the pockets of merchants, business men and citizens generally when anything is allowed to stand in the way of this city's growth. This city should be attractive so that people will want to live here and so that manufacturers will want to locate here. One of the first and most important steps in beautifying Peterborough is the inauguration of a policy and plan for its parks, other city property, future building, and the efficient administration of the things coming under the supervision of such a department.

PUBLIC WORKS.

THE POLICY of the Conservative party is to build necessary public works when other employmen is scarce. The Liberal Opposition, led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, opposes this policy with all the vigor and invective at their command. It is not proposed to spend money unnecessarily. The Conservative idea is to proceed with all proposed public works of a general character, such as bridges, public buildings, wharves, docks, etc., when times are slack, instead of doing part one time and part another, especially when the Government is likely to find itself hampered in times of competition. Surely this ought to appeal to the common sense and humanity of all reason- [illegible] so long as they are not obsessed with partizan hatred and political malice. The Borden Government set aside some twenty-five millions for the purpose, and, if the country approves its policy at the coming election (which seems pretty well settled on), then the work will go on immediately. If, however, the country disapproves this policy, there will be nothing for it but to adopt a policy that will mean that workingmen will not get work in their own country and from their own country when they most need it, but when they need it least.

BACON AND HAMS.

GREAT BRITAIN, in 1913, imported 5,440,387 hundredweight of bacon. Canada supplied 272,745 hundredweight. Russia, Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands furnished 3,129,570, and the United States 2,019,776 hundredweight.

In 1913, Britain imported 957,595 hundredweight of hams, of which Canada supplied 100,892 hundredweight, and the United States 851,835. In 1910, Canada supplied only 42,136 hundredweight.

There is some improvement in hams, but a sad falling-off in bacon. Britain took 689,704 hundredweight of the latter commodity from this country in 1911, but, as previously stated, only 272,745 hundredweight in 1913, a decrease of 416,959 hundredweight in two years.

PART OF THE HAGUE CONTRACT.

IF GERMANY won in this war, there would be little faith between man and man left. The very foundation of all contracts is the faith that things will be done as agreed. If, to win a point or advantage, agreements can be broken, where is any reliance to be placed in the word, written or spoken, of human beings? Germany, in order to win her object, has done what she agreed not to do. That is why there can be absolutely no compromise in this war. We must win decisively or lose completely. Peace on any terms of compromise would be the most disgraceful thing in our whole history.

The following from The Hague Compact shows what Germnay agreed to in the matter of poison bombs:

> "The contracting powers agree to abstain from the use of projectiles, the object of which is the diffusion of asphyxiating or deleterious gases.
>
> The present declaration is only binding on the contracting powers in the case of a war between two or more of them.
>
> It shall cease to be binding from the time when, in a war between the contracting powers, one of the belligerents shall be joined by a non-contracting power.
>
> This declaration was ratified by the different powers as follows:
>
> Austria-Hungary, ratified September 4th, 1900.
> Belgium, ratified September 4, 1900.
> France, ratified September 4, 1900.
> Germany, ratified September 4, 1900.
> Great Britain, adhered August 30, 1907.
> Japan, ratified October 6, 1900,
> Montenegro, ratified October 16, 1900.
> Portugal, ratified September 4, 1900.
> Russia Ratified September 4, 1900.
> Serbia, ratified May 11,1901.
> Turkey ratified June 12, 1907."

Canadians are believed to have lost their lives through Germany's breaking of this agreement. Some were certainly injured. Canada will not rest until she has made every possible effort to avenge this crime and to force the German criminals to respect their own contracts.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MONTREAL this summer is to spend nearly $2,000,000 on permanent pavements, and it is estimated that the work will give employment to about 25,000 men. It is, of course, self-evident that this item does not state that Montreal is to get two million dollars' worth of pavements.

A LADY in an Ontario town fell over a pup and broke her right arm, says an exchange, and adds: Better, after all, than breaking her heart over one.

A SONG that found birth in the United States and that ought to be popularized in Germany is entitled, "I didn't raise my dog to be a sausage."

Opinions From Other Newspapers

The Government's Happy Choice.
(La Presse, Montreal.)

The Federal Government has promptly fulfilled its promise to appoint a commission of controllers having for its mission the according of contracts and the supervision of their execution for the supply of war materials. And a happy choice of controllers has been made in the nomination of the Hon. A. E. Kemp as president, and Messrs. H. Laporte, ex-mayor of Montreal, and George F. Galt, of Winnipeg. The three members are eminent men of affairs whose public spirit is above suspicion. With men of such high character and ability to direct the employment of credits affected by the war, the public will have the double guarantee of fair treatment for the vendor—who is, as a matter of fact, the taxpayer as a whole—and the most complete security for the purchaser, who is the country.

Usual Basis of Liberal Criticism.
(Kincardine Review.)

As an instance of how a false story will travel, take the case of the horse said to have been rejected at the time of the Boer war because it was too old, and accepted for this war. A witness before the Public Accounts Committee who could not conceal his desire to say anything that would involve the government in a scandal, swore to this, and, absurd as it was, newspapers published it and stuck headings on it as if it were true. The same witness, on being recalled, swore that he had no knowledget of any such thing, but little notice was taken of that. The lie had got off to a good start and the obvious truth was handicapped.

Never Caught.
(London Opinion.)

Waiter — Oh, yes, sir—the fish is quite fresh. It was caught this morning.

Soldier — Go on!—that was never caught—it gave itself up!

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

GOSSIP is the circulating medium with which the talkative portion of the community gets paid for its hard work.

Often a mischief maker is merely a born boss in a subordinate position.

Remaining young seems to be about the only thing that youth is incapable of doing if he works at it long enough.

There are women who can shed tears as easily and as pathetically as counsel for the defense.

Ever notice that you never meet anybody on the road to ruin?

When the labels that they paste on themselves peel off it is hard to tell what some people are.

When comfort speaks to them most men can understand her no matter what language she uses.

Women are often foolish, but at that they don't hold any edge over the men.

A Summer Joy.

I have a little garden plot.
It is my joy and pet.
I like to wander round in it
And watch an onion set
Or see a cabbage lift its head
To greet me as I pass
Or hear the gentle repartee
Tossed off by garden sass.

The ice plant cools my fevered brow,
And, much to my surprise,
The new potatoes look at me
And slyly wink their eyes.
The turnip never turns me down
When I would take a bite.
The rhubarb calls me "Brother Rube"
And says I am all right.

The currants glowing red and ripe
To currency will turn.
The lettuce says, "Let us be friends."
That offer who would spurn?
The corn gives ear to what I say,
And, steaming in the pot,
Its kernels give me private joy
And touch a tender spot.

Oh, charming little garden plot,
Supplying all my needs,
A symphony indeed you are
Though tuned to ragtime weeds!
I wouldn't trade you for a farm,
Because I am afraid
I know no sucker who would think
Of making such a trade.

Frank.

"I hope you give me credit for having some sense."

"No, that isn't what I give you credit for."

"No?"

"No. I give you credit because I know I can collect from your dad."

In His Own Back Lot.

"How do you keep cool in summer?"

"By going to the seaside."

"Can't afford it."

"Try the mountains."

"Too expensive."

"Lucky dog! You have some chance to keep cool."

Being Personal.

"You look flustrated."

"I am. I feel all worked up."

"What will you have for your lunch? Are you fond of lobster?"

"Thank you, no; not when it is in a stew."

JULFA, Transcaucasia, May 1.—A renewal of the recent massacres of Christians in Armenia is now in progress in the whole district of Lake Van.

Pass It Along.

Few of us have been so exceptionally unfortunate as not to find, in our own age, some experienced friend who has helped us by precious counsel never to be forgotten. We cannot render it in kind; but, perhaps, in the fullness of time it may become our noblest duty to aid another as we ourselves have been aided and to transmit to him an invaluable treasure.—Philip Gilbert Hamerton.

THIRD SHOT DESTROYED TRANSPORT

Turkish Ship Sent to Bottom by Queen Elizabeth

LONDON, May 1.—In the course of its bulletin last night describing the naval operations at the Dardanelles, the British War Office says:

"During the operations Turkish warships from Nagara (in the straits) several times have attempted to intervene, but have always made off directly the Queen Elizabeth was at hand.

"At noon on the 27th, however, a transport of about 8,000 tons was reported off Maidos, and before she could escape the Queen Elizabeth opened fire. The third shot hit and destroyed her. She sank rapidly, but whether she contained troops or not could not be seen.

"On the 28th and 29th the allied forces rested and improved and consolidated their positions and continued the disembarkation of stores and artillery. All counter-attacks by the enemy, which were incessant on the 28th, but weaker on the 29th, were repulsed.

"The fleet, as well as the supporting army, have begun to engage these batteries. The Triumph bombarded Maidos, which was in flames last night, the 29th."

IS THE PARIS OF EASTERN EUROPE

Some Facts About Warsaw Which Germans Try to Take

The chief city of Russian Poland, Warsaw, better known as the Paris ofEastern Europe, has, in spite of its vicissitudes and misfortunes, always been prosperous.

At the present time, it is holding its own against the attacks of the Germans, who have made several unsuccessful attempts to capture it.

Warsaw, originally, was not a Polish city at all. In the ninth century it was the residence of the Dukes of Mazovia and Mazovia did not belong to Poland until 1526, although the inhabitants of both regions were probably of the same stock. Not long after 1526, however, Lithuania, which is the region that lies to the eastward of Prussia, was also united to Poland; and Warsaw, because it was more centrally situated than Cracow, the capital of old Poland, or Vilno, the chief city of Lithuania, became the capital of the enlarged kingdom. Such it remained through the century when Poland was at the height of its power, and through the years of slow humiliation that led to its downfall.

Once Belonged to Prussia.

When Poland was divided among the nations, Russia got possession of Warsaw; but singularly enough, in 1795, the city was handed over to Prussia, which is now fighting so hard to get hold of it again. Napoleon delivered Warsaw from the hands of the Germans, and made it the capital of an independent duchy. But the duchy did not last long. After the failure of Napoleon's Moscow campaign, Russia again overran the country, and reasserted a sovereignty that has never been successfully challenged—although the Poles have never acquiesced in it.

The riots and uprisings that have disturbed the city during the last century have been many. The most tragic was that of 1863, which not only failed to restore the independence of Poland, but which brought down on the unhappy Poles the most terrible punishment and the loss of whatever shreds of nationality had been left to them. Only ten years ago, too, there were fresh disorders and a good deal of bloodshed, the only result of which was the further repression of Polish spirit by Russian authority.

Warsaw is the natural centre of a large and productive region. It stands on a great navigable river—the Vistula — and business has inevitably bowed in upon it. It has increased in population during the last century from 125,000 to 900,000. One-third of that number are Jews.

It is a great centre for manufactures in iron and steel, leather, clothing, tobacco, sugar, and objects of art. As the chief city of a numerous cultivated, and enterprising people, it is well built, with many handsome public squares and gardens; and the animation and charm of its social life have let its admirers to speak of it as "The Paris of Eastern Europe."

No other Russian city has the attractiveness and "modishness" of Warsaw. Petrograd is gloomy; Moscow is odd and half Oriental; Warsaw is, or rather was, a busy yet beautiful modern city.

GRIM LIST GROWS

Fifty-Five Officers Added to Casualties Yesterday.

Over One-Third of the Total Canadian Officers at the Front Have Been Killed or Wounded or Are Missing--48th Highlanders of Toronto Were Heavy Sufferers--Western Canada Hard Ht.

OTTAWA, May 1.—Another tragic roll of fifty-five Canadian officers killed, wounded or missing came to the Militia Department yesterday afternoon. Toronto, Winnipeg, Victoria and Vancouver are the principal cities bereaved. Fourteen officers are included in the list of killed, nearly all from Western Canada. Twelve officers are reported wounded, four wounded or missing, and twenty-five missing. The missing are probably either prisoners or else their bodies still lie in the no-man's land between the opposing armies.

The total of casualties thus far announced among officers now reaches approximately 180, of whom some 50 have been killed and 130 wounded. In addition there are forty-two officers reported missing. Considerably over one-third of the total number of commissioned officers at the front are now reported as being either killed, wounded or prisoners of war. And the lists are still coming in.

SALVATION ARMY IN PRESENT WAR

Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney inform the Review that they are about to launch the annual Self-Denial effort, which has become such an important institution throughout the world wide Salvation Army.

The annual week of self-denial was inaugurated by the Salvation Army in the year 1886. The amount raised was $24,000.00. The total result of the Army's week of Self-Denial last year was $266,800.00, of which amount the Army in the Dominion of Canada raised $44,343.00. Peterborough Corps is hoping to raise at least $600.00.

There are many interesting stories current which show the devotion of the Salvation Army to their cause, and how warmly the public in general feel towards the Salvationists and their work.

A military Salvationist had collected twenty-seven shillings from the soldiers in the trenches in France. Being relieved from trench duty, he had purchased two money orders for the amount collected, and had written headquarters, enclosing the orders half a crown in silver. He had evidently been recalled to the trenches before he had time to post the letter, as he was afterwards found dead. It was full of bullet holes, and the orders were punctured several times as also was the half crown.

Perhaps, no religious organization has more readily responded to the cry of King and country than the Salvation Army. There are over ten thousand Salvationists in the Army and Navy, eighteen hundred of them being bandsmen.

A colonel of a certain British Regiment wanted to form a band but didn't know how he could secure sufficient players. One of his officers remarked to him one day, that there were a good many Salvation Army men in the regiment. "Why not form a band out of them?" suggested the subaltern. "All those fellows can play an instrument of some sort." On parade next day, the colonel gave the command, "All men belonging to the Salvation Army, ten paces to the front—march." To his surprise, over one hundred men stepped forward. "Now, all those who can play a musical instrument step forward," was the next command. Sixty-seven men moved, and out of this number the colonel selected, thirty-two for his band. So that the regiment now marches with a real Salvation Army Band at its head.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood, just as the trees must have new sap to renew their vitality. Nature demands it, and without this new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia. Often there are disfiguring pimples or eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and a variable appetite. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has lessened your vitality. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right, and in all the world of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new blood drives out the seeds of disease and makes easily tired men, women and children bright, active and strong. Miss Edith Brousseau, Savona, B.C., says:—"I was as pale as a ghost, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation of the heart at the slightest exertion. I had little or no appetite and seemed to be drifting into a decline. I was attending High School in Vancouver at the time, and the doctor advised me to stop. I did so and took his treatment for some time, but it did not help me in the least. Upon the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Wililams' Pink Pills, and in a very short time they gave me back complete health, and enabled me to resume my studies. I have enjoyed the best of health since, and owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Queen's Company, Canadian Engineers, Kingston, have gone into camp at Barriefield, Kingston. The overseas troops will go under canvas on May 15.

HOW TO GROW VEGETABLES.

A popular bulletin on "Vegetable Growing," No. 231, by S. C. Johnston, B. S. A., has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Both backyard gardening for the urbanite, and the farmer's garden receive special treatment, and the instructions given are in the main simple enough for the comprehension of a schoolboy. A list of the best varieties of vegetables for home-growing is given, together with a useful planting calendar and illustrations of the implements needed for garden work are given. The making and controlling of hotbeds and cold-frames are also fully described. In fact, all that an amateur vegetable grower should know is told. The bulletin may be had free upon application.

The officers and men in camp at London have volunteered for immediate service to fill the vacancies in the first contingent caused by the recent casualties.

It has been decided by the Hamilton authorities that laundry buildings and premises must be improved to the satisfaction of inspectors before licenses will be renewed.

FIERCE STRUGGLE SEES AUSTRALIANS TRIUMPH

British Troops From the Antipodes Have Driven the Enemy Out of Sari-Bair — Sedd-el-Bahr and Kum Kale Have Been Captured by British and French Forces Respectively — Fleet Are Active

LONDON, May 1. — The British War Office last night made public an official communication concerning the operations of the allies against the Dardanelles:

"The disembarkation of the army in the Dardanelles began before sunrise on April 25. Six different beaches were used, and the operation was covered by the whole fleet.

"The landing was immediately successful on five branches, although it was opposed with vigor by a strongly entrenched enemy in successive lines, which were protected by barbed wire entanglements, in some places fifty yards wide, and supported by artillery.

"On the sixth beach, near Sedd-el-Bahr, the troops could not advance until evening, when a fine attack by the British infantry from the direction of Cape Tekeh relieved the pressure on their front. The arrangements for landing had been concerted in the utmost detail between the fleet and the army.

"The result of the first day's operations was the establishment of strong British, Australasian and French forces at three points; namely, the Australian and New Zealand troops on the lower slopes of Sari Bair, to the north of Gaba Tepe; the British troops at Cape Tekeh, at Cape Helles and near Morto Bay, and a French force on the Asiatic shores at Kum Kale, after a gallant attack toward Yeni Shehr.

"During the afternoon of the 25th strong counter-attacks by the enemy began, and hard fighting took place. Meanwhile the disembarkation of the army proceeded, and was continually favored by good weather.

"At daybreak on the 26th the enemy was still holding the village and position of Sedd-el-Bahr, which was a labyrinth of caves, ruins, trenches, pits and entanglements. Aided by the gunfire of the fleet, this position was stormed by the British in frontal attack through undamaged wire entanglements. Sedd-el-Bahr was taken about 2 p.m., four pom-poms being captured. The situation at this end of the peninsula thus was definitely secured, and the disembarkation of French and British forces proceeded.

"On the morning of the 27th, after repulsing a Turkish attack upon their left towards Cape Helles, the allied force advanced, and at 8 p.m. were established in an entrenched line running from a point about two miles north of Cape Tekeh to a small plateau above De Totts Battery. From this line an advance since has been made to the neighborhood of Krithia.

"Meanwhile Australian and New Zealand troops at Sari Bair, who pushed on with the utmost boldness, after the landing on the 25th, had been engaged almost constantly with the enemy, who made strong repeated counter-attacks, which invariably were repulsed. The Australian and New Zealand troops fought with a fine spirit of determination.

"On the morning of the 27th a fresh Turkish division was launched against Sari Bair, preceded by a heavy artillery fire. A hot engagement followed. The enemy came on boldly time after time, but the Australian and New Zealand troops defeated their every attempt, and by 3 p.m. had resumed the offensive."

"The French troops at Kum Kaleh also were four times strongly counter-attacked on the 26th, but retained all their positions. Five hundred Turks, who in the course of one of these counter-attacks were cut off by the fire of the fleet, were made prisoners.

"The operation of the landing army in the face of modern weapons and in spite of wire entanglements, under sea as well as on the land, and of land mines and deep pits with spikes at their bottoms, thus has been accomplished.

"The admiral reports that the fleet is filled with intense admiration over the achievements of their military comrades."

LOCUSTS IN EASTERN CANADA.

Few people who have not experienced a plague of locusts can appreciate how terribly destructive the pest can be. In Circular No. 5, of the Entomological Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur Gibson, Chief Assistant Entomologist, tells something about locusts or "grasshoppers" that every tiller of the soil should know. He states that for the past three years the pest has been extremely destructive in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. In one district of Lanark County alone an estimated loss of $6,000 was caused representing 75 per cent. of the crops. In a number of instances fields of oats and barley were cut green to save for feed, while in other cases in the province of Quebec farms have been abandoned owing to the prevalence of locusts. The insects are most impartial in their attention, attacking all kinds of grain and vegetables. After describing the different species which are liable to infest any part of Canada, Mr. Gibson suggests as an efficacious poison a bran mash that has been well tried, consisting of Brand—20 pounds.

Paris green of white arsenic—1 lb.
Molasses—2 quarts.
Oranges and lemons—3 fruits.
Water—3½ gallons.

It is said that the oranges and lemons make the bait more attractive and hence lead to the undoing of the locust. Experiments made with this mixture, which can be concocted at small cost, have proved most successful, in one case no fewer than from 900 to 1,200 dead locusts being counted to the square yard. Besides illustrating the efficiency of the poison this statement also proves the alarming and overwhelming nature of the creatures. As every farmer should be prepared to protect his crops against the pest he should see to it that as soon as possible he becomes possessed of this invaluable circular; and this he can do by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

SEAWEED AND ROOTS THEIR ONLY FOOD

Canadian Arctic Expedition Were in Precarious Position

A survivor of the crew of the Karluk, the flagship of the probably ill-fated Stefansson Arctic Expedition equipped by the Canadian Government, relates his sufferings in that region.

Mr. Hugh Williams described the Karluk's westward drift from the north coast of Aleska amid the snow capped pyramids of ice, after Stefansson had landed with a party, in September, 1913, with the object of securing fresh meat—a journey from which they never returned. For close on five months they drifted. Then the Karluk was crushed to pieces and sank, as Captain Bartlett has described to the world. Foreseeing what was impending, large loads of stores had been removed before the fatal day—January 10, 1914—but the work of the last night was very arduous. It was also exceedingly dangerous, as the darkness was intense, and great yawning fissures in the ice round the ship had to be avoided as they hauled the supplies on sledges to a solid plateau of ice about a hundred yards distant. They had to abandon their personal belongings.

Eight Men Lost Lives.

In two houses, one constructed of snow, the other of boxes with a covering of sailcloth, the party settled down to wait in the long darkness the day when the sun should dawn and give the necessary light to ship supplies to Wrangell Island, some eighty miles from their camp.

Describing the journey to Wrangell Island, north of Siberia, which was marked by the loss of eight men, Mr. Williams said the men were seen four or five miles from the island, and that was the last ever seen of them. His party started out on February 27, and reached the island on March 12.

Of Captain Bartlett's departure, by way of the frozen wastes of Siberia, he explained that shortage of dogs and provisions made a bid for freedom by the same route for the rest of them out of the question. The party marooned numbered eighteen whites and four Eskimos, an Eskimo baby, and a cat. Three of the whites died, Mr. George S. Malloch, the geologist, and his assistant, Mr. Bjorn Monnen, of the swelling sickness that comes of privation in the white wastes, and Mr. George Breddy, firemen, through a revolver accident.

No Food for Fourteen Days.

The party suffered terrible privations on the land. "For days we lived on seaweed and roots. Once I had no food for fourteen days. It was nothing to be foodless for four days. There were times when there was nothing whatever to be had, when it was impossible to go outside because of the blizzards. Whenever possible we went out shooting, and the Eskimos did some trapping very cleverly. We had plenty to drink; melted snow, which we boiled. We had plenty of guns and ammunition."

In an effort to secure food left behind at the camp Mr. Williams found thin ice and fell through. He was rescued with difficulty, and remained in his frozen clothes two nights before they could be cut away from him. As a result one of his toes was badly frostbitten and the engineer had to amputate it to save the leg. "It was done with a saw," said Mr. Williams; "cut off to the first joint—and there was no anaesthetics there!" The job was completed at St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria, B.C., where Mr. Williams remained for nine weeks.

The party was rescued on September 7, 1914, having been on the island close on six months. "I shall never forget that day," exclaimed Mr. Williams. "I'll never work on that day in future; I'll celebrate it!" he added that they had given up all hope when the schooner King and Wing appeared. They were taken on board and afterwards transferred to the U.S. revenue cutter Bear.

HUGE GUNS TRAINED ON DUNKIRK

Presence of German Warships is Denied by War Office

LONDON, May 1.—A British official statement given out last evening said:

"The shelling of Dunkirk is now reported by aerial reconnaissance to have been from a land gun, and the reports that German warships were off that port were due to a misapprehension."

The statement, which was issued by the British Press Bureau, follows:

"The rumor that German warships bombarded Dunkirk is untrue. This rumor probably originated in a misreading of the French official communique issued yesterday."

The following report from Field Marshal Sir John French was given out last evening by the War Office:

"The situation on our front has not changed in the last 48 hours. The area in the neighborhood of Ypres has been the scene of great artillery activity throughout this period. There have been no other operations so far as the British army is concerned.

"On our immediate left the French counter-attacked yesterday (Friday) supported by our artillery, and made sensible progress.

"A German aeroplane was attacked yesterday and brought down within our lines east of Ypres.

"Successful mining operations have been carried out southwest of Wytschaete, and in the neighborhood of Givenchy."

The French War Office last night made public the following official communication:

"In Belgium, to the north of Ypres, our attacks have progressed on the whole front on a depth varying from 500 metres (about 1,600 feet) to one kilometre (two-thirds of a mile).

"We have taken two successive lines of trenches and captured a good many prisoners.

"The correspondent of the Associated Press visited yesterday the summit of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, which the enemy has not attacked for the last two days.

"One of our airships has bombarded the railroad and sheds in the region of Valenciennes.

"One of our aeroplanes, which was destroyed by an explosion, fell inside the enemy's lines."

The following official statement was issued yesterday afternoon:

"We made progress yesterday to the north of Ypres, in the region of Steenstraate.

"The city of Rheims received 500 shells, of which many were of an incendiary nature. These missiles started several fires, but it was found possible to circumscribe them and to put them out quickly.

"In the Champagne district the enemy shelled one of our ambulances, wounding a doctor.

"German warships have been reported at large off the coast of Belgium.

"Dunkirk yesterday received nineteen shells of large calibre. Twenty persons were killed and 45 wounded. Some houses were destroyed."

CASE IS SETTLED

Court Does not Press Charge Against Young Man

Harold Williamson was not compelled to undergo the ordeal of a trial when his case came before County Magistrate Langley at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. Williamson, who is a young man about 21, was charged with having improper relations with Edna Woodcock, a young Norwood girl between the ages of 14 and 16, last July. When he was arraigned in the morning he was permitted to have till the afternoon to secure a solicitor to represent him. Mr. V. J. McElderry was secured, and when the case was called in the afternoon he announced that Williamson and the girl were willing to be married, all parties being willing. This settled the case.

TWO DIVISIONS SOON

Canada Will Have 50,000 Men at Front in Short Time

OTTAWA, May 1.—In a short time Canada will have two complete army divisions of upwards of 50,000 men at the front, with two further army divisions in Canada in training and ready to furnish reinforcements as soon as required. It is expected that reinforcements at the rate of approximately 8,000 per month will be needed, and these will be sent from the third and fourth contingents as the call comes from the War Office. Instead of sending forward whole battalions at a time, the intention of the Militia Department is to send representative units of one company each from each battalion, the most thoroughly trained men having the first call.

One hundred additional Canadian doctors are being selected to go to England in answer to a request from the War Office for additional help at the British field and base hospitals. When the second Canadian army division is all at the front Canada will have a medical staff of about 300 doctors and 450 nurses in England or France. There is still a list of about 1,200 nurses on file at the Department here to draw upon.

FLOUR IS AT HIGH MARK

Prices Are Highest in Many Years

Flour is selling in Peterborough at $8.50 per barrel, retail, one of the highest prices it has reached in many years. Last February the price went as high as $8.50 and then dropped to $8.10. Now it has increased again to $8.50. The reason for the prevailing high price of flour is of course the high price of wheat which has been quoted on the Winnipeg market at around $1.63 per bushel, both for May and July deliveries, and the reason for the high price of wheat is the abnormal demand for it in Europe and elsewhere in the war.

Millers say there is not likely to be any reduction in the cost of their commodities before July. The quotation of $8.50 per barrel is for the best patents in cotton.

Last July flour sold at $5.70 per barrel, and $2.85 a bag, $1.45 for a forty-nine pound bag and 75 cents for twenty-four pounds. These prices were reigning when wheat was quoted in Wininpeg at 90 cents.

At present the prices are $8.50 per barrell, $4.25 per bag, $2.15 for forty-nine pounds, and $1.10 for twenty-four pounds.

Fruitmen in the Niagara district say there is promise of an unprecedented crop in every species of fruit. Trees are crowded with buds.

POTATOES IN PLENTY

Farmers Held Out for Sixty Cents a Bag

The market attendance today was pretty slim. Threatening weather for one thing was responsible, and one farmer informed the Review that the farmers were very busy these days. The supply of produce was ample for all wants, and a goodly amount had to be carted back. Potatoes were extremely plentiful, but the owners held out unrelentingly for sixty cents a bag. Not a great many were sold.

Eggs and butter as usual were most in demand and vendors sold out quickly. A slight decrease in the cost of the latter commodity was noted. Eggs maintained their usual price.

The busiest man on the market today was W. H. Young a florist and rose grower living in the south part of the city, who had fixed up a little booth just outside the market hall. He was surrounded by eager buyers attracted by the beauty and profusion of his wares.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Liquidating sales to make ready for May deliveries tomorrow, cut a great deal of figure today in lowering the price of wheat. Heaviness characterized the close, which was 3-4 to 1 1-8c under last night's level. Other leading staples, too, all suffered losses, corn 1-8 to 3-8c net, oats 1-4 to 7-8c, and provisions 5 to 12 1-2c.

Efforts to change from the May option to later month resulted in pulling down the oats market as a whole. Good cash demand, however, helped to check the downturn.

Wheat futures closed ⅝c to 1c lower, cash ⅞c to 1c lower, oats ⅝c to ⅞c lower and flax ½c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, April 30—A feature of the grain trade today was the improved demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba wheat for nearby shipment, and as cables were stronger at an advance of 3d to 6d per quarter, sales of ten loads were made, but the demand for new crop American wheat was poor and business on the whole is quiet. The trade in coarse grains on spot was a little better and sales of a number of car lots of oats were made, and one lot of 30,000 bushels No. 1 feed for shipment from Fort William sold at 65¼c afloat. The export trade in flour was quiet again today, but the tone is firm. Demand for millfeed continues fair. Butter easy. Eggs in good demand and firm.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

COMMENT

As You Like it

ONE NAME FIGURED in the casualty list yesterday and the sporting element throughout Canada and a large part of the States, mourns. Pte. James Duffy of the Ninety-First Highlanders was reported killed, in other words "Jimmy" Duffy, famous Toronto and Hamilton runner, winner of the Ward Marathon 1912, Hamilton Herald race 1912-13, the Boston Marathon 1914, and the first Canadian to finish in the Swedish Olympic Marathon, was no more. The greatest distance runner since the days of Tom Longboat—and a boy just as erratic as the big Indian—died on the battlefield of Ypres where the Canadians so gallantly plugged the hole the retiring French left in the allies' line. As the Hamilton Herald remarked last evening, Duffy met his death in the same unflinching manner that he met and defeated the cream of long distance runners from all over Canada and the United States.

Duffy came to Canada from Scotland a few years ago, going to Toronto. At that time he was champion long-distance runner of Scotland and it was not long after that he made his presence felt in the land of the Maple Leaf. His two victories in the Herald road race, the biggest running event in Canada, and his record of 1.46.15 made on a day on which conditions were against record-breaking stamped him as a champion. Later he journeyed to Boston and captured the B.A.A. marathon after a gruelling race with Eduard Fabre, this year's winner. Shortly after he was barred from the amateur ranks for accepting money to run in Kingston. He took part in one race after this, but the outbreak of war caused him to turn his attention to more serious affairs.

Duffy, who was a tinsmith by trade, was a hard man to train and handle. He was an inveterate cigaret smoker and loved his pint of Bass. The result was that his trainers were forced to work him double all the time. In a race he was as game as they breed them. He had good racing brains and was possessed of unlimited courage. Time and time again he fought his way through cramps and stomach trouble and endured blistered feet to win. He had a good sprint and was a boy who was never beaten as long as he had a pair of legs that would hold him upright.

IF LIEUT. W. D. P. JARVIS met his death as "Bill" Jarvis of the Argonaut Rugby Club fought out a losing battle on the gridiron, or "Skipper Bill" Jarvis won or lost a sailing race, then he faced his fate quietly, calmly, and unflinchingly. Bill Jarvis was a worthy son of a worthy father, a boy of whom a sportsman like his father, Aemilius Jarvis, yachtsman and horseman, was justly proud, for he was a lad who played the game for the game's sake. A keener, cleaner young athlete and sportsman than Bill Jarvis did not live in these parts, and his loss is one that strikes deep into the hearts of amateur sportsmen in Toronto. Jarvis, although a racing skipper of ability, a good boxer, a big game huntsman, a golfer, a tennis player, was better known to the sporting public as quarter-back of the Argonaut Rugby team, a position he occupied for three seasons. Never a very big boy, he took many hard gruellings from husky opponents, but no matter how fierce and hard the contest became, Jarvis never backed up or never handed out a punch or jab. He took his medicine and played the game, and was on the ball all the time. His ability and determination to stop big men carrying the ball was a feature of the exidley College lad's football playing. Jarvis learned the game under the then king of coaches, Harry Griffith, and he learned to play it hard and cleanly. He never forgot the foundation of his Rugby tuition.—Toronto Star.

"STEAL THIRD"

Is the Cry of Speed-Mad Managers

This looks as if it would be a trying season for umpires who do not hustle every minutes and keep their eyes open.

The managers of the major league teams seem to have started a new era in basball. Last season there was such a general complaint among the fans all over the country that the players were loafing and not going the limit, especially in offensive play that the managers seem to have gone the other extreme this spring and are trying more things on the bases than they have done for years.

The base-running and general attacking system used in the St. Louis city series has aroused comment. Rickey has developed a most aggressive system and his men are rushing the assault and taking all chances.

It is evident all through baseball that the victory of Boston last season had a more widespread effect than was supposed. Stallings had his players taking desperate risks—and the frequency with which they succeeded weakened the other managers.

There are reports of at least 15 cases so far this season in which runners have pulled throws from the catcher to second and gone on to third. Both Tinker and Rickey have been working the double squeeze.

There is a big increase in the number of efforts to steal third base with none or one out, especially in the close games. Roger Bresnahan is pushing his men on this line and using the steal of third and the double steal from second and first frequently.

Rickey and Moran are doing the same thing. Rowland, the new White Socks manager, is using a dashing attack. He has speed in Weaver and Collins, and is utilizing it to the limit. He appears to advocate doing the unexpected and to rely upon the judgment of the runners largely after outlining a general assault plan.

One manager has instructed his men to attempt the steal of third when right-handed batters are up, and ordered his right-handed clouters to bat from far back in the box when runners are on second to hamper the catcher in making the throw to third.

There will be plenty of tight decisions on the bases, with every club forcing the attack—and the umps will have to hustle.

"Shag's" Simon Legree Methods Don't Suit Fans, but Gets to Top Just the Same

Under the above heading the Hamilton Herald makes the following comment on Frank Shaughnessy:

"There's a lanky, bow-legged gentleman who makes Ottawa his home, who, although a trifle hard on his paid artists in the heat of battle, takes the cake, as the saying goes, when it comes to being in or close to it when the awards are handed out at the end of each season. No less a personage than Frank Shaughnessy, the wily manager of the champion Ottawa Canadian league club, is this title-grabbing friend we speak of. Whether it be baseball, football or hockey it's "Shag's hirelings that are on top, and despite the fact that his system of piloting his clubs is not agreeable to the majority of sport lovers, he must be given credit for getting there.

Shaughnessy has had a successful career in sport since he invaded Canada, coaching the McGill university to the intercollegiate rugby championship, piloting the Ottawa Canadian baseball leaguers to the top twice in as many starts, and managing the Ottawa professional hockey club last season when it captured the N.H.A. championship. Some record, did you say? Well, rather.

The subject of these few lines is one of the sort that is bound to win, and regardless of his players' shortcomings expects them to be on the big end. A lad lacking in backbone would never make a success in baseball if given his professional start under the big fellow. His style would bewilder and frighten the youngster, who, instead of showing improvement would in all likelihood drop out of sight. He's a regular bear cat when the game is on, extremely hard on his players, and a hard man to down. Off the field he's an agreeable sort of chap, never carrying grouches, and shy on talking shop.

"Shag" is admired for his ability to produce the winners, but around the Canadian league circuit he is not popular. No person knows this better than himself, but he doesn't seem to care. In fact, when Ottawa played at Britannia park last year, amid the hoots of the local pew-occupants, he walked to the press stand and laughingly remarked that he didn't mind it a bit. "They don't like me but I draw the crowds and that gets money for our club," he said.

Every time the husky fellow comes to the Ambitious City he's sure to bring the "bugs" out in large numbers. He's generally at the top of the heap, and after all, that's all he cares about.

Nineteen hundred and fifteen will probably see him up there somewhere near the topmost rung just the same, and he'll be hard to beat.

Shaughnessy's methods may not be best for his player's comfort, but the fact that he wins championships proves that there's method in his madness."

BASKETBALL

Charlotte, Murray and George Street Teams Winners

The interest among the boys in the intermediate basketball league is running high, all the games are hotly contested and the weaker teams are making a better showing each time they play. In last night's games, the Charlotte St. boys downed All Saints by 16 to 10 after a hard fought game in which All Saints' led for the first half, 10-7, but their heavier opponents 2had the scoring alltheir own way in the second half. The teams:

CHARLOTTE ST. — Thompson, Austin, Soden, English, Skuce.

ALL SAINTS' — Blake, McLeod, I. McLeod, Gollop, Lebar.

George Street kept up its winning streak and took Knox in tow to the tune of 13 to 3. The Methodist boys were a little too heavy and fast for their Presbyterian brethren, and had no trouble in leading all the way through. The teams:

GEORGE ST. — H. Copp, Hilson, Thorndyke, Hamilton, Head.

KNOX — Montgomery, [illegible], Smythe, Matrin, Clarke.

Mark Street put up the best game against Murray Street that they have so far played, but didn't have quite enough steam to win out. They are developing, however, and will give a good account of themselves. The Baptists had the better of the argument in the first half, the score being 8-2, but the Methodist boys hit a fast gait in the second half and piled up eight points to their opponents' seven. Pringle did most of the scoring for Murray Street, while Lipsett was high man for Mark Street. The teams:

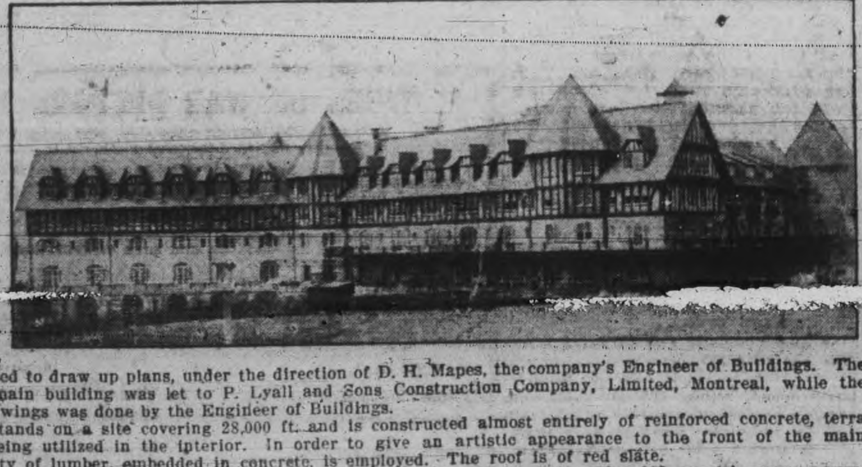
MURRAY ST. — Webb, Crawford, Lewis, Cottingham, Prngle.

MARK ST. — McIntyre, Lipsett, Gillespie, Hagerman, Jones.

Referee, Dobbin. Scorer, Thorndyke. Timer, Long.

The North Oxford License Commission renewed for the full term the licenses of the Royal and the new Commercial Hotels at Woodstock, on which decision had been deferred. All six hotels in that city are now licensed for the ensuing year.

NEW C.P.R. HOTEL AT ST. ANDREWS BY THE SEA



IN April last year the Algonquin Hotel, St. Andrews, N.B., owned by the C. P. R., was almost entirely destroyed by fire. The main building, of frame construction, was completely burned, and only the shells of the two wings were left standing. It was decided to re[illegible] and Messrs. Barott, Blackarder and Webster, architects, Montreal, were instructed to draw up plans, under the direction of D. H. Mapes, the company's Engineer of Buildings. The contract for the main building was let to P. Lyall and Sons Construction Company, Limited, Montreal, while the restoration of the wings was done by the Engineer of Buildings.

The hotel stands on a site covering 28,000 ft. and is constructed almost entirely of reinforced concrete, terra cotta partitions being utilized in the interior. In order to give an artistic appearance to the front of the main building, a quantity of lumber, embedded in concrete, is employed. The roof is of red slate.

The building, consisting of 4 storeys and two basements, has accommodation for 202 guests' rooms accommodates 350 guests. These basements contain servants' quarters, officers' quarters, helps' dining room, bakery, laundry, men's lounge, female helps' common room, servery, etc. An open terrace is built over the front portion of the basement, and as higher ground is reached, a verandah is constructed along the front and one side of the building.

The first floor, entered from the verandah, is arranged so that the lobby is placed between the dining room (41½ ft. x 112 ft.)—the largest room in the hotel—and the lounge (21½ ft. x 89½ ft). These can also be entered from the terrace and verandah respectively. The drawing room (27 ft. x 38½ ft.) leads off the lounge. Behind these rooms and facing the rear portion of the hotel, are children's dining room, private dining room, sitting room, office, news stand, tourist agents' office, telephone booth, telegraph office, manager's office, smoking room, etc. The entire second and third floors, including the wings, are given up to bedrooms; 97 of these have private baths and 22 have private lavatories. In the attic, bedroom accommodation is also provided, while here is also situated the male helps' quarters, dormitory, and common room. A boiler house is constructed about 300 feet from the main building, and is connected therewith by means of a tunnel. This contains three boilers and two generators for the purpose of providing electric light, power, heat, and hot water, the refrigerating plant and laundry, as well as quarters for the engineers and laundry help.

The keynote of the furnishing is to be simplicity, as becomes a purely summer hotel. Most of the bedrooms and public rooms will have hardwood floors. With the object of minimizing the risk of fire, fire walls and automatic fire doors have been provided, dividing each floor into five sections, which can be isolated in case of an outbreak. Thus on the first floor there are seven such doors, besides two rolling fire shutters, which operate automatically in case of fire.

Attached to the hotel is one of the finest golf courses in the world with delightful natural bunkers. The length of the course is the regulation eighteen holes, most of which are longer than the ordinary run of holes. This gives it additional popularity, as it affords the golfer an opportunity for the frequent use of his brassy in long driving.

A USELESS SWEEP

Von Hindenburg Stages Big Cavalry Movement

PETROGRAD May 1. — German cavalry, useless for trench fighting in Flanders and the Carpathians, is now moving in the extreme north between Eichhorn's army and the sea. The chief advance is along the Dubissa, a tributary of the Niemen, in the direction of Schawli.

The Russians see Hindenburg's personal hand in this new spectacular movement. The region is without strategic value except for the purpose of foraging and cannot, owing to lack of roads and railways, be used for great movements of infantry and artillery, unless they are landed from transports above Polangen.

GEN. VON HINDENBURG.

Doubtless it is hoped this cavalry movement will impress Scandinavian neutrals and the local non-Russian population of the Baltic provinces, besides giving Hindenburg an opportunity of attempting to outwit the new Russian commander in the north, Michael Alexeyeff. Immediate interest is centred in this campaign, as the Russians have driven the Germans backwards at Mlawa and along the entire front in north Poland.

Used Bayonets To Quell Prisoners.

KINGSTON, May 1. — Two Germans were seriously hurt Thursday night at Fort Henry when they and some of their fellow prisoners made an attack on two guards who were serving them with supper. The guards in order to protect themselves had to draw their bayonets. One prisoner got a wound near the heart and is in a dangerous condition, the other was stabbed in the wrist. The using of bayonets soon brought the disturbance to an end, although for about fifteen minutes it was quite lively.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

(Supervised Playgrounds)

Among the slides to be shown at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening, May 6th, are the following:—

Boys playing crap.
Bread Line on the Bowery.
Municipal Playgrounds for Colored Children.
Swimming Races.
Recess Time in New York Public School.

Come and see these and other pictures and learn what supervised playgrounds mean. Then be prepared to buy carnations May 8th, to help along the playground in Peterborough.

Playgrounds diminish—

Selfishness—By encouraging the child to help others.

Rowdyism—By furnishing influences that foster courtesy and self-respect.

Temptation—By keeping children off the streets.

Social Barriers—By bringing children of all classes together.

Reformatories—By giving the child active work to do, thus forming instead of reforming character.

Montreal now has a policewoman, as well as some 1,200 policemen. The first woman constable was sworn in recently before Mr. Recorder Geoffrion.

The honor of leading in this branch of the feminist movement here falls to Miss Lilian Clearihue, who has been acting for some tme as an officer of the travelers' aid under the direction of the northern district W. C. T. U. Her work consists mainly in protecting young girls and unattended women arriving in Montreal, and she has been handicapped in the past by not being empowered to make arrests. This disability has now been removed.

This is a time of great sacrifice. Everywhere men and women are cheerfully giving their time, their money, their health and their very lives, for others. Will you not give a few pennies on the 9th of May to help get playgrounds for the children?—for the children in many cases who are giving their lives for you.

Experience has forced many communities to the conclusion that playgrounds without supervision are wasteful and worse than useless. In one city in the United States four playgrounds were established at a cost of $1000 each, but without a trained worker in charge. They were falures. Then the associateed charities started a playground with a trained leader in the same city, and soon as many children were to be found on that one playground as on the city's four.

Getting games planted so that children will play them off the playgrounds, in the streets and backyards and other available places, is one good result of the supervised playground. Little children are suffering from lack of play, games, and also from lack of knowledge of how to play them. They imitate the older boys, the shining lights whose names appear on the sporting pages of the newspapers, instead of playing games more suitable to their age.

EIGHTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Special Services at St. Paul's Church on Sunday

Tomorrow (Sunday) St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will celebrate its eighty-first anniversary, the church having been formed in 1834. The special preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Dr. Dickie, minister of Crescent Presbyterian Church, Montreal, one of the largest and most important churches in that city. Dr. Dickie is a most practical and convincing preacher, a man of broad culture and wide reading. He is possessed of a commanding presence and is most dignified and reverent in style. Large congregations should be present to hear Dr. Dickie. There will be special music at both services and Miss Dorothy Allan, who will sing at both morning and evening services, has been asked to repeat Sir Edward Elgar's great patriotic solo, "Land of Hope and Glory," at the evening service, as a tribute to those who have fallen in the cause of justice and freedom. The choir will sing Haydn's "The Heavens Are Telling the Glory of God," "He, Watching Over Israel, Slumbers Not nor Sleeps" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." "For Thee, O Dear, Dear Country," and "Thine Is the Kingdom" from Gaul's "Holy City."

Mr. J. A. Gibbs, former well known real estate dealer in the city, has branched out into the livery business and will henceforth operate the business conducted by Garnet Innis and Isaac Noble. Mr. Gibbs is in a position to cater to all kinds of trade in that line, and his equipment consists of all the hacks and other vehicles owned by the two former livery men whom he has bought out. He has added to this extensive equipment a fine Overland touring car. Mr. Gibbs has had a good grasp on the livery business, and he expects to have all the patronage enjoyed by the two livery men whom he bought out as well as considerable new business, and he respectfully solicts the liberal patronage of the public. Extensive alterations to the house formerly occupied by Mr. Innis are being made.

What's in a Name.

How we like to hypnotize ourselves with names! Take, for example, the case of the muskrat, an animal of most clean feeding habits, whose flesh is sweet, tender and of delicate flavor. In the winter months muskrat meat is in considerable demand in the markets of the middle Atlantic states, but it sells best as "marsh rabbit" or "water squirrel." So, too, the students of the old Latin quarter in Paris when they expressed a mild doubt of the possibility of rabbit pie at so modest a price were reassured by the suggestion that it might be the "rabbit of the roofs."—Youth's Companion.

Breaking the News.

"Sis won't be able to see you tonight, Mr. Jones," said her little brother. "She's had a tur'ble accident."

"Is that so? What happened?"

"All her hair got burned up."

"Good heavens! Was she burned?"

"Naw; she wasn't there. She don't know about it yet."—Lippincott's.

Sergeant, Call The Roll

(This poem was published in Black and White ten years ago.)

For those who strew our battlefields
No passing bell shall toll;
Report the living and the dead—
Sergeant, call the roll.

Shew us the price of victory,
Just say what it has cost;
Say what the Motherland has gained,
And also what she's lost.

Give tidings of our soldier sons
To the patient hearts that yearn,
That are waiting for a message
From the lads who will ne'er return.

They have answered God's field order,
Given death the last salute;
The guns are now unlimbered
And the cannon's roar is mute.

What shall we tell our little ones
When they in sadness yearn
For the fond and loving faces
That will never more return?

What pictures will glow in the embers,
Of faces fond and true,
Of those who died whilst fighting
For the old Red, White and Blue?

PUBLIC MEETING IN INTERESTS OF W.C.T.U.

A meeting of special interest to the members and friends of the local W. C. T. U. was held on Thursday evening in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, the special feature of which was an address given by Mrs. A. O. Rutherford, nonorary president of the Dominion W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Whalley, the president, occupied the chair, and after devotional exercises, and a well rendered solo by Mr. Downey, introduced the speaker of the evening, who, in a well-rounded and comprehensive address, a full report of which appeared in yesterday's Review, dealt with the world-wide work of the W. C. T. U., giving her hearers an insight of the work many of them had not previously known.

She spoke in no uncertain terms condemning the use of the wet canteen among our Canadian soldiers at the front, citing instances where young men have learned to do their first drinking by having it served to them as daily rations.

Mrs. Rutherford again addressed the W. C. T. U. at their regular meeting on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Rutherford was tendered a vote of thanks for her eloquent address, also the pastor and trustees of the church who had so kindly thrown open the doors, and also to Mr. Downey and Mr. Fisher for their vocal and musical services, and to all who had helped in any way to make the meeting so helpful and profitable.

MISS ANNIE LONG HURT BY HORSE

Was Knocked Down on Stepping From Curb

Miss Annie Long of Otonabee had a narrow escape from injury this afternoon about 3 o'clock when she was run down by a horse at the corner of Simcoe and George St. The young lady stepped off the curb in company with a friend, Mrs. Chamberlain, and was struck by a horse coming west on Simcoe St. She was knocked down but bystanders stopped the horse before any further injury was done. The young lady was assisted to Payne's Drug Store where Dr. Eastwood was summoned. He removed her to his surgery. She did not appear to be injured but was badly shaken up and frightened.

The horse was from Jones' livery stable and was driven by Vincent O'Toole, an employe of the livery. Those who witnessed the accident stated that O'Toole was in no way to blame as the young lady stepped directly in front of the horse before he had time to stop.

Vaudeville Cut Out for a Time at The Royal Theatre

Mr. M. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal Theatre, has returned from a weeks' business trip to Toronto. Mr. Pappas has decided, beginning on Monday, to cut out vaudeville from the Royal. His reason for this is that the summer is now on. During the summer months the best vaudeville performers are engaged at high salaries at the various parks. Mr. Pappas will show no vaudeville unless it is the best.

His visit to Toronto was to arrange with the film exchanges to supply the Royal with the best films that money can secure. There will be nine reels, all new, shown daily, which will display the world's best actors. The daily program will include tragedy, comedy, melo-drama and scenic pictures, all of highest grade. A complete change of pictures will be made every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Mr. Pappas will now give his personal and exclusive attention to the Royal Theatre, which, with his years of experience, will assure patrons of the Royal getting the best value for their money. It is now up to the public to decide where they get the best for their money.

Grand Trunk Campaigns To Bring American Tourists to Canada

The Grand Trunk System, by giving the widest possible circulation to its illustrated folders descriptive of the beauties of Canada, and by its general advertising, is inviting the thousands of United States tourists who ordinarily seek vacation pleasures in Europe to visit Canada this year.

"The most charming summer resorts in America," is the claim put forward by the railway for these Canadian beauty spots. Among the literature which is being used in this campaign is a handsome illustrated booklet of sixty-four pages entitled "Playgrounds of Canada." It deals with practically all the Dominion's summer resorts and gives visitors full information as to game and fish-laws, customs regulations, etc. It is an admirable guide for Canadians who are planning vacations as well as for their cousins to the south, and it can be obtained on request from C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

POSTAGE STAMPS TO PAY WAR TAX

Enquiries having been received in regard to postage stamps being used for the prepayment of war duties on bank cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, express money orders, proprietory medicines, perfumery, wines or champagne, as well as upon letters and postcards, postal notes and post office money orders, notice is hereby given that this use of postage stamps is in strict accordance with the provisions of the Special War Revenue Act, 1915, which provides that postage stamps may be used in lieu of Inland Revenue War Stamps in fulfilment and discharge of any requirement under the Act that adhesive stamps be affixed.

No Reciprocity in Auto Licenses

Toronto, May 1.—The Ontario Motor League, which organized the big deputation to wait upon the Government and ask for reciprocity in automobile licenses with the United States, has received a reply from Hon. W. H. Hearst, containing the decision of the Government not to make any such change this year at least.

The last of many requests for reciprocity was made on March 23rd by a deputation gathered from all parts of the province. In the House Hon. W. J. Hanna had made it clear that the Government was not ready to grant reciprocity at the present stage, but the deputation came up nevertheless. After hearing addresses from several spokesmen for the deputation, Hon. Mr. Hearst promised consideration, but his remarks did not raise among the gathering any special hope that the appeal would be granted.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 3. — The British official statement dated today says: "At seven o'clock Saturday evening, Germans attacked Hill Number Sixty, and Sunday evening they attacked near St. Julien, but both attacks were repulsed.

Sixteen men and two women aboard barely had time to make their escape in small boats. After cruising about for two hours they were picked up by a Danish schooner and landed at Lemvig, Denmark.

Berlin Says Russian Front in Western Galicia Has Been Pierced

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Constantinople, May 3.—The Turkish war department today gave out a statement saying in consequence of attacks proceeding successfully for us, the enemy has not succeeded in improving his position on the coast of Gallipoli Peninsula. Fire of our batteries directed against the enemy at Seddul Bahr shows good results.

The statement claims the French battleship Henri IV. and the British battleship Vengeance have been damaged by shells from the guns of Turkish forts and says the Russian Black Sea fleet demonstrated for an hour off the Bosphorus and then retired rapidly in a northerly direction.

Berlin, May 3.—An army headquarters statement says the Austrians have pierced and broken the entire Russian front in Western Galicia.

FIRE HELD IN ONE ROOM

Jas Middleton's Residence Was Threatened by Fire

FOUR RUNS FOR THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Fire which started in the bathroom threatened to destroy the home of Mr. James Middleton at 247 Park Street, this morning about eleven o'clock. Although quickly controlled it spread into an adjoining bedroom and effected damage in the neighborhood of $200.

Exactly how it started is a mystery. When the department arrived the blaze had gained quite a start, but the chemical tanks held it in check until a line of hose was laid. The furniture and bed in the bedroom was ruined and the walls blackened by smoke but the flames were not allowed to penetrate more than the one room. It was a nasty little blaze however but had the department been equipped with a chemical engine it could have been extinguished without the hose being utilized. The house is one of a terrace owned by Miss Nichol, 216 McDonnel Street.

The fire department were called out three times Saturday night. A blaze in the rear of the Bethany Tabernacle at 7.39 resulting from a bon fire, was quickly extinguished without causing any damage. At 9.31 a chimney fire on Stewart St. sent them out again but it was under control in no time, causing no damage. But they had one more call before the night was over. This time some one having dropped a cigarette stub, it is thought, down the grating in front of Merrell and Meredith's store. It burned some timbers there and the smoke entered Woolworth's store but not enough to damage any of the stock worth mentioning.

In reporting the police court proceedings the Lindsay Post says:— This is one of the last, if not the last case to come before His Honor Judge Harding before his superannuation from the bench in the course of the next month; and it was felt that this was indeed a fitting close to a long and honorable career on the bench.

MORE 57TH MEN ARE WOUNDED

Reports on Privates Saunders, Mesley, Garrett and Robertson --- Lieut. Matthews Has Recovered --- Dr. Greer, Lieut. Ackerman, Sergt. Ackerman and Lieut. Jones are Safe

LANCE CORP. ELLIS ON LIST

The suspense of the past few days in particular was lightened yesterday morning for Mrs. Jesse Saunders, 177 Sherbrooke street, when word came from Ottawa that her son, Pte. Harold Saunders, had been wounded.

Pte. Saunders is probably the youngest member of the 57th contingent, which left Peterborough last August. He reached his seventeenth birthday on April 20. He is of good height and well developed, two qualifications that won for him the approval of the medical examiners. Pte. Saunders is a member of Murray street Baptist church.

His father, Mr. Jesse Saunders, who was a clerk in the Brock street store of Matthews-Blackwell, Limited, is confined to the hospital.

Pte. Ernest Mesley.

Pte. Ernest Mesley, also reported wounded, lived with his parents at the corner of Stewart and Dalhousie streets. His parents were greatly relieved when they got the news from Ottawa, and his father expressed considerable satisfaction in knowing that his son was not a prisoner. Pte. Mesley is 23 years old, and has been a member of the 57th Regiment. He worked in the armature department of the C. G. E.

Some Good News.

Dr. T. N. Greer received a cable this morning from Major Beattie, chaplain of the First Brigade, which includes the Second Battalion. Major Beattie cabled that Dr. Garnet Greer, Lt. C. Ackerman, Sergt. Arthur Ackerman and Lt. Jones were safe. The last named left with the Dragoons. His home is in Bowmanville.

Pte. Stanley Garrett.

Mr. Wm. Garrett of Otonabee has been informed that his son, Pte. Stanley Garrett of A Company, Second Battalion, has been wounded. Pte. Garrett left with the 57th boys. He was one of the local milk vendors.

Lieut. H. S. Matthews.

"Harold quite recovered," was the welcome news received by Mr. T. F. Matthews this morning in a cable from London.

Lieut. Matthews' numerous friends will be pleased to learn of his recovery.

Pte. Jas. Robertson

Pte. James Robertson, who at the date of enlistment resided on Parnell street, also is among the wounded. He was a sergeant in the 57th Regiment. His family now reside in the country, just beyond Jackson Park.

Lance Corporal Ellis.

The casualty list for the Second Battalion also gives the name of Lance Corporal William Gerald B. Ellis, who was wounded. He was a sergeant in No. 5 Company, 57th Regiment, and one of the most enthusiastic members. Corporal Ellis held the position of accountant at the Review office and he boarded at the Montgomery House. His home is in Richmond, Surrey, England.

Received Knife Wounds.

BELLEVILLE, May 3. — Pte. C. Childs, of C Company, 39th Battalion, which mobilized in this city, was Saturday night placed in the military hospital suffering from three ugly scalp wounds which were inflicted with a table knife in the hands of Alexander T. Gilmore, who has been placed under arrest. The wounds were of such a nature as to require several stitches in them.

Lieut. Hopkins Going.

Lieut. L. W. Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hopkins, Cambridge street north, who has been stationed at Belleville, received word that he has been selected as one of the officers to go with a section of the Third Contingent which leaves at once for England to reinforce the First Contingent.

This will be the third member of the Hopkins family who have left for the front. They are Lt.-Col. F. Holmes Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hopkins, with the First Contingent, Lieut. Herb Hopkins, son of Major and Mrs. Eustace Hopkins, of Ops, with the engineers of the Second Contingent, now in France, and Lt. L. W. Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hopkins, who is now leaving.

Brothers Killed.

In the list of killed, appears the name of Major (Dr.) W. W. Nasmith, who practised at Janetville for some years. His widow and son now reside at Windsor. His brother, Major J. T. H. Nasmith of Lindsay, was also killed. He resided on Glenelg St., with his wife, who left Lindsay when her husband enlisted to live with her sister, Miss Armstrong, of Janetville.

No Word of Pte. Phipps.

Mrs. Phipps, mother of Pte. Arthur Phipps, cabled to her son a few days ago, asking him to cable if he was safe, but up to the present she has received no word from him. She sent her message direct to him in France, expecting it would reach him when the Canadians were relieved.

In yesterday's list of wounded was the name of Ernest Phipps, of Aylestone, Leicester, England, but so far as Mrs. Phipps knows he is no relative of hers.

SUDDEN CALL TO MRS. J. F. STAPLES

With shocking suddenness death came early Sunday morning to Margaret Howden, wife of Joseph F Staples, Lot 14, Con. 11, in the township of Cavan. Mrs. Staples retired at her usual time Saturday night, but about twelve o'clock she was taken suddenly ill and by one o'clock was dead.

The deceased was in her fifty-first year and was one of the best known residents of Cavan where she enjoyed a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. She leaves a husband, one son and two daughters, Samuel, Luella and Helen, all living at home. Her sisters are Mrs. Thomas Morrow, Edinburgh Street, Mrs. Alex. Walsh, Perrytown, Mrs. Jas. A. Storey, Weller Street, Mrs. C. Lowes, Millbrook. The brothers are R. J. Howden, Peterborough and R. H. Howden of Cavan.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence in Cavan to the 9th line cemetery, service at the house at 1.30.

A CYNICAL EDITOR.

The Walkerton Herald, in a recent issue, says:—Five happy, laughing, wedding couples on whom the nuptial knot had just been tied, drove into Walkerton on Tuesday and had their pictures taken. It is always well to get them taken before the smile comes off, for pictures of married couples when taken later always seem to be minus the smiles. It is, therefore, nice for the grooms to look back and see how happy they once were before wrestling with coal bills and the rise in flour. Know nothing, fear nothing, probably accounts for the smiles on most wedding photos, but the man, who is caught laughing later should be viewed with suspicion.

DO THE LIBERALS WANT PRECEDENTS?

IT HAS BEEN SAID that an election this year in Canada would be contrary to constitutional practice, and especially so if Great Britain is considered as an example. According to the Canadian Constitution, the duration of a Parliament shall not exceed five years, but in practice there have been only two Parliaments in Canada since Confederation that endured the full legal term. These were the first Parliament, Conservative, from November 6th, 1867, to July 8th, 1872, and the seventh Parliament, Conservative, from April 29th, 1891, to April 24th, 1896. The practice has been thus well established to have an election every four years. Even at that, the time element lengthens out practically to five years, for after the fourth or final session has been prorogued, some time usually elapses before Parliament is dissolved, and then another period passes before the actual election takes place. After the election, the new Parliament is not summoned for some time, so that these periods may lengthen almost to a year. Thus, the eighth Parliament prorogued July 18th, 1900, dissolved October 9th, 1900, and the new ninth Parliament opened February 6th, 1901, making a period of nearly seven months between the close of the last session of one Parliament and the opening of the next, and this period may be shortened or lengthened, according to circumstances. Thus, if an election is held this year, the duration of the present Parliament will be actually little short of five years. But without considering this point, which is of minor importance, the Liberal party has, without exception, established the rule that an election should take place every four years.

The Liberal party has done more—it has established a precedent for holding an election during the stress and strain of war. On October 9th, 1900, Parliament was dissolved in the very midst of the great Boer War. Did the Globe at that time protest against an election in war time? Did it cry out against snap verdicts and khaki elections? Oh, no. Neither did Sir Wilfrid Laurier nor any of his supporters consider for one moment the safety of the Empire, as they are pleased to call it now, before the favourable opportunity for an election. In 1900, the election had no great issues at stake. It was for the Liberals a question of record and support for the Government in war time. It was purely a snap verdict election. Sir Robert Borden has no need for such an election now, nor is he going to call for such an election. If he goes to the people, it will be to seek their approval for his policy on a series of problems as great as any that have arisen since Confederation.

But the Liberals hold up England as an example and say we should imitate that country. In the first place, the constitutional term of Parliament in Great Britain is seven years, although the practice has been to appeal to the people every five years. If, in exceptional cases, as the present, it is expedient for Parliament to sit longer than five years, it has the legal right to a considerable extension of time, which a Canadian Government has not. But even Great Britain has established a precedent for a war election. In 1900 the Government of Great Britain appealed to the people in the midst of the Boer War. It was victorious at that time, and there were army supply scandals in that campaign which were due to the press of time and circumstance. Blunders were committed on the field of battle, the War Office wasc blamed right and left, yet the Government called an election and was returned, because, no doubt, the voters realized what a government has to encounter under the exacting duties which a war places upon it. Even the equipment of the Canadian expeditionary force to South Africa was not accomplished without scandals of a serious character, yet Sir Wilfrid called an election and was returned with a substantial majority.

If we put aside these many precedents and consider just the present time, there is every reason for an election. The Liberals in Canada flagrantly violated the party truce, they challenged the Government many times to call an election, they adopted partizan tactics and a nagging form of criticism, all of which is in striking contrast to the demeanour and criticism of the Opposition in the British House of Commons. The Liberals in Canada point to the Imperial House of Commons as an example to the Conservative Government, but they have failed utterly to emulate the example of the Opposition in the Imperial House. The Opposition at Ottawa was, in the last session, as different from the Opposition in England as day is from night. The Liberal press has aped the attitude of its masters. The Globe deprecates in leading editorials an election in war time, and whacks the Conservatives throughout the two following columns of partizan but dignified prose. The tactics of the Liberal leaders, both in and out of Parliament, have been partizan and inconsistent to a noticeable degree. Surely, if a government was ever justified in an election, the Borden Government is. But, although egged on to an election from all quarters, it will not call an election for this reason, justified as it would be in doing so. The election will be to decide problems of great importance. That is why the Government's position is so strong and why the Liberals are so much afraid of the coming contest.

LAURIER'S RAILWAY POLICY HAS FAILED.

THE INEVITABLE has happened. As the Conservatives predicted, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's railway policy has failed miserably, and Canada now has to operate or scrap the N. T. R. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has finally refused to take over the National Transcontinental Railway. Negotiations which have been in progress for some months between the Government and the company have at length terminated in the latter's decision not to carry out their contract to take over the road, and, as a result, the Government has decided to make the best of this wretched bungle and operate the Moncton-to-Winnipeg division. At the same time the Lake Superior division of the Grand Trunk Pacific lying between Superior Junction and Fort William and including the terminals at the latter place, is also to be acquired and operated. The jurisdiction of the general officers of the Canadian Government Railways will extend over these new lines and they will take immediate charge. The employees of the Grand Trunk Pacific Company on the line between Fort William and Winnipeg will be absorbed into the Government Railways' staff.

The refusal of the G. T. P. to operate the N. T. R., built at a cost of about $173,000,000, emphasizes the weakness of the contract made with the company by the Laurier Government. The agreement provided no means of determining when the road was definitely completed and provided no security upon which the Government could compel the company to execute the contract and operate the line. The result is that in addition to the cost of operation the Government will have to provide, out of the public revenue, for the enormous interest charges which were to have been offset by the rental to be paid by the Grand Trunk Pacific.

It is thus seen that Laurier has saddled Canada with a debt of $173,000,000 sunk in a railway which, the G. T. R. management believes with reason, is incapable of paying its operating expenses. The road has cost an enormous amount of money more than the original estimates, and now, when it is built, the country is stung for the interest on this huge amount of money that Sir Wilfrid declared would come from G. T. P., and, in addition, has to shoulder the immense expense of operating it. In the building of this line, graft has flourished to a remarkable degree, dirt cuttings being charged up as rock cutting, and it was largely because of the extravagance and waste in the construction of the road, causing the cost of it to rise beyond any profit-paying basis, that the G. T. P. has refused to take it over. It represents a monument to incompetent statesmanship for which Sir Wilfrid and his followers are directly responsible. The pathetic feature of the affair is that the people have to foot the bill during war time.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Where Is the Disgrace?

(Toronto News.)

If Parliament should be dissolved, why should we have a "frightful" election? No one assails the loyalty of the Liberal party. There are thousands of Liberals fighting in the trenches. We could raise an army in Canada if no Conservatives were allowed to enlist. But, while this is true of the Liberal party, it is just as true that its leaders have sought to take advantage of an unprecedented crisis and that they demand an attitude in the Government which they have not adopted themselves. Are there any greater issues affecting a free country than those which enter into a general election, and why should consideration of these issues, even in time of war, be objectionable or discreditable?

Prisoners From Submarines.

(London Times.)

The Germans maintain that orders are not merely an excuse, but a justification, for any enormity, even for the wholesale sacrifice of innocent life. That is a view wholly incompatible with any theory of positive morality and wholly repugnant to the doctrines of any law which is founded, as English law is founded, upon the principles of that morality. Whatever may be the view of German jurists, it is a well established rule of our law that superior orders are no defence in the case of a soldier who has committed a crime. If he shoots a man and has no better defence he is liable to be tried, and, on conviction, to be hanged. Responsible opinion in this country has not, however, demanded that submarine prisoners should be brought to trial for these acts, or that they should be treated with harshness.

Russia's Awakening.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The change in Russia has no doubt been coming, even before the war, although it was not seen from the outside. But the shock of the stupendous necessity of the war, the necessity for the co-operation of masses and classes alike in Russia was to work out her destiny, was the one thing needed to shatter the hold of old conditions for good. And far more than the political and territorial gain to Russia from the war will be the gain of the fellowship and goodwill of the world.

Swearing Comment.

(Orillia Packet.)

The Port Hope Times says "there is still too much swearing going on" in the streets of that town. The editor of the Millbrook Reporter is still more outspoken, and says he has never been in any other town where blasphemy was so prevalent and so shocking. And yet, no doubt, the people of Port Hope are paying for the services of police constables and a police magistrate. But the town voted overwhelmingly for the liquor traffic, and possibly they do not object strenuously to one of its concomitants.

TOBACCO FOR SOLDIERS.

Editor, Review:

Dear Sir,—I have been requested by the honorary secretary of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Tobacco Fund of Central House, Kingsway, W. C., to state the need of such comfort for the men in the firing line, of whom three-fourths are smokers. Twenty shillings provides twenty men with a half-pound each.

I shall be very glad to forward any subscriptions that may be given. All cheques or orders may be made out to the honorary secretary as above, and should be crossed "Barclay & Co."

Any regiment or ship to which it is desired that the tobacco be sent may be stated, and a post card addressed to the donor is put in every parcel that he may receive a grateful word of thanks from our brave comrades in the firing line.

Yours truly,

C. E. JAMIESON.

Real Joy of Farm Owning.

I am not a gentleman farmer, with a great estate over which I ride once in awhile and leave all the real work to my underlings. I cannot think there would be great fun in this. No; I like to take hold with my Portuguese man and plant and spray and trim and prune. To be sure, he does more than his share of the rough work, and much of the year I must be cultivating other kinds of fields than those that grow cabbages and turnips, but the fun of farming comes from being a real farmer while you are one, getting close to the soil, becoming intimate with every living thing, whether it be a plant or animal; loving your tomato vines and raspberry bushes, taking a real pride in your eggplants and your brussels sprouts, whether you get a prize for them at the county fair or not.—Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark in Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life.

A Recipe For Ghosts.

It is generally understood that "seeing ghosts" is the result of indigestion. The following notes may be useful to amateurs anxious to investigate psychological phenomena:

Lobster salad eaten after midnight, one ordinary ghost with chains.

Two Welsh rabbits and a mince pie, one mysterious gray lady emitting groans.

Cold roast pork, mixed pickles and strong tea taken immediately before retiring, a genuine family specter carrying his head under his arm.

A portion of cake, result of daughter's first lesson at cookery school, a troup of fearsome blood stained hobgoblins with blue lights shining out of empty eye sockets.—New York Journal.

SWEET SEVENTEEN AT ST. ANNES

(1) Ready for a tramp. (2) In the Gym. (3) Fancy dress masquerade. (4) Indian club drill. (5) On the skating rink.

IN the intervals of learning the mysteries of butter-making, bread-baking, encouraging the hens to lay eggs, and all the other arts pertaining to the complete housewife and farmers' daughter, the young ladies of Macdonald College at St. Annes de Bellevue, have a pretty good time. The physical drill keeps them in good health if it is too stormy to go out of doors. There is an excellent skating rink in winter and the Ottawa and the St. Lawrence rivers are at the foot of the college grounds for boating. Once a year at least there is a masquerade, and there are entertainments and concerts galore. They can run into Montreal over the C. P. R. to visit McGill University, to whic. Macdonald College is affiliated. Some of the young ladies are destined to be teachers and go once a week to Montreal schools for practice. The women's residence at Macdonald College is considered the best equipped of its kind in Canada, and is a great asset to the Province of Quebec.

BOWSER'S TRAMPS

By M. QUAD.

"Do you know," began Mr. Bowser after dinner the other evening, "do you know what prevents men from reaching the north pole?"

"Several things," replied Mrs. Bowser, who, being the only one present, took it that the query was addressed to her.

"Yes, several things, but principally because of the cold. But for the awful temperature around the pole men could easily overcome the other difficulties. When the thermometer registers 100 degrees below zero, the life blood of the strongest man congeals. He must either retreat or die."

"Well, what of it?" she asked.

"What of it?" he repeated, with a chuckle. "If you overcome the cold you reach the pole, don't you?"

"And you have found a way of overcoming the cold, I suppose. It is two weeks since you had a fad, and I was wondering what would come next. If you are going to visit the north pole with a lot of hot water bags strapped around your body to keep your temperature at summer heat let's hear about it."

THEY BOTH CHEERFULLY ACCOMPANIED HIM.

"Being as you are a woman, and being as every woman is about half idiot, I can overlook your sarcasm. Your way of encouraging a husband to seek for fame is to belittle every plan he originates. Had Columbus had a wife like you this American continent would have continued to be a paradise for woodchucks. Expecting nothing but ridicule and sarcasm in reply, I will, however ask you a question or two. Suppose that a man going out in a temperature of 20 degrees below zero raises the temperature of his body thirty or forty degrees?"

"That would upset the cold," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Your head is not filled with sawdust after all. Yes, it would work that way, and don't you see my plan? To meet the cold of the north pole we simply keep on raising the temperature. It's the simplest thing in the world, and yet nobody seems to have thought of it. Mrs. Bowser, consider the north pole as reached. Consider it reached by Mr. Bowser!"

He stepped back and bowed before her, and the cat came out from under the lounge and squinted at both and wondered whether it was a question of science or mousetraps.

"Yes, but how are you going to raise the temperature of the body a hundred degrees or more?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

"Just as easy as lifting up your foot. Do you see these lozenges. They contain no less than six different redhot ingredients, including cayenne pepper. Two of them are warranted to make the blood fairly boil and cause the temperature around the pole to seem like an August day in America. I shall at once consult the government about sending out an expedition. The government provides the ship, and Bowser's lozenges do the rest."

"But you haven't tried them yet!"

"No, but I am about to do so. I wonder if our cook wouldn't eat one and then sit on a snow bank in the back yard and see how it worked?"

"Of course she wouldn't."

"Well, there are others. I'll find a couple of tramps who'll sit out all night for a quar[illegible] pair of them in at once and get the experiment under way."

"You'd—you'd better wait!" she faltered as he started for the door.

"Why wait?" he asked. "It's a cold night, with snow and tramps at hand for experiment. If an expedition is to be sent out it will wish to start in the spring."

"But it will end in a row."

"It will end in my reaching the north pole and place the name of Bowser alongside of that of Peary. You must keep quiet and let me run this thing."

He put on his hat and overcoat, and it did not take him five minutes to find a couple of tramps who were sloshing about between his house and the corner. When he explained what he wanted and his willingness to pay they both cheerfully accompanied him. As they stood with their backs to the range in the kitchen and hungrily eyed the remains of dinner he took their temperature and pronounced it normal and then escorted them to the back yard. There were snow banks against the fence, and he selected positions and sat them down. It was a keen, cold night, one made to order for such an experiment.

"Now, then," said Mr. Bowser as all was ready, "I take it that you feel cold?"

"W-e d-o!" replied the men in chorus through their chattering teeth.

"That is splendid. I estimate that there is a difference of at least forty degrees between your temperature and that of the weather. You will now each of you take a lozenge in your mouth and let it slowly dissolve. In two minutes your blood ought to be the same temperature as the weather; in five you ought to imagine that robins are singing and daisies blooming around you."

As Mr. Bowser was not experimenting on himself, he discreetly retired to the warm atmosphere of the kitchen and took his stand at a window. He had scarcely began his observations when one of the tramps rolled over and began to kick like a horse tangled up in his harness, while the other sprang to his feet and spat and spluttered and coughed and crammed his mouth full of snow.

"What are you fellows up to?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he rushed out.

They gave him no heed. They seemed to be acrobats let loose, and they went through more antics than if they had picked up a dozen hot horseshoes. It was five minutes before either of them could speak, and then one cooled his mouth with an icicle hanging to the clothesline and stuttered:

"B-b-boss, what s-s-sort of a g-g-game is this?"

"Yes. What sort of a g-g-game?" added the other as a snowball melted in his mouth.

"It's no game at all. It's an experiment, as I told you. What have you done with those lozenges?"

"S-s-spit 'em out, durn ye!"

"Yes, s-s-spit 'em out!"

"But you mustn't do it. These are to raise the temperature of your blood up [illegible] temperature of the atmosphere. If you'd kept sucking the lozenges you'd have been perspiring by this time. Sit down and try it again."

"Bill," said the first as he continued to eat snow and draw in long breaths of the frosty air, "does it look like a cold blooded attempt to burn up the vitals of two respectable gents?"

"It do, Sam; it do."

"And by the burning up our vitals take away our appetite?"

"That's the game."

"If I was playing any game would I promise you a quarter apiece?" asked Mr. Bowser.

"It's my solemn opinyun that ye would!"

"That's our solemn opinyun!"

Mr. Bowser was about to protest and increase his cash offers when the two gentlemen with burned vitals fell upon him. The three went down together, and Mrs. Bowser, looking from a back window, and the cook and cat looking from the back door, could see nothing for the next two minutes for the cloud of snow in the air. Then the two tramps detached themselves from the circus and climbed the yard fence, and the household went out to look for Mr. Bowser. There were thousands of traces of him on hand, but it took three minutes to discover his actual presence and dig it out from under the snow. He had been thumped and kicked and choked, but life had not departed. He soon rallied and sat up, and after being helped to his feet he made his woozy way to the kitchen and thence upstairs. He did not ask what had happened, and Mrs. Bowser gave him a rest of fifteen minutes on the lounge before she said:

"With your temperature at the point it is do you think you can reach the north pole?"

He lifted up his head and glared at her.

"I suppose the government ought to be notified at once, and if you don't feel well I can do it myself."

Another glare, followed by a gritting of his teeth, and it was ten minutes before she observed:

"I've told the cook to heat witch hazel to wash off the blood. Do you wish for any particular temperature?"

But Mr. Bowser had grown weary of the north pole and fallen asleep, and she counted seven different scratches on his nose and wondered how he'd look on the street on the morrow.

The Wrecker.

Fire can wreck the home and leave it
Desolate and in despair;
Bursting bathroom plumbing also
Scatters ruin everywhere;

Change its neatness to disgrace.

California and the Wonderful Exposition

A WONDERFUL EXPOSITION in a wonderful land—The Panama-Pacific International Exposition in California. The imagination thrills and sparkles at such a conjunction of sight-seeing opportunities. A trip to California in itself has proved and always will prove most fascinating; the great exposition in itself will prove a most liberal education but the opportunity of enjoying both in 1915 has attracted interest and attention throughout the world.

Whatever our love for our own State, it may be granted that the most of us wish to see California and test its claims for beauty, diversity, climate and opportunities. The thousands who have sought California's sunlit valleys, snow-capped mountains, golden beaches and enjoyed its wonderful climate have spread the story and now a trip to this western State is the one desire held in common by every man, woman and child of the North American continent.

The commercial metropolis of the Pacific Coast is San Francisco, and the grandeur of San Francisco Bay and harbor is prominent among California's attractions. It is particularly fitting that an exposition which celebrates an event of such significance to the Pacific area should be located at San Francisco. The site of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is described as wonderfully well chosen, for natural beauty, accessibility and suitability for the purpose.

Imagine an amphitheatre some two miles long and about one-half mile wide, backed by low hills and fronting for its entire length on the blue waters of the famous bay. Across a mile or more of smiling blue water rise the picturesque Marin hills, topped by cloud-capped Mount Tamalpais. Beyond, to the west, is the famous Golden Gate. Beyond that, the broad Pacific.

On this site the greatest architects of America, with unlimited funds, assisted by the most prominent artists, sculptors and landscape gardeners of the world are building an Exposition City which will live in the memory of those who see it as long as memory itself exists.

The products of every clime, the triumphs of every industry and the best in every handicraft will be placed in selective and competitive display to be viewed by the peoples of all nations. In its amusement district some three hundred of the country's most famous purveyors of fun will prepare their latest novelties for your recreation.

MANY FAMOUS PAINTINGS HAVE MYSTERIOUSLY VANISHED

Hundreds of Portraits by Reynolds Are Among the Missing Treasures, Besides Masterpieces of Correggio, Titan, du Vinci and Others

There are many famous paintings by the old masters that have mysteriously vanished. They are known to have been painted, but their whereabouts has been an enigma for several hundred years.

From time to time lost pictures come again to the knowledge of the world, as when the original of the Dulwich Velasquez, the "Philip IV.," was found in a Polish nobleman's castle; when the portrait of Isabel de Valois, King Philip II.'s third wife, by Coello—the original of that by Pantoja de la Cruz in the Prado—was finally identified at the Grafton gallery, to which the Gaekwar of Baroda had lent it; when Titian's "Perseus and Ariadne" was found by Sir Claude Phillips in the bathroom of Hertford House, and Botticelli's "Pallas and the Centaur" was identified by an English critic, forgotten and unnoticed in an obscure place in the Uffizi gallery—a queer place to lose a picture in.

It is declared that no fewer than 400 portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds have disappeared. The historians of art—the "Anonimo," Vassari and many another—speak with admiration of pictures so innumerable which have passed into the limbo of the unknown that the announcement of a discovery is rarely treated with absolute skepticism, even in the case of the greatest masters. There is plenty of room for the appearance of a number of early works by Valesquez—de Beruete gives a list of them—but especially the portrait of Fonseca, which gave to Velesquez his footing in Madrid, and more particularly the equestrian portrait of Philip IV., which placed him so quickly upon the pedestal.

Or take Correggio. There is the picture of "The Savior," a copy of which hangs in the Prado. There is the "Repose In Egypt," the "Herodias" triptych, the "St. Bartholomew," the "Young Man Fleeing From the Captors of Christ," "The Birth of Venus" and "St. Mary Magdalen" and others besides—all lost.

And Titian (a group of whose masterpieces were burned in a great English country house), where on earth is his portrait of Isabella Gonzaga and her son, which is known to us through the copy by Pordenone? Giorgione also. He is so rare a master—rare alike as to numbers and to quality—that the recovery of his "Birth of Venus" would be an event of the very highest importance in the world of art. The Anonimo speaks of it, but since his day no other writer, so far as experts are aware, has ever set eyes on it.

Although we have so many hundred canvases of that amazing genius, Rubens, the loss of a picture such as his "Cambyses and the Judge" is a distinct deprivation, inasmuch as it is said to have been one of his finest efforts. It was painted in 1623 for the magistrates' hall in the town hall of Brussels, and no less than 3,000 florins was paid for it.

We might spare, perhaps, the "Head of Christ," by Andrea del Sarto (painted in 1524), for similar works of his exist, but it is otherwise with his "Visitation" of the same year, if only because Andrea was a painter of greatest importance, historically considered—he who broke away entirely from Gothic rigidity and introduced a sentiment and a delightful sense of gayety and sweetness that brought art home to hearts untouched by the earlier dignity and gravity which they felt oppressive.

The portraits of Terburg, again, are a delight, and a host of them exist (including not a few not unworthy of him, but really by the hand of his pupil, Koets), yet we cannot read without regret the list of them, as well as of his exquisite subject pictures, which M. Hofstede de Groot's researches have enabled us to make. We may even regard with relative equanimity the disappearance of Nicholas Poussin's "Rinaldo and Armida." But on quite another plane is the mystery of the portraits which Leonardo da Vinci painted for Ludovico Sforza and which vanished into thin air as completely as his "Mona Lisa" a couple of years ago.

The jocund lady re-emerged into the light of day, but the Ludovico portraits are practically beyond hope—unless perchance even now, unsuspected of their identity, they are decorating the upper corridors of some great house, (mines of unexplored wealth) or the back storerooms of minor dealers.—New York Press.

THE LAST SHOT.

Dramatic Incident That Closed the Franco-Prussian War.

There was probably no incident in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 more dramatic than that which marked its close. Herr Forckenbeck, president of the Prussian chamber of deputies, was sent with a colleague to Versailles to congratulate King William upon his election as emperor.

Bismarck, who had just concluded the terms of peace with France, invited them to supper and in the course of the meal said:

"This night at 12 o'clock the last shots will be exchanged between our troops and the French, and I have conceded to the French the honor of the last shot."

Forckenbeck and his colleague left their host before midnight, drew out their watches, stood underneath a lantern of the Hotel du Reservoir and waited. First there was a cannon shot from the German lines; then a solemn stillness; then followed the last reply from Mont Valerien. The tower clock at Versailles struck 12. The French war had ended.—Exchange.

SHELLED AT LONG RANGE

Dunkirk Hit With Guns, Twenty Miles Away

Paris, May 3—Bombardment of Dunkirk was carried out by a specially mounted naval gun at a distance of nearly 21 miles according to an official statement issued by the war office yesterday afternoon. The gun was mounted near Dixmude. A German deserter has reported that for nearly two months engineers from the Krupp works have been installing in the neighborhood of Dixmude, a section in which no fighting has occurred for several months, a naval gun capable of firing at long range. This gun, he said, bombarded Dunkirk, firing at a range of 21 miles.

The tocsin sounded as soon as the first shell exploded, warning the population to rush to the cellars. With but brief intermissions the bombardment lasted for 90 minutes. Shells arrived on an average of five minute intervals. Forty-seven civilians were killed or wounded. Some of the projectiles bored holes in the streets 30 feet across and 20 feet deep. It is believed that this gun has now been put out of action.

In Belgium to the north of Yvres the Germans attempted an attack on the allies' right. They were immediately stopped by rapid fire guns. There is nothing new on the British front.

Immediately Italy declares war Germany will invade Switzerland with two army corps, occupying Zurich and the country around it. This assertion is made positively in last night's Liberte.

Winston Churchill yesterday visited Duchess of Connaught's Canadian Hospital at Cliveden, Waldorf Astor's estate, and talked to many of the patients, some of whom but recently arrived wounded from the Ypres battlefield.

Just For Practice.

"Guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty!" promptly responded the prisoner.

"But you snatched the man's pocketbook," said the judge.

"I admit it."

"And was pursued for three blocks by an angry crowd."

"Yes."

"And still you say you are not guilty?"

"Guilty? Never! I was just in training for a foot race."

SHIPS GO DOWN

Three Americans Among the Sailors Drowned

London, May 3—The oil tank steamship Gulflight, owned by the Gulf Refining Co. of Pittsburg, was torpedoed off Bishops Lighthouse, Scilly Islands, at noon on Saturday by a German submarine. The vessel was badly damaged and the crew was landed at Scilly by a patrol boat.

Of the crew of 36, 33 were saved. Two jumped overboard and were drowned and the captain later died of heart failure as a result of the shock. The vessel was beached. The Gulflight was laden with naptha from Port Arthur, Texas, for Rouen.

"If it is so that a German submarine, or, for that matter, any submarine, has torpedoed the steamer Gulflight as is reported, the United States faces the most serious situation since the war began," declared Frederick R. Coudert, New York, the noted authority on international law, to-day.

The French steamer Europe also was torpedoed by a submarine and sunk off the Scilly Islands. The crew was picked up by a fishing smack and landed at Newlyn, Cornwall, England. The British steamer Fulgent was sunk off Skelling Rocks, southwest of County Kerry, Ireland in the dark early on Saturday morning also by a German submarine. The master was shot and killed and his body taken into one of the boats. Later the boat was picked up by a trawler and its occupants landed at [illegible]. It is feared the remainder of the crew who occupied a second boat which has not been found have been lost. The Greek steamer Fotis from Galveston and Norfolk for Rotterdam has been taken into Blyth, England, by a British prize crew. It is alleged that she carried a cargo of contraband believed to be destined for Germany.

Caesar Used Elephants In Britain.

Tradition has it that Caesar brought elephants with him to Britain and that they contributed to his conquest of the island. Having unsuccessfully attempted to cross the Thames, Caesar built a large turret on an elephant and, loading it with bowmen and slingers, ordered them to pass the stream, whereupon the Britons, terrified at the sight of the unknown monster, fled in confusion.—London Chronicle.

BOTHA WINS

Cape Town, May 3—The following official statement regarding the operations in South Africa was issued yesterday:

"General McKenzie's mounted force, which was designated to cut off the Germans, who retreated northward along the railway, inflicted a serious defeat on them in the vicinity of Gibeon. The Union forces, by destroying the railway north of Gibeon, captured the whole railway train, a number of transport wagons, a great quantity of live stock, two field guns, several Maxims and 200 prisoners."

Fighting in Mexico.

Washington, May 3—Gen. Villa telegraphed his agent here last night that the battle between his forces and Obregon's near Leon lasted "almost four hours with complete success." Villa says: "Our losses were 20 dead and 30 wounded. The enemy was driven back. We inflicted a loss of more than 200 killed and captured four machine guns and other munitions of war. The enemy has lost in these last fights more than 800 dead and many wounded, eight machine guns and much war material."

No Election Date Yet

Sir Robert Borden made the following statement yesterday: "The announcement that Parliament has been dissolved and that elections were to be held on the 28th of June is absolutely inaccurate and unfounded. Parliament has not been dissolved. The subject has not been definitely considered, and any report to the contrary is entirely imaginative."

[illegible]

"Is he a fighter?"

"In his way."

"In his way?"

"Yes."

"But what is his way?"

"He is a chronic objector to the general run of things and has it all figured out theoretically to such an extent that he has used up all his energy in theory, so has nothing left for practical purposes."

GERMAN WAS SHOT DEAD

Attempted to Escape From Guards at Montreal

Montreal, May 3—A German prisoner attempting to escape yesterday was shot dead by guards. One hundred and sixteen Germans held as war captives were being taken from Montreal detention headquarters to be sent to Spirit Lake, when, at Bonaventure Station one broke from the ring of guards and attempted to dash to liberty. The guards called upon him to stop. When he kept on running the order to fire was given. The fleeing man fell dead.

German Spy as Priest.

Some interesting and authentic sidelights on the war in France are given in a letter from Mr. Paul Rochat of Toronto, at present in the 113th Regiment of French Infantry. Mr. Rochat writes from a hospital in Dijon, where he has been lying wounded for the last three months.

"In a village," he writes, "to which the regiment had retired for a few days' rest, the doctors and several officers, about twenty in number, looking for a house to rest in, met a kindly priest. He said to them: 'I have a fine house for you to rest in. Come with me. I shall give you a good dinner, my children, and to-morrow morning I shall say Mass for you and bless you.' [illegible] his invitation with [illegible] down in front of a good dinner. The priest disappeared, and ten minutes later a shell burst over the house. They hurried out, just in time to escape destruction before a second shell destroyed the house. They looked for the priest, but he was not to be found. A few days later they took some prisoners, among whom was an officer who was none other than the 'kindly' priest."

ISLAND COLONY IS GIVING 2,000 MEN TO THE EMPIRE

She is Recruiting More Soldiers and Sailors Proportionately to Her Population Than Any Other Section of the Empire

The departure a few weeks ago of the first company of 250 men of Newfoundland's second contingent for the British forces was accompanied by a unique circumstance probably unknown in the military history of any country. The transport was unable to reach within 20 miles of St. John's owing to ice floes blockading the harbor, and the detachment had to be embarked on the sealing steamer Neptune off St. John's, which took twelve hours to force her way through the floes until she reached the Dominion and put the men aboard, and then she spent all next day cutting a channel for the liner through the ice until she was able to reach open water and proceed on her voyage.

When the war broke out Newfoundland undertood to raise a military contingent of 500 men and to raise to 1,000 the Colonial Naval Reserve already in existence and fixed at a maximum of 600 by the Admiralty. The 500 men for land service were soon over-enlisted, and when the first Canadian contingent crossed in October, advantage was taken of the opportunity to despatch their men at the same time and so avail of the convoy, and accordingly the battalion, 540 strong, left St. John's in the large sealing steamer Florizel, joined the convoy off Cape Race, and in due course reached Plymouth.

In the meantime the patriotic spirit of the young men of the colony demanded opportunities for further enlistment, and this was strengthened by general popular sentiment with the idea that a full battalion of a thousand might be enlisted so that the Newfoundland force might go to the front as a unit, and the colony gain whatever credit might result from its work, as, failing the enlistment of a thousand men, the contingent would be broken up and lose its identity by being merged with other forces in the Old Country. Very soon another 500 men were enrolled and the training of these men pushed forward as rapidly as possible. Of course, it must be remembered that Newfoundland suffered from the drawback of having no military force whatever, no trained officers or men, and no equipment that could be utilized, except some discarded British army rifles utilized for training cadet brigades.

The providing of outfits, clothing, etc., was also quite a task, but by the latter part of January everything was ready for the despatch of 250, and drill with the second contingent was sufficiently advanced to justify their being sent forward as soon as proper transport could be secured. The Allan liners plying on the Newfoundland route were not available, having been pre-empted by the Admiralty for the purpose of taking over drafts of naval reservists from Newfoundland, the enlisting of which was proceeding concurrently with that of the military force, and at intervals of every three or four weeks 150 men were despatched, this being the maximum number for which the two Allan liners Mongolian and Carthaginian, had accommodation. A further trouble was that in mid-winter, with the coast ice-blockaded, liners are disinclined to venture near the Newfoundland seaboard, and, indeed, the Allan liners abandoned the service entirely during February, March and April. However, the White Star Liner Dominion undertook to call at St. John's on her voyage from Philadelphia, and in due course hove up off St. John's.

The martial ardor of the people is being stimulated to still further efforts, and the decision has just been reached, in view of the number offering, to enlist another 250 men, which will provide for a full company to be held as a reserve at the base in England, in addition to the battalion 1,080 strong.

Mr. W. D. Reid, president of the Reid Newfoundland Company, the great corporation which controls the local transportation by land and sea, through its trains and steamboats, has made a personal gift to the regiment of two machine guns, an essential part of the equipment of a full battalion, and an expert from Montreal will train the section of 20 men which will operate these two guns when in the field. This splendid gift is very appreciatively received by the people of the colony, as it is an addition to a gift of $5,000 in cash made by Mr. Reid's company in the shape of one day's pay each, and also the free transportation by his trains and steamers of all volunteers for the military and naval forces.

Including the second company of the second contingent, which will probably cross with the second Canadian contingent, and which will mean a thousand soldiers from Newfoundland in the Old Country, and with a thousand naval reservists from Newfoundland also across there, which number will have been sent forward by the same time (including 100 assigned to the Canadian warship Niobe at the opening of hostilities), Newfoundland will then have in England 2,000 men, or the equivalent, on a population basis of 64,000 from Canada, which number will not be made up from first and second Canadian contingents. In other words, Newfounland will then have a larger force, proportionately, in England than any of the other self-governing dependencies of the Empire.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

Toronto Paper Claims to Have Inside "Langemarck" Information

Toronto, May 3—The World this (Monday) morning says:

At 1 o'clock this morning The World got further information as to the engagement at Langemarck, and, while we cannot give our authority at the moment, it would indicate that the Canadians suffered very severely, and that the total casualties will run into thousands and the killed into hundreds. The Canadian troops were assailed by an immense force of Germans, probably five to one, and fought them for one afternoon and through the night, holding their position in a most gallant and courageous way, but as to how many killed and how many were wounded, no definite information is as yet to hand. Apparently, in face of overhelming odds in the number of Germans who attacked the Canadians it seems that no support of any kind came to our troops, and that the general in command had failed in the duty of protecting them.

HONORED MEMORY OF DEAD OFFICER

Many Citizens Join in Memorial Service at St. John's Church

Very solemn and impressive was the service in St. John's Anglican Church last evening, held in memory of the late Major W. Bennett, the first Peterborough officer to lay down his life in the great battle of the Empire. The venerable old building, within the walls of which the late hero had but a few short months ago participated in the farewell military services, was taxed to its utmost by a congregation embracing all classes and creeds. The city officials, members of the city council, military comrades of Major Bennett who served with him twenty years ago, members of the Overseas Contingent in the city on furlough, friends and acquaintances of the deceased as well as those who admired his heroic death were present, and the manner in which all united in the services, the manner in which the assemblage visibly showed their sorrow bespoke the fact that one of Peterborough's most popular citizens had fallen. There have been many memorable scenes in this city since the call of "Your King and Country Needs You" was first heard, but the one witnessed last evening in the ivy clad edifice left memories and a message that time can never erase. The jovial, beloved Major Bennett was no more—Peterborough mourned.

Few indeed were there whose eyes were not dimmed with tears as the congregation stood with bowed heads and the choir solemnly sang the requiem hymn "Sleep Thy Last Sleep." Only the lights of the sanctuary shone as the hymn was sung and Canon Davidson repeated the commendatory prayer. The feelings of those present could not be fully described. Sorrow, the great idealizer, was deep in the hearts of all. All were bereaved and all sympathized with the relatives, Mr. J. Bennett and family who were present at the service.

The address of Canon Davidson, one of Major Bennett's closest military comrades, was fitting in every detail. His admonition to his listeners to model their lives afteh that of Peterborough's first hero will linger long in their minds. By way of introduction he remarked how great was the need of the soldiers on the distant battle fields. Souls of all need great preparation before going to eternity, the souls of those who die on the blood stained battlefield also need great preparation before they make the tremendous step. They need the prayers and fellowship of all. His text was the charge David made to his son Solomon when he felt that his end was drawing near, "I go the way of all earth; be thou strong therefore and shew thyself a man. And keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, and His commandments, and His judgments and His testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself."

The speaker established a parallel between David and the late Major Bennett, the manliness, good humor and generosity of the two men were very similar, in all they were very similar men. He remarked how the assemblage was gathered together to pay tribute to such a great man. We are all proud of the achievements of the Canadian soldiers and thankful for the service they are able to render the Empire but at a time we are all given cause for sorrow at the terrible loss. All are bereaved.

Kind reference was made to the great individuality and personality of Major Bennett and to his ability as a soldier. The manner in which he took part in the farewell service 'ere his departure from this city, how he cared for his men at Valcartier, at Salisbury and then at the front. His good humor and courage were shown in a letter received from him a few weeks ago in which he told of two shelsl falling a few yards from him but neither exploding. He remarked how if they had exploded "it would be good-bye George."

His Last Letter.

Canon Davidson had in his possession the last letter written by Major Bennett before he met his death. It was dated April 3rd and in it he wrote, "While it is the saddest moment of my life to see a comrade fall either dead or wounded beside me, yet when I think of the great cause it seems but to strengthen my determination to put forth every effort so that this cause may prevail." The speaker urged that in view of this wonderful example of manhood, all should do something. "There is need of men at the front to take the place of those who fall and those who remain should strive to have the same generous, strong and humorous qualities which Major Bennett possessed. Canon Davidson felt that had Major Bennett given a last message it would be the same as that of David, "I go the way of all earth; be thou strong therefore and shew thyself a man." This example of perfect manhood should prevail. Let women be womanly and men be strong, be generous, and everything which tends to the broadest manliness."

GOD'S CALL TO ENLIST

High Motives Should Prompt Men to Offer Themselves

At Murray St. Church last evening Rev. J. R. Webb addressed a large congregation on the subject "God's message to Peterborough." He chose as his text the thirteenth verse of the fifteenth chapter of the gospel according to John "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." Mr. Webb showed that Christ Himself had declared that He was saying these things, that the joy of his disciples should be the kind of joy which filled his own soul. "That my joy may be in you and that your joy may be full." Full Christian enjoyment only comes by self-sacrificing service. The whole man must be put at the service of the race if the joy he seeks is the joy which Christ experienced.

That is not to say, that the Christian is always to be found in the fringe of every group, at the tail end of every procession, that he is to be missing from the conventions of power, that he is to be everybody's doormop but it does mean that whether his path leads him to throne or palace, to desert or cross, he is to be there as his Master was not to condemn the world but that the world may be saved.

The Bravest Soldiers.

The bravest soldiers are those who have thought the whole matter through and have the inspiration of the deep set conviction that they are on the right side. The weakness of the German army will be seen as the consciousness of offensiveness filters down from the throne of the privates in the army. Bernhardi's book is going to defeat the very purpose for which it was written. Its advocacy of preparation, aggression, cruelty is every day weakening the moral fibre of those on whom the nation must depend. "Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just; but he is naked though locked up in steel whose conscience with injustice is corrupted."

In the weeks of the deadlock we were not losing time. Moral forces were at work, and the fact that the usually non-militant Canadians put to rout the superior numbers of seasoned Germans is proof of the power of conscious right. The speaker declared himself as displeased with the "Call to Peterborough" in one of the local papers which began "The heroes of Ypres and Langemark who have fallen must be avenged." The quality of soldier needed today is not the one who is intoxicated by the thought of vengeance, but who is inspired by the desire to right wrongs. The picture of Belgium's helpless predicament and an appeal to save Belgium and other inoffensive nations will do infinitely more with the right kind of young men than will the cry for blood—hate, destroys its enemy but love lays down its life for its friend.

Save the Innocent.

Said Mr. Webb: "I want the emphasis put on the endeavor to save the innocent rather than on the punishment of the guilty. I am not pleading for peace now. I agree with ex-president Elliott of Harvard who said a few days ago in Boston: "Do not pray for peace now. I cannot conceive a worse catastrophe for the human race than peace in Europe now. If it were declared now, Germany would be in possession of Belgium, and German aggressive militarism would have triumphed. That would be a success for Germany after she had committed the greatest crime a nation can commit—namely, faithlessness to treaty rights—and the sanctity of contracts would pass for nothing, and civilization would be set back for centuries. I do not see how any thinking American can keep himself neutral. Liberty and every other American ideal are involved in this war."

The message of God this week called for recruiting. For the best men to offer themselves for this high service but to do so from the high motives of love and service, not hate and revenge.

He spoke feelingly of Major Bennett, Lieuts. Fessenden and Matthews, of Privates Saunders and Mesley who had suffered for their country's sake. Both Lieut. Matthews and Pte. Saunders are members of Murray St. Church.

The music at the service was of splendid character, the duet by Miss Roxie Kidd and Miss Rathbone being specially enjoyed.

London, May 3—A casualty list issued last evening by the British War Department shows that during the landing of British troops in the operations against the Dardanelles, that is between April 25 and April 30, 26 men of the British fleet were killed and 53 wounded.

Winnipeg, May 3—Major-General Steele, M.V.O., A.D.C., commander of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, leaves for the front this week. Lieut. Harwood Steele, General Steele's only son, will accompany him.

Chatham, May 3—Fire supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion destroyed two warehouses and two freight cars in the Grand Trunk yards Sunday morning. The total damages will amount to over $20,000.

Rev. Dr. Dickie Preaches at St. Paul's Church

The congregations at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday heard two carefully prepared sermons by Rev. Dr. Dickie of Montreal. It was anniversary day and the visiting minister's discourses and the choir music were big factors in making the services bright and profitable.

Dr. Dickie told the story of the Israelites' victory over Sisera, at the evening service, and pointed out how the Unseen Hand had been on the side of the Israelites, whose step was a forward one. Illustrations also were given, of how God had made his presence felt in the attempt of Philip of Spain to throttle England by sending the Armada; of Napoleon's unsuccessful march against Russia and of his defeat at Waterloo. All these movements were against a new order of things—progress and humanity.

New Against the Old.

Of the present conflict, Dr. Dickie said the saddest and bitterest war was being waged. It was not of our making. But whether we liked it or not, the fact remained, we were at war and our cause must either be trampled or victorious. It was a conflict of the new order against the old order—the new life of humanity warring against the old. It was a war of nationalism and internationalism, Prussianism and humanity. Germany has been the great apostle of Nationalism. It was as immoral an nationalism as was possible to be, inasmuch as it was a nationalism that made obligations and duty no more than a figment of sentiment.

Every one was interested. It must be one thing or another. If we want to put the clock back, we could fold our hands and take no part at all; if we were interested in the new life then as a good man and citizen or as a woman, we must bear a hand and do whatever we can.

Rev. R. Pogue Recovering.

It was announced by Dr. Dickie that Rev. R. Pogue was recovering from his illness and would be in the pulpit next Sunday. The speaker expressed his pleasure at being able to be present at the services and to see again the face of his old friend Mr. John Allan, who had been organist at Crescent Presbyterian Church, Montreal, of which church Dr. Dickie is the minister.

The choir deserves much praise for its part of the services. The choruses at the evening service were well sung and Miss Dorothy Allan excelled herself in rendering the famous solo, Land of Hope and Glory, by Elgar. It was sung with spirit and power.

TRIBUTES TO CANADIANS

Have Lived up to Scripture Teachings by Their Sacrifice

Those who went to George Street Methodist Church last night must have been deeply impressed with the splendid tribute which the pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., paid to the thousands of Canadian soldiers who have given their lives in far off Flanders in the Empire's cause.

He vividly related the incidents of the struggle as furnished in the press, which spoke so highly of Canadian gallantry in the fierce fight at Langemarck, where so many of the boys laid down their lives. He used the circumstances to illustrate an eloquent discourse upon the element of sacrifice, which is the great principle in the uplift of an individual or a nation. His theme was Canada's Latest [illegible] and Sacrifice to the Unity of the Empire in the [illegible]. Taking for his text the words, "He that saveth his life shall lose it and he that loseth his Life for My sake shall find it," Rev. Mr. Peever used it to show how the Canadian soldiers had lived up to its teachings by laying down their lives as a sacrifice to the unity of the Empire. Down through the ages this great element of sacrifice was the principle upon which was founded the strengthening and enrichment of the world. The individual or nation that lived solely for its own selfish ends was overlooking that principle which had built up strong noble life. One of the most expert historians who ever lived had stated that by sacrifice only was it possible to grow and prosper and become strong. It held true in every phase of individual or national life.

GALLAGHER'S INFORMATION

by EDITH V. ROSS.

Tom Gallagher's term in state prison was finished. He was given some money for present use and started down the street. Tom had nowhere to go and there seemed to be no use looking for a job. That day of making a living by honest work had passed. He had tried work and had tried housebreaking. Several terms at hard labor in prison had led him to prefer hard labor in the open. But if he could get a job—which was not likely without a recommendation, which he did not possess—it wouldn't be long before some one who knew him for what he was would come along and give him away.

He stopped at a restaurant and had a meal, after which he bought a cigar and enjoyed the first good smoke in a long while. Then he walked on into the residence part of the city, inspecting premises with a view to finding one of easy access, from which he might extract something which he might exchange for funds against the time when his meager purse should again need replenishment.

Coming to a fine residence that stood in a lot so large that there were no other houses near it, he stopped and looked it over carefully. There was an arbor for grapes from which a second story window might be reached, and most of the windows on the main floor were not so high but that they could be reached from the ground.

With a view to looking for a weak spot he entered the premises and went round to the rear. Through a window he saw a woman washing dishes. She saw him, too, and to divert suspicion he knocked at the kitchen door and asked if that was Mr. Smith's house. He was taken all aback when the woman said that it was.

"Mr. Jacob Smith?"

The woman replied in the affirmative.

"Mr. Jacob Brown Smith?"

"Yes, Mr. Jacob Brown Smith lives here. Do you wish to see him?"

Tom, not having sufficient wit to extricate himself from such a hole, stood looking at the woman shamefacedly and without reply.

"You don't want to see the owner of the house at all. You are reconnoitering with a view to breaking in to carry off valuables. I saw you sizing up the chances of an entry from the arbor and giving a professional glance at the second story rear win- [illegible] safest way for a job like that is to take a servant in and have the whole thing opened up to you."

"Are you in the biz?" asked Tom.

"I know all about the craft and can tell one of them on sight. I'm tired of taking risks and will never take another unless I'm cocksure that there's no chance of my getting caught, and the pay must be big."

"What luck!" exclaimed Tom. "I never thought to find a helper in here. You just put me on to the game and you can make your own terms as to the divvy."

The woman stood looking at Tom with an eye that puzzled him. Then she said:

"I reckon I'll trust you. I've had a lot of experience with our kind, and if a person has any good in him at all I can tell it. You won't give me away."

It was arranged between the two that Tom should come to the house that night at 12. He was to find a kitchen window unlocked, through which he might expect an entrance. A back staircase would lead him to a safe built in the wall and he would find the key under a rug near by. He was to take the silver and any cash he might find in the safe and go out with it as he came in. Having turned the swag into cash, he was to meet the woman that day week at the northwest corner of the city park and deliver two-thirds of the profit. Tom was surprised at being so largely trusted, but this didn't trouble him a bit.

At the appointed hour he appeared at the window and found it unlocked, entered, went up the back staircase, found the key of the safe under the rug and was opening the safe door when suddenly every electric light blazed out at once. Feeling a hand on [illegible] the face of a policeman. At the same time he heard a rustle of a dress and the woman with whom he had made the deal appeared on the scene in evening costume.

"Shall I take him away, ma'am?"

"Wait a minute; I wish to speak to him." Then, turning to Tom, she added:

"When you called this afternoon, both my servants having left me, I was doing my own work. I spend a good deal of my time in the work of rescuing prisoners and recognized you as one I had seen behind bars. You are a better man than you look to be. If you were not handicapped how would you like to earn an honest living?"

"I'd like it mighty well, ma'am," gasped Tom.

A lengthy conversation followed, at the end of which the police were dismissed and Tom was to report the next morning for duty as chauffeur. He appeared, as agreed, and did not leave his employer's service for a number of years. When he did he took with him her recommendation for honesty and faithfulness.

The lady was celebrated as a worker with prisoners and possessed a wonderful influence over them.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policy-holders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and [illegible] to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find [illegible] again in LIFE INSURANCE.

Second Baseman Must Have Snap Throw to be a Success

Former Ball Player Discusses the Kevstone of the Infield

Frank Chance, writing to young ball players on how to play second base, says:

"Let me begin by saying to you future great second basemen ' that you might as well give up your fond dream of being another Evers or Collins if you do not possess a fast underhand throw. Here is something that not one amateur ball player in a hundred or one 'fan' in a thousand knows. The reason is simple when the thing is studied out.

" 'Well, why?' I think I hear you 'kids' asking.

"This is a reason in a nutshell: A second baseman, that is, one who plays the bag well, makes 90 per cent. of his throws underhandd.

"Again 'why?' I think I hear the query.

"Because he nearly always gets the ball off the ground, or at least close to the ground.

"Simple, isn't it?

"Studying and figuring out things of this sort is one reason why it takes brains to play baseball. They may be merely baseball brains, or the other kind, or a combination of both. It is this combination of both kinds of brains that makes the really great player. That's one reason why the growing youth who wants to become a baseball player should not neglect his studies at school. Get all the knowledge you can cram into your head — the more the better. There is plenty of time outside of hours devoted to study for you to practice on the diamond.

"Before I go any further with this little chat with you boys I want to give you a warning in regard to playing second base that you will do well not to forget.

"Never, never touch a runner as he comes sliding into the base with the arm held stiff. Always hold the ball in one hand, either the right or the left, whichever is the most convenient for you, and hold the arm loose. Then, when the runner comes hurtling through space and hurls his body with all his speed at the bag, you touch him and your arm gives with his body. In that way you are not so liable to drop the ball. When the arm is held stiff the shock of the collision is so great that it generally knocks the ball out of the baseman's hand.

BALL TEAMS WORK OUT.

The City League teams were unable to practice at Riverside Park on Saturday owing to the poor condition of the grounds, but most of the teams had a short workout in other grounds. According to reports, all the teams should be in good condition for the openings games next Saturday.

SECURE USE OF RIVERSIDE PARK

The athletic club in connection with St. Peter's Cathedral has made arrangements by which Riverside Park will be at the disposal of the young men of the parish on Tuesday and Friday evening each week throughout the season. The first practise will be held tomorrow night and all lacrosse and baseball enthusiasts are expected to be present. The athletic club of the Church of the Immaculate Conception is endeavoring to secure grounds in the vicinity of the church. If the effort is unsuccessful they will in all probability go in with St. Peter's Club. The athletes of the Church of the Sacred Heart are working out each evening on the Sacred Heart grounds.

If Caesar Had a Phone.

Julius Caesar missed a great deal in not knowing the telephone or at least in not using it if he knew it. One can see the telephone engineer attached to the Roman postoffice endeavoring, but without avail, to get an instrument installed at the capitol and at the palace. "I am intrusted by the emperor to say that he does not desire these barbarian novelties, and so Thomas Alva Edisonus need not call again with his magician's apparatus." A signal blunder! We can imagine what would have happened. "Hello, 1287 Tiber! Is it thou, Artemidorus? I understand thou rangst me up this morning. What! Details of a plot? Go not to the senate today? Beware of Brutus? Go not near Casca? Right, and I thank thee, Artemidorus. I will have an extra guard put on instantly and the conspirators arrested." And so, although Artemidorus was unable to give his warning in the street, he gave it over the telephone, and Caesar's valuable life and with it the fortune of Rome was saved.—From "If They Had Thought of It" in Strand Magazine.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

We would dearly like to have a good opinion of our friends and neighbors, but is it our fault that they are so perverse that they won't let us?

We are willing that our friends should be happy, but so determined that they shall do it according to our own private formula.

Our thinking machine is apt to get out of gear when we are called upon to solve a problem that looks as if the cost is on us.

It is hard for any of us to forgive the transgressor until he has paid all the freight and a little besides.

The first bit of clerical work a woman wants to do is to blacklist her enemies, but she never gets ahead of her brother man at that.

Wealth is a comparative term. Much depends upon how poor your neighbors are.

The trouble with some of us is that we look upon any change as a reformation.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON CASUALTIES

Statement is Given Out by Militia Department

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 3. — An official statement says Canadian casualties from April 22nd to April 30th total well up to six thousand. Non-commissioned officers and men killed number 705, wounded 2,162, missing 2,563, a total of 5,403, exclusive of officers already reported.

The statement is supplementary to the Saturday eye-witness story from Sir Max Aitken, and is issued by the Militia Department. The statement summarizes the main points of the engagement and mentions corps and commanding officers who figured in the several phases of the Canadians' gallant stand.

Funeral of the Late John Mowry

John Heaton Mowry, descendant of staunch United Empire Loyalist stock, whose ancestors came from England with the Pilgrim Fathers, was laid to rest this afternoon in Little Lake Cemetery, following extremely impressive burial ceremonies conducted at the home and the graveside by Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church. The late Mr. Mowry's death was announced on Friday, and a further reference to his long and interesting life will not be amiss. Mr. Mowry had the proud distinction of being born in Peterborough in the year 1833, which left him eighty-two years of age when death came, truly a grand old age. In early life he received a good, sound education which eminently fitted him for the successful business career he afterwards entered upon. Like his father, he acquired a practical knowledge of his business, which no doubt assisted materially in contributing toward his success. In February, 1853, Mr. Mowry took for a bride Selena J. Cornwall, whose birthplace was in Cornwall. Mr. Mowry's father-in-law was engaged in the milling business for a long time. Six children resulted from the marriage, Mercello M., Mortimer B., John H., Ipsa M., [illegible] and Richard B. [illegible] The deceased was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and in politics was Conservative. He attended Charlotte Street Methodist Church and was one of its most respected and venerable members.

The funeral this afternoon was under C. O. F. auspices, the bearers being Messrs. H. Nesbit, Geo. Stenton, N. Lush, G. Carter, C. Kingdon and W. Wilson.

GERMANS SINK DESTROYER LOSE TWO TORPEDO BOATS

British Give Enemy Hot Chase in North Sea and Sink Two Boats

LONDON, May 3.—A German submarine on Saturday sank the old British destroyer Recruit, off the Galloper Lightship, in the North Sea, but the score was more than equalized by other British destroyers, which, after a stern chase, overtook and sank the two German torpedo boats that had accompanied the submarine on her cruise.

Some of the crew of the Recruit were rescued by the trawler Daisy, but as the submarine fired on the fisherman they were compelled to leave the others to their fate. The British destroyers rescued most of the crews of the German torpedo boats, and two officers were picked up by a passing steamer and taken to Holland.

Besides these incidents in the North Sea, the German submarines continued their operations off the Scilly Islands, and, in addition to torpedoing the American tank steamer Gulflight, the captain of which died of shock, and two men were drowned, sank the French steamer Europe and the British steamer Fulgent, the captain of the latter vessel being shot and killed.

Admiralty's Statement.

The text of the admiralty's statement follows:

"A series of small affairs took place in the neighborhood of the Galloper and North Hinder Lightships on Saturday.

"During the forenoon H. M. Destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine, four officers and 21 men being saved by the trawler Daisy.

"At 3 p.m. the trawler Columbia was attacked by two German torpedo boats, who approached her from the westward and commenced an action without hoisting their colors. The Columbia was sunk by a torpedo, only one deckhand being saved by other trawlers.

A Running Fight.

"A division of British destroyers, comprising the Laforey, Leonidas, Lawford and Lark, chased the two German vessels, and after a brief running fight of about one hour, sunk both of them.

"The British destroyers sustained no casualties. Two German officers and 44 men were [illegible] prisoners of war."

35 Men Perished.

The destroyer Recruit was on patrol duty Saturday morning when the submarine sank her. According to details received here she was struck amidships by the torpedo and began to sink. The wounded vessel signalled for assistance and her call was answered by the trawler Daisy, and thirty men out of her complement of 65 were saved.

"It is stated that a torpedo was fired at the Daisy, which was forced to leave one of her rescue boats behind, and the submarine chased this boat and fired her gun at it, wounding four men.

Swift Vengeance.

"British torpedo boat destroyers, sighting in the distance two German torpedo boats which had sunk the trawler Columbia and apparently were supporting a submarine, engaged the Germans at long range in the vicinity of the North Hinder Light. The Germans endeavored to run away, but the British boats pressed them hard and shortly afterwards sank them. The British boats rescued some of the crews of the Germans and landed them today."

RISKED LIFE TO SAVE ANOTHER

Autoist Went Down Thirty-five Foot Embankment

Windsor, Ont.—May 3.—Risking his own life and that of his companion Harvey Grenfield and William T. Westgate, an ice cream manufacturer, drove his automobile down a 35-foot embankment in front of Ssephenson Inn, Sandwich Street east, to avoid running down Albert Hope, 14 years old, last night. Both Grenfield and Westgate escaped with a few cuts and bruises. The two men had a miraculous escape from death.

Westgate was driving about 10 miles an hour, when the Hope boy, riding a bicycle, was thrown from his wheel. He fell directly in the path of the automobile. Although Westgate immediately applied the brakes, he was too near Hope to avoid running over him without changing his [illegible] With less than 12 feet in which to stop before reaching the embankment, Westgate's machine plunged down the incline, taking with it a telegraph pole. The automobile overturned and landed at the foot of the bank, both occupants pinned beneath the wreckage. Westgate and Grenfield crawled from beneath the car unassisted. The machine was badly wrecked.

SINCE FIRST OF YEAR

Citizens Realizing Benefits of Municipal Owned Lighting Service

The number of meters installed by the Utilities Commission during the month of April was three hundred and ninety, making a total of 1300 since January 1st. The work of installing the meters is still being carried on. All the meters are purchased from the Canadian General Electric Co. It is a source of pleasure to note that no complaints have been received of any meters installed so far this year. The rates are meeting with unanimous approval and citizens are beginning to realize the real benefits of Hydro-Electric. Complaints which were so prevalent during the first few months of the Commission's existence, are very rare at the office now.

REPORT OF SIR MAX AITKEN

Heroic Achievements of the Canadian Soldiers

LONDON, May 2. — Sir Max Aitken, the Canadian eye-witness, arrived from Belgium on Friday night, bringing with him the official despatch which so ably described the heroic achievements of the sons of Canada at Ypres. The Saturday evenings papers made the report the subject of special display, and the Sunday papers, both London and provincial, reproduce the story today in full.

In the opinion of military writers here the Canadian eye-witness despatch is one of the most realistic accounts that have yet been received from the front. In addition to the vivid description of the fighting, they point out that even the names of officers and battalions engaged in the fighting were for the first time included, while official diagrams accompanying the despatch enabled them to form a tolerably accurate estimate of the situation around Ypres down to the end of last week. The inclusion of the details referred to was due to the courtesy of General McDonagh, who furnished a complete list of the units engaged and of Col. Romer in drawing up the diagrams.

Over a hundred and fifty Canadian wounded are in Bristol.

The services at St. Stephen's, one of the most beautiful churches in this city, the rector, Rev. E. J. Houghton, being himself a Canadian, were throughout today in commemoration of the gallant dead of the Dominion. The Canadian flag hung over the chancel screen. The altar was draped in black, and an orchestra and military drums played funeral marches.

PENNILESS WHEN THEY CAME HERE

Arriving in Peterborough without a sou, the plight of a young English woman and four children would have been serious had not the city relief officer and Adjutant McElhiney come to her aid. It appears that the husband of the woman went home last fall taking his wife and family with him but came back with one son this spring, but could not get work. The sixteen year old son however who came back with him secured employment. His wife and four other children came over here without letting him know and consequently the husband was taken aback to see his wife on the street. The family were taken to the Salvation Army home while the husband finds a job. It is stated that a position has since been found for the eldest girl of the family, so that two of the family are now employed.

CIRCULARS MUST GO THROUGH MAILS

A little scheme to beat the Government has been nipped in the bud right here in Peterborough, arising out of the recently enacted stamp tax. Certain firms, whose names are withheld, thought one way out of the necessity of buying war stamps was to do their letter distribution locally by employing parties to take them around. But there's not much of this sort of thing gets past Postmaster Edgar, who got on the scent and visited the guilty parties and presented a copy of the Post Office Act. This bit of paper distinctly states that all mail matter for distribution in the city, whether bills or circulars, sealed or unsealed, must have a one-cent war tax stamp affixed to them and be distributed through the post office, or else the sender is liable to a penalty of $20.

This little warning, the postmaster hopes, will be sufficient.

COAL VESSEL TORPEDOED

Explosion Hurled Engineer Through Aperture and Saved His Life

CREW RESCUED BY SHIPPING BOATS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, May 4. — The British steamer Minterne from Cardiff for River Plata with six thousand tons of coal was torpedoed off Scilly Islands Monday. Two firemen were killed and the second engineer was injured.

The crew have been landed at Penzance.

The force of the explosion hurled the engineer through the aperture made in the ship's deck and saved his life. The crew took to their boats and finally were rescued by fishing vessels.

EPIDEMIC OF RABIES ?

Four Canines Viewed With Suspicion Are Locked up

ONE LAD BITTEN

It was learned today that there may be an epidemic of rabies among dogs in the city and four suspicious canines are now locked up in different parts of the city and their symptoms been reported by Dr. Johnstone to the authorities at Ottawa. These dogs, it is stated, have been acting in a strange and suspicious manner and the police were notified with the result that they were ordered to be confined, pending action which will probably be taken very shortly as soon as word is received from Ottawa. Some time ago a dog was shot in the north part of the city by the police. Dr. Johnston, who is a fairly good authority on such matters believes the dogs now locked up are dangerous to be at large.

This morning a twelve year old lad named Hutchinson who lives on the boundary road was severely bitten by a hound, his injuries being dressed by Dr. A. W. McPherson. The police were instructed to look into the case and find out if the animal had any symptoms of rabies. If such is the case it will be shot and the head sent to Toronto for examination.

DR. B. E. KELLY IS AT FOLKESTONE

Is Stationed There Awaiting Further Orders

Dr. B. E. Kelly, of this city, who sailed for England on April 10th, for service in the British Army Medical Corps, has written to friends here. The trip across was delightful in every respect, and the passage was uneventful. The time was whiled away pleasantly in games, concerts and dancing. There were over 700 soldiers on the "Metagama," the C. P. R. vessel which took him across. The "Metagama," he says, is a splendid boat, and it was her second trip.

Dr. Kelly is to be located at Folkestone temporarily, pending further orders.

RUSS. FORCES PUSHED BACK

Casualty List From the Dardanelles, Ample Evidence of Stubborn Opposition

LITTLE AUTHENTIC NEWS FROM ROME

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 4. — The reported Russian reverse in Western Galicia took precedence over all other phases of the war today. London newspapers agree that the Russian forces must have been pushed back a considerable distance along this front.

No further official news has been received from the Allies concerning the Dardanelles, but the publication of a long list of casualties gives ample evidence of the stubborn opposition with which the Turks met the landing of troops.

There is little in the way of authentic news from Rome. It seems to be a fact that on Saturday, Prince Von Buelow was unable to announce further important concessions from Austria.

ULTIMATUM FROM JAPAN

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TOKIO, May 4. — Minister of Justice Ozaki is quoted by newspapers as having announced that the cabinet had decided to send an ultimatum to China, urging her to reconsider her decision to make no further concessions to Japan.

PEKIN, May 4. — The sympathetic attitude of the foreign press, especially of British papers, has encouraged the Chinese until they now apparently have resolved to concede nothing further to Japan.

LONDON, May 4. — Lloyd George introduced today his second war budget. The figures presented today were vast, but another supplementary budget is probable in six months from now.

BRITISH TO RECEIVE DECENT TREATMENT.

ITALY'S ENTRY AGAIN POSTPONED!

ROME, May 4. — A decision reached by King Victor Emmanuel and his ministers not to take part in the unveiling of the Garibaldi monument at Quarto Sant Elena, is being interpreted as meaning that the participation of Italy in the European conflict has again been postponed. The King's presence at this ceremony would have been looked upon as tantanfount to a declaration of war.

PARIS, May 4. — (This afternoon's official statement.)— "There was a German attack yesterday evening on the British front to the north of Ypres.

"The Germans were driven back by our allies in the Argone, near Bagatelle.

"We delivered an attack which resulted in gaining ground."

BRITISH HOUSE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 4. — Speaking in the Commons this afternoon, H. J. Tennant, parliamentary secretary of the war office, said Great Britain had under consideration the question of employing similar expedients against the use by German troops on the battle field of asphyxiating gases. The speaker admitted that as far back as April 6th, the officer who is writing from the British front under the name of "Eyewitness," had said Germans were preparing for this method of attack, but notwithstanding such rumors, British authorities found it hard to believe that any signatory of The Hague convention could violate its fundamental principles and adopt a method which might have such far-reaching effect in modern warfare.

London, May 4. — In presenting the budget, Mr. Lloyd George estimated that if the war lasted during the whole of the fiscal year, Great Britains' expenditures in that time would be $5,682,170,000. He said if the war should last six months instead of a year, Great Britain's estimated expenditure would be $3,952,290,000. The Chancellor estimated the total revenue for the year 1915-16 would be $1,350,910,000. This is an increase of $218,190,000 over the total for last year.

LONDON, May 4. — "The United States government has not at any time in the present war supplied any war material to the British government," said Sir Edward Grey, foreign secretary, in the Commons today in reply to a question asked by Sir Arthur B. Markham, who was anxious to know whether The Hague convention was being strictly adhered to in this respect.

Tokio, May 4.—The Yomiuri in an extra edition declares that elder statesmen after listening to a lengthy explanations from Premier. PASSING OF THE LOCAL LIQUOR LICENSE BOARD

New License Commission Will Step in on Wednesday

The License Commissioners of West Peterborough received notice today from th License Department, Toronto, that the new Provincial Board would assume office on Wednesday, May 5th, and the local boards are dissolved. The local board that goes out of business tonight consists of Dr. Morrison, chairman; Jas. Kendry, Esq., and R. Sheehy, Esq. The first license board appointed by the Whitney Government ten years ago consisted of Dr. Morrison, the late H. LeBrun, and the late Jonathan Griffin of Lakefield. This board administered the Licence Act for two years. When Mr. Griffin retired and Mr. Jas. Kendry was appointed in his place, on the death of the late H. LeBrun, Mr. R. Sheehy was appointed to the vacancy.

When the board came into office ten years ago they found 21 hotel licenses, 6 retail shop licenses and one wholesale shop license in the city. Today there are 11 hotel and 3 shop licenses and no wholesale license. Formerly the shop licenses were held mostly by men in the grocery trade. The liquors and groceries were sold over the one counter. The board soon changed this and ordered all liquor stores to be entirely independent of any other business. Several of the hotels of that day were old fashioned saloons and made no effort to cater to the travelling public. These were cut off and the hotelmen ordered to keep hotel.

Outside of the city there is not today a license in the west riding. The most of the riding having gone dry through local option.

Dr. Morrison has been chairman of the board during all of the ten years.

BRIDGE TO EAST CITY

Discussion on Noted Topic is Re-opened at Council Meeting

Ald. J. J. Duffus set the Council thinking of an old bone at last night's meeting. He commenced talking of a new bridge to East City. In his opinion there should be better communication between East City and the business section of the city. He recalled the advent of the Vermont Marble Company to the list of Peterborough factories, and reminded the aldermen that the company had been promised that a new bridge would soon be erected. He did not think the work should be gone on with under existing conditions, but he thought that the idea of Ald. Dobbin's of having the men given work, not charity, and that work to be the removing of gravel from the Hilliard Farm, might become a reality and the gravel placed on the sides of the river where the bridge will be located. He thought that it would be welcomed by men at present receiving charity and it would also be making a start on the erection of the bridge. The work he outlined should be done next winter, and in the meantime the Council could decide where the bridge will be located. In accordance with this, he moved that the City Engineer be asked to report on the feasibility of the plan. Ald. Evans seconded his motion.

Mayor Buller recalled the fate of the issue when it went before the electors. He also remarked that East City made the poorest showing of any one section of the city.

The motion carried, and on the suggestion of Ald. Edgar, the engineer will also report on the practicability of Bonacord street being filled in.

SEIZED WITH HEART TROUBLE

John Nurse of Bridgenorth Fatally Stricken

While out in the barn unloading some hay, John Nurse, a widely known farmer, residing at Bridgenorth, toppled over yesterday and died almost immediately, heart trouble being the cause. He was fifty-six, and had lived for many years around Peterborough. He was unmarried and lived with a sister, Mrs. A. J. McWilliams.

He leaves four sisters and three brothers, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. George Nurse, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Franks, and Richard, William and Robert.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. to Omemee cemetery.

MAJOR BEATTY CHEERS THE BOYS

Helped to Bring in Wounded and Carry Rations

A Mail and Empire cable says:— "Major Beatty, Presbyterian chaplain of the First Brigade, deserves the V. C. As we went into action he was patting the boys on the back, with a cheery word for all. Later he went out under fire and helped to bring in the wounded and carry rations to the men. He won the heart of everyone by his simple kindness and utter indifference to danger when doing service to anybody."

It is said that fewer people under 20 years and more people over 41 years are now employed in various industries in the United States than was the case ten years ago.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 4, 1915.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE FARMERS.

BOTH the Dominion and Provincial Governments do a great service to the farmers in advising them of improvements and of the latest and most efficient methods of operating their farms. There is no industry that receives the assistance that the agricultural industry of Canada receives. Printers, merchants, manufacturers have to pay real money for new ideas, but the farmers receive countless suggestions that are very valuable, by means of lectures, demonstrations, pamphlets and advertising through the daily and weekly press. No industry ought to be more efficient or in a better condition than the farming industry, and no class of people in Canada ought to be better informed on matters relating to their business than the farmers. Thousands and thousands of dollars are being spent every year for the farmers' benefit in this regard, and the money so spent is raised, not from the farmers alone, but from the whole people.

While it is recognized that the national wealth and prosperity depends in the first instance on the soil, it is possible that the farmers are not taking advantage of their opportunities as they should. It should be emphasized that these benefits cannot be bestowed gratis for an indefinite number of years. In time, the farmers should pay for suggestions or ideas for their benefit. No class has more opportunity to be better educated or informed, and, if the farmers neglect their advantages now, they should be discontinued. As a rule, people appreciate most what they have to work for, struggle for, or pay for. It may be that because these things are free the farmers will not take advantage of them. The idea is to impress on the farmers the usefulness of scientific methods, of study and thought in their work, so that they will want all the new ideas and improvements they can get. The Borden Government, under the able direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, is doing its part. The publications of the Department of Agriculture are of a high order, and, if the farmers fail to appreciate this work, the greater loss will be on their shoulders.

GO AFTER TOURIST BUSINESS.

WHILE the war is the all-absorbing subject of interest, those who have to remain at home should not neglect opportunities. This year is a great opportunity for Canada to develop its tourist trade. Peterborough should not neglect this field. Advertising should be done, and anything else that would attract holiday seekers from other parts of Canada and from the United States. American tourists have spent $150,000,000 in Europe every summer, and this business will not be able to go to Europe this season. Canada is in a way to receive part of it, if it makes an effort to get it. Health seekers and money spenders will be looking for new fields where they can get enjoyment and new things to interest them. Care should be taken in the admission of travellers from the United States, where there are many people who are hostile to Canada's position in prosecuting the war. This, however, is only a minor detail that should not interfere with the main object. Canada needs this year all the business it can get. We should "go after" all there is to get.

WHY DO THEY SAY IT?

SOME PEOPLE, mostly Liberals, seem to have a fear of an election in war time. They look on it somewhat as a disgrace. They apparently have no reason for such an attitude, but have merely taken it from someone else. Municipal elections will take place each year, war or no war. No one thought it a disgrace to hold municipal elections last January. Why should it be so in Dominion affairs? Or why do they not say it is a disgrace to hold provincial elections? Quebec is likely to hold its provincial elections shortly, but no one has been saying it will disrupt the Empire if they do. All arrangements have been made so that Canada's share in the war will be carried out, whether there is an election or not. An election will not interfere; it has to come, and is no disgrace whatever.

REAL CULTURE.

ONE OF THE BEST article on real culture appears in the February American Magazine, by Ray Stannard Baker, in reply to the boastful, arrogant Teutonic claims. It is as follows:

"We do not believe that any one nation was ever the sole repository of culture, or that any true culture has ever been permananently gained or lost to civilization by the rise or fall of nations. Greece perished, but Greece culture still lives. The greatest body of culture ideas the world has known came from small, weak, subject people, living in a barren land.

"We do not believe that culture can be forced by one people upon another. Culture, if it be true culture, has that within it which is self-propagating. It lives. It knows no more of national or race lines than a bird. All that is lasting and sound in German culture, for example, has already conquered the earth, or is conquering it. We could be no more thoroughly subdued by German culture, by Martin Luther, Goethe, Kant, Wagner, or the German methods of administration, if the Emperor William were to sacrifice his last man upon the field of battle. Nor could the allied armies of all Europe extinguish one iota of German culture which was true culture.

"We still think that the truly cultured man, like the truly cultured nation, is not arrogant, but teachable; that he does not seek German truth, or English truth—but truth; that he is simple in his life and humble in his point of view, and that he is courageous with the courage that is willing not only to die for his convictions when the multitude is with him, but to die with equal quietude for his convictions when the multitude is against him. He may even be brave enough not to kill his fellow-men when his country is mad with the lust for killing. We still think that the truly cultured man will not calculate the chance of living or dying, but will consider whether, in doing anything, as Socrates says, 'he is doing right or wrong, acting the part of a good man or bad.'"

EDITORIAL NOTES.

UNDER the heading, "Job Outclassed," the Streetsville Review gives the following extract from a letter received from Roscoe Hollingshead, a Streetsville boy with the Royal Canadian Regiment in Bermuda: "Since joining, I have been shot, stung by a blue-bottle fish, bitten by a tarantula, poisoned with a centipede, chased by a shark, stung by a scorpion, nearly drowned once, drilled in the heat until I fainted, had my fingers frozen while on guard at Halifax; have been inoculated, vaccinated, but not intoxicated."

ERNST HAECKEL, the famous German scientist, has resigned from the Rationalist Press Association because it is a British institution, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. He says that for him there is no prospect of a reconciliation with England even after the war is over. What with their Zeppelins, their submarines, and their professors, the Germans appear to be carrying on the war against Britain with 50 per cent. frightfulness and 50 per cent. futility.

THE CANADIAN casualty list may exceed five thousand, is the official announcement. That battle at Langemarck has made a big hole in the first contingent, but Canada has twenty men enlisted for every one that has fallen.

IT TAKES a big battle to make a little obscure village, hardly on the map before the war, become a place of world-wide renown.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

(Florence T. Holt, in the Atlantic Monthly.)

Mother and child, though the dividing sea
Shall roll its tide between us, we are one,
Knit by immortal memories, and none
But feels the throb of ancient fealty,
A century has passed since at thy knee
We learnt the speech of freemen, caught the fire,
That would not brook thy menaces, when sire
And grandsire hurled injustice back to thee.
But the full years have wrought equality;
The past outworn, shall not the future bring
A deeper union from whose life shall spring
Mankind's best hope? In the dark night of strife
Men perished for their dreams of Liberty
Whose lives were given for this larger life.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Saskatchewan and Prohibition.

(La Patrie, Montreal.)

It is represented, not without reason, that the Saskatchewan Government has no mandate to vote prohibition. Then what good will be accomplished if a measure is passed if the poeple do not approve it? Saskatchewan, while favourable to the repression of intemperance, may very well reprove the manner of repression proposed by Premier Scott, a manner the inefficacy of which has been many times demonstrated. Prohibition, where imposed by the law, has inevitably given birth to a clandestine sale of alcoholic liquors a hundred times worse than a sale legally tolerated and controlled.

The Only Way to Peace.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The war must come to a close by the exhaustion of one or the other side. Germany is destined by all economic principles to be the loser, simply because of the artifical restrictions which it is in the power of the Allies to enforce. It would seem to be at once a humane and patriotic duty to bring the end nearer by making every effort to maintain the strength and efficiency of the only force which, paradoxically enough, can make peace likely within the year.

Foiled Ambitions.

(Berliner Tageblatt.)

Nobody pretends not to have abandoned the expectation that between today and tomorrow the world could be healed by the German spirit. We have had to be convinced unwillingly and by hard facts that, in this war, it is not a question of putting through a tremendously fantastic world policy, but a question of protecting our homes. So little has the war begun to lay a new yoke upon the world, that it certainly will have to be carried on for the self-preservation of the German empire.

Eager for the Fray.

(Toronto Star.)

Out in the West men are standing in line waiting a chance to enlist, as they were wont to stand when homesteads of value were at stake. There is no need for conscription in Canada.

Canada and Conscripts.

(Calgary News-Telegram.)

The Canadian infantrymen have again been in the thickest of the fighting, and nothing but good is said of them, of course. Britain's volunteers are pounding holes into the conscription proposal just as they are into Prussian militarism.

Kultur by Mail.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Hon. Arthur Meighen's alleged criticism of the neutrality utterances of President Wilson was widely circulated in the United States, with the result that he is getting scores of grossly abusive letters from German-Americans. A wonderful thing is this Kultur.

STAND UP OR SHUT UP.

Editor Review,

Sir.—Owin to the on-reglar view of some of our friens on the necessity of an eleckshun and havin a soldiers' vote I would ask the follerin questions:—

1. All those who would refuse a vote to a soldier if he wanted it, stand up; if not, shut up.

2. If he doesn't want it he needn't vote, like any other man at home.

3. Don't mistake a wish to beat the Tories, for the best interests of the soldiers. It ain't fair and it ain't time. Be honest with yourself. If it is inconvenient it is not to us but to the soldiers.

As youre neither fightin nor soldier votin what are ye kickin about?

4. Why hold an eleckshun? Well the debt of Canada is bein doubled in one year. What with the railways and wars we are at a climax. Can't the Prime Minister appeal when times is slack and it won't hurt his business or are you a politician in disguise, dear reader, and agin the government simply because it ain't Grit or air ye a bilinguist?

CONSTING EADER.

THE TRENT CANAL.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I see by today's Globe, under big capital letters dated from Cobourg that it is stated that the Trent Valley Canal will not open till next spring and giving further information, given in The Review several days ago. How does it come that Cobourg instead of Peterborough is allowed to pose as the mouth piece of the Trent District? Peterborough people are trying their best to lose their advantage of position in this particular. They'll wake up some of these days to find that Campbellford or Cobourg has held them down and boomed themsevles at their expense.

Yours truly,
READER.

The Mystery.

How cool she looks! The day may be
A scorcher, up to ninety-three,
But in her dress, so prim and nice,
She seems to be a cake of ice.

Though men may rage and tear their hair
And at the weather almost swear
And go around in garments limp,
She doesn't lose a single crimp.

If inwardly she feels the day,
Her outward form a word don't say,
And nothing seems to muss or stick.
I wonder how she turns the trick.

But if you could her secret guess
You might not envy her her dress.
The outside garb is fair to see,
But things internal—hully gee!

Came Natural.

"Johnnie!"

"Yessum."

"When did you learn to swear?"

"Learn to swear?"

"Yes."

"Never did learn."

"Johnnie, I just heard you swearing something frightful."

"Never did learn nohow. Guess I was just born that way."

Mercenary Maid.

"Ethel?"

"Yes, dear."

"Do you believe in long engagements?"

"That depends."

"On what?"

"Whether there is a richer man in sight or not."

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

AN EMPEROR'S NOSE

By M. QUAD.

Two years before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war and the downfall of the third Napoleon an American named James Birney landed in Paris from New York. He was what might be called a general utility man.

When a man in Cincinnati invented a bullet proof vest Mr. Birney somehow got hold of the European agency—that is, he went to Paris at least to bring the patent directly to the attention of the French emperor, who was always on the lookout for military novelties. He had insisted that he would not deal with the minister of war or any other official and was at last granted an audience with the emperor. It was in the war office, and several cabinet officials were present. A musket was lying on a table, and Napoleon greeted the agent with:

"Well, sir, what about this bullet proof vest?"

"I have it here, your majesty," was the reply as the vest was held up to view.

"Put it on."

"With pleasure."

"Now, go to the farther end of the room."

"Certainly, your majesty."

"Now, sir," continued the emperor as he lifted up the musket, "I am going to fire at your breast. Are you willing to take the chances?"

"Fire away!" was the reply.

The emperor fired, and, although the bullet did not penetrate the shield, the force of it knocked Birney head over heels and put him out of it for the next ten minutes. While it was decided that the vest was not a success, the American's nerve excited such admiration that he was given a handsome present in cash and graciously dismissed. He seemed to want to say something to the emperor before he left the room, but did not have opportunity. Early the next day, however, he bobbed up at the war office for an interview with the minister.

"It is no use," said the official as he gave him a minute. "The emperor has decided that he will not buy the vest."

"I knew that yesterday, of course," replied Birney. "I am not here about the vest, but altogether another thing. The fact is I do not like Napoleon's nose, and I want to improve it."

"Mon Dieu, man, but what do you say!" exclaimed the minister as he sprang to his feet.

"I say that the emperor's nose is off and that I can improve it."

"The emperor's nose? You say it is wrong? You say you can fix it? Man, what mean you?"

"I mean just what I say," calmly replied Birney.

"Mon Dieu! Mon Dieu!" gasped the minister as he looked at the American with wonder and terror in his eyes. "Then you have gone crazy! You are out of your mind. You know not what you say."

"I am all right from head to heel, my dear sir, and I can't understand your agitation. What's the matter with my scheme for improving Napoleon's nose?"

The minister rang his bell with nervous hand, and a minute later Birney was out on the sidewalk with a flea in his ear—that is, he was told to take himself off or he would be locked up as an insane person. It was rather a setback for him, and it took him a day or two to get over it, but he finally came up smiling. If the minister would not help him out there were other officials who would. He tried two or three of them, with the result that he was eventually haled before the chief of police. That official probably sized him up correctly, for he said to him:

"You do not realize what you are doing. Don't you understand that you can be sent to prison for this? You do not appear to have lost your mind, and yet you are no fool, and the best thing you can do is to get out of Paris at once."

"Well, I don't want to leave Paris for a few days yet, but I'll keep still about Napoleon's nose."

He went out of the police office meaning to do it, but scarcely twenty-four hours had passed away when he accidentally met a French doctor who could speak English fairly well. Birney was naturally asked why he had visited Paris, and, of course, he told of the bullet proof vest. Having got started, he couldn't stop there.

"Say, do you know I could fix the emperor's nose in less than a month?" he remarked in a burst of confidence.

"The devil! Why, man, you are insulting the emperor! You ought to be locked up!"

The doctor left him without even a cold bow and probably went to the police, as Birney was arrested an hour later. According to the story, he was sent to prison without a trial and detained for a full year. Then he was taken out one day and conveyed to the war office and into the presence of Napoleon.

"Sir," said the emperor after glaring at him for awhile, "is my nose out of plumb?"

"It is plumb as a plummet!" was the ready reply.

"Does it need any fixing over?"

"Not a fix!"

"And how is it with yours?"

"It's out of joint, your majesty, but I think I could follow it out of France."

"Then you may try."

And try he did. His nose led him back to the land of the free without any lingering on the road.

An Extreme Case.

"They tell me your daughter is very musical," said the visitor.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Pikestaff. "The fact is she is so very musical that we cannot induce her to practice either her singing or her piano lessons, the amateur quality of the work grates so on her sensitive nerves."—Judge.

Glancing Blows.

Testy Old Woman—There now! I guess you won't go around poking your nose into other people's business after the raking I just gave you. Reporter—Well, don't get proud about it, madam. You didn't hurt my feelings much. I've been insulted by experts.—Life.

Not a Complaint.

"Of what complaint," asked the insurance agent, "did your father die?"

"Well," was the reply, "it was not exactly in a sort of way, as it were, a complaint precisely, if you understand me. The fact is the jury found him guilty."—London Telegraph.

FASHION HINTS

Gloves in the novelty class for the new season will consist largely of two toned embroidered backs shown on staple colors and also on the new sand and putty tones, on the novelty blue shades and a few other colorings, says the Dry Goods Economist. Embroidered effects in exceptionally attractive designs will be shown on the milanese and tricot silks.

Hand bags in small sizes, in fabrics and in soft, flexible leathers, are prominently featured. Covered and semi-covered frames are the rule, the bag portion being mounted in very full effect. Light colored leathers are used in some of the new models.

Hair ornaments are well liked. The high Spanish back comb continues in the lead, principally in jeweled effects in pastel colorings. Casque combs are also much in vogue. The use of matt crystal is one of the new features.

ATTRACTIVE COMBS.

Jeweled Ornaments Which Are Suitable For the Evening Coiffure.

Pins and hair ornaments may cost as much as you can afford or as little as you wish. There are simple ones in very fair imitation of tortoise shell and adorned with artificial gems that are comparatively inexpensive.

The high back comb has won great favor. The fan shaped, four pronged

SMART COMBS AND BARRETTE.

jewel has an air or daring individuality about it that imparts to the coiffure a coquettish freedom.

With it the hair is drawn smooth and high, away from the brow as well as from the nape of the neck.

The attractive combs and barrette illustrated are in tortoise shell decorated with rhinestones.

Fancy Powder Box.

A very pretty yet inexpensive gift can be made by covering a box of ordinary face powder with a scrap of cretonne. A delicate pink and green pattern or a blue design on a white ground would be attractive.

The cretonne should be stretched over the lid and box so there will be very little fullness. Any extra goods can be disposed of by fastening it in very tiny plaits. The raw edges are pasted to the edge of the box, where they are covered with a very narrow gold braid or any gimp which would look well with the cretonne used.

Needless to say, the pasting must be very carefully done, as the beauty of the little box will depend upon neat workmanship and agreeable colors.

Frederick's War on Coffee.

In a manifesto issued by Frederick the Great in 1779 the mighty monarch deplored "the increased consumption of coffee by my subjects and the amount of money that goes out of the country in consequence. Everybody is using coffee. This must no longer be. My subjects must drink beer. His majesty was brought up on beer, and so were his ancestors. Innumerable battles have been fought and won by soldiers nourished on beer, and the [illegible] believe that coffee drinking soldiers can be depended upon to [illegible] or to conquer his enemies should another war occur." Coffee roasting was made a government monopoly, and a prohibitive price was charged for the berry. "Coffee smellers" were appointed all over Prussia to check illicit roasting. Coffee was therefore ousted from popular favor.—London Chronicle.

When Napoleon Died.

July 10, 1821.—The news has just arrived of the death of Napoleon. He died on the 5th of May. I was much astonished at the way the news was received. The hero which the whole French nation had worshiped, whom all Europe had trembled before, it might have been an ordinary actor who had died. Really one could feel great disgust. A mighty man indeed he was with all his faults. The first I heard of it was cried about the streets, "La Mort de Napoleon a St. Helene, Deux Sous." Oh, the irony of it!—"A Diary of James Gallatin in Europe" in Scribner's Magazine.

ALMOST FAINTED IN THE STREET

In Daily Fear Of Death—Until "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Relief.

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd. 1913.

"Some two years ago, I was a great sufferer from Indigestion. One day my eye caught a billboard of "Fruit-a-tives" and I said to myself "if Fruit-a-tives will build me up like that, it is good enough for me". I bought some. After taking these wonderful tablets for only three weeks, I found myself wonderfully improved. In a short time longer, I cured myself entirely. My case was no light one, either, Gas would often form in my stomach and I was in daily fear that it would get around my heart and kill me. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy for Indigestion".

COMMENCMENT OF A LIBRARY

A Selection of Ten Books That Might Serve as a Basis

Laura Spencer Porter, seeking to show how the ordinary person can begin founding a personal library, makes this suggestion as to ten good books to begin with:

"For those who are beginning a library and have little money to spend I would suggest that there be bought, say, one book each of ten great authors. It does not matter who the authors are so long as they stand high and their books are well known and standard ones. Let us take as an example the following ten, chosen at random from a catalogue of standard writers: Emerson, Eliot, Bronte, Ruskin, Carlyle, Dickens, Thackeray, Lowell, Shakespeare, Keats, and as a selection of ten of the books of these ten writers let us take in the same order Emerson's 'Essays,' Eliot's 'Mill on the Floss,' Bronte's 'Jane Eyre,' Ruskin's 'Sesame and Lilies,' Carlyle's 'Heroes and Hero Worship,' Dickens' 'David Copperfield,' Thackeray's 'Pendennis,' Lowell's essays 'Among My Books,' a complete volume of Shakespeare or any one of the Shakespeare plays, preferably 'Lear' or 'Romeo and Juliet' and Keats' 'Poems.'

"Here you have ten books by ten master minds, books widely varied in subject, style, treatment. Let those ten suffice for a time. Read them."—Woman's Home Companion.

Train Times.

A passenger recently entered a railroad depot to take the 2:15 p. m. train. The clock in the waiting room was several minutes faster than the one in the office, and the passenger asked the porter which clock was correct. After scanning the clocks carefully the porter, with much satisfaction to himself, replied:

"It don't make any difference which is right. The train goes at 2:15 anyhow."—Everybody's.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

OPPORTUNITY STILL HOLDS OUT HAND TO ENTRANTS

Still Time to Enroll in The Review Contest Tour to the Pacific Coast — If You Want to Take the Trip to the Exposition Get Into the Race Now — Opportunity Vote Period Now in Effect

In yesterday's issue of the Review announcement was made of "Opportunity Period" in the great contest. A splendid schedule of votes is offered for the work done this week and candidates will be quick to see the importance of getting every possible subscription this week.

Chance for New Candidates.

The opportunity for enrollment is open to all eligible women at any time during the contest. Turn to the page showing the standing of the candidates, see what others are doing, consider what you could have already accomplished with little effort if you had but entered when you first thought of it and then decide that not for another moment will you put it off, but come right down to the Tour Department of The Review office and enroll your name. Inaugurate your campaign, and you will be amazed to find how many people there are who are interested in the contest and just waiting for some candidate to approach them and get votes on their subscriptions.

Keep steadily at it, make the big advance that can be made by any candidate who puts forth the effort, and when the contest closes you can be numbered among the winners.

Each day adds votes to the standing of nearly all those candidates who have notified their friends that they have entered the contest. Not a tremendous number of votes, but a goodly number, which bids fair to increase materially as the contest advances. It is those who do not let a day go by without some effort who are making the steady advances. It is the regular, earnest, steady workers who finally secure the trip.

As the contest advances the interest will increase and there are several of those one and two year subscriptions to be had, too. Hundreds of votes for one of these, and a man called up on the 'phone Saturday and asked the Tour Department to give him the name of a candidate, as he was about to renew his subscription and he did not know for whom to vote. He was told that the Tour Department could not suggest any one, but the manager called off the names of several candidates to him. After about the ninth name he asked the address of a certain candidate and to her he gave his votes. "He had heard his wife speak of her," he said. There was one instance where several hundred votes awaited any one who might have asked the subscriber. Those votes might just as well have been yours, you know.

The votes in profusion await the candidates. Why not start in and garner a harvest? It means a magnificent tour, taking in the grandest scenery in America and Canada, and attendance at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco.

Candidates and their friends have but a short time left in which to work on this great opportunity offer. This is positively the largest vote offer left during the contest, it behooves all candidates to secure every available subscription between now and Saturday night.

Test Your Metal.

Contestants and their friends should strain every effort to make their vote record as large as possible. Just a few more votes when resource is exhausted, may be the turning point in making you or your favorite contestant a winner of a prize worth hundreds of dollars.

The great value of the tour, honor and public record for attaining success are important factors now being held worthy of consideration. Just a few short weeks from today in which to work for the prizes; and the destiny of the world has sometimes been changed within an hour. Empires have been made and unmade in a single faithful hour and so the result of this contest is likely to be decided by what is accomplished in the next while the big votes are in effect. The valuable prizes are hanging in the air, waiting to be plucked by those who have the energy and determination to win them.

Only those who run a race to the very end can ever hope to win. The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong, but will be won by the stayer. A tortoise, you know, beat the hare because it kept going. It rested neither night nor day until the goal was reached. Victory is not for the spurter, but for the stayer, so the Review prizes are for the ladies and gentlemen who run the race to the very end. We are all of us nearing the home stretch, the place that tries the metal of anyone who enters any contest of any sort or nature, whether it be a boat race or a race in a contest for any prize.

A Great Chance to Win.

This is the greatest opportunity ever presented to win one of the valuable tours, and the candidates who would not bestir themselves for a crown will be lost when it comes at the close of the contest. Read over the terms of the great offer.

Send for Subscription Books.

If you have not already received subscription books, send for them at once. All questions will be promptly answered by addressing the Contest Department of The Review.

Corporal John Smith, believed to be the last survivor of the wreck of the Birkenhead, died in England at the age of eighty-two.

The story of that tragedy, and of the noble heroism displayed by the crew and the soldiers on board, is one of the classic things in British annals, and has been reverberating round the world ever since. Corporal Smith, too, won a special renown of his own on that wintry day of disaster, for he saved his captain. Thus he was a man whom Britain, had she known of him, would have held in much honor as one of her bravest sons.

Asked to Report on Slaughter Houses

Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer, has received a communication from Dr. McCullough, chief Officer of Health for Ontario, asking him to report on the number of slaughter houses in this municipality; the number which already conform to the regulations; the number being actively changed so as to comply, and, lastly, the number where nothing has been or is being done to have them comply with the regulations, also the names of butchers making use of these.

To prevent misunderstanding and for the sake of uniformity in the enforcement of the regulations of the Provincial Board of Health re slaughter houses, it should be noted that they are not to apply to beef ring places for slaughtering unless these are used for the purpose of slaughtering animals for sale of the meat.

PRAISE FOR THE MOUNTED RIFLES

Men Were Inspected by the Governor General

There was a large crowd to see the inspection of the Eighth Canadian Mounted Rifles by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, says the Ottawa Citizen. The regiment marched on to Cartier Square at about 10.36 and was lined up in massed formation when His Royal Highness arrived at 11 o'clock. The trumpeters sounded the royal salute, and as the royal standard burst from the mast at the saluting base the Governor General came on to the square.

The Duke then went carefully through the ranks and remarked at the large number of medals. More than one hundred men of the regiment have medals for active service. He remarked on the excellent appearance of the men, and said that if they were as intelligent a lot of men as they appeared to be, he had no doubt they would give a good account of themselves at the front.

The regiment was occupying the centre of the square and marched past in squadron formation and back in column of troops.

After the inspection the Governor General met the officers, shakng hands with each of them, and said that it was a long time since he had the opportunity of inspecting such a splendid body of men. He was pleased with the excellent precision of their movements. This was the first occasion he had had since the recent battle in France of inspecting any of the units, and he expressed the confidence that the men he saw before him now would do their duty in the noble way that those of the first contingent had. He said he hoped to be able to inspect the regiment again when it had all its horses.

The regiment marched from Lansdowne Park to Cartier Square along the Driveway and returned by Elgin street and the Driveway. Gen. Hodgins, Gen. Gwatkin, Col. Stanton and Major Duff accompanied the Governor.

LEGAL FIGHT IS PROMISED

Solicitors for H.P.Kennedy Notify Council of Impending Battle in Opposition to Sewage Disposal Plant at Proposed Site --- Labor Council Request 25 Cents Per Hour for all Laborers

Ald. William Langford who was elected in the north ward to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ald. Johnston took his place for the first time last evening at the regular council meeting. His Worship Mayor Buller welcomed Ald. Langford and noted that the Council always appreciated the work he performed while a member last year, particularly towards the close of his term. He hoped that Ald. Langford will serve as aldermanic representative for a number of years.

Ald. Langford replied that he was pleased to be one of the council again and would try to perform his duties in harmony with the members and in the best interests of the city.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Weir, Ald. Langford was added to the Board of Works, Property Committee and Legal Committee.

Refund of $15.

Alexander Irwin applied to the Council for a refund on his fish license. He took the license out five months for $30 and now he proposes to discontinue the business. On motion of Ald. Stratton and Green a refund of $15 was made.

Caterpillars.

Mr. Richardson waited on the Council in regard to selling the city an apparatus to "fight the caterpillars." He was advised to take the matter up with the Board of Works.

War Stamps.

Tax Collector Green asked the Council to provide him with war stamps in view of the fact that he is unable according to the act to send out the bills by carrier. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

The by-law authorizing the granting of $10,000 to the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund and Peterborough Relief Association was read a third time and carried.

A by-law authorizing the construction of sewers of which notice was recently given was read a third time and carried.

FIGHT THE CITY TO THE FINISH

The letter, appended, was received last evening by the Council and referred to the Board of Works:—

Toronto, Ont., April 19th, 1915.
The City Clerk,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—Re sewage disposal and Kennedy. On April 18th we notice in the Peterborough papers that a resolution was passed moved by Alderman Green and seconded by Alderman Duffus, with reference to the construction of sewer and sewage disposal plant on the property owned by our client and that the resolution provided that notice should be sent to the clerk of the Township of Otonabee.

We beg to notify you on behalf of our client, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, that we will require notification of any such proceedings for which your resolution does not provide and in any event we do not propose that this plant shall be established on our client's property until we have exhausted every possible means as far as the courts will allow us.

We cannot understand the council of a progressive city like Peterborough endeavoring to place a sewage disposal plant on property which will ultimately become one of the finest residential districts of your city. You will, therefore, take notice that in any such proceedings as your resolution of April 15th called for, we must have notice as we intend to fight it to a finish.

Yours truly,
DOUGLAS and GIBSON,
Barristers, Solicitors, etc.,
140 Yonge St., Toronto.

WANT MINIMUN WAGE OF 25 CENTS

The next meeting of the Board of Works will deal with the following recommendation received in a letter last evening from the Trades and Labor Council:—

Peterborough, May 3, 1915.
Mr. Mayor and Aldermen:

The Trades and Labor Council respectfully submit that considering the great increase in the cost of living, owing to the rise in the price of the necessaries of life during the last few years, and as they consider it the duty of the city to pay a wage to its employes that will enable them to provide for their families in decency and comfort, urge upon the City Council to pay a minimum wage of 25 cents per hour to all laborers employes upon sewers, sidewalks, roads and other outdoor work. The Trades Council would also like to call to the notice of the City Council that the said employes or the majority of them are [illegible] 8 months during the year and have to lose time for bad weather during the season.

The Trades and Labor Council also urge upon the council to place a clause in all contracts for municipal works calling upon the contractors to pay a minimum wage of 25 cents per hour, a nine-hour day and local labor only to be employed where practicable.

COUNTY AND THE GARBAGE TAX

The Property Committee will deal with the following letter received last evening by the Council:—

Peterborough, April 19, 1915.
To the Council of
City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Last year the county paid garbage tax under protest and removed their own garbage. This year up to the present no garbage has been removed. Will the county take it for granted that 1914 garbage taxes will be remitted and no garbage tax asked for 1915, or will the county remove the garbage and charge the city with such removal?

Yours respectfully,
ED. M. ELLIOTT,
County Clerk.

ASK BETTER WATER PRESSURE FOR FACTORY

The following communication was last night received by the City Council and referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee:—

Peterborough, April 19th, 1915.
S. R. Armstrong, Esq.,
City Clerk, City.

Dear Sir,—A representative of the Canadian Fire Underwriters Association who was in Peterborough last week, inspected the premises of the Bonner-Worth Co. with a view to installing sprinklers, which that company have under consideration at the present time. He reports that under present condition this factory is practically without fire protection. There is only one hydrant, which is connected with a 5-inch main on Cambridge St., and which is a dead end. He found on test of this hydrant that the pressure was 60 pounds and when opened dropped to 12 pounds. It must be admitted that this is a serious matter when it is taken into consideration that the Bonner-Worth Co. have investments of about $150,000 with this hydrant as their only protection. We understand that a 14-inch main has been laid on McDonnel Street to Cross St. The Association require that this 14-inch main be connected with the 5-inch main doing away with the dead ends, and that an additional hydrant be placed on Cross St., connected with the larger main.

We trust this matter will receive the attention of the Council and that the deficiency will be rectified without delay.

Yours very truly,
DAVIS THOMPSON, CO., LTD.

BERLIN EXULTS AT GALICIAN VICTORY

Big Claims Made For Von Mackensen's Army Rapid Advance Along Baltic Shores.

London, May 4—The defeat of the Russians in Western Galicia, if information and Austrian reports are to be believed, is serious. The main southern army of Russia under Gen. Ivanoff at present occupies a 70-mile front in the Carpathians from Regetowo to Telepovec. It may possibly have to retreat as its right flank is in danger of envelopment and its left is threatened by strong enemy forces on the Stryj-Munkacs line.

The Russian army had established strong position s on the southern slopes of the Carpathians. Opposition to its advance recently has been stiffened for the Austrian troops have been reinforced by German corps. For the past three weeks the heaviest fighting has been in the region south of Rostok Pass, and slightly north of Uzsok Pass.

Berlin claims that the movement in western Galicia is of the greatest importance of any action since Gen. von Hindenburg's great drive in the north and that the Russian army in the Carpathians is in imminent danger of being cut off. The Russians have gained the southern slopes of the main ridge and have worked their way well into the eastern Beskids Dukla, and other smaller passes.

According to Berlin, Gen. von Mackensen's army has shattered the Russian right wing on a line running north and south about 50 miles east of Cracow. Meanwhile another strong Austrian column is working its way north along the valley of the Stryj to attack the left wing positions of the Czar's forces. The German hope is to trap the Russians in the passes between these two forces. An attack on the Russian right wing has been predicted recently in Petrograd despatches as an offset to the Russian efforts farther east on the Carpathian front.

Despatches received from Berlin several days ago indicated that a great battle was being fought in this quarter. Copenhagen now reports that Berlin is wildly celebrating the receipt of the news that the Germans have broken through the Russian front in western Galicia.

Meanwhile Gen. von Hindenburg's forces are pressing steadily forward in northwestern Russia, along the Baltic shores. Rapid strides are being made, according to the German statement, and south of Mitau, on this march, the Germans captured 1,700 Russians. This advance is apparently to cut off the Russian port of Libau.

The official statement from Petrograd to-day says that the recent fighting on the Vistula has been characterized by particularly hot artillery fire. The German gunners, during one period of 24 hours, fired 30,000 shells. Austrian prisoners, especially the Roumanians, complain of cruel treatment by the Germans.

Petrograd expects that the German invaders along the Baltic will find it impossible to retreat.

NEW YPRES ATTACK DUE

Artillery Prepares Fresh German Assault Despite Awful Scenes

Rotterdam, May 4—South Zealand has been echoing to the sound of cannonading from a southwesterly direction for three days past. There are indications that the Germans are preparing to deliver another great assault.

Before crossing the frontier from Flanders all speak of the terrible scenes in the towns where the German wounded are being brought in. When the trains arrive and the victims are taken out blood streams from the cars and the groans of the wounded are terrible. Many Dutch soldiers are sickened and desertions are frequent.

ADDITIONS TO STAFF OF THE CITY ENGINEER

Announcement by Ald. Green Brings Figures From Ald. McIntyre

At the Council meeting last evening Ald. Green read a report from City Engineer Parsons stating that A. Richardson and E. Cumberland had been added to the engineering staff of the city at salaries of $3.00 and $2.50 per day, respectively. He moved that the City Treasurer be authorized to pay these men. The motion carried but in the course of a few minutes Ald. McIntyre asked the Council to consider figures he had compiled. They were the daily wages of the engineering staff and were: R. H. Parsons $8.00; T. A. S. Hay $4.00; A. Richardson $3.00; T. Q. Quartermain $2.50 and E. Cumberland $2.50. The representative of the north ward hadn't his battery quite set, so Mayor Buller advised him to bring it up at a meeting of the Board of Works. One of the men takes up the work of Major Hilliard who is with the 26th Battery.

Underground Cable Work.

The matter of having an underground cable inserted from the fire hall to the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Street was left in the hands of Ald. Duffus with power to act. It will cost $183.

Street Watering.

The problem of providing oil or water for George St from Lake St. to Romaine St. was left with the Board of Works.

Drain on Park Street.

Ald. Duffus drew attention to the poor condition of the drain on Park St. opposite the Park St. Baptist Church. The matter will be gone into by the chairman of the Board of Works and City Engineer.

Complaints to Engineer's Dept.

Ald. Edgar complained of certain holes in the pavement on George St. They will be looked after by Ald. Green. The chairman of the Board of Works told the aldermen that it was unnecessary to hold complaints till a meeting as they will be cared for if phoned to the engineer's office.

A petition was received from Elm St. residents requesting that the name of the street be changed from Elm Street to Brock Street West. It was handed over to the Board of Works.

ASK COUNCIL TO LEND HAND

Health Association Requires Financial Assistance

A deputation from the Peterborough Health Association, consisting of Dr. Cameron, W. H. Dunsford, Dr. Halliday, Rev. Father Phelan, E. A. Peck, Dr. Neal and G. W. Powell, waited upon the Council last evening with the object of obtaining some financial assistance. Dr. Cameron briefly outlined the work of the assocaition since its organization in 1912. The fair held by the association that year realized over $3000, and they were able to engage a nurse. Her duties soon became too much for one to execute, and the following summer a second nurse was engaged. At present the two nurses are employed; one caring for the tubercular patients and another doing general work. Besides the salaries of the nurses, the Health Association also provides proper bedding, food, and medicine in cases where the patents are unable to pay for them. During 1912 some 5000 quarts of milk and over 2000 dozen eggs were purchased. The cost of providing the bedding, food and medicine amounts to about $50 per month. As this is a bad year, and the Health Association does not intend to appeal to the people for assistance till the war is over and times are better, the deputation was asking the City Council to provide the $50 a month for the extras, and the association would endeavor to go on with the work as usual. The nurses are permitted to receive remuneration at the rate of 25 cents per visit. From 273 patients one nurse attended, she received $174, and from June, 1913, until the present time the other nurse received $71. At present, the association's receipts are from the membership fees of one dollar per year for each member.

Rev. Father Phelan, Mr. Peck, Dr. Halliday, Dr. Neal and Mr. Dunsford all spoke a few words on the work of hte association, and remarked how the association is doing a great deal of work which the City Council would have to do if the association were not in existence.

Mayor Buller repled to the deputation, stating that his heart was with the cause. He admired the association and did not hesitate to state that it is doing more good than any other organization in the city. He left the matter in the hands of Ald. Stratton, chairman of the finance committee for a report.

Washington, May 4—Gen. Villa's troops have gained a victory over the Carranzistas at Victoria, which is the key of the defenses of the city of Mexico. Gen. Villa telegraphed this morning that the Carranzistas have also been beaten along the Monterey-Tampico railroad.

Peace appears to have been brought about by Villa in the centre and northern portion of Mexico and along the line from Monterey to Mexico City.

TURKEY IS REGARDED AS SLUM OF THE WORLD

Its Capital Shows Vividly the Contrast Between Ancient and Modern Times

Constantinople, the city of innumerable sieges, has a history of 1585 years. The fortress, which since 1453 years, and the prize toward which the eys of the Russ have turned for two centuries, seems now permanently within his grasp.

The real meaning of Constantinople has been hidden in recent years by the decadence of the Turkish power everywhere, and especially in Europe, by the relative decline of the city commercially, and by the phenomenal development of the New World and the Far East. The Near East, and Turkey particularly, have come to be regarded generally as the worn-out farm or the slum of the world. The control of the Panama Canal looks bigger than the control of the main highway between Europe and Asia, the city-fortress which dominates the countries tributary to the Black Sea and the eastern Mediterranean and menaces the sea route to India.

Only a glance at the map and a peep into history can set things right, so that Constantinople appears as "a city and fortress fixed on a spot which nature itself has destined to be the [illegible] of two worlds."

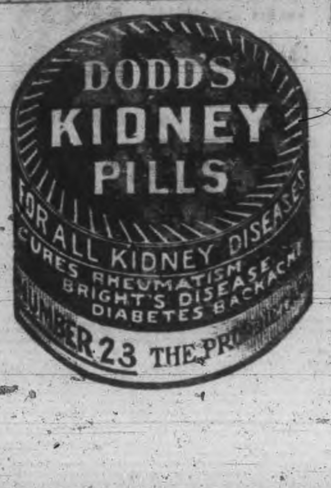
A Great Modern Farce

Constantinople is one of the biggest farces as a modern city in spite of its 1,200,000 population, its modern railway station which terminates the great railway line, its fashionable shopping boulevards, its street cars, its "tube" or underground railway, its modern university and its fine residential suburbs. The residential suburbs have been built and occupied largely by foreigners whose business and political interests compel them to live in Constantinople. Its university, nominally founded in 1900 and modeled on the very latest 1900 European model, has never got beyond the "model" stage. The underground railway merely avoids the necessity of passing through a network of twisting, smelly and narrow alleys called streets. The one street car line which traverses the real Turkish portion of the city has found its course only by blotting out old streets. Where the electric lines abound is in the quarter where the foreign merchants, teachers and diplomats live. The one business street, which is lined with modern stores instead of prehistoric bazaars, is called the Grande Rue de Pera. It is frequented only by the foreigners and the wealthy innovators among the Turkish population.

The Old and the New

The contrasts between Turkish and modern or rather ancient and up-to-the-minute, are nowhere more clearly shown than in the location of the railway line which connects the city with Vienna and the West. Going through the walls of Theodosius between the Golden Gate and the Sea of Marmora the right-of-way parallels the line of the ancient walls along the Marmora coast to the terminus at the entrance of the harbor. On the way the trains cross the filled-in sites of two for- [illegible] Seven Towers in which it was customary for Sultans to execute their predecessors, and sweep the passengers finally past the old Seraglio, the harem-palace of the Sultans. In sight are the old Greek Church of St. Sergius and St. Bacchus, the hippodrome of Constantine, the mosques of St. Sophia and the Sultan Ahmed. Within the outer walls the rails cross the wall of Constantine and farther in the walls of Byzantium which are over two thousand years old.

All these antiquities the Turks have neither destroyed or rebuilt. The Turk is an imitator and he has been too indolent to imitate very extensively. He has occupied his capital but never made himself thoroughly at home. He is always at the most a conqueror, not a colonizer. On the edge of Europe he feels out of place even after hundreds of years. It is because of him that Constantinople has not realized whatever possibilities it has. The city's potentialities consist in its general geographical position and in the character of its harbor and defences. To a lesser extent the fertility of the adjacent country makes it of permanent importance.



FINANCIAL MAGNATES AS PRIVATES

WHILE to the casual observer the picture reproduced above may seem of but passing moment it is particularly of interest to those who follow closely the financial fortunes of the Dominion. The figure at the right hand side next to the officer who has his back turned to the camera is that of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal; next to him in the rank is A. E. Holt, General Manager of the Royal Trust Co., while the third figure is that of A. D. McTier, [illegible] of Eastern Lines of the Canadian Pacific. The picture was snap-shotted during the recent review of the Montreal forces by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught. The picture distinctly shows the smile of surprised recognition lighting up the face of His Royal Highness as he recognizes Sir Frederick in the ranks as a simple private of the Home Guards of Montreal.

SOME DIFFERENCES

Here and there amongst our dairymen are such splendid results attained that one can only be astonished at the complacency with which other so-called dairymen continue to be content with the pitifully small average yields of milk per cow. Why do the huge differences exist?

Just a few miles from here is one of these poor herds, six cows with an average of only 3,338 pounds of milk; the highest yield only 4,000 pounds.

In contrast to that, two good herds in western Ontario indicate the possibilities for the man whose eyes are open to what milk records have to teach. One herd of 12 grades average 10,657 pounds of milk and 317 pounds of fat; the second herd of 22 grades averaged 10,542 pounds of milk and 350 pounds of fat.

These marvellous differences in herd yields drive home hard facts. Men differ in their methods of feeding and handling cows, feeds differ in value, cows differ considerably in their inherit capacity as milk producers, they are not all cast in the same mould.

The White Flag.

It is a great temptation to commanders in wartime to use the white flag as a trick to obtain breathing space when hard pressed by the enemy, and this is often done, although it is against the laws of war.

The old purpose of the white flag is to notify the enemy that their opponents wish to parley, and a commander has a perfect right to refuse such a request if he deems it necessary. Even if he consents he can request that the bearer of the flag of truce be blindfolded so that he may not secure information concerning the camp which he enters. In no circumstances must the white flag be shown to trick an opposing side into relaxing their attack, so that a retreat may be prepared or re-enforcements brought up for a fresh attack. In this connection a common ruse is for a harassed commander to request his enemy for an armistice apparently for the purpose of burying his dead. He then takes advantage of the truce by retreating with his troops under the cover of darkness.—London Tit-Bits.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

On the Central School grounds yesterday evening the South Central team defeated the Centrals by the score of 13-7.

Mr. Harold Knapman made an efficient umpire.

At the King George School grounds last evening the King George boys defeated the team from Queen Mary School by 4 to 0. It was a well-played game. Batteries — King George: Hagerman and Anderson; Queen Mary: Pogue and Patetrson.

LACROSSE

There has been a question in the minds of a good many as to whether lacrosse could be successfully resurrected in Peterborough, but by the way the boys are beginning to turn out at the "Y" practices, it begins to look as if all doubts as to the revival of the sport would be dispelled. There were a number out last night, and a big practice is called for Wednesday night at 6.30. Every young fellow that wants to get into the grand old game get a stick and be out. All old players be on hand to help the youngsters.

BASKETBALL

Two good games and a walk away for George St. was last night's offering in the Intermediate basket ball series. George St. boys hadn't any trouble in downing All Saints 19-13.

Charlotte St. and Mark St. Methodist was a hard, close game right through. At half time the score was six all. In the second half the Mark St. boys succeeded in caging one basket more than their opponents, making the final score, Mark St. 10, Charlotte St., 8.

Knox turned the tables of Murray St. Baptist to the tune of 14-10. This was a close and hard fought game throughout, the result being in doubt right to the last minute of play.

SWIMMING

Special Lessons Are Given by Physical Director

The special swimming lessons for the members of the boys' department are very popular. Seven lessons were given yesterday by G. A. Carson, physical director, and one boy after his one lesson was able to swim the length of the tank. The Y.M.C.A. is particularly anxious that all boys belonging to the institution learn to swim before venturing out on the water this summer.

GERMANS LEAVE CREWS OF SIX NEUTRAL CRAFT

Britain Loses Thirty-Nine Sailors in Small Engagement.

TRAWLER PUTS SUB TO FLIGHT

London, May 4—Thirty-nine of the crew of the British torpedo boat destroyer Recruit, sunk in action in the North Sea on Saturday, are believed to have been drowned, according to an Admiralty list published last night.

That a British naval lieutenant and two men—supposedly from the Recruit—were picked up by a German torpedo boat only to lose their lives when they were locked below and the German torpedo boat was sunk, is related in an Admiralty statement giving details of the North Sea action. In this fighting the Recruit was torpedoed, the British trawler Columbia was sunk, and two German torpedo boats were sent to the bottom by a British destroyer division which entered the action later.

Six neutral ships have been sunk by German submarines since the attack on the American oil tanker Gulflight.

The Norwegian steamer America, from Philadelphia was torpedoed in the North Sea on Saturday and her crew landed at Newcastle to-day. Thirty-nine in the crew were allowed to remain in their small boats and were picked up thirteen hours later by a Norwegian boat. The submarine had left.

Sixteen men and two women on the Swedish steamer Ellida, torpedoed off Hull on Sunday had just time to get into a small boat when the vessel sank. Though [illegible] the submarine was not seen.

Abandoned as Usual

A German submarine sank the Norwegia steamer Baldwin, also in the North Sea, on Sunday. Seventeen of the crew took to boats and yesterday reached Leith.

A small Norwegian freighter was caught by a submarine in the North Sea Friday and her crew ordered to the boats. The steamer Anna rescued the sailors later.

The gun fire of another German submarine on Sunday sank the North Shields trawler Star near the Tyne. The crew was saved.

Off Aberdeen on Sunday a German submarine ran foul of the fishing fleet and sank two. No lives were lost.

Trawler Rammed German

On Saturday the British trawler Mauri rammed the German torpedo boat A-6. She struck her amidships. One German officer and five sailors jumped overboard and were rescued by the Norwegian steamer Varilda and put aboard the British destroyer Star of Athens sometime afterwards. The British destroyers that came up chased the Germans in the direction of Zeebrugge.

TURKISH LIAR IS BUSY

Denies Athens Report of Allied Successes on Sea and Land

Athens, May 4—It is reported from Mitylene that the disembarkation of British troops is continuing at two points. All the forts protecting Maidos have been destroyed. From land the allied forces have advanced and occupied Maidos which place has been reduced to ruins as a result of the fire of the allies. The Turkish losses have been considerable.

Official Constantinople claims are that the French cruiser Henri IV. was put out of action, the battleship Vengeance was forced to retire definitely, torpedo boat attacks by the allied fleet on the Dardanelles were repulsed and the British forces were prveented from improving their position on the Gallipoli Peninsula by the effectiveness of the Turkish gunfire.

WASHINGTON IS WORRIED

Nobody is Blamed for Sinking of Gulflight

Washington, May 4—The American oil ship Gulflight was torpedoed at mid-day without the slightest warning while flying the American flag, according to information given by sur[illegible] members of the crew at Penzance last night.

President Wilson, Secretary of State Bryan and the international law experts of the department have decided to suspend judgment in the case. The President and Secretary Bryan conferred last night at the White House. No protest has yet been filed.

The sinking of the Gulflight is regarded here as an incident of extreme delicacy because it is thought the most important of the attacks on American interests since the beginning of the German submarine warfare and the issuance of President Wilson's warning to Germany.

The highest officials here maintain the attitude of making no charges as yet against any government. A despatch was given out at Washington mouth used the words: "German torpedo struck bluff bow." The despatche was given out at Washington in that shape, but subsequently the word German was erased.

BIG OPENING FOR CITY LEAGUE

Opening Ceremonies Will Include Parade to Grounds

The opening of the City Baseball League on Saturday promises to be an event of great interest. The usual opening day ceremonies will be staged a la big league style. At one-thirty an auto parade will leave the Y. M. C. A. and proceed to the Riverside Park. It is the intention to put forth an effort to have the band in attendance. After the arrival at the park, other scenes in harmony with opening days will be witnessed, one of which will be the wind-up of Mayor Buller when he attempts to heave the first ball.

The Y. M. C. A. has very generously offered the use of a room for the players to dress in, and all the members of the various teams will likely avail themselves of this offer. The fact that the men dress there instead of at the park will assure the "fans" that the first game will begin sharp at two o'clock. The first game will be between the Classics and East City, while at four o'clock the Empire A. C. and Thistles will meet. The admission will be 15 cents for gents, ladies free, and 10 cents to all for the grandstand.

The citizens of Cobourg have presented the heavy battery of the second contingent, of which Lt.-Col. J. W. Odill, of Cobourg, is commander, with a field kitchen.

Dr. G. W. Anglin, who will be the chief surgeon with the Queen's stationary hospital, hase been granted the rank of lieutenant colonel by the minister of militia.

MR. SPENCE MUST LIVE IN THE CITY

If He Wishes to Retain the Position of Sanitary Inspector

Sanitary Inspector Spence will be given till the end of the year to become a ratepayer of the city, according to a decision arrived at last evening by the City Council. Mr. Spence does not reside in the city and the eagle eyes in the Trades and Labor Council noted this and uttered a protest against non-residents being employed by the city. The last meeting of the Council decided that the Trades and Labor Council should furnish names and the meeting last evening heard this reply:—

Peterborough, May 3, 1915.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong,
City Clerk.

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of April 6th asking for further information re non-residents being employed by the city, I beg to state that so far as the Trades Council can ascertain the only official living outside the city limits is Mr. Spence, the sanitary inspector, who resides in Douro township.

I am,

Yours truly,
R. MITCHELL,
Secretary.

A handful of Trades and Labor Council members were present in the gallery and the aldermen took special care to praise the laborites for the stand they took. Ald. McIntyre opened that line of oratory and at the same time murmured eulogistic remarks of the efficiency of Mr. Spence. In short, he thought is very unfortunate. Ald. Stratton was of the same opinion and felt that if the city is not paying the sanitary inspector sufficient salary to permit him to live in the city, his salary should be increased accordingly. Ald. Duffus, Edgar, Saunders and Weir all expressed the same feelings. The former thought Mr. Spence should be given reasonable length of time to make the change.

The speeches were brought to a close by Mayor Buller remarking that Mr. Spence is one of the best officials in the city and he does his duty without fear or favor. He thought the matter should be left over till next January.

Ald. Green and McIntyre moved that the Sanitary Inspector should be notified to become a ratepayer as soon as possible without causing loss to himself.

Ald. Weir and Edgar moved an amendment, that Mr. Spence be given until the end of the year to become a ratepayer. The amendment carried with the support of Ald. Weir, Edgar, Saunders, Duffus, and Langford.

Ald. Green, Evans and McIntyre voted for the motion. Ald. Stratton did not vote.

AUSTRO-ITALIAN BREAK?

Announcement From German Embassy Starts Political Pot Seething

Rome, May 4—Direct information from the German Embassy confirms the report that negotiations between Austria and Italy have been broken off. The excitement in the city is growing.

Ambassador Von Buelow's messenger delivered a note to the Foreign Minister, Baron Sonnino, last evening. Baron Sonnino immediately paid a second long visit to the King.

Before the meeting of the cabinet last night the newspaper Messagero announced: "During the last few hours the situation has undergone a marked change. Baron Sonnino, before war is declared on Austria, will make an effort to end the conflagration. He will warn Germany that Italy's intervention will also mean the intervention of Roumania."

Two important envoys are coming to Rome on secret missions. One of these envoys is Herr Mathias Erzberger, leader of the Catholic party in the German Reichstag, bearing a personal letter from Emperor Wilhelm to the Pope. A courier from Vienna will reach Rome to-day with Austria's final answer to the Italian representations.

"The cancellation of the visits of the King and Premier Salandra to the unveiling of a Garibaldi memorial has added greatly to the popular excitement. The commercial and industrial life of the city has come practically to a standstill.

BRITISH BUDGET TO-DAY

No War Loan Yet Despite Enormous

London, May 4—Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George will introduce a budget in the House of Commons to-day when enormous financial problems must be tackled. National expenditure in the first full year of the war will be at least 800,000,000 pounds ($4,000,000,000) and probably a good deal more. The budget probably will be followed by a second one later in the year.

It is understood Lloyd George has no intention of making any drastic change in the income tax. Two possible sources of new revenue have been discussed—a tax on working men's wages and a tax on traders' war profits, the latter being more serious ly considered.

What the House of Commons chiefly wants to know is the loan principle on which the war is to be financed for the next few months. Lloyd George is getting on so well with the daily issue of treasury bills that it is understood he will defer the issue of a new war loan a little longer.

GERMANS FLED FROM GAS

British Again Face Awful Fumes When Wind Changes

Northern France, May 4—The Bri-... cloud wafted from the German lines but this time they were prepared with respirators sent from England. The men crouched expectantly behind the sandbags. But a number of men were already unconscious or partially so when a providential whim of nature changed the direction of the wind toward the German line of trenches. The Germans fled pell-mell and the British shells sped them on.

Austria Fears New Foes

Precautions Being Taken Against Roumania and Italy

Bucharest, May 4—A great movement of troops is going on in Italy. Between Milan and Como in the Alps numerous trains of young and well equipped soldiers are passing, as well as ammunition and hospital trains. Similarly there is a movement of Austrian troops to the Austrian frontier.

The Austrians are also taking military precautions in Bukowina in case of an attack by Roumania.

With the Movies

In the realm of novelists who write of the north Jack London stands without a peer. His fertile brain has turned out tales of tragedy amid the trackless wastes of the north which make one fairly tingle. Critics agree however that in "An Odessey of the North" he surpassed himself. If you wish to witness the primal passions in unbridled sway; if you wish to see what man's greed for gold will do, don't miss seeing this story thrown on canvass at the Empire Theatre. It is six reels of thrills, staged amid indescribable wastes of snow and ice. Hobart Bosworth has the leading role, a man of great rugged physique and splendid dramatic powers. His portrayal of Naas the chief character, imparts most of the thrills and tense moments of the play into a gripping realism. The plot is unique. The picture may be seen today and Saturday.

WAR STAMP ON BILLS FOR WATER AND LIGHT

The Utilities Commissioners are very desirous to economize, but they also believe in sharing the burden Canada is bearing because of the Empire's effort to crush German militarism. When it was made known that all letters must bear a one-cent war stamp in addition to the regular postage it meant an increase in expenditure of some $35 per month in sending out light accounts and some $45 every three months in issuing water accounts. The idea of employing a man to deliver the accounts instead of sending them through the mails came up, but did not appeal to the commissioners. They felt that they would be neglecting their duties as British subjects should they discontinue using the mails, and the result is that the accounts still pass through the post office and each carries the additional war stamp.

Street Lighting System Giving Better Service

A few months ago the public feeling was that the street lighting system the Utilities Commission took over from the Peterborough Light and Power Co. was about due for the scrap heap. Complaints were numerous and the explanation given was that the system was worn out. When Manager Fisk assumed the managerial reins, he opined that the system was still of some use and he set about repairing it for use until the Commission "got on its feet." From the first many difficulties were met with the biggest one being the securing of good carbons. It was the old, old story, the carbons had been "made in Germany" and with the outbreak of the war the supply from the Fatherland was cut off. Then came the struggle to secure the material in other countries and the manufacturerers found it in Brazil. For a while the carbons sold to Peterborough and other cities were quite an inferior grade than those which had come from Germany but now the work is being perfected and carbons which will live for fourteen hours are again within reach of the Utilities Commission.

The lighting system has been thoroughly repaired and now it seems as ... will last a few more years and other branches of the department expanded instead of a new system of being installed.

PTE. HEBER ROGERS MET DEATH WHILE ON DUTY AT MACHINE GUN

GAVE UP HIS LIFE AT MACHINE GUN

Popular Young Soldier is Reported Killed in Battle at Ypres

HELD A MEDAL FOR LIFE SAVING

War's grim toll was again recorded last night, this time demanding the life of Private Heber Rogers, the 19-year-old son of Mr. R. B. Rogers, 147 Hunter street, East City. With almost stunning suddenness the news reached here last night that the young soldier had sold his life dearly while manning a machine gun against the terrific German onslaught at Ypres. While the tidings were brief it is easy to imagine the heroic and unfaltering courage with which Heber Rogers would stand by his gun when the odds were hopeless. He died as he had lived, full of the indomitable courage and pluck which was characteristic of his short young life. Heber Rogers came of a military family, and his gallant death, though bitter news not only to his family but his host of friends, is lightened by the knowledge that he died a true soldier's death, sacrificing all for the Empire.

His father received a telephone message early last evening from his sister, who had received a cablegram from Col. Herman Rogers, a cousin of Heber Rogers, which stated that Heber had been killed. The exact words were:

"Regret to say that poor Heber is dead. He sold his life dearly while firing a machine gun."

Soon the news spread, and genuine regret was expressed on every side.

To those who enjoyed the young soldier's acquaintance his death is a terrible blow. His school mates and the friends throughout the city feel his loss with a keenness too deep for words. Educated in the public schools of the city and later in the Collegiate Institute, his manliness and likable qualities made him a general favorite. At the Collegiate Institute he was president of the athletic society in 1914. He also was an athlete of no mean calibre, and was of invaluable assistance to the junior O. R. F. U. team for some years. One of his instructors, J. F. Harvey, of the Collegiate Institute, paid a splendid tribute to the young man today.

"He was a youth whose life had an uplifting influence on his associates," he said. "He was a good type of student, although his ambition seemed to be in excelling in all outdoor sports. He engaged in athletics for sheer love of them, and was invariably anxious to help along sports of any kind.

"The courage and gameness with which he fought as a soldier were distinguishing traits in his school life."

Saved Two Lives.

Ample evidence of his courage exists. Heber Rogers was the possessor of the Royal Humane Society's medal for life saving, awarded him when a boy of only ten. Two young sons of City Treasurer Adams were saved from drowning in the river by his plucky act in swimming out and bringing both to shore, when they fell off a raft. This was in June, 1906.

Two weeks later in Stoney Lake Heber Rogers dove five successive times in an attempt to save the life of Mr. Danby, a Toronto school teacher who was summering there. He also saved a young boy from drowning in the canal. All these acts testify to his courage and tend to show that he died with the same exemplary pluck.

Only Nineteen.

Heber Rogers was just nineteen years old the day he enlisted. His military enthusiasm early found an outlet through his association as an officer of the Collegiate Cadets and later with the 57th Regiment in No. 6 Company, commanded by Captain A. P. McLean.

He had two brothers, George of Frankfort and Lieut. Harry Rogers of the 8th Mounted Rifles, stationed at Ottawa, but who is now at home. Three sisters, Mrs. Fiarweather, Lillian and Leah, also survive.

The city has lost a gallant and promising young man in Heber Rogers but his heroic end will not be forgotten in Peterborough when the roll of her sons who have sacrificed their lives, is called. To his bereaved family the sympathy of the whole community is genuinely extended.

Was Popular at the Lakes.

Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., paid a warm tribute to the young soldier, who, he said, was a very popular young man with cottagers and visitors at Stoney Lake because of his bright and cheerful disposition and his ever-readiness to do a kind act, no matter what the inconvenence to himself might be. It had not been necessary for him to go to the battlefield to show himself heroic, as he held a medal of the Royal Humane Society for life-saving

Pte. H. Caillard.

Pte. Henry Caillard, of the Second Battalion, whose home is in Hove, Sussex, England, has been wounded. Pte. Caillard, although an Old Country boy, enlisted here with members of the 57th Regiment. While in the city he was employed in the Bank of Montreal, and boarded with Mr. C. A. Kelly, 204 Brock street.

BERLIN HEADQUARTERS STATEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, May 5. — The headquarters official statement says the British in Flanders continue their retreat, with heavy losses, in the direction of a bridgehead sharply to the eastward of Ypres. Germans have made good progress in the forest of Ailly, where ten French officers and 750 men were captured yesterday.

HAMMER IT INTO HEADS OF ENGLISHMEN

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 5. — An article in the Evening News by Poet William Watson, says: "It is high time that the masses of the people of England had it hammered into their somewhat slow minds. It is very doubtful indeed whether we are going to beat the Germans at all. It will be the fault of our own apathy, sluggishness and fatal optimism if the drama darkens at all into tragedy both for us and the truest interest of mankind."

REGIMENT OF TURKS ANNIHILATED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 5. — Despatches from Mytilene to the Havas Agency say that one regiment of Turkish troops was annihilated last night, and the Allies transported one thousand more prisoners to Tenedos and Moudros. Warships again bombarded the Turkish encampments.

CANADIANS AGAIN IN ACTION

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 5. — Cables received at the Militia Department today confirm last night's cable announcement that the Canadians have again been in action. The only details received were that there were casualties and that the Germans, in gaining ground, suffered heavily. Poisonous gases were again employed.

This service has been arranged at the suggestion of the officers of the 57th Regiment by the Peterborough Ministerial Association.

It is felt that all citizens of Peterborough will desire an opportunity of doing honor to the memory of their fallen heroes.

PTE. ARTHUR PHIPPS WAS STRUCK DOWN

Mother is Informed That Her Son is Among the Wounded

This morning Mrs. A. E. Phipps, King George street, was notified from Ottawa that her son, Pte. Arthur Phipps, of the Second Battalion, had been wounded.

Before enlisting with the 57th contingent, Pte. Phipps was employed at the Brinton carpet works and he was a member of the Carpet Weavers' Union.

Pte. Phipps is the second of a large circle of relatives to be mentoned in the casualty list.

MISSING TREES

Case to be Heard in County Police Court

Some time ago considerable publicity was given the fact that trees were being stolen from Chemong Park and it was hinted at the time that police court cases would follow. Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock, in the County Police Court, William and Louis Fobert will face Magistrate Langley, charged with stealing one tree the value of which was at least 25 cents. The outcome of the case is being awaited with interest.

Installing New Fire Alarm Cable

Good headway is being made with the installation of the new fire alarm cable. The operation is being hastened by contractor Wm. Lytle, who anticipates the completion of the work by next Tuesday or Wednesday. No mishaps have been encountered, so far, and the Chief is highly pleased with results. The cable arrived last Tuesday. It consisted of 1200 feet of 6 pair cable, 3,350 feet of 2 pair cable, and 4,100 feet of 1 pair.

"All this will be laid in the business section of the city," said the Chief, "which means that so far as the city is concerned the fire department will never again have any need for poles."

LT. COL. H. C. ROGERS PROMOTED TO COMMAND OF FOURTH BATTALION

Toronto, May 5.—Lieut.-Col. C. H. Rogers, in a cablegram, which was received from him by his wife last night, announces not only his safety, but also that he has gained promotion on the field of battle, and is now in command of the 4th battalion. While the cablegram contains this cheering information, it also announces that Private Heber Rogers, who was well known in Toronto and Peterborough, fell during the great struggle at Langemarck while working the machine gun of the 2nd battalion. The cable, which is dated "Field Post-Office, April 30," indicates by its delay in arriving the great number of messages which have been sent by the army during the first few days that followed the terrible engagement.

The message read as follows: 'First real fight; came through safely. Heber paid dearly with life with machine gun. Now in command of 4th battalion."

Lieut.-Col. Rogers is the son of Mrs. R. Z. Rogers and of the late Col. R. Z. Rogers, who was at one time in command of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, with headquarters in Peterborough. Lieut.-Col. Rogers succeeded to his father's command, but when the war broke out accepted a subordinate position in the first Canadian overseas expeditionary force taking the rank of major and going as second in command of the 2nd battalion. By his promotion he succeeds to the command of the 4th battalion, which includes the quotas supplied by the 12th York Rangers and the 36th Peel Regiment.

THREE MORE TRAWLERS ADDED TO LONG LIST

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HULL, May 5. — Three more trawlers have been added to the list of those blown up by German submarines in the North Sea on Monday, and it is feared that others also were lost, as they were shelled and fired upon with rifles by the crews of the submersible boats. The crews of the trawlers Iolanthe, Hero and Northward have landed here, reporting the destruction of their boats. No lives were lost aboard any of the three.

CABLE MESSAGE FROM MAJ. MILLS

Mr. E. D. Hall received a cable this morning from Major Mills, giving the information that Pte. Bruce Mills, the Ackerman boys and Pte. Elliott Green are safe.

The message was written on the 39th of April but was not transmitted till today.

Pte. Elliott Green held a position in the test department at the C.G.E. previous to leaving to enlist at Montreal.

Pte. Mills left with the 57th party. Some time ago during the first experience of the Peterborough boys in the trenches, he was reported as having received a slight wound.

HEADQUARTERS FOR CARNATION DAY

The store next to Mr. J. Grady's on Charlotte Street has been secured for those selling carnations on Saturday for the playgrounds fund. Some members of the committee will be there on Thursday and Friday evenings from 7.30 till 8.30 to give information to anyone wishing it and to receive names of volunteer workers for Saturday. The sale is under the auspices of the Women's Council.

Pte. Arthur Phipps is reported wounded, in a private despatch to his mother, who resides on King George street. When the photograph was first received the name of his companion was not given. The picture came to the notice of the late Pte. Heber Rogers, and it is only a few days ago that he returned the clipping with the name of the other soldier, who is Pte. Sidney Pellow.

PARIS, May 5. — (This afternoon's official statement.) — "To the north of Ypres, the Germans yesterday evening delivered an attack against a left sector of the British front.

"They were repulsed, and, taken in the flank by French artillery, they suffered serious losses.

"Nothing has been reported from the remainder of the front."

PARIS, May 5. — A despatch from Athens says the inhabitants of Gallipoli Peninsula were crossing in large numbers to the Asiatic shore yesterday. Two Turkish aeroplanes, which were reconnoitering and dropping bombs, were brought down by shells from the allied ships, and German aviators were captured.

Adrianople has been denuded of all troops and heavy artillery, and the Turks are apprehensive of a sudden attack by Bulgarians.

ADMITS HE BROKE JAIL

Accomplished Vagrant Escaped From Walla Walla Prison

FIRST THOUGHT TO BE GERMAN SPY

Arthur Forknell, linguist, scholar, and vagrant, who has been in the county jail here two months, turns out to be an escaped convict from Walla Walla prison, Washington, D.C. That he is a smooth tongued and desperate character was proved this morning when he confessed to having been sentenced for burglary to a term in Walla Walla jail, but escaped with a pal named King. Forknell is the man who was brought here before Magistrate Langley two months ago, suspected of being a German spy. The magistrate committed him to two months in the common jail. His arrest and certain facts about him were published at that time, even the Toronto papers mentioning the fact that he spoke seventeen languages and was not of the common criminal type.

Term Expired Yesterday.

Forknell's two months' incarceration expired yesterday and he was arraigned this morning on a vagrancy charge, to which he pleaded not guilty. When arrested he informed the police he was the son of well-to-do parents who lived in Australia. His father was commissioner for a large railway there and a brother held a responsible position in a municipality. This yarn turns out to be a mere myth for Chief Thompson communicated with Queensland, Australia, the address given, and got no reply. Before court today, Forknell confessed that he had given the police his wrong name. His real name was John B. McLaren, and he was an escaped convict from Walla Walla.

Goes Back to Jail.

McL[illegible] despite a stubby black beard, is a bright, intelligent looking man, his eyes being peculiarly brilliant. He speaks clearly and has a rather musical voice, and a slight English accent. He was given another months term in jail with hard labor during which more enquiries will be instituted about him.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1915.

THE LATE HEBER ROGERS.

WORD was received last night that another brave man from Peterborough was numbered with the slain in the battle of Langemarck. Heber Rogers is reported killed in action. Being with one of the crack machine gun batteries, he was in the thick of the fight, and was one of those who went forth to battle but did not return. The lists lately have contained the names of several men who enlisted in Peterborough and have been wounded in the big battle. Some of these were born in the Old Country, but had made many friends in Peterborough, who are sorry to know they are suffering. But there is a chance that those who are wounded will recover. A man killed, as Heber Rogers, who was young in years and bright in prospects, has no home-coming. He sleeps amid the sound of guns, in order that his friends might live.

PASSING OF LOCAL LICENSE BOARD.

TODAY, MAY 5th, the new Provincial License Commission assumes office, and so the old Local License Board ceased to exist last night. For ten years, ever since the Whitney Government came into power, Dr. M. A. Morrison has been chairman, and during that time two changes, owing to the death of the late Jonathan Griffin, of Lakefield, and the late H. LeBrun, of Peterborough, have taken place. The vacancies were filled by Mr. James Kendry and Mr. R. Sheehy, respectively. A retrospect of the decade of office redounds to the honour of those who have administered the affairs of the office. The law has been enforced, common-sense has been shown in dealing with liquor matters, so that objectionable places have been removed and a better class of hotel has been inaugurated. The Local Board has gained a reputation for its administration, and has merited the thanks of the citizens for public services well rendered.

In doing so, they only carried out the intention of the Government, whose policy has been to enforce the liquor laws and provide local option where the people desired it. This policy, which has been well carried out locally, has been of distinct benefit and temperance has progressed. The success of any law depends largely on those who administer it, and no doubt much of the success of the Whitney policy in this locality has been due to the efficient Local Board.

WHO WANTS AN ELECTION?

IF EVERYBODY paid attention to what some Liberals and to what some Liberal newspapers are saying it would appear that the Conservatives alone are anxious to bring on an election. The fact is that the Borden Government is not at all anxious for an election, although it has good cause for one. If an election takes place this year, it will be because of the policy of the Liberal Opposition in resorting to partizan tactics in the face of a party truce, and thereby forcing the Government to call an election. Had the Liberal Opposition at Ottawa not tried to guillotine most of the Government bills, and adopted its nagging tactics during the last session, there would have been no talk of an election. If the Government goes to the people, it will be because it finds itself hampered and unable to do its duty to the country, because of the Liberals in Opposition. The responsibility is on them, not on the Conservative leaders. The Hon. Robert Rogers made this quite plain in an address at Montreal the other night, when he declared the Government were being simply driven to call an election because of the tactics of the Liberals. Canada was being prevented from doing her full duty because the Liberals were blocking the Government. Hon. Mr. Rogers said:

"Now, let me say: Is it fair to the Government, is it fair to the Canadian people, is it fair to the Empire, under present trying conditions, that a Government, elected by the free-will of the people, should be asked to remain handicapped in having their proposals defeated at the will of this irresponsible majority in the Upper Chamber?

"And some people say it would not be patriotic to hold an election during the war. Let me ask such an individual this question: Which would be the more patriotic — to dissolve this Parliament and have full and complete control, which any Government must have if they are going to render that full service to Canada; or to remain as we are, handicapped, crippled and interfered with at every turn, wrangling and disputing with an Opposition that has not only refused us its support, but has declared by its voice and by its vote a want of confidence in our proposals for the providing of the necessary means that up to the present have been estimated as necessary for the carrying on of our part in this great conflict, and, in view of our recent deplorable and heavy losses it is evident that renewed and greater efforts have yet to be made?"

"I call Heaven as my witness when I say that under rational and reasonable conditions, neither myself nor any other member of the Government, so far as I know, wants an election. If the Government here were receiving the same treatment, for example, that the Government of Great Britain receives from the Opposition and the House of Lords, there would undoubtedly be no occasion for any mention of an election, but you have only got to look at the record of the last session and read the Liberal press, to know and understand that this is not the case. And, in addition to this, what could be said that is not already being said by the Liberal press in Canada that would create greater strife and division than that which their actions, from day to day are creating?"

Mr. Rogers said in view of the action of the "irresponsible majority in the Senate," the Government had decided to appeal to the people last September, but its plans were changed, owing to the outbreak of war. If the Opposition had played a loyal part and assisted the Government in the emergency, there would have been no talk about an election at the present time.

SOLDIERS' VOTES.

REGARDING soldiers' votes, Hon. Robert Rogers said that the Government took the position that the man who would put his life at the service of his country to fight for our liberty and our freedom, to fight for our greatest possessions, that of our British citizenship and our membership in the great British Empire, is the man above all others who should have the right to say how his country should be governed. He was sure that the stand so taken by the Government would meet with the approval of every good loyal citizen of Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WE OBSERVE a birth notice in the Westminster Gazette, which concludes, "Canadian papers please copy." Evidently the happy father wanted the boy well and extensively advertised. We presume he never thought of the expense.

ARE your feet clean? said a lady of Peterborough to a man at the celar entrance. The reply, worthy of record, was gentlemanly and precise—Yes, my feet are clean, but I'm not sure about my shoes.

THE FACT that the sun rises at 4.48.32 now doesn't arouse an overwhelming interest. The fact that the moon rises at midnight is, however, noted by a few people, particularly young and inexperienced persons.

A NUMBER of men are complaining now that they can't attend to their business because it takes all their time to read the war news.

A COLONIAL SOLDIER.

(Westminster Gazette.)

Born on the broad Canadian plains, he died
In narrow Flanders, nigh the grey sea-tide.
Grandson of England, hasting ere her call,
Ranked with her sons he won the right to fall
Unnoticed. Yet with those who save her fame
He lives, bright atom of her deathless flame.

—W. P. Reeves.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

Ypres and Its Neighbourhood.

(New York Sun.)

Ypres was once the capital of Western Flanders. As the crow flies it is thirteen miles from that place to Dixmude, and from there to the coast ten; while the distance from Ypres almost due south to Armentieres is twelve miles and about the same to La Bassee. The Lys runs through the hilly southern part of the region, and the Yser winds through the north, which becomes flat and marshy as the stream approaches the sea. Before the war, Ypres had a population of about 18,000. Between the ancient town and Dixmude is the rather extensive forest of Houthulst. Five miles southwest of the forest is Bixschoote, and a less distance to the southwest is Lizerne, on the west bank of the Ypres canal. Both these small towns figure in the latest despatches from the battle line.

The British Navy.

(N. Y. Journal of Commerce.)

What may be called the indirect military results of the superiority of the British navy have not been less striking. But for the advantage it scored at the very beginning of the war, the French Republic might have been crushed and forced to make a humiliating peace, and then the German army would have turned upon Russia before the Russian army was fairly mobilized. With a navy weaker than that of Germany, Great Britain could have taken no part in the struggle on sea or on land, and it would have been the lot of her people to watch in impotence the onward march of German militarism in the full consciousness that the downfall of France and Belgium and the defeat of Russia were merely the first steps toward the violation of their own Island sanctity and the dismemberment of the Empire.

Will Be True to Its Traditions.

(Montreal La Presse.)

The question arises, What attitude will La Presse take in the event of an election? We have never been a party organ and never will be. * * We shall continue to follow religiously the line of conduct we have followed for the past twenty years. * * * If there is one thing dear to the heart of La Presse, one thing more precious than the opinion of all the politicians in the world, it is its tradition.

Advice to Liberals.

(Montreal La Patrie.)

If the Liberal party does not want an election, let them silence their clubs. If they do not wish to appeal to the people, why do they unceasingly provoke the Government? They profess to desire a political truce. Let them respect it themselves. Let them guard against their political fanaticism breaking it. Let them display less hypocrisy and do less lying. Let them stand to the level of the times, so solemn and serious, which we are passing.

The Noblest Answer.

(Montreal Mail.)

Perhaps, after all, the noblest and best answer to Germany's chant of hatred of Britain is the one that goes out from many of our churches daily in the prayer for our own wounded warriors, "and also those of Germany."

IN DEFENCE OF SIR ROBERT BORDEN

Editor Review,

Sir,—In defence of Sir Robert Borden at this time when it is being demonstrated both by The Globe's report of the Governor-General's reluctance to consent and by the protest of many of the electors that an election is not desired, allow me to say that the really main question is being ignored by some of your readers and your contemporaries. I refer to Sir Robert Borden's load as Prime Minister of Canada. All will now admit I hope that this election cannot be a political dodge since it is being condemned as to the last degree unpopular and as likely to be disastrous to the government in power. Such an election could not be an attempt to get back into power by unworthy means, that is to say, by catching the people in a moment of imperial enthusiasm, off their guard, or in a moment when, no matter what they thought, they would hesitate to change horses while crossing a stream. These considerations demonstrate the fact that Sir Robert Borden could not wisely go to the country on any mere pretext. What then is his reason? As he himself says it is that we are face to face with unforeseen burdens which he will not assume without the approval of the country. Has Sir Robert Borden no rights or must he be driven by the gossip of the streets like a piece of paper before the wind? Sir Robert Borden has the undoubted right to ask the country for its opinion and now that all "political trickery" is eliminated from it by the very people who made the change since a thing cannot at one and the same time be intensely unpopular and yet meet with popular approval, I do hope that those who ought to know what Sir Robert Borden has to bear will be a little more considerate and thoughtful and be willing if necessary to give him their opinion during, if needs be, the momentary and not necessarily serious disturbance of an election.

TOURIST TRADE.

Editor Review,

Sir,—Your article in yesterday's Review urging us to develop the tourist trade this summer is excellent in tone. It will however be futile to carry out your suggestion, even by the expenditure of large sums of money under present conditions. While we ourselves neglect sanitary precautions and are satisfied to breathe vitiated air, it will be a poor inducement to attract health seekers and money spenders which will be so numerous this year owing to the war in Europe, to say nothing of permanent residents. When our own citizens complain of the perennial stench that emanates from the slaughter house in our midst how can we expect strangers to be attracted to our otherwise centre of attractions both up and down our Kawartha stretches of water? A health resort is not made famous by its stench. It has been the policy of our aesthetic council to encourage the nuisance instead of taking steps in repressing it which they have power to do with any nuisance, and which they do in other cases much less offensive. This and the dust nuisance are the only two cases that are privileged, but the latter gives us a rest during the winter months, while the former, like Tennyson's brook, goes on forever.

Yours truly,
KAWARTHA.

Found It Easy.

"His wife never disagres with him."

"What harmony! Maybe she is afraid of him."

"No; she has a mind of her own."

"But do their hearts always beat as one?"

"Yes; he always agrees with her."

A VALUABLE DOG

By MARTHA V. MONROE.

When Stephen Yardley returned from Europe he brought a dog with him. The animal was evidently not of a breed that would enable him to take a prize in a dog show, and since Yardley was rich and always had the best that money could buy there was some curiosity among his friends to know why the beast had taken his fancy. This was enhanced by noticing that Yardley led the dog down the gangway himself and on leaving the dock took him with him into the carriage.

"What did you pay for him?" asked a friend.

"Five thousand dollars."

"Five thousand dollars?"

"Yes, and ten thousand wouldn't buy him."

"There must be something about him that is not discernible to the eye. What is it?"

"I'll tell you. I was in Paris when the great European war broke out. Indeed, for the past few years I've been more in Paris than at home. Well, you know we Americans in Paris organized an American corps to join in the dispute between the allies and Germans. I enlisted—why I don't exactly know. The United States remained neutral, and I suppose we should have remained neutral, but we didn't. We went into it the way most men volunteer in wartime—to be in the excitement.

"Anyway, we formed a corps and after a certain amount of training were marched to the front. You remember that there was a lot of fighting in a wood near the center of the line. I was fighting one day in the wood when we suddenly came upon a lot of Germans, and a lively scrimmage followed. Our fellows were driven back, and I, shot in the body, was left on the field. The Germans didn't know that they had licked us or, fearing an ambush or something, retreated.

"Well, there I was, deserted by friend and foe, left to bleed to death in a wood. Night came on, and the horror and loneliness were enough to kill a man without his dying of a wound. Fortunately the cold weather had not yet come on, and I didn't suffer with the cold. It was a relief to see the day coming, for it brought a hope that there would be more fighting in the wood and I would be within the lines of either one side or the other.

"But the firing that began with dawn seemed to recede rather than approach. I had nothing to sustain me either of food or drink. I crawled toward the nearest dead body—a German—and tried to find some sustenance on him, but there was neither a crust of bread nor a swallow of water. I crawled on a little farther to a dead Frenchman and found some bread and a flask of wine.

"If it hadn't been for these I would have perished, for I lay there all that day and another night. I had stuffed a part of my shirt into my wound, and it choked up the bleeding, but I didn't dare draw a long breath for fear of starting the hemorrhage again. While I was intent on myself and my dreadful condition incidents about me were ever present. The birds that had been frightened away by the firing returned and were flitting in the branches above me. Insects were buzzing, attending to their daily affairs, unmindful that a human being was gradually sinking to death.

"Finally I fell into a stupor. I didn't know whether it was night or day and I didn't care. I heard a distant booming, but that was going on all the while. I heard the bark of a dog and had I been in a better condition might have especially noticed it. The bark sounding nearer, I made an effort to arouse myself. When it was close by me I opened my eyes and there was the dog looking at me and barking.

"Pretty soon he scampered off, barking as he ran; then I could hear him drawing nearer again. But I was too weak to take much notice of him. He was gone so long that I forgot all about him. But after awhile I heard his bark again far away, but drawing nearer. The next thing I knew I felt a hand on my wrist. Opening my eyes, there was a man with a red cross on his arm kneeling beside me.

"As soon as he knew that I lived he gave a call, and assistance came. I was put on a stretcher and carried to the rear, where I was placed in a hospital and received proper attention.

"As soon as I got well enough to think of anything except myself I asked about the dog that had saved me. I was told that he was one of the dogs that had been trained to hunt for the wounded. He had gone off into the wood where I lay and had come back barking and indicating that he wished to be followed. A man was sent with him and found me very near death's door. Probably another hour without attention would have finished me.

"I asked to see the dog, and he was brought in to me. When I offered to buy him I was told that the Red Cross dogs were not for sale. Then I agreed to subscribe $1,000 to the Red Cross fund in exchange for him. My offer did not produce any effect till I raised it to $5,000. Then by some hocus pocus the Red Cross managers got around the selling of one of their dogs for money, and my offer was accepted.

"And now you know why I have brought home a dog that originally was bought for perhaps $5 or $10, having paid $5,000 for him."

And Yardley hugged his pet.

CARE OF THE EYES.

Here are a few "don'ts" for those who have pretty eyes, value them and [illegible] them:

Don't go out with your eyes exposed to very cold winds.

Don't work with a strong light facing you.

Don't leave a hot room suddenly for a cold, raw outside temperature. Try to break the shock in some way.

Don't open the eyes under water, especially when bathing in the sea.

Don't use cold water to bathe inflamed eyes. As hot as can be borne is far better for them.

Don't sleep so that the morning sun falls directly upon your face and awakens you.

Don't be too vain to go to a good oculist and wear what he suggests in the way of glasses, or you may risk losing what eyesight you have very quickly.

Prevention is always better than a cure, but a cure is better than blindness.

For Prolonged Standing

How To Treat Feet Which Have Been Affected by it

Probably the first discomfort which unaccustomed standing will cause results from tiredness and swelling of the feet at night. This is relieved by bathing the feet in hot water to which a good handful of coarse salt has been added, afterward drying them well and gently rubbing them with a piece of flannel. This, of course, is a very mild remedy, and a far more efficacious bath is made by adding half an ounce of powdered alum, an ounce of borax and one of sea salt to a foot bath of hot water. The greatest relief will then be given, every trace of pain and burning being removed. If the feet in addition to feeling swelled and tired are actually tender to the touch witch hazel, to which a few drops of spirits of camphor have been added, should be rubbed in after the bath, when the most satisfactory results will ensue. The extract is really invaluable for tender feet, and any one who suffers in this way would do well to see that a bottle accompanies her on her travels.

Another homely and very valuable preparation for tired or aching feet is ammonia, and this is often more easily obtainable than salt in sufficient quantities, for salt is necessarily a bulky thing. A foot bath, with hot or just warm water, to which a teaspoonful of ammonia has been added, is literally a specific for tired, swelled and aching feet, and one which is easily procured.

After the hot foot bath it is well to examine the feet carefully, noting any hard patches or calloused skin and removing them by rubbing with a file immediately they appear. Underneath the toe ball, especially of the big toe, and the sides of the heel frequently develop these hard places, and the sooner they are removed the better. If neglected they may develop into corns, and, anyway, they are productive of considerable discomfort.

Matched Jeweled Sets.

From shoe buckles to hatpins jewels now come matched together. Two buckles and two pins come in each set. Platinum is the favorite ground, ornamented with chasing or appliqued with gold filigree wire and mounted with the opaque stones.

Whatever material and gem are chosen, the construction is invariably light and airy, with openwork spacings and very small gems. Filigree wire is much used for flower pins, and a fine example of their dainty lightness is shown in platinum wire.

Baby's Knife and Fork.

A tiny knife and fork for a baby are sold in the shops. They will be welcome by the mothers who believe that small children should be accustomed to the table utensils of their elders as soon as possible, for, while his knife and fork are very broad and very short and can easily be held and manipulated by a baby hand, yet they are a real knife and fork.

IN THE LINGERIE SHOP.

Lingerie in all its daintiest forms is to be seen in the shops. Charming sets copied from imported models are very moderate in price. One lovely French set, consisting of nightgown, chemise and drawers, has a band of pink ribbons surmounted by a band faced with blue mull. Each piece in the set is charmingly finished off with [illegible]

Another set of three pieces has an empire nightgown and chemise trimmed with bands of pink or blue batiste. The daintiest little crepe de chine underbodices are to be seen in the stores. They are of lace and ribbon and look charming under a sheer blouse.

Everybody is dancing now, and for the feminine dancer a pretty petticoat is as necessary as a pretty dance frock. Special dancing skirts are made of accordion plaited chiffon in pink, blue or white. Crepe de chine petticoats with lace flounces are to be had in all the evening shades. For the dansants there are crepe de chine or messaline skirts in dark shades, to be worn under suits.

Mercerized cotton petticoats are well made and come in all the usual silk petticoat colors—violet, red, green, blue and brown. They are soft and durable and not at all cumbersome.

COLUMN FOR THE CHILDREN

Game of Tip Cat.

This is a common sport among boys, more particularly in the country. It has a great advantage in being easily made with a common knife. The piece of wood which is called the "cat" is about six inches in length and from one and a half to two inches in diameter, gradually tapering from the middle to each end.

The cudgel with which the game is played is about the length and thickness of a common hoopstick.

The player, taking this in his right hand, strikes one end of the cat smartly, which causes it to rise in the air high enough to be struck before it again falls to the ground.

There are several ways of playing the game of cat. The most common is to make a ring, selecting a piece of flat ground. One boy holds a piece of string that will make the circle required at the center, and another one takes the extremity of the line, and with a piece of chalk he walks round and forms the ring. The player takes his stand in the middle, and his business is to strike the cat outside the ring. Should he fail in doing so he is out, and the next player takes his place; if successful he judges with his eye the distance the cat is driven from the center of the ring and calls for a number to be scored for his side. If the number named be found to exceed the same number of lengths of the stick he is out. If, on the contrary, it does not he obtains his call.

Some Hints on Fire Making.

To begin with, dry wood must be used to get the fire started, and after it is once going you should mix green wood with the dry. Birch bark is about the best thing to start with, or pine needles and other things may be used. On top of the birch bark small dry twigs should be laid. Around all this a sort of blockhouse of larger wood should be built. The whole fire should be built between two green logs about four or five inches in diameter, if such logs are easily procured. If not, the fire should be built inside a three sided wall of rocks. The opening should be turned toward the wind. Never choke a fire by piling on too much wood. Grass is a poor substitute for birch bark, as also are leaves.

Forfeits.

When the young people are sitting around after the evening dinner here are some things to keep them busy:

Tell the culprit to grasp the right ankle with the right hand while standing on the left foot, bend it until the right knee touches the floor, then slowly rise to a standing position again. Keep the left hand extended, touching nothing. The right foot must not touch the floor nor the ankle be released from the right hand.

Put one hand where the other cannot grasp it. Do this by grasping the right elbow with the left hand.

Place an object on the floor so no one can jump over it. Do this by placing the article in a corner.

Hold the foot in one hand and walk around the room whistling "Yankee Doodle."

Pose as "Liberty Enlightening the World."

Stick a pin in the center of a ball of yarn, allowing it to stand up so that the victim can catch it with his teeth. Black the top of the ball with burnt cork. Play this only on a person who will take the joke without getting angry.

Put "Mary" through the keyhole. Write the name on a bit of paper and poke it through.

JUGGERNAUT FOR THE CANADIAN FORCES

Although Canadian artillery authorities have had no experience in the construction of armored automobiles, the forty land-cruisers of the Eaton Maching Gun Battery are considered the model of mechanical efficiency. This picture, which is a view of the first completed car for the battery, shows how formidable the car appears. There is no other armored car like it in the world, and it was produced only after five other experimental models had been tried out. Among other features are the revolving turret, the cable-cutting saws on the front end, and the four-wheel power transmission construction. The whole car with its crew of five officers and men, weighs 10,600 pounds.

Heavy Fighting in Western Galicia

Teutons Claim 30,000 Prisoners but London Has Doubts

London, May 5—Capture of three towns in Flanders, aggressive pursuit of the Russians in West Galicia with a heavy toll of prisoners and renewed claims that the advance of the allied army in Gallipoli had been stopped are the outstanding features in the official reports of yesterday's fighting from Berlin, Vienna and Constantinople.

Field-Marshal French states that he voluntarily relinquished the positions because the use of gas by the Germans made a readjustment of his positions necessary. The Germans and Austrian successes in the Carpathians are also discounted here.

Unofficial advices from Berlin say the Germans expect to capture the port of Riga without much Russian resistance.

Reports of the sinking of an English submarine by airships is the North Sea and the disabling of the British battleship Agamemnon in the Dardanelles, come from Berlin.

Austro-German reports state that fresh conquests have been made following the drive through the Russian line in West Galicia. More than 30,000 prisoners have already been taken, according to the Austrian report which adds that strong Russian forces are retreating through the Carpathians to the eastward.

In Flanders the Berlin report states, the Germans this morning captured Zevecote , Zonnebeke and Westhook and the forests of Polygonous and Nonneboischen, positions which have been the goal for heavy fighting for months past.

London Official

The following despatch from Field-Marshal French was made public by the War Office last night:

"The loss of ground which resulted from the unexpected use of asphyxiating gases by the enemy last week has necessitated the readjustment of our line before Ypres. This readjustment was successfully completed last night. The new line runs west of Zonnebeke.

"During the last 24 hours the situation has been normal along the whole front, with the exception of one half-hearted attack by the enemy north-east of Ypres Monday evening. It was easily beaten off.'

Several Nibblings

Paris, May 4—The following official statement was issued by the war office to-night: "Our progress in Belgium near Steenstraate, has continued. In Champagne, near Beausejour, the Germans delivered three successive attacks. They were repulsed with loss. In the Argonne, we progressed at Bagatelle and a fresh attack enabled us to increase our gain in Le Pretre woods."

Cal m in Petrograd

Petrograd, May 5—No unfavorable inferences can be drawn from the fac that the latest Russian communiqu omits to mention the German raid through the Baltic prvoinces. In any event the latest move by the enemy can have no lasting strategic signifi cance. It is being carried out almost exclusively by the cavalry.

It is regarded as quite likely that the long and furious battle is developing on the Galician slopes of the Car-Carpathians, southwest of Tarnow.

Pushed, Not Smashed

London, May 5—J. L. Garvin says in The Pall Mall Gazette that it is pretty certain that yesterday's Berlin bulletins claiming to have smashed the Russian front in the mountain and hill country some 50 miles east of Cracow, will turn out to be grossly exaggerated. The Russians obviously have been pushed back a certain distance, but relative to the scale o the conflict nothing very serious happened. The Austrian reports are vague and dubious. They cannot simulate the artificial raptures of Berlin. The Russian connections through Galicia with Dukla and the other Carpathian passes, seem thoroughly secure.

TAKES ALL MEAT

Entire Supply From Australia and New Zealand is Requisitioned

London, May 5—Walter Runciman, President of he Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons last evening that the British Government had requisitioned the entire supplies of meat from Australia and New Zealand. The supplies that were not needed for the army, Mr. Runciman added, would be marketed for the civ l population to prevent increases in price from shortages.

H. J. Tennant, Parliamentary Secretary of the War Office, said that Great Britain had under consideration the question of employing "similar expedients" against the use by German troops on the battlefield of asphyxiating gases.

FIRM HOLD BY ALLIES

Turks Lose Heavily in Hopeless Attacks on Invaders

London, May 5—The following official announcement regarding the Gallipoli fighting was issued at Cairo yesterday: "During the nights of May 2nd and 3rd the Turks launched strong and determined attacks in mass against our positions, constantly bringing up fresh troops. The allies repulsed every attack, inflicting enormous losses. They then drove the enemy out of their positions.

Athens reports that after desperate battles the Turkish forces are being repulsed everywhere on the Gallipoli Peninsula. The operations in the straits are developing favorably for the allies.

The heavy guns of the fleet have been working in effective co-operation with the land forces and thanks to the fire of the naval guns, a number of troops of the Turkish column were isolated at various points on the peninsula and forced to surrender. The Turks are burning all villages.

CANADIANS BATTLE AGAIN?

London, May 5—Reports received from Dunkirk, via Amsterdam, claim that the Canadians have again been in action, and that on Friday last they had to surrender their trenches.

"On Friday morning," says the message, "the Germans began an attack, aided by a northeasterly gale and the use of gas clouds. Although the Canadians gallantly fought with bayonets, the Germans finally took possession of the trenches, but only at the price of very heavy losses.

"The German airmen supported their artillery. Two of them were brought down early in the morning, and Lieut. eber and an aviator named Kreuz were made prisoners."

Italy's Plunge Postponed

London Gossip Agrees With Rome That Intervention Must Come Soon

London, May 5—In all the London service clubs last night May 15 was talked of as the date Italy's actual intervention in the war will be an accomplished fact. There no longer remains any doubt in circles as to Italy's intentions. The only question is as to when the fateful step will be taken.

Rome advices are that the pourparlers with Austria cannot possibly lead to an accord and the alternative is war, and that nothing now remains but to recognize this fact and act upon it. This recognition is anticipated shortly. Telegrams to Rome from Tripoli, describing the treachery o the native troops and the losses o Italians, affirm that among the captured prisoners or dead who fought in the rebel ranks are some German officers attired in Turkish uniforms. This may give rise to new diplomatic incidents ...

KING EDWARD SCHOOL CANNOT ACCOMMODATE MANY MORE SCHOLARS

School Board Loath to Exclude County Pupils But This Action May be Imperative Next Term

Owing to overcrowding at the King Edward school, it will most likely be found necessary at the end of this term to exclude county pupils until such times as arrangements can be made for more accommodation. The matter was brought before the Board of Education last night by Mr. John Crane, chairman of the Supervision Commission, who furnished figures showing the rapid growth in attendance at the King Edward. There are 526 students on the roll, and 62 county pupils. In 1913 the increase was 89, in 1914 it was 63 and if the growth is half as much this year the school will be overtaxed for accommodation. Mr. Crane and School Inspector Mowat pointed out that the act, when cases of this character occur, authorizes the inspector to exclude county pupils. The Board were loath to adopt such a course unless it became imperative, but on motion of Mr. Crane it was decided to authorize the inspector to exclude county pupils if he found it necessary, such a course not to be taken during this term, however.

Principal Kenner informed the Board by letter that fire drill was not favored by him in the Collegiate Institute, because it incomoded the classes and interfered with their instruction hours. It was referred to a committee of the whole Board to discuss.

Routine business was transacted including the reception of the following communications:—

Applications.

From Thomas D. Alkingham, Stayner, making application for a position on the high or public school teaching staff, and stating his qualifications.

From Mabel C. Baxter, Kentville, N.S., a teacher with five years' experience, asking to be kept in mind should there be a vacancy in any of the common school grades during 1915 or 1916, and enclosing certificates of recommendations.

From Elfreda Graham of Kentville, N.S., making a request for consideration should there be a vacancy in the primary department teaching staff. She was the holder of a first rank diploma from Provincial Normal School, Truro, also a first class certificate of military drill. A high tribute to her ability was enclosed from the inspector of schools where she is at present teaching.

From Ethel V. Huffman, teacher in Brantford, stating that Peterborough was her home city and she was desirous of obtaining a position as teacher in one of the home public schools.

From Miss R. Morton applying for a position on the public school teaching staff. She is now teaching in the Mount Joy school, near Markham, but found the work heavy as she had sixty on the roll.

From Miss Georgia Walsh declining to substitute for Miss Ferguson, owing to ill health.

From Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield stating that Mr. Gordon was at present in Indianapolis and therefore would not be present at the meeting of the Board of Education.

School Nurse's Report.

From Euna P. Kennedy, school nurse, submitting report for two months ending May 1st, 1915. Number of inspections 736. Number of pupils advised to have dental attention 272. Number of pupils advised to have medical attention 68. Number of pupils sent home with rashes 5. Number of homes visited 28. A great many pupils received dental attention during Easter vacation.

School Attendance.

The April attendance at the Collegiate according to Principal Kenner's report was 304. The number on roll was 321.

The public school average attendance was 2288. Fire drill was practised in each of the schools during the month, time 40 to 65 seconds.

The following reports were read and adopted:—

To the chairman and members of the Board of Education,

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg to report that owing to Miss Walsh not being able to accept the appointment as substitute for Miss Ferguson for the balance of the term on account of ill-health, your Committee, on the recommendation of Dr. Merchant and the Principal of the Normal School, appointed Miss Hall of Cornwall, who has accepted and is at present taking the classes.

Miss Hall is to be paid the minimum salary under the schedule for domestic science instructors.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

PROTEST USELESS

Sir John French Reports on Use of Poisonous Gases

London, May 5—A report by Field-Marshal French on the use of poisonous gases by the Germans says: "Gases have been ejected from pipes laid into our trenches and also generated by the explosion of shells especially manufactured. The German troops who attacked under cover of these gases were provided with especially designed respirators which had been issued in sealed pattern covers, a fact which points to long and methodical preparation on a large scale.

"Since the enemy first made use of this method of covering an advance by a cloud of poisoned air, they have repeated it, both in offense and defense, whenever the wind has been favorable.

"The effect is not merely disabling or painlessly fatal, as suggested by the German press. Those victims who do not succumb in the fields but are brought into the hospital suffer acutely. A large proportion die a painful lingering death. Those who survive fare little better, for in the case of injury to the lungs it appears that they become permanent invalids for life.

"These effects were known to the German scientists who devised the new weapon and to the military authorities who sanctioned its use. I am of the opinion that the enemy have definitely decided to use these gases as a normal procedure and that protests are useless."

British Line Holds

Germans Bringing More Heavy Guns For New Ypres Battle

Rotterdam, May 5—Heavy guns are still going westward through Belgium to aid the German offensive. It is reported that during the last two days very severe fighting has occurred in the neighborhood of Zonnebeke.

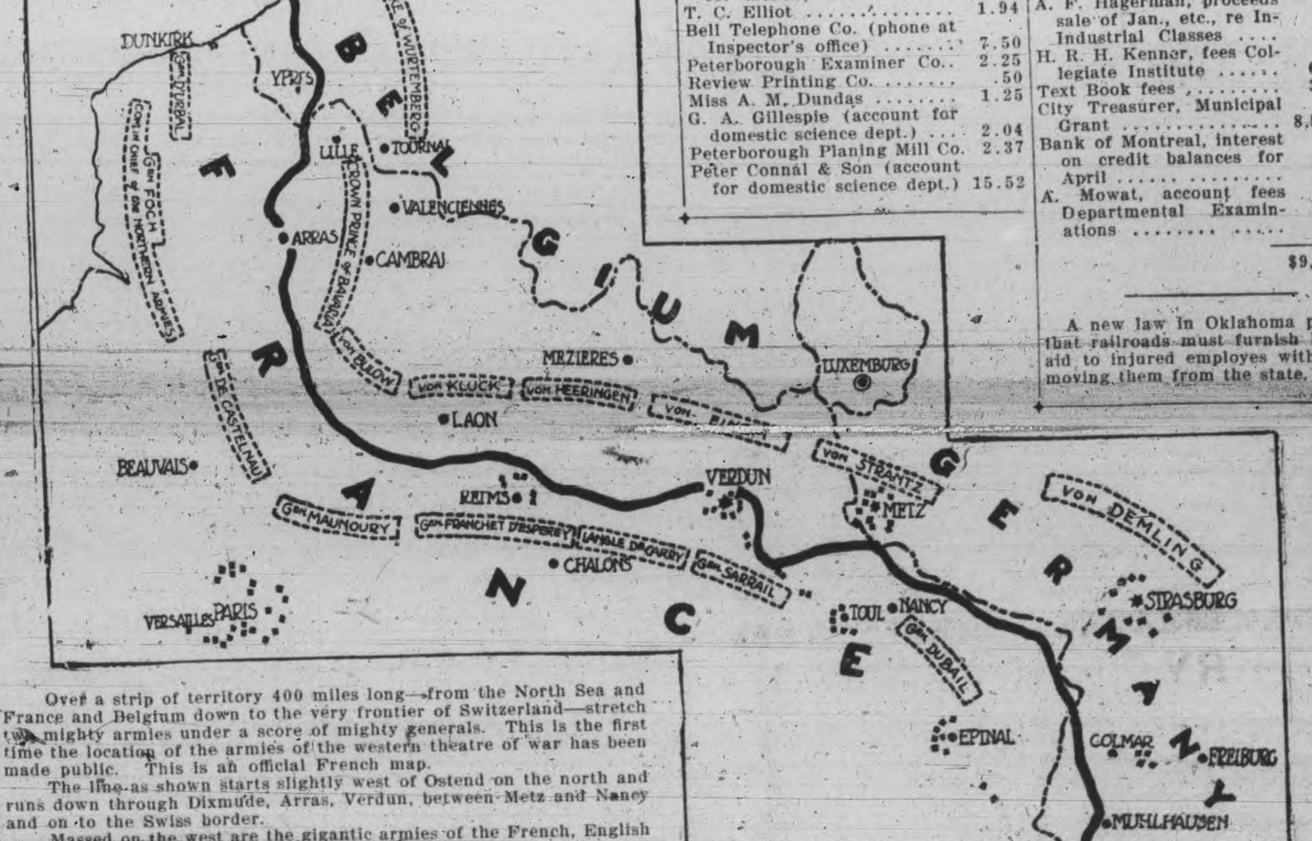
The tenacity of the British defence in that area has been wonderful. They have held up the Germans at Grenfenstafel at a critical point in the battle. Fighting of a particularly determined nature is still proceeding in this neighborhood, the aim of the enemy being to force the British to retreat to Ypres.

Wilson's Fateful Protest

President Wilson and cabinet discussed yesterday the case of the American tank steamer Gulflight and the death of its captain and two of its crew, on the evidence so far that the attack was by a German submarine. The purpose of the president is to make one case for the purposes of a protest, the Falaba, and all other vessels on which American citizens were killed and American property destroyed in the so-called German submarine war zone. The tone and quality of these representations will determine whether a crisis with Germany is to develop.

John Bunny, reputed to have grown wealthy as the most popular moton picture actor of his time, left an estate of only $8,000, all going to his wife.

How Germans and Allies Line up on Western Battle Line



Over a strip of territory 400 miles long—from the North Sea and France and Belgium down to the very frontier of Switzerland—stretch two mighty armies under a score of mighty generals. This is the first time the location of the armies of the western theatre of war has been made public. This is an official French map.

The line as shown starts slightly west of Ostend on the north and runs down through Dixmude, Arras, Verdun, between Metz and Nancy and on to the Swiss border.

Massed on the west are the gigantic armies of the French, English and Belgians. On the east are the forces of Germany.

The map shows more plainly than anything else that the French have been bearing the great brunt of the fighting, as the British forces take up only 40 of the 400 miles. Field Marshal Sir John French and his forces are under Gen. Foch, commander-in-chief of the armies of the north, and one of Joffre's first chiefs.

A new law in Oklahoma provides that railroads must furnish hospital aid to injured employes without removing them from the state.

Attractive Itinerary For the Review Party

Drives and Side-trips Included in Three Day Stay in San Francisco — Candidates All Doing Splendid Work — Don't Forget That "Opportunity Period" Closes Saturday Night

It is surprising to think that the end of the contest is so near at hand. Four weeks from next Saturday night at 8 o'clock will see the close of the greatest contest that was ever held in this city and county—one that has interested old and young. From the youngest child to the oldest man or woman, all have been interested, and everybody has talked about it.

It is interesting to surmise the policy of the different candidates in The Review's world's fair contest as it is revealed by The Review. A number of these energetic ladies apparently think it wise to withhold the vote for a rush at some certain time. No doubt others are systematically collecting votes, and undisturbed by any special offers, are accumulating them for a rush at the last. Others again who have done splendid work go on with even tenor, sending in their votes regularly every few days.

This will be the itinerary of The Review party during our stay in San Francisco.

Arrive in San Francisco.

Morning—Drive around San Francisco, visiting Golden Gate park, where you will see flowers, trees and shrubs from every clime in the world; fountains, waterfalls and lakes; birds of rare and beautiful plumage; herds of elk, deer and buffalo. Here are also the stadium, band stand, Japanese tea gardens, museum art gallery, conservatory and many imposing groups of statuary.

Touring the ocean boulevard, a magnificent view of the Pacific ocean and Golden Gate is obtained. A stop is made at the Cliff house to view the famous sea rocks; return to the hotel for lunch.

Afternoon—Visit the exposition.

Evening—After dinner a grand trip on the bay to view the exposition from the Golden Gate, the light effects being wonderful. We proceed to Sausalito after passing the Presidio (U.S. army headquarters) Mt. Tamalpais, the many beautiful islands, returning to the entrance of the exposition around 11 p.m.

[illegible] sion.

Leave San Francisco 9.45 a.m., crossing the bay we arrive at Sausalito, a pretty village built on the side of the hills, reminding one of Switzerland. We connect with train, which brings us to Mill Valley, where the mountain railway (the "crookedest" railroad in the world) starts for the top of the mountain, reaching the top of Mt. Tamalpais (2,592 feet) at 11.40 a.m. Lunch at Tamaplais Inn. Leave at 1.40 for Muir woods (big trees) where we arrive at 4.15 p.m. Return to San Francisco, reaching the hotel at 6.15 p.m.

Third Day—Oakland Trip.

Cross the bay and take a 30-mile drive, visiting:

Famous Greek Theatre.
Sather Campanile.
University of California.
Beautiful Berkeley homes.
Claremont Country club grounds.
Piedmont Sulphur Springs Park.
Havens Art Gallery.
Millionaire mansions in Piedmont.
Lake Merritt.
McElroy Fountain.
Lakeside Park.
Magnificent view of San Francisco bay, seven counties, Santa Cruz mountains, Golden Gate, $2,600,000 Oakland hotel.
Oakland city hall.
Oakland's municipal auditorium.
Public play grounds.
Business district of Oakland and Berkeley.
Open-air schools.

An interesting feature of this trip is the boat ride on San Francisco bay and Ookland harbor, viewing:

Naval training station on Yerba Byena island.
Oakland's new quay and docks.
Alaska packers' fleet.
Dry docks, shipyards, visit to Chinatown, etc.

AN EARLY AIRSHIP — IT WOULDN'T FLY

Story of a Comedy That Was Enacted in the Dead Watches of the Night on the Banks of the Potomac in the Troublous Wartime Days of 1863

In the Smithsonian institution at Washington there hangs an ancient model of an aeroplane. It looks to the casual observer like a small facsimile of the Wright biplane.

But it is many years older than the Wright flying machine. It is the Stringfellow airship, built in the early sixties of the last century, and it once caused the arrest as a spy and conspirator of Professor Joseph Henry, the eminent man of science who was the first secretary of the Smithsonian institution.

In the summer of 1863 Washington was in a state of the utmost agitation and uneasiness. The Confederate armies moving northward were threatening Washington itself, and southern scouts had raided within sight of the dome of the capitol.

A strong picket line was kept on duty night and day, especially along the banks of the Potomac. In that part of Washington there is a wide space of park known as the mall. There pickets constantly patrolled, keeping an eye upon the distant Virginia shore.

One moonlit midnight a picket pacing to and fro between the river and and the Smithsonian institution, which stood in a lonely part of the mall, saw a solitary man emerge from the shadow of the elms that bordered the grounds. He bore a strange, birdlike, nondescript thing that looked like nothing the sentinel had ever seen before.

Standing out in the open spaces, the solitary man flung his strange appliance into the air; it fluttered for a few feet and then sank to the ground. Again the man tossed it into the air and watched it flutter a short distance, while in the shadow of the elms the picket looked on in bewilderment.

It was no time to give any one the benefit of a doubt. The picket summoned the captain of the guard, and a squad of soldiers suddenly descended on the mysterious man.

"What is your name? What is this thing, and what are you doing with it?" queried the captain of his prisoner.

"I am Professor Henry, secretary of the Smithsonian institution yonder," said the prisoner. Then he stopped.

In that day for a man to admit that he was seriously experimenting with a flying machine was conclusive evidence of his insanity, and Professor Henry, who had chosen the dead watches of the night in which to experiment with Stringfellow's flying machine, hesitated to tell his captors what he was really doing.

"You're a spy," declared the captain, "and this thing is some kind of machine with which you're signaling to the Confederates."

"I am not a spy," declared Professor Henry. "I am experimenting with a flying machine. That is the truth."

This explanation was greeted with a roar of derisive laughter. The idea that a man of Professor Henry's reputation would fool with a flying machine was ridiculous. Certain now that they had caught a spy, they hustled the professor off to the guardhouse.

Unfortunately for him, his studious habits made him almost unknown in Washington; not a single man at the guardhouse knew him by sight. And so through the long night he was compelled to remain in durance.

At daybreak the captain reported his capture to the colonel in command. That officer, hurrying to the guardhouse, was astonished to find that the spy was his intimate friend, Professor Henry. But his astonishment was nothing compared to the chagrin of the captain and his squad.

Professor Henry, however, not only readily forgave them, but praised their diligence and zeal and admitted that he had given the picket very reasonable ground for suspicion.—Youth's Companion.

MONTREALERS HAVE MANY CASUALTIES

Lists For Several Battalions Reach Ottawa—Major Dillon, Ottawa, Lieut. Scott, Brantford, Among Killed.

Ottawa, May 5—A list containing the names of nearly two hundred Canadian casualties was issued this morning. Heavy losses among the Fourth, Tenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Battalions are recorded, the list of killed in the Fourteenth, which comes from Montreal and other eastern points, being the most extensive in any one battalion list so far received. It is expected a heavy list of members with Canadian addresses will be given out to-night, when confirmation of notification of next of kin has been received by the casualty office.

That the Princess Patricias have again been in a heavy action is evidenced by th heavy list of wounded among this corps, which has been doing great work in the trenches about St. Eloi. Losses among the artillery brigades are beginning to come in.

The name of Lieut.-Col. Watt of No. 3 Field Ambulance, which has suffered so severely, appears in this morning's list among the wounded.

Lance-Corp. Mitchell, Toronto, 7th battalion and Pte. Alexander Ramsey, 10th, address unknown, have died of wounds.

Pte. Kirkwood, Toronto and Lance-Corp. Jamieson, Flesherton, are reported dangerously ill, the latter with gas poisoning.

A private cable announces the death of Major W. P. Dillon, M.D., of Ottawa, at No. 2 Canadian General Hospital in France, with which corps he went to the front.

Lieut. James Scott of Brantford has been killed in action at the front, according to a private message. Major M. A. Colquhoun, also of the Dufferin Rifles, is reported wounded, in a private message.

Lieut. Lovelace of St. Catharines is also wounded, according to a private message.

THE CONTROL OF LOCUSTS, OR GRASSHOPPERS.

The Entomological Branch of the Department of Agriculture has just issued Circular No. 5, on "The Control of Locusts in Eastern Canada," which has been prepared by Mr. Arthur Gibson, Chief Assistant Entomologist. This circular has been written specially to help farmers and others living in districts where these destructive insects have caused very serious losses in recent years to various kinds of crops, such as oats, barley, timothy, rye, wheat, etc. In certain localities these insects known commonly as grasshoppers have appeared in such enormous numbers that they have been the cause of farmers vacating their farms. In 1914 the Entomological Branch conducted important experiments in the control of locusts with mixtures of bran, Paris green, molasses, lemons, etc., and the results of this work are given in the circular, as well as the cost of application, etc. In Quebec province where many fields were treated with this new poisoned bran mixture as many as 1200 dead locusts were counted in one suare yard. Brief notes on the life-history of locusts, and on the four destructive species which occur in Eastern Canada, precede the discussion on the methods of control. The circular has five splendid illustrations. As it is free for the asking, farmers and others interested should apply for copies to the Chief of the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Inquiries regarding these and other insect pests should be addressed to the Dominion Entomologist, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

LETTER FROM OLD FRIEND OF LATE MAJOR BENNETT

Fame of the Chatsworth Giants is Recalled by Writer

Mr. J. J. Bennett, Perry Street, has received a very touching letter from Mr. John McDonald of Chatsworth, in which the writer expresses his sorrow at the death of the late Major Bennett. Mr. McDonald writes:

I see by the papers that you are a brother of the late G. W. Bennett. You do not of course know me but I am very well acquainted with your brother George, in fact I am not saying too much when I say that he was the dearest friend I had on earth outside of my own relatives and as such I extend to you my sincere sympathy. For a number of years when in our village he made our place his home. At that time No. 5 Company, 31st Battalion (Grey) was organized with myself as captain and your brother George as first lieutenant. He and I went to camp at Niagara for many years together and we had one of the finest companies at camp and perhaps in the province, every man of them over six feet. They were known all over the province as the Chatsworth Giants and were thoroughly drilled for all of which your brother was entitled to the credit. He was in fact loved by the men. After he severed his connections with the company we kept up our correspondence for years and revived it lately after he joined the first contingent. I had two letters from him since he went to the front. I had them published in the local paper and the same mail yesterday that brought news of his death brought a parcel of papers with his own signature on the wrappers. My dear sir, it was inexpressibly sad. I enclose his last letter to me in which he seems to have had a presentment that he would not return. I have written an obituary notice of him for our local paper which I will send you. One object in writing to you is to ask you to send any Peterborough papers that contain any reference to him or particulars as to how he met his death. He has hundreds of friends around here, particularly among the old boys of the company who are continually asking me about him.

The Letter.

Sunny France,

My Dear Sir,

At last we are enjoying ourselves resting up after our strenuous times in the famous trenches and with simply grand weather. We are however by no means idle as every moment of the day is spent more or less in a manner which fits us for the work which we hope to accomplish in the near future and just here I might add to you as a military man that a great portion of this work is to eliminate from our minds nearly everything which ever was or has been taught or demonstrated to us the last thirty years of a warlike character. At the present time everything we do varies with the time and place in or at which it happens to be done. Things are going well with us Canadians and all that our deal friends are hoping from us, is being fulfilled and I have no fear of the end and my experience for five weeks in the battle line ought to account for something. The struggle will not be a short lived one by any means unless the financial features overwhelm everything else. But have no fear of what the allies are capable of doing.

I will certainly go to see you when I return and just here I cannot but pause as that word "return" almost causes me to shiver. And little wonder. I am writing this in a small village over which no later than last night, the enemy dropped several bombs killing a woman and a child and severely injuring several men and every moment the air is filled with the vitriolic shrieks of shrapnels, high explosive shells and rifle fire. In fact the deeper we get into this thing the more our chances of returning seem to vanish. However, that may be. None of us regret for a moment that we are here and each one is hoping to be sent in again as soon as possible.

I am sorry that I cannot give you particulars of our doings as I am quite sure it would interest you very much but owing to regulations we cannot talk too much shop or our letters will be stopped and besides I am very tired. I have been digging trenches all day and developing some ideas to meet changed conditions. My tice officers are very busy writing beside me in our humble billet as we expect to move very shortly and such a favorable opportunity may not occur for some time again. It would do your heart good to see my splendid lot of chaps—226 in my company, picked men and drilled to finish, equal to anything on earth, scarcely requiring anything more than a "nod" from me to "come to it" and best of all a clean sheet in health and conduct. Extend my regards to everyone and please say that the dear old village is ever fresh in my memory. I think I could call every one I ever knew there by name, as easy as saying Jack and Jill.

Yours,
G. W. BENNETT.

Messages of Sympathy.

When the official notice of Major Bennett's death was received from W. E. Hodgins, acting adjutant general, Mr. Bennett also received a message as follows:—

The King commands me to assure you of the true sympathy of His Majesty and the Queen in your sorrow.

KITCHENER.

General Sam Hughes also sent a message of sympathy to Mr. Bennett as did the Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught, Premier R. L. Borden forwarded a letter in which he stated, "My deepest sympathy in the great bereavement which you have sustained in the death of your gallant brother." Premier Hearst's message remarked that he and his colleagues mourn Major Bennett's loss and will revere his memory and gallant heroism.

THE CONNOISSEURS.

Two farmers, attired in corduroys and gaiters, were strolling through a picture-gallery, where they looked, and apparently felt, decidedly out of place. But at last they brought up before a picture which really seemed to please them—a portrait of a lovely girl with a particularly ugly bulldog.

"This is something nice, Dick," said one.

"What is it called?"

Dick referred to the catalogue.

"'Beauty and the Beast,'" he said.

The other man looked closer at the bulldog.

"Ah!" he sighed, appreciatively, "he is a beauty, too!"

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need of LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in

Submarine Fired on Open Boat

Seven members of the crew of the trawler Cruiser, of whom four were wounded by the shell fire of a German submarine, have been landed at Aberdeen, Scotland, after their open boat had been fired upon by a submarine. The trawler Scottish Queen has been sunk by a submarine fifty miles off Aberdeen and the crew landed at that port.

May Transport Canadians.

New York, May 5—The sudden withdrawal from the passenger trade of the Anchor liner Cameronia and the White Star liner Megantic and their despatch to Halifax lent credence to the report to-day that another large Canadian contingent is soon to leave for the front. The Megantic is coaled for the round voyage to Liverpool and as a transport will be able to carry 4,500 men. The Cameronia was sent to Halifax Monday.

A WONDERFUL FORTRESS TRULY

Constantinople is Comparable to Gibraltar—Became Great in Spite of the Turks

Is Constantinople really worth while as a fortress? The answer is in its history and in its natural features. Situated at the southern entrance of the narrow straits of the Bosphorus where no ships can pass out of range of modern artillery, the city stands literally in the road of all comers. Further it is built on a high rocky promontory, not so high or as menacing in appearance as Gibraltar, but all the same high enough to frown down upon the greatest dreadnought imaginable. The V of this rock juts out into the Bosphorus and Marmora. It is garden and minaret-crowned but impregnable to assault. For the strength of its landward side history must speak. In 1912 the triumphant Balkan allies got within thirty miles of the city at the famous lines of Tchataldja—and stopped there. Contrary to everybody's expectations the victors of Kirk Kilisseh and Lule Burgas failed utterly to repeat. The secret was not only Turkish valor but the natural ruggedness of the country near the imperial city. In 1878 the Russian host swept right up to San Stefano, a suburb of Constantinople, and were ready in mind to celebrate Mass next Sunday in Saint Sophia for the first time since April, 1453. But they made a treaty with the holders of Constantinople, at San Stefano, just five miles from the prize. The hills and an inferior foe were too many for them. The Turks had their own troubles in taking the city. They crossed the Dardanelles, set up their capital at Adrianople and conquered much of Greece, Macedonia, Thrace and Bulgaria a general [illegible] succeed [illegible] both land and sea upon the city which the wise general Constantine had selected as worthy to supersede Rome as the capital of the world. At the last they brought over 200,000 men and hundreds of ships to the attack, and a defence by army of only 9,000 held them out of the city for several weeks.

When Turkey Made Progress

Once they had taken Constantinople the advance of the Ottoman power into Europe really began. Within two generations the empire had reached over all of modern Greece, Albania, Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, Bosnia, Herzegovina, most of Hungary, and all of Roumania and even into Southern Russia. Twice the Turk was able to besiege Vienna and threaten the very existence of the Christian West. He could have done none of these things while that one city remained on his flank, menacing his commerce with the east, the transport of his troops from Asia, and every city which its fleet could reach. Before it could menace the east with its fleet Constantinople had to have a harbor which no enemy could reach without capturing the city itself. Constantinople had then and has still that sort of harbor. The so-called Golden Horn, the harbor of the city, is a natural harbor and one of the greatest and safest in the world, uninmportant as it may look in modern shipping records. The character of this harbor is second in significance only to the situation of the city itself. The Horn is an inlet from the Bosphorus. It is six miles long and up to half a mile wide. So it is large enough for about 1,200 of the largest ships to ride at anchor at one time. The safety and availability of the harbor are absolutely natural. There are no great currents although the inlet receives the waters of the streams which the Turks call the Sweet Waters of Europe. There are no marshes, sandy flats, or rocks, for the deep water comes right up to the land everywhere. No extensive wharves are required. Most important of all, the high peninsula of Stamboul or the city proper curves around the port from the south and the high land of the two great suburbs of Galata and Pera protect it from the north and east. Without artillery far superior in range to that of the defending forts of the city no enemy could damage shipping in the harbor. The city's fleet can always skulk behind the city for safety. Danger from storms is out of the question.

A Great Harbor

With such a harbor the trade of their capital has thriven in spite of the Ottomans. Recent statistics show that in 1910 just 20,268 vessels called at this port and freight weighing 19,154,000 tons was handled. This was a great falling-off from a generation ago when other harbors of the Balkans and Asia Minor had not been modernized. Only the products of the country immediately around the city have been exported from it in recent years owing to disturbed political conditions in the Balkan peninsula. The exports are of such minor products as carpets, rugs, attar of roses, filigree work, lambskins, wool, and embroidery, most being the result of handicrafts or goods sent out before manufacture. With safe land routes to central Europe and with non-Turkish enterprise the importance of the manufactures and exports of the city should increase enormously.

By Hook or Crook

When an English peasant of the middle ages went to the forest to gather wood for the fire he carried a crook with which to gather up the dead boughs and sticks, and a hook to break off small boughs. The forestry laws were very severe, and anyone caught cutting down trees with an ax was punished. So the peasant gathered his firewood by "hook and by crook," and, though neither hook nor crook are now in use, the expression is as popular as it was in the middle ages.

SPORTING NEWS

REMEMBER SOLDIER BOYS WHEN CITY LEAGUE OPENS

Mayor Buller Will be Present to Give Short Address

At the opening of the City Baseball League on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park a scene will be enacted which will be quite in harmony with recent events and which will undoubtedly make a deep impression on all those present. As has been previously stated there are many boys at the front who a year ago were participating in the opening of the City Mercantile League. Already the hand of destruction has visited the ranks as last night came the word that Pte. Heber Rogers had fallen. It is quite probable that other members of the Peterborough contingent have also given up their lives. It would hardly be in accordance with the deep regret occasioned by the casualty list should the City Baseball League open on Saturday without some tribute being paid to the diamond stars of Peterborough who have been fighting in the trenches and whose bodies perhaps are in "no man's land."

The executive of the league has given the matter considerable thought and the officers have decided that when the parade reaches the park, His Worship Mayor Buller will speak a few words, appropriate to the occasion, and then call upon all present to remove their hats and stand with bowed heads for a duration of about a minute after which the band will play "God Save the King" and probably other military selections. This will be followed by Mayor Buller's wind up, his delivery and then—the old ball game is on again.

Judging by the amount of interest there will be a big turnout of fans for the opener. All the teams have been working out faithfully for the past two weeks and the ball should be of the real snappy variety. All the clubs will make their debut in new uniforms. Some of the "rags" haven't arrived yet but they are expected today or tomorrow. As was announced yesterday there will be two games, Classics and East City at 2 o'clock and the Empire A. C. and the Thistles at 4 o'clock. The admission will be gents, fifteen cents, ladies, free; ten cents to all for the grand stand.

Officers Elected.

The Thistles of the City Baseball League got together last evening after a workout at Riverside Park and elected the following officers:

Hon. President—Mr. N. Douros.
President—C. Paton.
Sec.-Treas.—G. Matthews.
Executive—H. Walkey, N. Phelan, H. Long and F. D. Craig.
Manager—Louie Yeotes.

According to reports the Thistles will make a strong bid for the trophy.

PLAYERS CAN DRESS IN "Y" ON SATURDAY

The various managers of teams in the City Baseball League are reminded of the fact that all the players in the league will be provided with dressing accommodations at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday afternoon. All the players should be in uniform before 1:30, so that no delay will be occasioned in starting the parade.

Compulsory Military Service.

Napoleon had "conscript" armies under the famous conscription law of General Jourdan in 1798, but the first nation to put the universal military service and army reserve systematically in action was Prussia, at the time of the outbreak of the war of liberation in 1813. The system has been developed since, and in the years since 1870 every European nation except Great Britain has adopted the compulsory service system.—New York Times.

Buttons.

It is only in comparatively modern times that buttons have been utilized as fasteners. The Greeks and Romans knew nothing of them, and, though they presented themselves as ornaments in the fourteenth century, buttonholes were still an undreamed of possibility.

Turtle Stopped Water Supply.

An immense turtle, which became drawn up against the intake pipe at the waterworks, cut Leamington, Ont., off from its water supply for several hours the other day. So large was the creature that its head alone was of sufficient bulk to stop the pumps. The animal is estimated to have weighed 500 pounds.

Sport Comment

TODAY the sporting element of Peterborough mourns the death of Heber Rogers. Names of Peterborough boys have appeared on the casualty lists before but for the first time has an athlete from Peterborough given his life for the cause. He played flying wing for P. C. I. Rugby teams and for the Junior O. R. F. U. team representing Peterborough in 1913. Since early childhood he figured in athletics but perhaps won most prominence with the basketball and rugby teams of the P. C. I. As a wearer of the garnet and grey he was a credit to the institution he represented. His conduct off the field was that of a gentleman while on the field he played the game as it should be played. He was always prepared to bear the brunt of attack but he was never known to indulge in any tactics which were contrary to true sportsmanship. He loved sport because it was sport and in his death Peterborough has suffered a tremendous loss. We voice the feelings of Peterborough sporting circles when we say we regret that Heber Rogers has fallen and when we extend deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

KEN TRACEY, the former Peterborough pitcher, will probably not be here at all. He writes from his home in Detroit that he is through with the game. An increase in the family and the additional family burdens have resulted in Ken taking this step. — Hamilton Herald.

BRANTFORD papers say Knute Belting and Stan. Creswell will be given a tryout with the Brants.

VANISHED HAPPINESS.

It Wasn't Appreciated Until It Began to Disappear.

Long, lingeringly, languishingly, he looked at the photograph in his hand. Tears gathered in his handsome eyes like crowds about a scoreboard.

"Is it too late? Is there no hope for me?" he questioned himself as he looked at the likeness with longing languor. "Have I waited too long?"

The lovely face in the photograph gazed back at him.

Greedily he drank in the trusting expression.

"I did not appreciate you while I had you!" he cried to it. "Oh, is there yet time? Is there yet time?"

With the picture still in his hand, he staggered to the mirror.

There was no doubt of it. The large bald spot in the center of his head was still spreading.

"Oh, why did I not take care of it while I had it?" he moaned, and again his eyes fell yearningly on the picture of himself taken seven years before.—Detroit Free Press.

Messrs. Alex. J. Grant, A. W. Spence, Clem. Gordon, Jos. Knox and D. E. Eason, Trent Canal officials, were in Lindsay yesterday.

Lt. Robert M. Fair has been attached to the 24th Battalion at Montreal and is in command of No. 1 platoon. As a 1915 graduate in the department of Applied Science at McGill University, he took first-class honors, and was tied with another student for first place. Lt. Fair is one of the old boys of the local Collegiate Institute, from which he graduated.

On Friday evening, May 14th, the Canadian Kitchener League is holding a concert in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium consisting of the best talent obtainable in the city. With the proceeds the League will purchase gum, smoking material, chocolate and games for our boys when they are resting. A letter received from Major Bennett, which must have been written a few days before his death, says the boys really need pleasures to quiet their nerves during their rests.

PLAYGROUNDS FOR THE BOYS AND GIRLS

The Women's Council should be encouraged by the citizens of Peterborough in their efforts to establish supervised playgrounds. Our city is well provided with parks, but lacks in places where boys and girls may enjoy wholesome play. One eminent authority has said:

"Play is the first means of development of the human mind, its first effort to make acquaintance with the outward world to collect original experiences from things and facts, and to exercise the powers of body and mind." If this be so, our citizens should manifest a deep interest in the playgrounds scheme.

Peterborough is interested in the health of the boys and girls. Give them good, healthy games — games that will develop the manhood and womanhood — games that will take away the selfish side and will teach the "give and take" spirit in their young lives.

In the supervised playground the children will be encouraged to play fairly, cleanly and manfully. Every child will get a fair chance to play. Loyalty to the weak, loyalty to oneself, loyalty to one's opponents, will develop in the children, and thus the foundation of a greater loyalty will be begun. A word of caution, a look of approbation, or a wise admonition from the supervisor may prove to be of incalculable value to a child in after life.

During this week let all talk of the playgrounds and of Carnation Day — the proceeds of which will gladden some weary mother's heart because she feels that her child is at last going to have wholesome play during the summer under proper supervision. This call to boost the playground is a call to everybody [illegible] and boys and girls.

BATTLESHIPS

Pennant Club Provided an Interesting Program

Those who attended the lecture in Murray Street Baptist Church last night enjoyed a most profitable and entertaining evening. The program was presented by the Pennant Club, which is an organized band of young men. Mr. Johnson, the president of the club, occupied the chair. The program consisted of musical numbers by Messrs. Lionel Barraclough, Arthur Lewis, J. Jarry, Anderson, Ellem, and two selections by the Pennant Club quartette. Mr. Harold Foster favored the audience with a splendid piano solo. Mr. Keyes of the Normal School gave his splendid lecture on "British Battleships."

The lecturer started with the dugout used by the warriors in the stone age, and led his attentive audience through all the progressive stages of naval equipments to the present steel clad dreadnoughts. He pointed out the four different classes of ships which are now defending Britain's rights on the high seas: First, the dreadnought; second, the cruiser; third, the destroyer; fourth, the submarine. Everything about these vessels was beautifully illustrated by a set of slides which Mr. Keyes collected himself and of which he may justly be proud. This set consists of colored slides describing battleships from prehistoric times to the present day man-of-war.

PRIVATE STANLEY BUCKNELL'S LETTER

The appended letter was received yesterday by Mrs. Frick, 47 Jackson avenue, from her son, Pte. Stan. Bucknell, with the First Contingent. The name of G. W. Bennett appears the papers about the battle of Cha- had scrutinized the letter before it left the camp:

April 15th, 1915.

Dear Mother,—

Received your last letter, Review, and cards O.K., and was pleased to get them, as was Albert White. I see our pictures are shown upon the front page of the Review. I was looking at an Examiner last night and saw a picture of James Bills, who was wounded. Sergt.-Major Howard—I got a letter from him yesterday, and he is getting on fine. I was trying to find an excuse for not writing, but there is not one in the cook-house.

This sure is a dead old hole, nevertheless the boys are in the best of spirits, whether in the trenches or out. I suppose you were reading in the papers aout the battle fo Chapelle. Some of the Canadians figured in it prominently, especially the artillery. We have a good time watching the fights in the air. We don't care a scrap for the rifle fire, but it takes quite a while to get used to the big shells, which at times come over like a C. P. R. express train. Somehow or other they don't seem to stop at the right station.

I suppose there is lots of snow in old Canada yet; we are just commencing to have nice weather here. The sun shines very fine, but it has to go some to come up to Canada. I wish the next time you write you will try to find out something about Charlie Powell. He went to the hospital when we first came to France, and we have heard nothing of him since. We have not much time to write, as we are on the move quite a lot; so if you do not get letters from me regularly do not worry. I was just going to ring off, when White told me to offer you many thanks for the card. I just plastered his mouth with French flour. He won't need any paint for a while.

Good-bye for this time. Remember me to all.

CANON DAVIDSON SPEAKS TO MEN OF REGIMENT REGARDING SERVICE

At the request of Lt.-Col. Walker, officer commanding, Canon Davidson spoke to the men of the 57th Regiment last night in regard to the memorial service on Thursday evening. He said that while of course they had received orders to come out, they would do this as a matter of discipline but he felt they would also take part with responsive hearts, glad to take the opportunity to make a contribution to the effectiveness of the service.

Several times it had been urged upon him that too little opportunity had been given to the people at large, to take part in the memorial service of Sunday evening but he pointed out that it was an unofficial service and that an official service at which Major Bennett would be honored and remembered as well as others, would be held so as to give opportunity for all to take part.

Canon Davidson alluded sympathetically to the heroic death of Pte. Heber Rogers. He had been a private in No. 6 Company and associated with the regiment for several years. To his parents and relatives, the warm feelings of all would go out.

It was possible that there would be other names by Thursday night as well as the wounded and missing and the speaker suggested that the men invite the members of their families and their friends, the service being a civic as well as a military one and under the charge of the Ministerial Association.

I wish to contradict the statement that I, Mrs. North, and my four children landed here without a sou, also without letting my husband know we were coming. I made arrangements with my husband before coming to meet the both trains. My husband did not go home with me and my children as stated in the fall; also no work was found for my daughter as stated nor was any relief from the city accepted by me or my children. I wish to state I have paid for everything we have received. All I can say is we were offered three rooms here until my husband got work and have been asked to pay when he is working. All we want is work and truth. Any other information can be had by calling at 122 Park St. north.

SELF-DENIAL WEEK SALVATION ARMY

Much could be written about the activities of the Salvation Army, in times of peace or war. In the conflict now raging, the Army is largely represented on sea and land and this week the local corps is in the midst of Self-Denial Week calling on the citizens to assist them financially.

A Sunderland woman lay dying, her five sons being in the army. Her one desire was to see her boys again and through the officers of a local Salvation Army Corps, four of the sons serving in England, reached home in twenty-four hours. Their expenses were paid by the authorities. The fifth son, however, was at the front, and there seemed little chance of the old woman seeing her wish fulfilled. But the Salvationist officer wired to the War Office, and back came the reply over Lord Kitchener's signature, saying if the son could be found he would be sent home, and eventually he landed in time to see his mother before her death. The authorities had paid his expenses and given him seven days' furlough and rations.

Patriotic Songs

One by-product of the war in Canada is the patriotic song nuisance. The newspapers are pestered with him. He is anxious to entertain the soldiers at their drilling grounds. He haunts the theatres—particularly of the "movie" and burlesque varieties—with the object of getting the management to allow him to sing during intermissions or between pictures—so ardent is his patriotism or, if not that, his desire for a free "ad." This nuisance on two legs, with the song that he or she hawks around, is of both sexes, of all ages, and of many types. Quite the commonest type, however, is that of the lady-like young gentleman, the dainty, blond, mamma's boy, who called on the manager of a Toronto theatre the other day, with the request that, for the sake of patriotism, he should be allowed to chirp there for his country's good and thereby "aid enlistment." The manager had seen other specimens of the same kind, however. In fact, like a good many other managers, he had come to the conclusion that this type is not exactly cut out for the sounding of bugle calls, and that these "patriots" are out after the dollars and cents and little else.

"These geniuses," he said, "invariably say that their patriotic song is a 'riot,' and makes 'Tipperary' look like an amateur. But their real aim is to advertise their product under the pretence that they are acting for the sake of their country."

But all the songs are not hopeless, though the great majority of them are. "We're From Canada" has undoubtedly caught the popular fancy. In fact, recently it was sung on the same day at no fewer than seven theatres and places of amusement in the city, while it has been adopted as the "march past" of the 109th, Toronto Regiment.

From three to five patriotic songs are received daily at the one theatre. Many of these are from soldiers at Exhibition Park. The soldiers usually send the words, but not the music. And they are great as parodists, some of their parodies being really clever.

Some of the songs that are sent in to the various theatres are excruciatingly, if quite unintentionally, funny. Many of them have made the interesting discovery that "brave" rhymes with "grave," and perhaps seven out of ten of them are determined not to conceal the fact from a (perhaps) listening world. Others are concluded in terms of fine irony, a reference to the "neutral" attitude of the United States being considered perhaps the most delicate ironical touch. But though there are exceptions, the great majority of these patriotic songs have the most inane words and the most commonplace music, however unexceptional the sentiments. And, as regards both words and music, there is plagiarism aplenty. In fact, in general terms it might be said, in the majority of cases, of both, that what is good in them is not new, and that what is new in them is not good.

Fearless Nurses.

Splendid work is being done by the Canadian nurses who have arrived at the front in France. "The Canadian nurses in their khaki costumes, with knickerbockers and broad-brimmed hats, look very smart indeed," says a correspondent of the Rotterdam Nieuwe Courant. "In the field they are everywhere. They know no danger. And with wonderful quickness they manage to get the wounded behind the firing line and out of danger. Several of them belong to the best families. There is not the slightest coquetry about their clothing, and sometimes their delicate faces stand in graceful contrast to their sand-colored attire. They speak French slowly, with rather a heavy accent. The weather is becoming more settled, and consequently the roads are improving, so that the action is expected to assume greater dimensions, the more so as half a million of British have arrived. We only get a small part of them here; the French front will get the lion's share. This is not the last British contingent."

Commands Fourth Brigade.

Col. S. J. A. Denison, who will command the Fourth Infantry Brigade in the second Canadian overseas contingent, is one of the best known military men in Canada.

Col. Denison was born in Toronto 56 years ago and was educated at Upper Canada College and Royal Military College, Kingston. Afterwards he served in the Fourth Battalion, South Staffordshire Regiment, and was aide-de-camp to the Earl of Aberdeen when he was Governor-General of Canada. He was aide-decamp to Field Marshal Lord Roberts in the South African campaign and was twice mentioned in despatches. He also received a medal with four clasps and was made C.M.G. and brevet lieutenant-colonel.

During the tour of King George through Canada, before his accession to the throne, Col. Denison served as aide to him. He was decorated for service in the South African campaign, made district commander of the Halifax fortress and chief staff officer of the western Ontario command.

Exports Increased Three Millions.

Canadian exports during January totaled $28,595,000, as against $25,218,000 in January, 1914. Exports of animal product increased from $3,151,000 to $5,661,000 and exports of manufactures increased from $5,050,000 to $7,769,000. Imports amounted to $30,000,000, as compared with $40,000,000 in January, 1914.

Genius.

Genius in the great majority of cases is but a very small seed, and it is only by unceasing toil and by taking an infinitude of pains that it can be persuaded to grow and bring forth fruit.

Unprecedented in History of World

From the Christian Science Monitor.

It is with such chaotic racial, international and ecclesiastical material that the Egypt of today, under the leadership for the last three years of the British agent, Lord Kitchener, is attempting to evolve order, and just now, is presenting a remarkably united front against the nation that until recently has held it a political and religious suzerainty. In spite of the fact that Egypt, in common with India and the Philippines, and, indeed, every eastern land governed by western nations, manifests more or less disaffection against which careful guard must be kept by the rulers in times of peace, there is in evidence throughout this old land of the Nile a remarkable condition of united sentiment and patriotism; a loyalty to the nation whose occupation has meant in recent years so much for its modern equipment. One can hardly predict things that may come to pass as the result of the present conflict, but the fact that the remarkably diverse populations of such eastern countries as Egypt and India have, for the moment at least, forgotten their internal strivings with one another in a common loyalty such as perhaps no former centuries have witnessed, may be pondered as one of the most significant incidents in the great European conflict.

Hungary Turks.

A captain of the Indian Army in Egypt, writes:

I am writing in a spare moment, as we are somewhat busy just now. The Turkhuns have made their debut; the first serious one at any rate. We arose here four mornings ago (Feb. 2) to the joyous sounds of artillery fire and found quite a lively exchange o fcompliments going on.

Our friends brought a lot of small guns into action in front of the positions, also one or two larges ones; all of which they appeared to use with skill and pluck considering what they had against them. Their infantry, however, were chiefly concerned in getting to Cairo, which they did to the number of about six hundred, by special train. (This promises to become a leading feature in our arrangements!) It is said that one Turkish officer drank a gallon of water and ate three "Supply and Transport" loaves neat!

They are a weird-looking lot, got up in desert-colored khaki, puttees, and helmets, apparently a crazy imitation of a British Tommy. They have made a big miscalculation about that, anyway! Well, it is too early to talk, as I understand we have still to expect their main forces; but I don't think we need be anxious.

The grub department, under some stress, went without a hitch. A few Germans were bagged, but they are mostly skulking behind. Now I must hasten back to the distribution of the oysters and meringues.

Life in the Navy.

A seaman in H. M. S. Higer writes:

A line to thank you for the papers which arrived this evening. They were very welcome, and I have spent a couple of very interesting hours with them. As we hold practically no communication with the shore, papers are a real treat, and we can appreciate the kindly thought that prompts the people who send them.

We manage to get a good deal of quiet fun out of life. We have a marine band on board. Tonight we had a pleasant musical evening. Usually we have a rough-and-ready concert and have a number of very good singers. Our concert usually consists of about a dozen turns. Every free evening there are a number of men dancing.

To anyone not used to naval life an evening here would bei nteresting. Our battery deck is the playground. Try to imagine a steel compartment about 8 feet high, 18 feet to 20 feet wide, and roughly 100 feet long. One end dancers are enjoying themselves to the strains of a melodeon. The remainder of the crew are scattered about mostly seated on the deck busy with cards, dominoes, and papers. Here and there you will see a fellow up against the side with a writing pad on his knee, writing letters, little crowds chatting, and everyone, or rather almost everyone, smoking; so many that a stranger, at any rate, on entering would imagine the place on fire.

On the lower decks one or two gramaphones try to outdo each other for noise. So you see we are not dull.

Fifth Generation of Soldiers.

Sergt. Hamilton, who was probably the first member of the Canadian contingent wounded in the trenches in France, is twenty-eight years old and unmarried. He is with the Second Battalion of the First Brigade. He was educated at Upper Canada College, and graduated in law in Toronto last April. He had just entered upon law practice when the war came. He has been on service practically ever since Aug. 4 last, for on that day, on the declaration of war, he was one of the members of the 51st put on guard duty on the Sault Canal. Sergt. Hamilton is the fifth generation of the Hamilton family to serve the British colors, his great-great-grandfather having fought with the British in the American Revolution.

French Recapture Position Where Germans Had Made Footing --- Enemy Had Some Success in Night Attacks

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 6. — The French war office this afternoon gave out this report on the progress of hostilities: "To the north of Ypres we repulsed with facility a night attack made by the Germans from Steenstraate, to the south of Ypres.

"Germans yesterday, to a point near Zwartelen, attacked the trenches of Hill Number Sixty, occupied last month by British troops. Their very violent onslaught, during the course of which they made use of asphyxiating gases, made them masters, in the beginning, of this position, but our allies subsequently delivered a counter attack and recaptured a portion of the trenches previously lost.

"In the forest of Ailly a counter attack delivered by us toward the end of the day made slight progress, and we recaptured a portion of a position where the Germans had succeeded in gaining a footing in the morning.

"During the night, Germans delivered a counter attack against our position at Mameton, east of Siltakerwasen, the summit of which they reoccupied.

"All the remainder of our gain in the direction of the River Fecht has been consolidated and maintained."

HEBER ROGERS' LAST LETTER

Below is the last letter home, written by the late Heber Rogers, who was killed at Ypres. It was written just the day before the commencement of the four-day fight in which he lost his life:

Belgium, April 21, 1915.

Dear Papa:

Just received your letter of Easter and was glad to hear from you again. I also got one from Leah and yours of March 28th and March 21st. We have been around for the last couple of days, so it is a little longer this time between letters. It was too bad Harry was not able to get home for Easter, and that George missed him, but it would be nice having George up for Easter.

We have been in two billets since I wrote last, and crossed the Belgian border at ———. At our last billet for a few afternoons we had sports in a big field. Besides running, jumping, etc., there was a company race. One hundred and seventy men in marching order from each of the four companies marched and doubled around a mile and a quarter square. It was against time, and so many points were taken off for those who fell out.

"A" Company Won.

"A" Company, with all Peterborough fellows in it, won the race. They did not have the best time, but had only one or two fall out, and they came in in order. We had several casualties from the sports. Seven men went to the hospital with sprains and breaks. One fellow fell and sprained his wrist, or rather fractured it, and while we were playing ball with the bomb throwers, Gordon Grahame fell and broke his arm. The last I heard of him, he was in ———, but it will likely take quite a white before he is better. The night before we left our last billet in France, the battalion had a bon-fire with the Kaiser on top of it, and a good concert. It was funny to be there, as we could hear the guns and see the star shells and searchlights in the distance.

Swam in Creek.

At our first billet in Belgium some lady let us have a swim in a creek which ran, through her estate. It was very nice, but rather chilly to stay in long. There was also a maize made of hedges, and quite a lot of fellows got in and ran around for about half an hour before they could find their way out.

Our last march was about ——— and as we were coming along a main road we could not stop. We were about two hours and a half on the way without a rest, so we were all pretty tired when we got here. There was a constant stream of ambulances on the road, and we pasesd a lot of Belgian refugees going back from the firing line. Some had little carts with their belongings in, while others had horses and carts, and some walking, carrying what they could. It certainly was a most pitiful sight to behold. If some of the Canadians could see a few sights like that there would be a greater representation of Canada over here today. We have not done much as yet, only held a few trenches, but we hope to help drive the Germans back pretty soon.

I saw Major Bennett and he said he had a letter from you. All the Peterborough fellows are well and I am feeling fine. Hope that you are all keeping well. Love to all.

Your loving son,

HEBER.

SOME CHANGES SUGGESTED?

Provincial Board Communicates With City Council

It is understood that a communication has been received by the city from the Provincial Board of Health, in which the Provincial Board recommends certain changes in the city's plans for the sewage disposal plant. Just to what extent the changes recommended, will affect the construction is not known. A meeting of the committee of the whole council will likely be called this week and the matter will then be aired. It would seem probable that the city has been asked to alter their plans and have the plant located opposite the end of Park St. instead of across from the street railway wharf. The township of Otonabee is not desirous of having the plant within its limits but if it must be, the township wants it across from the end of Park St. Naturally the city council and city engineer want the plant where it will cost the least to the city. The place they selected was across from the end of Lock St. and if the Provincial Board of Health rules that it much go farther down the river it will call for an increase in the cost.

Should the plant be placed a couple of thousand feet below the site selected at present, it will make no difference in the collecting of the sewage. All the sewage will be taken at the foot of Lock Street and pumped across the river from that point. That it is the proper place to collect the sewage was made clear when the interested parties met before the Provincial Board of Health recently. Engineer Dallin of the Provincial Board who had gone over the ground stated emphatically that the end of Lock Street was the only spot to collect the sewage.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1915.

THE CASUALTY LIST GROWS.

DAILY there appears in the press a list of those who were killed, wounded or missing in the battle of Langemarck. The list is long, yet it is as yet only a small part of the total losses the Canadian force has sustained. It is reported that the total Canadian losses will be well up to 6,000, and of these over 700 are estimated to have been killed. As yet, only the officers killed and a few of the privates killed have been reported. The daily lists are largely those who have been wounded, or who have since died of wounds. The reason for this is that the wounded, being transferred to hospitals, are accounted for first and more easily reached by those making up the list of casualties. When the losses are so large as those that occurred at Langemarcke, much confusion and delay unavoidably takes place. If the losses in killed are as great as reported, the more terrible lists have yet to be published. These lists are bringing home to Canada what it means to stand up for liberty, plighted word, democracy, for the right to live and work and let live. German militarism means a terrible yoke, and to break that yoke means a terrible cost. What the cost means to Canada is explained in the casualty lists.

THE BATTLE OF LANGEMARCK.

THE BATTLE of Langemarck is now several days old, yet the situation is just now being understood. It appears that the German drive was made obliquely, so that its apex or forward line would be behind the Canadian trenches, held by the Canadian Highlanders. These men retired, or rather swung their line southwards, and extended it to meet the Germans. The first brigade, in the second battalion of which were the Peterborough men, was in reserve some miles in the rear of the Highlanders. On the 22nd, the German drive had overrun the Canadian heavy guns, which were about two miles behind the French line. During the afternoon of the 22nd the Germans sent forth large volumes of chlorine gas, the wind blowing it against the Canadians. Immediately after, the whole German force, made up probably of no less than ten divisions, advanced. This caused a retirement of the French and Belgians, and placed the brunt of the battle on the Highlanders.

On Friday, the 23rd, the tenth battalion, under Col. Boyle and Major MacLaren, both of whom fell, with the Sixteenth Canadian Highlanders, made a desperate attack and recaptured the Canadian heavy guns. In this attack they were supported by the Queen's Own, under Co. Rennie, and the Second Battalion, under Col. Dave Watson. A second charge was made and some partly-constructed German trenches taken. It was likely in the first of these brilliant charges that Major Bennett and Lieut. Day were killed. On Friday morning the first Canadian brigade arrived and reinforced. Thus, the German objective, which was the town of Ypres, was not only frustrated, but probably two-thirds of the ground they had won at a frightful cost were retaken by the brilliant charges of the Canadian dian troops. This offensive movement was very costly to the Germans, whose losses are roughly computed at 40,000, of which 15,000 are estimated to have been killed. There has doubtless been hard fighting since, but full details of it have yet to come. However, the Canadians have proved to the Germans that they are among the best soldiers in the world.

THE LOYALTY THAT COUNTS.

AGAIN, our esteemed contemporary prevaricates when it says Sir Robert Borden "adopted the plan against which he had voted—contribution of money." We are in a position to deny this statement. Sir Robert Borden's naval [illegible] contribution of money. His policy was, for the time being only, to build in Britain three of the strongest and most powerful ships money and science could provide. These were to be Canadian battleships, manned by Canadians, and form a Canadian unit in the Imperial fleet, just as Canada's army today forms a unit of the British forces that are fighting in Flanders. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by his disloyal and unpatriotic manipulation of the Senate, scoffed at the German menace and prevented Canada from having her ships of war ready to defend her shores and aid the Motherland. Just a short time before the great war broke out, Sir Wilfrid Laurier exclaimed: "Emergency? Who ever speaks of the emergency now?" No matter what Liberals anywhere may say, they cannot deny that they laughed at the German peril as a figment of imagination, and made use of th Canadian Senate to prevent Canada from having a single effective ship when war with Germany was declared. Canada plays second fiddle to Australia because a discredited Liberal minority in the House of Commons refused to believe that the Germans had any warlike intentions toward Britain and the Empire. The Liberals, by their action rendered effective aid to Germany in this war. Their successful resistance in the Senate was trumpeted about Germany as a portentous sign of decay in the British Empire. Was that the loyalty that counts? What has Germany done for Canada? She has killed over seven hundred of our brave young men in one battle; yet the Examiner prates about loyalty and naval policies! The Liberals have not even had the decency to refrain from party tactics in the last session. Is that loyalty translated into action? Or is it something else? The time has come for the people to make a choice.

THE WAR WILL BE A LONG ONE.

THE WAR has been considered by many people lately to be of short duration. They say they do not see how it can possibly last longer than this coming summer, and they are doubtless sincere in giving this opinion. In many cases, there are probably few reasons for such an opinion, but it should be borne in mind that those who are best informed and most likely to know the real conditions, are not optimistic as to a short war. The British budget this month is expected to be based on the assumption that the war will last throughout the financial year 1915-16. Kitchener, it will be remembered, offered his services for three years. Besides, those who were fortunate to get out of Germany as late as last November, stated that Germany had immense numbers of men in training camps who had not then been on the firing line. In view of the fact that Germany was so well prepared for war, it is well not to view too rosily the present outlook. It is better to look for a long war and have it shortened, than a short war and be disappointed. Basing our efforts on the former assumption will more likely lead to success and to an earlier success, than would otherwise occur.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WOULD the Examiner please give authority and page for its statement that Sir Robert Borden voted for Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval policy? If we remember correctly, Sir Robert Borden and all his supporters strenuously opposed the tin-pot navy, but, since our contemporary emphasizes its statement by repetition, it doubtless has some authority for this truly remarkable statement.

THE EXAMINER says: "Let us quit prating of loyalty, and bandying disloyal charges." This is very good advice, but the Examiner doesn't follow it. Why did the Examiner say in the first place that some French-Canadians were eminently disloyal, if it believed the advice above quoted?

WOULD the Examiner inform its readers how many times Australia and New Zealand have changed their naval policies, and why?

Opinions From Other Newspapers

The Goths.
(London Citizen.)

In the French official account of the capture of the German fortress at Les Eparges, on the Meuse, there is a statement that German machine gunners were found chained to their guns. In more than one of their battles against the Romans the Goths in the front ranks chained themselves together. It was their way of showing fortitude. Though nearly two thousand years have since passed by, the Goth has not changed. He was cruel and ruthless then; he is cruel and ruthless now. He had a bull-like way of fighting in those days; he has since learned no other. Then he was known as greedy and vindictive; greedy and vindictive he has remained. There is no use in wasting words upon him. He has got to be beaten. His ancient victory led to ten centuries of intellectual darkness. If he is not beaten now, another age of darkness will be ushered in. He would call it "Kultur." It would, in fact, be gross barbarism. All the slowly-won gains of civilization and the great political ends of freedom and justice are at stake. The Goth has to be beaten.

British Soldiers.
(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

British soldiers, however commonplace they may seem individually, as a rule appear to splendid advantage when they are in a tight corner. Some resources of character of which perhaps they themselves were unaware comes out of the reserve forces of their nature, and with coolness and firmness they rise to the situation. At such time how unconfused are their movements, how exact the carrying out of orders, how admirable the maintenance of discipline! In terrible predicaments British valor may be less fiery because the troops keep their heads on their shoulders, but it is none the less deadly. The men behind the British bayonets are then most efficient for slaughter.

Paying for the War.
(London Times.)

The nation is content with the resolve that the task it has undertaken shall be carried through, cost what it may; and it is perhaps agreeably surprised to find that the vast amounts of money already raised and spent, and the still vaster expenditure in which it is committed, have imposed no deadly strain as yet upon any class of the community — though the business of paying for the war, it is true, is scarcely yet begun, so far as the individual citizen is concerned.

The Empire's Unity.
(London Daily Telegraph.)

No page surely in the history of any Empire will be more eloquent in its suggestion of unity of sentiment, unity of purpose, and unity of power than that which in due course will record the splendid story of the rally of the self-governing portions of the King's Dominions to the support of the Mother Country on the eve of the Great War. There was no cry for help; the offers of aid came spontaneously even before the dread issue had been decided by the Cabinet at home.

Will There Be Repudiation?
(Brooklyn Eagle.)

William H. Price says the war will end as soon as our bankers realize that the $44,000,000,000 of debt is to be met with bales of paper money. The United States can count on wholesale repudiation when the load calls for the mortgaging of every home in the warring countries. Gold is at a premium of 13 points in Germany and 1½ points in England. These figures point to the end.

A Brave Doctor.
(Exchange.)

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THE great things that you do in your mind only are often the cornerstone upon which the superstructure of your failure is reared.

A reputed wit declares that conclusions are masculine because women jump at them.

A general average might be struck by the marriage of a woman with a past to a man with a future.

Bill is said to be a good natured chap, but you hate to have a number of him against you and in the hands of a determined collector.

The Great Question.

What's the matter anyway
With the government today?
Are we growing worse, indeed,
As in magazine we read?
Is it really getting so
Decent man a fit must throw
When they pause to contemplate
Sadly the affairs of state?

Men who go for fame or luck,
Stirring with a rake the muck,
And who speak not in a hush,
Tell us things to make us blush;
They opine from what they see
Without climbing in a tree
That the graft on every side
Is the limit, open wide.

That is just the somber view,
There are others quite as true;
We can look around and find
If we are not wholly blind
Many features in the case
That do credit to the race;
Every man is not a crook;
There is good if we will look.

There is right and there is wrong,
As there has been all along,
And the balance is about
As it trembles in and out
Where it was in former years.
We may calm our doubts and fears,
Things a whole lot worse might be,
That's some comfort, you'll agree.

Perversity.

"Those 'Keep Off the Grass' signs of yours don't seem to have much effect."

"No, I am going to have them made over."

"With larger letters?"

"No, with different reading. I think if I put up a sign 'Keep Off the Sidewalk' everybody will want to walk on it."

Chappies.

"Percy thinks he owes a lot of money."

"He does?"

"Yes."

"Deah me! Percy weally ought not to twy to think."

Nothing to Grip.

"Nobody can handle him but his [illegible]"

"And I understand he foiled her once."

"How?"

"By going to the barber shop and having the handle cut off."

His Secret.

"Great work you did with the punching bag, old man."

"Don't mention it to my wife."

"Why not?"

"Women never understand. She will think I am strong enough to push the lawn mower."

Rubbed the Fur the Wrong Way.

Grubbins—You're losing your hair mighty fast, old man. What is the cause of it—too much tonsorial friction?

Rounder—No, matrimonial.—Judge.

A Matter of Taste.

"Oh, why will you not love me?"
Young Cholly Lightwit cried.
"Because I never cared for jokes,"
The cruel maid replied.

The French Zouaves

Among the most interesting classes of soldiers of modern times is the French corps called the zouaves. The body of daring and picturesquely attired warriors reached the height of its fame during the Crimean war. The zouave corps at that time was supposed to consist of Frenchmen, but it was in reality quite international, since its ranks contained many daring young foreigners. In this corps served many men from Oxford, Gottingen and other universities, and it is probable that the greater part of its members had joined more for the love of fighting than for love of country. Its fame as a fighting body soon spread throughout the world.

When our own war between the states broke out several corps of zouaves, wearing the splendid oriental uniforms of the French corps, or a modification of them, were formed on both sides. On the Federal side the best known was that corps commanded by Elmer Ellsworth, a young officer from New York, the first man, it is said, to be killed on the Union side. In the Confederacy the most famous corps of zouaves was that called the Louisiana Tigers.

While in American military life the zouave uniform has practically disappeared, it still persists in France.—Exchange.

A LUNATIC CREW

By M. QUAD.

We were due east of the island of Luzon, one of the Philippine group, and heading down the China sea with a cargo for London when we caught the tail of a typhoon. We were lying to and making fairly good weather of it when a Spanish ship, also lying to, hove into sight. She was lighter and drove faster to leeward. She was about a mile to windward of us when first sighted, and no great attention was given her until it was seen that she was drifting squarely down upon us. As she came nearer we saw that her crew were dancing about on her decks like a lot of drunken men and paying no attention to the storm. Her foretopmost had gone overboard, and much of her canvas had blown away, and she was being held in the wind's eye by a tarpaulin set in the rigging. A sheer of the wheel would have sent the Spanish ship clear of us by half a cable's length, but the fellows drifted down without paying us the slightest attention, and she did not move by ten feet. As she rode past we could look right into the eyes of her crew. They were about thirty in number, and they yelled and screamed at us like so many lunatics. Brief as was the time, we all noticed one peculiarity about them.

Beyond cursing the Spanish crew for a gang of idiots we had little to say. The idea of fear of the storm had made them take to drink, as is often the case, and they were going to Davy Jones' with a jag on. Six hours later the storm broke, and we headed our course, but within six hours we were pitching about on the troubled sea without way enough to ruffle a feather. I turned in at 8 o'clock that night and turned out again at midnight for the morning watch. After midnight the sea began to go down very fast, and at 2 o'clock there was only what you might call a tumble on. It was then that we faintly caught the sound of voices in whooping and singing to the south of us. It was thick night, and nothing could be made out, but at 4 o'clock we got a light breeze and had not been wafted along a knot when we had the Spanish ship again under our eyes. All her topmasts were gone now, while a portion of her bulwarks was smashed in, and she looked a bad wreck.

We headed for the wreck at once, and when we came within hailing distance we asked if help was wanted. The reply was a chorus of shrieks and screams, while many of the men shook their fists at us in defiance. It looked like a case of mutiny, and our captain was at a loss to know what step to take. Before he could make up his mind the Spaniards had lowered a boat and pulled for us. Every one of the crew piled into the boat, and we saw them grab up belaying pins, capstan bars and whatever else could be used as weapons. The boat came dashing at us with every man yelling and whooping, and they tried boarding us at once. We had no better weapons with which to beat them off, and we were three less in number, but when we looked into their fierce eyes and saw murder there we struck to kill.

They fought like tigers and seemed insensible to blows, but we beat them off at last.

Four of their number went to the bottom of the sea with broken skulls, and of those pulled away all were more or less hurt. We knew now that they were lunatics instead of drunken men, and we stood by till noon in the hope that they would calm down. They appeared to after awhile, but just as soon as we lowered a boat they woke up again and raged like wild beasts. We could understand nothing of their shouts except that they were oaths, and in the face of their determined opposition we could not board their craft. It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon before we squared away and left them, and then a fierce fight was going on, and at least one man had been thrown overboard to drown.

You may well guess that we aboard the Bristol were astonished and mystified by the singular incident, but the explanation when it came was very simple in a sense. The Spanish ship had a Filipino for a cook. He had trouble with both officers and men and was determined to have revenge. Before sailing from Luzon he had provided himself with a quantity of seed from the plant known as aripe. It is a wild kelp, and a decoction makes a madman of the drinker. How he managed to serve it out to the whole crew at once will never be known, but that was what he did and perhaps drank a share himself. The ship was manned by a lunatic crew when she drove down on us before the gale, and they were lunatics when we left them fighting and drifting. Ten days later the ship, which had become a wreck below and aloft, was picked up by a steamer and towed into port. Not a man living or dead was found on board. They had fought each other to the last and then the sole survivor had sought death beneath the waves. The cook had probably mixed the poisonous decoction with their coffee or wine soon after the storm had struck them, though not before she was in shape to ride it out. How long it was after we left them no one could say, but very likely not more than a day or so had passed when the last of the lunatics gave up his life and the ship went drifting and drifting with the sun drying up the hundred bloodstains on her littered deck.

Not Enough Wounded.

Canadian wounded soldiers in the hospitals in England will not languish for lack of company or attention. The notice in the press regarding activities of the bureau established by Lady Drummond brought within twelve hours offers from 157 ladies to visit the wounded or write letters to such as were lonely. Those responsible for supervising these kindly attentions, however, are resolved to accept offers of help with discretion, there being almost as much art and skill in visiting the sick and wounded as in actually nursing them.

A rather singular incident, apropos of offers to help the Canadian bureau, is that those offers for which the Canadian bureau had no use were submitted to a newspaper in London which runs a similar enterprise for the British troops as a whole. The reply returned, when these offers were submitted, was a query whether the Canadian bureau could provide some lonely soldiers to be visited or written to, as the big British bureau was short of victims rather than of helpers ...

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Expert Suggestions as to The Choice of Spices

Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.

It is only within the past few years that unscrupulous spice dealers have practically abandoned the practice of adulterating their coffee, cloves, pepper and other wares with such products as ground cocoa shells, nut shells, olive stones, mineral matter and cereals. The manufacture of these so called "fillers," made from various cheap materials, ground up and properly colored, had grown into quite an industry before the food and drugs act put a stop to it.

Nutmegs, in particular, are better whole than ground. The whole nutmeg retains its flavor and can readily be grated as needed. The temptation among unscrupulous manufacturers is to use moldly or wormy nutmegs in making the powdered spice.

Most housewives who use nutmeg and mace are unaware of the fact that these two important spices grow on the same tree. The nutmeg tree, which is cultivated chiefly in the Spice islands, lying just south of the Philippines, and to some extent in the West Indies, resembles the orange tree with shining, dark green leaves. The fruit of this tree is about the size of a peach and consists of a dark brown seed encircled with bands of a lighter brown or yellow color. This outer envelope of lighter hue constitutes the mace, while the kernel of the seed is the nutmeg. When the fruit is ripe it is gathered by hand. The mace is removed, care being taken to keep it as whole as possible, and dried in the sun, after which it is sometimes sprinkled with salt the better to insure its keeping.

When ready for the market it varies from a buff to a brown in color, according to the variety and the care taken in curing, is translucent, brittle and agreeably aromatic. The seed also is dried in the sun or in ovens and then broken open and the kernel or nutmeg of commerce removed.

1, NUTMEG WITH MACE; 2, INFERIOR NUTMEG, 3, GOOD NUTMEG.

The nutmeg is oval, of a cinnamon brown, with the surface grooved and bearing numerous longitudinal wrinkles. To prevent the ravages of insects and to give an attractive appearance the nutmegs are often either steeped in lime water or powdered with dry lime; hence the white powder usually seen adhering to them.

Several varieties of nutmegs and mace are to be had, the best being produced in the Banda islands, so that the term "Banda" used in this connection generally signifies a superior product. Of the false nutmegs the Papua and Macassar are frequently encountered. They are larger and more elliptical in shape than the true nutmeg, with comparatively feeble odor and a disagreeable taste. Their lack of flavor makes them a poor investment in spite of low prices.

Bombay mace, the chief adulterant of spice mace, is a botanical mace similar in form to the other varieties. It differs from the spice mace in that it is almost entirely devoid of flavor, which, of course, renders it useless as a spice. In the whole form it can be readily detected by its feeble odor and comparative lack of pungent taste characteristic of spice mace. It is usually found on the market in the ground form mixed with Penang, Batavia or some other spice mace and labeled "Penang Bombay Mace" or "Bombay Batavia Mace," etc., as the case may be. So long as the container is properly labeled the government is powerless to prevent its sale. The housewife is therefore cautioned against the use of any blends containing Bombay mace. Ground mace might just as well have an equal quantity of tasteless vegetable matter added to it.

AFRAID SHE WAS DYING

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

ST. JEAN DE MATHA, JAN. 27th. 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives". I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruit-a-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives".

POINTS TO REMEMBER ABOUT CONSTANTINOPLE

Half the people are Mohammedans

The bulk of the trade is in the hands of Europeans

It consists of two distinct parts: Constantinople proper, and what might be called Christian Constantinople, because it is there that the Christian colonies chiefly congregate

The two are separated by the Golden Horn, a creek about five miles long and half a mile wide at the entrance, so called probably from its famous fisheries, a veritable horn of plenty to the ancient inhabitants.

In the present day it is a safe harbor, capable of accommodating 1,200 sail, and so deep that the largest ironclads of the Turkish navy found enough water for their draught quite close to the shore.

Stambul is Constantinople proper and in it may be seen nearly all the monuments and antiquities worth seeing in Constantinople. The most famous of these is St. Sophia, the church dedicated by Constantine to "Eternal Wisdom."

There are nearly 300 mosques in Constantinople, one of the most magnificent of which is the mosque of Sultan Ahmed I. in the Hippodrome, distinguished without by its six minarets and within by the four gigantic columns thirty-six yards round.

In the neglected gardens overlooking Seraglio Point are various kiosks, in one of which is the ominous Kafes, or "cage," where the unhappy princes who menaced the peace of the Sultans were immured for the remainder of their lives.

Christian Constantinople, on the north side of the Golden Horn, is divided into three distinct sections—Top-hane, which is so named from its cannon foundry, and is chiefly famous for its market, its Circassian slave dealers, its caique building, and its beautiful marble fountain. The two other sections are Galata, the merchant quarter, the seat of customs and the steam companies' agencies; Pera, the aristocratic quarter, where all the embassies, legations, and consulates are situated.

The Bosphorus, which leads to the Black Sea, and the entrance to which Constantinople and Scutari command, is about seventeen miles long, with a breadth of from little more than a third of a mile to two miles.

The Bosphorus has long been under Turkish control, and repeated European conferences, including that of Berlin in 1878, confirmed the stipulation of the treaty made in 1841 that no ship of war belonging to any nation but Turkey should pass through it without the consent of the Ottomian authorities.

One Consolation.

Rubbing It In.

COLUMN FOR THE CHILDREN

Feed the Birds In Winter.

Pupils in schools where a branch of the Liberty Bell Bird club of the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, has been organized are being encouraged in habits of economy and taught that what we have we should share by conducting birds' restaurants and lunch counters near their schoolhouses this winter. Both boys and girls help to build the feeding station or clear a place near the schoolhouse where the remains of their luncheons and grains brought from home are offered daily to their appreciative bird boarders. A pan of water is also kept near by for the bird guests who are not too fussy to drink and bathe from the same vessel.

Hint For Boy Scouts.

During fall, winter and spring, when the nights are cold, the man who must sleep on the ground can make a "fire bed" and sleep in comfort. To do this a trench is dug in the sand six or eight inches deep and about three feet wide by six feet long. The sand which is removed should be banked up on the sides. When this is done a fire is built extending the full length of the pit.

When the sand has been heated the large sticks are thrown out, leaving only the live coals in the pit, and these are covered with four or five inches of sand. Now the sleeper can lie down and wrap himself in his blanket, if he has one, or if not he can sleep in comparative comfort anyway.

China's National Tree.

The national tree of China is the tung tree, and it is valuable for both its wood and its oil. Its branches are wide spreading, and its bark is smooth and green. Its fruit, which looks not unlike a shellbark hickory nut, is as large as a small orange. In the center of each of these nuts are three triangular seeds, and valuable oil for polishing woodwork and leather is extracted from them. The refuse is used as a fertilizer. The wood of the tree itself is made into fine boxes and musical instruments.

The Seven Dolls.

Seven dollies went to school
On a lawn beach, nice and cool;
Seven dresses, fresh and clean,
Seven heads of golden sheen.

"We must be polite," said they,
"Never cry, always obey;
Sit up straight, as we are told,
While our little books we hold."

Mistress Betty, kind and grave,
Made the little dolls behave;
Taught them how to read and write,
And never with each other fight.

From her seat upon the grass
She taught each chubby little lass
How to keep her dress so neat
And her face so clean and sweet.

Also how to lead a life
Free from discord and all strife
And to others ever do
As you wish they'd do to you.

Seven dollies grew up well,
Each one learned to read and spell,
Wise and cultured now are they,
And kind and gentle in their play.

A Question of Numbers.

Herbert Spencer did not agree with the scientists who favored the metric system. He said it is artificial and unsatisfactory, ten being divisible by only two numbers—two and five—and in one case the result is fifths, which are practically useless in the everyday life of the people. The decimal system is similarly objectionable, he contended, because it has an imperfect fourth and a more imperfect third, both of which are desirable in ordinary transactions. He regarded twelve as one of the most favorable numbers, as it is easily divisible into groups of units for popular use.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." – Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. – "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." – Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

RUSSIANS RETREAT TO THE CARPATHIANS

Enormous Battle Centre in South-Western Galicia, Say Official Statements---Baltic Diversion Ends.

London, May 6—While official Petrograd is inclined to treat matters in Galicia with more or less uncertainty private despatches state that a battle of enormous proportions is beginning.

Indications that the Russian army operating in the Carpathians is inadequately supplied come from Berlin.

Viennese Tales

The Russians are in full retreat from Hungary, with the Austro-German forces in close pursuit, according to last night's official announcement in Vienna. Gorlice, near Cracow, was set on fire and totally destroyed. The Russian southern wing was broken through on a front of twenty-four miles and the Russians were forced to abandon their first line.

Warsaw Front Quiet

Reports from Warsaw are that the absolute quiet which has prevailed on this front for several weeks has given place during the last few days to spasms of fighting on the front adjacent to Warsaw, but there are no indications of any immediate movements of importance on the part of the Germans near here. The Russians, Warsaw believes, will take the offensive before the end of May.

Russian Account

Petrograd, May 6—Immense German forces are being moved southwards from Cracow. Since Sunday there have been separate engagements at Tarnow and Gorlice, in Galicia, and near Bartfeld, in Hungary. The Russian army has driven the Austrians westward from the right bank of the Nida, and a battle involving enormous numbers is now beginning.

Baltic Raid Fails

The demonstration in Northwest Russia doubtless was intended to detain large Russian forces available for the battle between Cracow and the Carpathians. This German move has completely failed. Neither the German fleet nor transports have been seen off th coast, although a Russian torpedo boat squadron searched for them.

BEAT THE TURKS WITH BAYONET

British Charged Three Ridges but Porte Denies Success

London, May 6—A despatch from Cairo says that in the British landing at Sari Barh the troops waded ashore from boats and took three ridges in succession at the point of the bayonet. The Turkish losses are stated to be enormou. The British line, although it was met by a terrific fire, never wavered.

The Turkish official report declares the allies are making no progress in their occupation of the Gallipoli peninsula.

Constantinople, May 6—Press correspondents who have been allowed to visit the peninsula say that the towns of Maidos and Dardanelles have been burned, and yesterday the town of Gallipoli was set ablaze—all by indirect fire from the Gulf of Saros, with ignition shells directed by captive balloons and aeroplanes. Incessant and heavy fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula has continued from the first landing of the allied forces. The Straits themselves have not been seriously attacked since the re-opening of the operations.

The official Turkish report says:

"On the Dardanelles front the enemy yesterday attempted to land boats near Kaba Tepe but they were driven off. On Monday night the Turks attacked the enemy's positions near Sedd-el-Bahr and in spite of fire from cruisers drove him out of the trenches."

Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works, Ontario, has announced that hereafter the fair wage clause is to be inserted in all Provincial Government contracts.

Archbishop Quigley of Chicago was suddenly stricken dangerously ill at Washington yesterday and is in a serious condition at a hospital.

MASS IN WEST

Germans Lavishing Men and Poison to Break Lines

London, May 6—German armies newly massed in Flanders are now trying steadily to increase the pressure on Ypres. They have delivered a series of determined attacks along the British front which apparently are only the prelude to another gigantic effort to drive the allies out of their present positions. These attacks are assisted by a lavish expenditure of fresh troops, poison gas bombs and heavy shells. The heaviest concentration of German troops at present is in the Roulers-Courtrai area, although there have been great increases in the Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing areas.

Prisoners captured in the recent fighting state that one German corps lost eighty per cent. of its men in the first week; that the losses from our artillery fire, even during days when no attacks were taking place, had been very heavy, and that many of their own men had suffered from the effects of the gas.

ITALY IN DEADLOCK

Austria Refuses Demands and Buelow Awaits Berlin Orders

London, May 6—Dr. E. J. Dillon, in a cable from Rome says that Prince Von Buelow's final words to the Italian Government, in an interview on Sunday, were:

"As I can devise no further means for surmounting the difficulties that have arisen, my role is finished, and I now remain in Rome awaiting orders from Berlin." These words and the sequel they implied weighed with the Italian Cabinet and called forth the decision to keep every member of the Government and the King in the capital.

The demands put forward by Italy and to which Austria refused to accede, include the cession by Austria-Hungary of the Trentino and northern fortresses and much of the east coast of the Adriatic, territorial compensation for Roumania, and a port for Serbia on the Adriatic. Austria would go scarcely half way.

There has been a deadlock in the negotiations since Sunday last, when Prince Von Buelow admitted he had come to the end of his diplomatic tether. An accord with Austria no longer seems possible.

Nicked Arteries.

A "nick" in an artery is sometimes more dangerous than its complete severing, for the coats of arteries are formed of muscular tissue, which contracts, and a slight cut at once expands into a round or oval hole, through which the hemorrhage continues unless the artery be tied. When an artery is completely severed the cut ends tend to turn in and close the tube. In the case of a small artery [illegible] sometimes needs no assistance. In the case of a larger artery the surgeon ties it at once and thus closes it for good. The New York Medical Journal reports two cases at Lincoln hospital in which hemorrhages broke out over and over again for several weeks in arteries that had only just been nicked and that were finally healed by being tied just as if they had been severed.

Reciprocity In Doctors.

Hereafter all British physicians who come to practice in Ontario will enjoy the full benefits of a reciprocity in medical qualifications between Ontario and the old land. A bill brought down by the Attorney-General in the Legislature is drawn to clear up a difference which has been made the subject of much comment since Ontario doctors went to serve in British field and base hospitals.

The fact that no reciprocity in medical standing was recognized between the parts of the Empire caused complaints that Canadian doctors were not allowed to assume charge of British hospitals. The new bill obviates the difficulty.

CANADIANS HAD TO GIVE UP TRENCHES

But They Inflicted Severe Punishment on Germans

LORD BROOKE WITH ONTARIO BRIGADE

Ottawa, May 6—Cables received at the Militia Department confirm yesterday's cable announcement that the Canadians have again been in action. Few details are given, save that the action was nothing of the proportion of that at Langemarck, and that the casualties are light, though the Germans in gaining ground suffered heavily. Poisonous gases were again employed against the Canadians.

Major-General Sam Hughes announces that Lord Brooks of the British Yeomanry will take command of the Ontario Brigade of the second contingent after its arrival in England. Col. Denison will be in charge until then. Lord Brooke was in charge at Petawawa Camp two years ago.

Lieut. Helmer Killed

A cable that Lieut. A. H. Helmer of the 2nd Field Battery had been killed has been received. Lieut. Helmer is an R.M.C. graduate and the only son of Lieut.-Col. R. H. Helmer, Director of Musketry on the Headquarters Staff.

A militia order authorizing the establishment under regimental supervision of dry canteens for each military unit of the Canadian militia forces in training was issued yesterday. These canteens are under the supervision of the official commanding solely for the benefit of the unit, and must not be sub-let to outsiders.

Grants and Gifts

Kingston, May 6—Lieut.-Col. W. S Hughes, commanding the 21st Overseas Battalion, was presented yesterday with two machine guns, as the gift of the penitentiaries of Canada.

Stratford, May 6—By unanimous vote the City Council last night voted $10,000 for a special fund for dependents of local soldiers of the third contingent. About sixty of one hundred and sixty local volunteers at Guelph are going to England at once as reinforcements.

BAT IN STONE WALL

Creature Taken Out Alive After Twenty-Three Years.

Anyone who knows anything about bats or has had anything to do with these creatures realizes that they are very hard to kill, and that they will stand a lot of abuse. It is also known that they will live for long periods of time without food, and as soon as they are released will soon become active again. The latter has just been verified in a most peculiar manner in Guelph.

While some alterations were being made at St. James' Church it became necessary to make a hole in the stone wall of the church beneath the ground, the work being done by Mr. J. Benallick. When one of the masons was taking out some stones he was surprised to find a bat imbedded in the wall, which was 20 inches thick. It was covered with limestone and mortar, and the man naturally thought the bat was dead, but when he picked it up it felt warm and it was breathing. Mr. Art Hicks took charge of it, and put it in a box and later took it home with him. He put a glass over the box with a space left for air, and decided to watch it. During the night, however, the bat got out of the box and began to fly around the house.

Mr. Hicks got up, turned on the light, and endeavored to capture it, but it got out of the window, and he thought that was the last of the bat. The following morning, however, when a member of the household went to shake a mat which was on the doorstep, the bat was found clinging to it, and it was killed and put into the stove, much to Mr. Hicks' regret. He says the bat was quite fat when found, but that it was very weak and could not have lived much longer.

There are no windows or other openings near where it was found, and the wall was erected twenty-three years ago.

The Game of Wink.

The boys of the party are seated in a circle of chairs, of which one chair remains vacant. A girl stands behind each chair, her hands on its back. The girl behind the vacant chair selects a boy and literally "gives him a wink." Thereupon he tries to get from his chair to hers. His partner, however (the girl standing behind his chair), must be quick enough to intercept the wink and place her hands on his shoulders to restrain him. If she is successful the girl behind the empty chair must try again and until she has secured a partner. Then, of course, there is another chair to be filled in the same way.

It is a strict rule that the hands of the girls must remain on the backs of the chairs except when restraining a deserting partner. As all girls do not wink with equal facility or grace and no chance for practice is given, you can count on roars of laughter from this very simple game.

Queer Coal Chambers.

Chambers for the safe storage of coal are dug in the bottom of the Panama canal. The deposits of coal placed there will be secure from enemies, and a further advantage lies in the fact that coal is less liable to deteriorate under water than when exposed to air.

NIBBLING CONTINUES ON THE WESTERN FRONT

Allies Repulse Many Attacks Despite Poisonous Gas and Advance in Many Places.

London, May 6—Sir John French reported last night as follows:

"The general situation is unchanged. Fighting is in progress at Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, on which the Germans obtained a footing this morning under the cover of gases, which were extensively used, and were favored by weather conditions.

A feeble attack, preceded by an extensive use of poisonous gas, which was made east of Ypres, was easily repulsed, our artillery inflicting severe losses on the enemy.

"In the neighborhood of Civenchy the Germans exploded a mine and again employed gas fruitlessly.

Parry and Thrust

The Paris official statement last night said: "In Belgium the day was uneventful. Last evening we carried a German trench and pushed our lines forward between Lizerne and Hetsas, of which we are now masters. In Champagne west of Perthes, an attempt by the Germans to attack completely failed. The same thing occurred at Four de Paris in the Argonne.

"Fierce fighting has taken place between the Meuse and the Moselle. Our fire stopped the German attack in front of our first line which remains intact. The German losses are heavy and we took some prisoners. In the forenoon also three German regiments in unison attacked the positions recently taken by us in the Ailly woods, met some success but were later driven back.

Gains

"In the woods of Mortmare we have gained a marked success in recapturing some positions which had previously been taken by us and lost, carrying two successive lines of German trenches near the road from Flirey to Eazey. We are firmly established there. Three counter-attacks in the course of the day were completely repulsed.

"In Alsace we have continued to gain ground. This morning we carried another hill east of Hill No. 60 and are advancing.

Gas Failed Repeatedly

The recent fighting against poisonous gases around Ypres is described in an "eye-witness" narrative given out last night. The account says:

"Another attempt was made on Saturday night against Hill No. 60. The fumes reached the trenches but by a change of wind, they were blown back towards the Germans. The whole top of the hill was wreathed in green vapor.

"On Sunday a dense cloud of suffocating vapor was launched along the whole front held by the French right and our left, from the Ypres Langemarck road to east of St. Julien.

"The fumes did not carry much beyond the front line of trenches from which retirement was ordered. The advancing enemy wavered at the poison belt but finally faced it and a hall of shrapnel as well.

Failure !

"In cases where the gas did not reach the line, our troops held firm and shot through the cloud at the advancing Germans. In other cases the men holding the front line managed to move to the flank until they could use the bayonet. In every case the assault failed completely. Large numbers were mowed down by our artillery fire. Many who reached the gas cloud could not get through. The probability is that a great number of their wounded perished from the fumes."

A statement by the Belgian Legation London, given out last night reaffirms the charges made by Gen. French against the Germans in connection with the deliberate use of poisonous gases.

WAR HELPS FISH TRADE.

Newfoundland's Product May Now Enter Portugal on Equality.

A curious effect of the war is its bearing on the future of the fish trade of Newfoundland and maritime Canada. The war has revived the ancient alliance between Great Britain and Portugal, and a result has been that a discrimination made by Portugal for many years against fish from Newfoundland and the Canadian Maritime Provinces has been removed. The products of this region are now admitted to Portuguese markets on an equality with those of all other countries.

Until hostilities began the chief beneficiary of the conditions then existing was Norway, which because of general trade with Portugal enjoyed an advantage in the matter of duty charged on dry fish entering Portuguese harbors equivalent to from 25 to 35 cents per quintal of 112 pounds, according to the fluctuations in the rate of exchange. This gave the Norwegians sufficient advantage to permit them to undersell the Newfoundland and Canadian product.

Representations had been made several times by the Governments of Newfoundland and Canada in an effort to secure the removal of this handicap, but without avail until after the war began, when the desired alterations were made.

One reason for the discrimination was the objection of Portugal to the custom on this side of the Atlantic of applying to certain wines not produced in Portugal the name of port wine. The Portuguese Government contends that the word "port" could only be applied properly to wine from that country. Reciprocal concessions have been made, Canada and Newfoundland agreeing to Portugal's terms in this respect.

The imports of wine to Newfoundland last year amounted to only 3,000 gallons, valued at $5,000, whereas the exports of dry codfish from Newfoundland to Portugal amounted to 200,000 quintals, valued at $1,250,000. Next to Brazil, Portugal is the largest purchaser of the Newfoundland commodity.

It is expected that similar concessions will be secured from the Spanish, Italian, and Greek Governments in the near future, and that the foreign trade in codfish will be greatly increased next year.

Commands the 38th.

By the promotion of Lieut. R. G. Stewart, of Ottawa, commander of the Thirty-Eighth Infantry Brigade [illegible] major of the Ontario Brigade of the second contingent, composed of the Twenty-First Infantry Regiment in training in Kingston, the Nineteenth and Twentieth in training in Toronto, and the Eighteenth in training in London, Maj. C. M. Edwards becomes commander of the Thirty-Eighth Ottawa Regiment, in succession to Lt.-Col. Stewart.

Maj. Edwards will shortly be made a lieutenant-colonel. Maj. Edwards will make a splendid commanding officer as he has had considerable experience as an officer in the Forty-Third Regiment of Ottawa, one of the crack corps of the Dominion, and is a young officer full of zeal and enthusiasm. He is particularly popular with all ranks of the militia of the capital. There is a splendid class of young men now offering as recruits for the Thirty-Eighth and there is little doubt but that the regiment will be a credit to the Dominion.

Columbia University will have a $10,000,000 medical hospital on the site of the old "Yankees" baseball park in New York.

CANADIAN CRUCIFIED ?

London, May 6—The Morning Post says that a Lieut.-Col., writing on April 29, says:

"The Canadians have done splendidly. But they are mad with rage because they say they have found one of their men crucified. This is not mere camp gossip; a General vouches for the fact."

To Toronto last night from a German camp came a message from Capt. Alexander of the 48th Highlanders, who was taken prisoner at Langemarck.

After a chase which lasted for a month and extended over several thousands of miles, W. Ott, Toronto representative of the Columbia Gramophone Company, has been arrested in Ecuador, South America, on a charge of stealing funds from his firm.

Well Poisoners Warned

Botha Will Take Reprisals Against Dastardly German Officers

The British Colonial Office has issued the following statement:

"Gen. Botha, in command of the British forces in South Africa, reports that the Germans, since the evacuation of Auf Warmbad and other places, have consistently poisoned all the wells along the railroad. Gen. Botha has informed the commander of the German forces that he will hold the officers concerned responsible for acts contrary to The Hague convention and will take measures of reprisal."

China to Mobilize

Pekin Considers Japan Determined on War and Will protest

Pekin, May 6—The government of China will probably make a direct appeal to the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, immediatelp upon receipt of the Japanese ultimatum. The appeal will be based upon "various treaties and agreements guaranteeing the integrity of China and the open door."

Telegrams have been pouring in from every part of China foreshadowing hostilities and a general Chinese mobilization is imminent. All the government officers are receiving warning telegrams, stating that Japanese are preparing for war.

The Japanese ultimatum is now ex[illegible] consternation and grief are observable among all diplomats. Further yielding is held impossible because of the fear of instant revolution.

Tokio, May 6—The Official Gazette publishes an imperial ordinance sanctioning martial law and the military requisition law on the Kwang-Tung peninsula and the South Manchuria Railroad.

U.S. Wants Indemnitp

Washington, May 6—The United States, in reply to the German government on the William P. Frye case suggests to Germany that as she has admitted her liability and dabages for the construction of the vessel by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, future recognition as to the amount to be paid begin at once.

Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant, knocked out Al Reich in the third round of a sensational battle at New York last night and thus qualified to meet Willard.

Able-bodied prisoners of Cumberland county, Maine, will be employed on the roads.

Everywhere, everybody seems to be accumulating ballots for some candidate in the transcontinental and Panama-Pacific exposition tour contest, and it looks as though some of the present "unknowns" will be among the "future greats" and probably at the next announcement.

Each day the voting procession continues, all depositing single and subscription votes for their favorites, and clipped coupons arrive at the contest office in every imaginable way.

A man will enter and after a great deal of fumbling through a ponderous pocketbook, draw out one coupon, which will be carefully deposited. Small boys, grimy-faced, in some instances, drop crumpled and well-fingered votes for their candidates. Staid old ladies in very dignified manned deposit their ballots with much seriousness.

Many of the votes are inclosed in letters wishing the candidate success and inquiring as to what the contest department "thinks of her chances." These ballots are little messages of good will and affection for those who have enrolled their names.

Who will take and retain the lead in the different districts seems to be a vital question with the candidates. It is a little early to commence to worry over that. The time that it pays to be first is on the closing night, although of course most persons like to be on the "band wagon." The vote announcement today discloses the fact that no candidate has a very big lead. With well directed efforts almost any candidate can be well up among the top of the heap in the next announcements.

A Tour of Pleasure.

If the eligible women who are hesitating had a full realization of the pleasure which have been arranged for them on this trip of trips, their hesitancy would be dispelled. Every comfort that money and care can secure will be accorded the fortunate winners. It will not be an ordinary tour, but a trip including a large number of prominent cities of the North American continent, attendance at the World's Fair at San Francisco, sight-seeing at the most famous scenic sections in America, guided by a pilot of experience and with a fund of information about the places visited. You can never learn the interesting history and traditions attached to these places on an ordinary trip over the west, but by the tour conductor they will be so well explained that they will forever remain with you as an invaluable educational asset. WHY NOT BE ONE OF THE PARTY?

Opportunity Period.

Opportunity period will close Saturday night. Candidates should get every possible vote while the best offers are in effest. Next week the schedule will be much lower so do not fail to cash all your promises this week.

Packers and Fishers at War.

A conflict has arisen in the Maritime Provinces between the lobster canners and the fishermen as a result of the war. The packers have been unable to sell all their output this season and will be obliged to carry a considerable proportion of it till next year. They request that no canners' licenses be issued next year so as to prevent the market being overstocked and the price being reduced. The present prices for canned lobster, which the packers wish to maintain, were only obtained after years of effort and gradual increases. If the industry does not take a rest next year they fear that prices will tumble down. They also allege that the fisheries are being depleted, and a year of rest would do much to replenish them.

The fishermen, on the other hand, who have been depending on this means of livelihood, are strongly opposed to a policy that would close the canneries and kill their market for the lobsters.

NO ELECTION AT EARLY DATE

Indications do not Point to Immediate Dissolution

OTTAWA, May 6.—The prospect of a general election seems to have receded. Another day without an announcement has encouraged the belief that there is to be no immediate dissolution, and conservative members who are in the capital are confident that this is the case. The Prime Minister's illness has prevented the holding of a full Cabinet Council, and may keep him out of the council chamber for the remainder of the week. It is generally understood, however, that the question of an early dissolution has had a good deal of careful, if informal, consideration, and that every reasonable weight has been attached to the views and arguments which have been advanced against the holding of an election. The extent to which an election campaign would be "disturbing" would depend upon the sort of tactics adopted by the Opposition, but there has been evidence of an intention by the Liberals to make the expected campaign as "frightful" as possible. A decision against a dissolution would prevent the realization of that intention.

One of the controlling factors in the situation is believed to be the heavy pressure of public business resulting from the war, which would make a general election campaign at this time an exceedingly difficult matter from the standpoint of the members of the Government themselves.

The postponement of dissolution means, of course, that the Western provinces will have to wait for an increase of their Parliamentary representation, which would be theirs but for the action of the Liberal majority in the Senate. This is a condition which was not created by the Government.

WARNING NOT TO CUT PARK TREES

Bridgenorth Man Fined $1 and Must Pay Costs

If there is one practice which must be stopped it is that of marring the beauty of Chemong Park by cutting down trees in its confines. Hence a warning issued this morning by County Magistrate Langley in dealing with an offender will receive the heartiest endorsation of all who spend their summers there and of every cottager.

Louis Fobert, a well-known and old resident of Chemong, pleaded his guilt, admitting that he had cut down two trees on the property of Alex. Elliott and one on the lot owned by Andrew Jobe. For each offence he was fined one dollar and costs, or altogether $27.09, and ordered to furnish bonds to keep the peace, the sureties totalling $400.

G. N. Gordon conducted the case for Fobert and explained that there was no attempt on his part to deny cutting down the trees. It was the question of compensation that had to be considered, and Fobert, being a man of some little means, was willing to make it right with the owners. Mr. Gordon contended that Fobert, havng lived there so many years, possibly did not prize the beauty of the park trees so highly as summer visitors, and therefore was not mindful of preserving them to the same extent.

It is not likely that the offender will forget for some days the severe lecture and advice administered by the magistrate. Owing to the able arguments of Solicitor Gordon, the magistrate said he would deal leniently with the accused, but he could not disregard the fact that had been brought to his attention that the stumps of the trees cut had been painted over to make the cut appear like an old one. He did not accuse Fobert of being responsible for that, but it was principally on those grounds that he required bonds to keep the peace.

"I want this to be not only a lesson to you, but to everyone, that the beauties of Chemong Park must be preserved. If parties imagine they can ruthlessly cut down trees they are mistaken, and I propose to see in the words of a phrase I once heard used, which strikes me as being particularly appropriate, "that the strong arm of the law is vindicated."

Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the case for the prosecution.

The many friends of the late Lieut. Doxsee, of Campbellford, who was killed in action at the front, express sincerest sympathy with the sorrowing widow and children. Miss Vida Faux, of Westwood, is an interested competitor in the Review World's Fair Contest, and is hustling for business. Her friends are wishing her success.

The Fertilizing Rain.

Probably few students of agriculture realize the fertilizing qualities of tropical rains. In the Annales de Geographie M. Guillaume Capus, who has chemically studied the effects of rainy weather in French Indo-China, says that lightning produces large amounts of nitric acid. In the thirteen districts of the Tonkin delta of Indo-China, where thunderstorms are frequent, M. Capus asserts that the lightning annually produces an amount of atmospheric nitrogen equivalent to 181,390 tons of nitrate of soda, or 137,510 tons of sulphate of ammonia, the value of which is nearly $20,000,000.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

BIERBAUER ON LONDON TEAM

Lincoln Club Wishes to Sell Him — Lefty Rogers is Through

LONDON, May 6. — The Lincoln club, of the Western League, has decided to let Louis Bierbauer, the former London first sacker, go. President Jones, of the Lincoln club, wired President Somerville of the London club Tuesday, asking what price London would pay for Bierbauer. The Western leaguers want to sell the Erie boy before the 13th of the month when the teams of that league have to get under the players' limit. Louis has been playing first baseball for Lincoln but has only been playing fair baseball. The regular Lincoln first baseman is pretty solid with the fans and Manager McIntyre has decided to use him on first base.

The London club would like to get Bierbauer back again, but it cannot pay the salary he would want, and it is not likely he will come here. Louis was getting $175 per month last season, but the local club could not come near this figure this season. Bierbauer may go to the Erie club, as Director George O'Neill is sweet on the exx-London star.

When Erie was in the Canadian league last year, the sporting writers of that city tried to belittle the class of ball played in the league, and longed for the day when Erie would be back in the Central league. Erie is back in the Central league with practically the same team that represented it in the Canadian circuit last year and which failed to burn up any diamonds on this side of the line. The Erie team is cutting just as big a dash in the Central as it did in the Canadian, and it does not appear to be serving up a much better brand of ball.

"Lefty" Rogers wrote a friend in Ottawa that he did not intend to return, as the oil business was booming down South. He may feel strangely out of place when the crowds begin to cheer at Lansdowne Park two weeks hence.

COFFEY WON ANOTHER.

Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant, knocked out Al. Reich in the third round of a sensational fight in New York last night. After the bout Jack Curley stated:— As one of the syndidate handling Jess Willard, I want to make myself clear by saying that Jim Coffey at this minute is the leading contender for the world's championship. I also wish to say [illegible] bring Willard into the ring [illegible] Coffey.

ATHLETIC CLUB AT MARK ST. CHURCH

An athletic club in connection with the young people of Mark St. Methodist Church was organized last night and the following officers were elected:—

Hon. Pres.—Rev. L. Phelps.
President—E. W. Jones.
Vice-Pres.—T. Hendry.
Sec.-Treas.—H. Smith.
Executive—L. McIntyre, B. Hagerman and E. Jones.
Manager—K. Throop.

The club proposed to advance all branches of sport. In view of securing funds a concert will be held on May 14th.

PEPPER SAUCE GOES FULL ROUTE IN 2.14

The most interesting performance among the Platers at the Toronto Woodbine yesterday was that of Chas. Crew's Plater Pepper Sauce, which covered the full Plate route, 1¼ miles, in 2.14. The fractional time was: ¼ in .25 2-5, ½ in .51, ¾ in 1.17 2-5, mile in 1.44, and the 1⅛ miles in 1.59 2-5. Cannie Jean joined in with the Inferno colt during the last seven furlongs, which she covered in 1.34. It was a very encouraging effort. The Crew two-year-old Old Pop breezed a quarter in .25 2-5.

SCHOOL LEAGUE BASEBALL.

On the grounds of Queen Mary the King George team defeated the Queen Mary nine by a score of 6 to 4 on Wednesday evening, May 5th. Batteries, Queen Mary — Patterson and Pogue. King George, Anderson and Hagerman. Umpire, Lloyd Stewart.

In the Public School League last evening South Central won the game from Central by a score of 13 to 3. Batteries: South Central, Fuller and Montgomery, pitchers, Bailey, catcher; Centrals, Green, pitcher, Bergoine, catcher.

Mr. Taylor umpired to the satisfaction of all on ground.

LACROSSE

There was another good turnout of lacrosse men at the Y. last night. Several more recruits are trying out and it looks as if the game would be a reality in the city this summer. The Y. is ready to put their men in a league just as soon as some other teams come along. Let's keep the City League in mind and the development of young players. There is lots of material for the O. A. L. A. team. What we want now is a city [illegible] Next practice at the [illegible] night at 6.30. Everybody out.

BASEBALL

The results of Wednesday's games were:

National: Chicago 5, Cincinnati 0; New York 4, Philadelphia 2; Boston 6, Brooklyn 1. St. Louis at Pittsburg—cold weather.

American: Cleveland 1, Chicago 0; Boston 1, Washington 0; Philadelphia 2, New York 1; Detroit 5, St. Louis 2.

Federal: St. Louis 3, Brooklyn 0; Baltimore 5, Chicago 3. Pittsburg at Newark—wet grounds Kansas City at Buffalo—wet grounds.

International: Jersey City 6, Toronto 3; Providence 2, Rochester 1; Montreal 10, Richmond 3. Buffalo at Newark—wet grounds.

BASKETBALL

Calculations were somewhat upset in last night's basket ball games. Murray St. beat Charlotte St. by a good margin. Knox who are tied with George St. for first place just edged out a victory over All Saints, and Mark St. turned the tables on George St. who, up to last night had won all their games. This means a play-off between George St. and Knox. The game will be played Monday, May 10th at 7.30.

In the first game between Murray St. and Charlotte St. the Murray St. boys had more success with their shooting. The first half was very close, ending with the score 8-6 for Murray St. In the second half the winners piled up 6 points to the losers' 3, making the final score 14-9.

The Knox-All Saints' game was simply an exhibition of close checking and little shooting, as the score, Knox 6, All Saints 4, indicates.

The George St.-Mark St. game was close and fast throughout. The George St. boys were over anxious and not up to their usual form on shooting, while the Mark St. boys played the best they have during the series. The first half ended 3-4 in favor of Mark St. and in the second half the East City boys succeeded in caging three baskets while the North Enders only got two making the final score 10-7 in favor of Mark St.

Play-off between Knox and George St. Monday, May 10th, 7.30.

FOBS FOR THE WINNING TEAM

The A. G. Spalding Co., through its local representative Trebilcock Bros., has offered to give watch fobs to the members of the baseball team winning the City League championship on the condition that the Spalding ball is used in all the games. [illegible] offered three fobs or a silver trophy and the league has accepted the fobs in view of the fact that two local merchants have signified their intention of donating a silver cup to the winning team.

Percy Lynch, the well known barber, has offered a "full course" to the player making the first home run.

Attracts Attention.

"You think actions speak louder than words?"

"I do."

"What actions for instance?"

"Well, for one, when a man drops a sledge on a tin roof."

Substitute Would Do.

"Could you spare me a few minutes?"

"My time is worth money."

"Oh, well, a half dollar would do as well."

Bargain Rate.

"What kind of a horse has he got?"

"A good quarter horse."

"A quarter horse? I could afford one myself at that price."

ALL READY FOR THE OPENING.

Practically all the preparations for the opening of the City Baseball League on Saturday have been completed. Everything is in readiness at the park and if the weather man hands out a fair brand of sunshine, the crowd should be a big one. The auto parade, headed by the band will leave the Y.M.C.A. at one-thirty. The first game is at two o'clock and the second at four.

COMMENT As You Like it

THERE IS a real fight between Primeau and Butcher for the job on the difficult corner with East City. Both have shown ability and it's about a flip of a coin. Barrie at short, Hagerman at second and Guerin at first will make up the rest of the infield.

LORNIE ROSE will in all probability play third for the Classics Saturday. The kid is showing rare form and no doubt will have a big year. It may be that he will be used in the box occasionally before the season is over.

LEO KENNEALLEY who is to do the catching for Vic Fowler's team promises to be the find of the season. He has shown real class in practices, his throwing to the bases being particularly good.

AFTER ALL there will be plenty of entertainment in the city for the sporting element. There will be the City Baseball League, Inter-Catholic Baseball League, City Lacrosse League and O.A.L.A. games.

BUCK O'CONNELL will be pegging for Dan McCabe's outfit this summer. The big "Swede" was billed for the Classics but that team has an abundance of pitchers.

ROY SMYTHE and Nagle Phelan will compose the Thistle's battery on Saturday. Manager Yeotes expects to have Meredith Huycke in the course of a few weeks.

SOME VARIETY of managers in [illegible] Fowler, Louie Yeotes and Mayor Buller.

HARRY CORRIN will be in the out garden of the Empire A. C. He was one of the best outfielders in the Mercantile League last season.

THE INTER-CATHOLIC League will get under way next week. It is the intention to play the games in the evening.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that, two local merchants will present a trophy to the winners of the City Basebell League.

Alf. Taylor is billed to catch for the Empire A.C. against the Thistles. The pitcher's name has not been given out as yet.

PLAYERS should be on hand at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday early enough to be in uniform at 1.30.

Of four Youngstown prisoners sent to the jail at Warrensville, O., in a month, three have escaped.

The Artful Artillery

It is only of quite recent years that the masked battery has enjoyed recognition as the normal position for artillery. Yet on the battlefields of Europe today they are indispensable. Inquisitive aeroplanes will hover above, endeavoring to locate the position of artillery and, if successful, drop smoke bombs, so giving their artillerymen the range.

To cope with this danger the guns have to be cunningly hidden from aerial observation by means of crests of leafage, trees and in many instances draped over with foliage precisely in harmony with the color of the immediate surroundings.

A good artillery officer can control his battery much like a fireman does his hose. Although his guns are hidden, he himself must be in a position overlooking the field of action in order to be able to give instructions to his gunners regarding the elevation of the guns, etc. If he is obliged to travel away from his guns his information is transmitted either by means of telephones, signals or a chain of orderlies. —Pearson's.

RUSSIAN PLACE NAMES.

And Some of Our Own That Might Be Puzzles to Petrograd.

The following are names of Russian towns culled from the latest war news. They give us Americans a sort of orthoepic lockjaw:

Inowlodz, Bomilhow, Borjimow, Maiagoszcz, Bokhinetz, Zakliczyn, Gorjanko, Uzsok.

Yet what would happen to a gentle Russian reader of the Novoe Vremya in Petrograd if there were a war in the United States and the poor cuss had to wrestle with—

Chillicothe, Oshkosh, Tuskegee, Ossawatomie, Kalamazoo, Swanannoa, Xenia, Schocholi, Tallapoosa, Sylacauga, Yamme, Wawaw, Pocomoonshine, Schenectady, Tioughnioga, Ronkonkoma, Skaneateles, Cheektowago, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Chicago?

You may not believe it, but all these are perfectly good American towns.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Where the Earth Stands Still.

"The deadest university in the world"—such is the unenviable distinction of El Azhar, the great Moslem university at Cairo. This "institution of learning" schools its 11,000 students on the Ptolemaic theory of the universe, which makes the earth the center of the solar system, around which the sun and stars revolve. But a passion for real education has begun to sweep north Africa. Schools are meeting even in the desert, wherever a teacher can be found. The schoolgirl, formerly an unknown quantity, now numbers 25,000 strong in Egypt. North Africa has two mighty colleges, Gordon Memorial and Assiout. In mission schools 18,000 children are being trained for the citizenship of tomorrow. The day of El Azhar is passing.—William Price in World Outlook.

RECEIVED HIS XMAS PRESENT LAST MONTH

Pte. Victor Gifford Now Playing Game More Exciting Than Carpet Ball

The following letter from Pte. Victor Gifford, recently reported wounded, has been received by Mr. S. A. Oke, secretary of Lansdowne Lodge S.O.E., of which the writer is a member:—

No 1 Co., 2nd Batt.,
1st Brigade,
France, April 8, 1915.

Dear Sir and Bro.—Just a line to thank the lodge for the Xmas present of tobacco which I received April 2nd. It is not often one gets the pleasant surprise so late in the season. It came in alright although I have not been short of smoking material lately as we get some issued to us every week. The French tobacco is poor stuff but there are some things here that are alright but I can't make very fast progress for I know very little French yet but we manage to get along somehow. This game we are playing here is a little more exciting than carpet ball. I suppose it's because the stakes are higher but I have been fortunate for I have enjoyed good health all the way through and trust I may have the pleasure of being with you again but of course some one else may have a lot to say about that. I never regret that I came even if it is a hard road at times. I am not much of a quill driver so will wind up with kind regards to you all. I remain,

Yours, etc.,
VICTOR GIFFORD.

Countersigned G. W. Bennett.

CALL TENDERS FOR AUXILIARY STATION

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission last evening the plans of the proposed auxiliary pumping unit were received from William Kennedy, Jr., of Montreal. The matter was gone over thoroughly by the Commissioners, and they then decided to have Mr. Kennedy advertise in the necessary Canadian journals for tenders for the work, the same to be sent to S. R. Armstrong before noon of May 31st. The specifications are not very definite, and thus a large number of prospective tenderers will be heard from. The unit is to have a capacity of four and a half million gallons per day. When the tenders are received and more details as to cost, etc., known, the Commission will confer with the City Council. If the work is to be done under the Peterborough private bill, the consent of the Council must be had. If this is not done, it will be necessary to appeal to the electors.

Council of Women

Supervised Playgrounds.

During the midsummer months the schools are closed and the children whose parents are not wealthy enough to afford an outing to the lakes are running the streets. Their energies must have some outlet so they amuse themselves by racing carts on our walks, playing ball and other games in the streets, destroying flowers and lawns and by swimming in forbidden places. Now the best way to train a girl or a boy to do right is not to be continually lecturing them on their wrongdoing but to show them the delight and happiness of honorable conduct. One means of doing this is supervised playgrounds. Come out next Friday night to the Y.M.C.A. and see beautiful slides illustrating these playgrounds. A silver collection in aid of the playground will be taken up.

Richard Watson Gilder says, "It is decreed that man should work for his daily bread. It is further decreed that for the salvation of his body and soul he should play. The repression of play, especially in childhood, is a dangerous thing. The misdirection of play is a dangerous thing. The suppression of play means disease. The misdirection of play, especially in our great crowded cities, means crime. On a vivid understanding of this condition is founded the Playground Association of America."

Justice Choquette of Montreal who presides over the Juvenile Court, recently spoke as follows of the custom of children playing in the street: "Since I have been judge of this court I have been struck with the number of children who have been brought before me and charged with playing in the roads. Children would get into far less mischief if proper recreation grounds were provided for them."

No large city has more playgrounds than Chicago and they have all been acquired of recent years. The taxpayers in practically all the wards demanded them. One of the most pleasing features of the establishment of playgrounds in Chicago has been the reduction of the child death rate, while the moral uplift has been the subject of frequent comment.

MOTHERS' DAY IN PETERBOROUGH.

The Women's Local Council have established their headquarters for Mothers' Day in a store on Charlotte Street opposite the Grand Trunk station. Thousands of carnations are already secured and thousands more are ordered. Next Saturday the ladies will be out in force selling them to raise funds for a playground. Buy one and decorate in honor of mother. Remember also Friday night at the Y.M.C.A. where slides will be shown illustrating the purpose and educational advantages of playgrounds.

The women of France are particularly interested in the welfare of soldiers' children. Peterborough has also men at the front whose children in their absence should be looked after. Help to make these little ones happy by providing a playground.

Officers for the Retail Grocers

London, Ont., May 6. — Thomas Shaw, of this city, was elected president of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association at the closing session here Wednesday afternoon of the third annual convention of that body. E. F. Mason, of Peterborough, was elected first vice-president; Alexander Phillips, of Ottawa, second vice-president; William C. Miller, of Toronto, secretary; and Donald McLean, of Toronto, treasurer.

The new executive is as follows: Adam Palmer, London; J. A. Bowman, Ottawa; D. W. Clark, Toronto; Gordon Drake, London; Jerry Burns, Toronto; J. Main, Hamilton; W. J. McCully, Stratford. Chas. McCausland, Paris, and W. J. Mellen, Brantford. The latter is last year's president.

Dr. Chiles Ferrell, noted southern educator, was killed by a burglar at Praco, Ala.

Resisted Arrest.

A melee occurred on George Street last night, when two Italians, the worse for liquor, resisted arrest. They put up a lively little scrap against Constables Blade and Deannard, but the law finally won, and both were towed to the police station. Their unruliness brought fines of $2 and costs or $5.75 each this morning.

To Attend Convention.

Superintendent Ross Dobbin, of the waterworks department of the Utilities Commission, was instructed last night at the meeting of the Commissioners to make arrangements to attend the annual meeting of the International Waterworks Association, to be held at Cincinnati from Monday till Thursday of next week. It is probable that Commissioner R. Hicks will also be present.

A Painful Mishap.

Francis Mathers, sales manager for Barries, Ltd., sustained a nasty accident yesterday at the new building when he stumbled and fell over one of the machines. Part of the machine caught his clothing and tore a portion of the flesh on one leg, scraping the bone. He became unconscious and Dr. Halliday who was hurriedly summoned, dressed the injury. Mr. Mathers was removed to his home, but will be out again in a day or two.

This war is doing an enormous amount towards encouraging tea drinking all over the world, and it looks as though in countries where tea has up to now been more or less an experiment or a luxury it will in the near future be in a fair way of becoming a national beverage. Once attract a taste for tea and it will come to stay. The Russians have of course always been large tea drinkers, and with the Government's action in closing down the State-run vodka cabarets an even larger consumption is bound to follow. France, hitherto a very small consumer and essentially a coffee country, has been adopting tea to fight upon, and every French soldier who returns from the field will take the taste back to his family. It will all spell extra consumption and a continued range of high prices. Consumption has in the last year or two increased in a far greater ratio than has production, and fresh planting owing to various causes, chiefly the labour difficulty, has been handicapped. New land takes some years to come into full bearing, and young gardens require to be treated tenderly at first. Of course China could, if she would, produce countless millions, but unless British grown teas goes to absolutely prohibitive prices there is not much prospect of the tea-drinking public reverting to China tea.

PROUD OF CANADA'S EXHIBIT AND OF HER FAMOUS TRAIN

"It was a pleasure to be able to say, 'I am a Canadian,' and to know that our Dominion's exhibit was the best within the grounds."

Mr. I. W. Brisbin, a well-known insurance man who makes his home at Lacolle, Que., thus expresses himself on his return from the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Mr. Brisbin admired not only the Canadian exhibit, but the Canadian railway service. In a letter to the Grand Trunk system, he says: "After a trip to the Panama Exposition, during which we travelled over eight different railways, I wish to express to you our appreciation of the very excellent service given by your train, the International Limited. During our journey to and from Chicago we occupied a very clean and comfortable observation Pullman car, found the service in the dining car all that could be desired; and all the men in charge were most courteous and obliging. The service of the G. T. R. is not excelled upon this continent."

SERVICE IN ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

In Memory of the Late Private Rogers

It has been decided to hold a memorial service for the late Heber Rogers who was killed at the battle of Ypres. It will be in St. Luke's Church on Sunday afternoon at 4.15, conducted by Rev. W. H. White, the rector. The late Private Rogers was a member of St. Luke's and held in high regard by all who enjoyed his acquaintance in the congregation.

Save for the private cablegram conveying news of his death, Mr. R. B. Rogers has received no official report from Ottawa. He did receive a cablegram last evening from a lady who resides in London, England, with whom Heber Rogers stayed while there, to the effect that she was unable to obtain any information about him.

On Sunday last Mr. T. F. Matthews cabled his agent in London, requesting him to forward any information he could secure of Lt. Vivian Fessenden. Last night Mr. Matthews received the following reply:—

Fessenden, only information obtainable missing May first, probably taken prisoner. Instituting inquiries through international office. Will cable you result. Mills.

Pte. Gordon Graham of Lakefield, who was a chum of the late Heber Rogers, is reported in a special cable to the Toronto Daily News, as having evaded the nurses at one of the hospitals and made his way to his machine gun section, to take part in some of the fighting.

Pte. Graham had entered the hospital with a fractured arm, the injury having been received while he was out with a reconnoitring party. He is in the hospital again.

Pte. Graham was with Masters Jack Davidson and Donald Cameron when they made their canoe trip from Lakefield to New York last summer. He was on the teaching staff at the Grove School.

Mr. John Hawkins received a telegram from militia headquarters that his son Stephen had been wounded in the severe fighting near Ypres. As the telegram did not state the extent of Steve's injury, it is not known yet how seriously he may be hurt but as soon as possible it is likely details will follow.—Hastings Star.

Few persons who noticed the name of Captain J. E. H. Nasmyth among those of the 46th Regiment who fell at Langemarck thought for an instant that Captain Nasmyth was "Jimmie" Nasmyth, the man who figured so prominently in baseball circles in Cavan and Janetville a few years ago. The Toronto Star published a picture of the late Capt. Nasmyth in last evening's issue and then Peterborough fans knew that "Jimmie" had given his life for the cause. He was very popular among sporting men in this vicinity and a personal friend of Mr. Dan McCabe and Mr. W. J. Stacey.

GUNS FOR 21st.

Yesterday afternoon Lieut.-Col. W. S. Hughes, commanding the 21st Overseas Battalion, was presented by Warden R. R. Creighton with two machine guns, as the gift of the penitentiaries of Canada. Col. Hughes, in thanking the donors, said he was sure the 21st would make good use of them on the battlefield.

Fine Was Imposed on Magistrate Dumble

Through Misunderstanding His Water Bill Was Not Paid

Fined sixteen dollars, was the penalty inflicted on Magistrate D. W. Dumble for failure to interpret a smile bestowed upon him by a young lady. It wasn't that His Worship was carrying on any flirtation; he was a little uncertain as to whether or not he had paid his water account to the Utilities Commission, and with the object of finding out, he called at the office and explained the nature of his visit to the cashier. All His Worship received was a smile, and he departed, believing the account had been paid. The fifteenth of the month slipped by, and in the course of a few days he was notified to pay his water account or the supply would be cut off. Then he knew to his sorrow that he had not paid.

Last night at the meeting of the Utilities Commission Magistrate Dumble was present. He explained his mistake, and asked to be exempt from the fine. He pointed out how his bill every quarter amounts to some $49, or $200 per year. The fine would amount to some $16. He assured the Commissioners that he has always signed petitions for water, etc., to assist in extending the system.

The matter was left over to be dealt with at a future meeting. It was the unanimous feeling of the Commissioners that the penalty is too big.

It is proposed to change the penalty from 33 per cent. to 10 or 15 per cent.

TAKEN TO HOME.

Mary Sharrow, a young Ennismore girl who has been lodged in the county jail for a couple of weeks pending the decision of the police, was this morning taken to the Good Shepherd's Industrial Home, Toronto, where she will be confined for one year. The girl is about seventeen, and has been a source of trouble to her parents by her wayward conduct. Police Matron McElhiney was in charge of her.

CHINA READY TO GIVE IN

Good Reason to Believe She is Ready to Concede Everything

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PEKIN, May 7. — There is good reason to believe that China is prepared to concede everything demanded by Japan, realizing that the situation is hopeless. This possible outcome to the present tense situation is not generally comprehended in Pekin, consequently a number of foreign residents as well as Chinese themselves are today packing their personal belongings and otherwise preparing for eventualities.

TOKIO, May 7. — The Japanese foreign office has informed the Associated Press correspondent that Eki Hioki, minister to China, has been given instructions by telegraph regarding the presentation, "presumably Friday," of Japan's ultimatum to China. If the demands of China are not accepted within the time limit, the Japanese minister, Eki Hioki, will leave Pekin.

PEKIN, May 7. — Eki Hioki, Japanese minister to China, went to the Chinese Foreign Office this afternoon and presented the Japanese ultimatum, which insists that China accede to the demands presented by the Tokio government.

PROHIBIT MANUFACTURE OF STRONG DRINKS.

PARIS, May 7. — The Petit Parisien says the French Government will introduce a bill prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating and all alcoholic drinks during the war.

LONDON, May 7. — The British steamer Centurion was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Irish coast yesterday. The crew were saved.

PASSENGERS ARE REPORTED SAVED

Liner Remained Afloat for Twelve Hours After Being Hit by Torpedo

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 7. — The Cunard liner Lusitania was sunk off Oldhead, Kinsale, by a torpedo. Assistance has been sent her. She sailed from New York last Saturday with thirteen hundred passengers and was due in Liverpool today.

This confirms a statement by the Cunard Steamship Co., which announced today that it received from its agents in England an unconfirmed report that the Lusitania had been torpedoed off the coast of Ireland.

LONDON, May 7. — The Lusitania sank at 2:30 this afternoon.

NEW YORK, May 7. — If reports are true that the Lusitania was torpedoed at two o'clock this morning and did not go down until half-past two this afternoon, she was afloat for more than twelve hours, which undoubtedly gave opportunity for the removal of passengers. It is not known just how far she was from shore when she was struck.

PASSENGERS AND CREW REPORTED SAFE.

NEW YORK, May 7. — Dow and Jones' ticker service, in a report from London, declares the Lusitania was beached and the passengers and crew, according to Lloyds, were saved.

LIVERPOOL, May 7. — Wireless reports distress calls made by the Lusitania as follows: "Come at once. Big list. Position ten miles west Kinsale."

WASHINGTON, May 7. — News of the torpedoing of the Lusitania struck official Washington like a bomb. While disposed to await full details before expressing opinions, all administration officials realized that the incident was the most serious Washington has faced since the beginning of the war.

NEW YORK, May 7. — Confirmation of the sinking of the Lusitania was received in a despatch dated Queenstown 4:59 p.m. today and reading as follows: "Oldhead, Kinsale.—About twenty boats belonging to the Lusitania are in the vicinity where she sank. About fifteen boats are making for the spot for rescue work."

The steamer Lusitania was of 32,000 tonnage, quadruple screw, and was 792 feet long with a breadth of 62 feet. She had accommodation for five hundred first-class passengers, five hundred second-class, and one thousand third-class. She was placed in commission about nine years ago.

She sailed from New York on May 1st, and was due in Liverpool today. Since the outbreak of war she was the only steamship of the larger class operated by the line. She carried a crew of about eight hundred, and was a finely equipped vessel throughout.

The Lusitania is the first big vessel lost by the company.

UNION LABEL

HAS HIS EYE ON AFFAIRS.

HON. W. J. HANNA is not going to let the new Provincial License Commission get into any tangles at the beginning of its term of office. Five tavern and one shop license granted by retiring local license boards have been vetoed by Hon. W. J. Hanna under the authority retained by the legislation of last session. The Provincial License Commissioners sworn in the other day started in upon consideration of the licenses recommended by the local boards, but the Provincial Secretary, acting upon his own initiative, relieved them of the necessity of dealing with the six licenses referred to. In each instance the case against the license was a convincing one. Three were new licenses and were vetoed because they conflicted with the policy of not issuing new licenses, and the other three were stopped as penalties upon the licenses.

This is the right policy. Undoubtedly the new officers would not be so familiar with the details of the matters coming before them as the Provincial Secretary, and, by acting in this manner, Mr. Hanna got rid of a problem that might have been bungled.

So long as liquor licenses are issued, the holders should be made to keep the law. When the case is against the license, the new Provincial Commission would be justified in cutting it off, because lawbreakers, even after a warning, find it difficult to respect the law. However, Mr. Hanna has his eye on affairs, and will not allow the new Commission to get into difficulties if they can be avoided.

LIVING UP TO TRADITION.

WHATEVER may be said of the nobility and of the wealthy people of Britain in times of peace, the present war has shown that they are measuring up to the highest traditions of the Empire. The sacrifice of men of this class has been a notable feature of the war, and the offering for service of men of the first rank has been a fine example to the Empire. Writing of the death in action of Lt. W. G. C. Gladstone, grandson of the great statesman, Lord Bryce says:

> "Of all the infinitely sad things in this war, none is sadder than the loss of so many youthful heirs of unfulfilled renown, men whose intellectual gifts and nobility of character would have made them a source of strength to the country in years to come, maintaining its best traditions."

Lieut. Gladstone was an Oxford graduate and had travelled all over India studying the problems of that country. He was attached to the British embassy at Washington in 1911, and travelled extensively in the United States, studying its politics. He was one of many brilliant young men who have given their lives for the British cause.

PROGRESS IN SPITE OF KULTUR.

IN THE DAYS of Pitt and Fox, the five-bottle roarers occasioned the expression "Drunk as a lord." A hundred years of progress have brought us to the present soft drink and ice-cream soda times, when the expression is, "Sober as a king." After all, the world refuses to stand still, even though everybody outside of Germany has been deprived of Kultur.

AT PEACE WITH OUR NEIGHBOUR

SOME jingoes in the country — fortunately insignificant in number — have an idea that patriotism means the baiting of the United States, says the Canadian Municipal Journal. We would advise these fire-eaters to study British diplomacy towards the Great Republic for the last hundred years, and learn a lesson from its pacification. Canada, by her splendid part in this awful war, has won her place with her sister nations to settle the peace terms. This new position has given her a bigger responsibility which will not allow jingoism to mar the happy relations of the two countries that run side by [illegible] a military post.

When our citizen soldiers come back from the realization of the awful price of war and compare the serenity of the northern part of this continent with the volcanic cock-pit of Europe, they will say "STOP" to those who, by cheap flaunting, would embroil this Canada of ours with the kindred people to the south of us—and they would have the right—and bless those who, like Mr. Lighthall, would keep the peace with dignity to the Empire and Canada.

LITERATURE AND WAR.

A RECENT ISSUE of the Manchester Guardian, an English newspaper, had an entertaining article which, mutatis mutandis, as our terrible lawyers say, will, no doubt, be applicable to a certain extent in this country, says the Montreal Mail.

It appears that the editor of the Book Monthly had prevailed upon a number of English authors to express their opinion in regard to the probable effect of the war on the future of literature. To begin with, the length of the replies received appears to have been in inverse ratio to the literary importance of the men who wrote them, but there is nothing surprising about that.

Summarizing the opinions expressed in the Book Monthly, we find that Mr. H. G. Wells, apparently, because the wish is father to the thought, hopes that the war "will kill the six-shilling novel business and oblige publishers to be more intelligent." Sir William Robertson Nicoll thinks there will be a great literature on the reconstruction of society, while Eden Phillpotts believes the war will discourage the psychological hair-splitting which was formerly such a feature in English literature. Mr. W. J. Locke, a writer who is well known on this side of the water, thinks the war will put an end to what he calls morbid psychology in literature, while Mr. W. L. George thinks there will be more need than ever of psychology, morbid or otherwise.

After this summary the reader begins to realize that the various writers quoted believe, or say they believe, that the effect of the war will be to increase the demand for their particular class of writing, or, as the Guardian amusingly describes it, they are taking time by the forelock in an endeavour to convince that "Codlin is the friend, not Short." This, of course, is merely another illustration of the fact that human nature will "out" wherever human beings are concerned. At the same time, it is not well that the writers of a great nation should consciously or otherwise adopt the publicity methods of a patent pill manufacturer in order to force their wares upon the public. It must in fairness be admitted that the spirit of these literary men is probably only the reflection of the spirit of the age.

PRESERVING THE RECORDS.

ONE OF the most impressive pictures of the war are the pages of the English illustrated newspapers devoted to the portraits of British officers who have given up their lives for their country. These must always be great records of the present war, showing as they do what Britain was willing to sacrifice for the principles that necessitated her entrance in the conflict.

Already Canada has decided to participate in the struggle to the limit of her resources. Already Canadian troops have distinguished themselves brilliantly in the desperate fighting around Ypres, and many a Canadian hero will sleep his last long sleep beneath the sod of Belgium or of Northern France. There should be published in Canada pages similar to those of the illustrated English weeklies, so that Canada would have a comprehensive and impressive record of her heroes in this great war.

The current issue of the Canadian Courier shows an ffort in this direction, and it should be encouraged. When the war is over, the great tradition of this war will be in the men who died in action. That is why some attempt ought to be made to preserve the record and why the Courier should be encouraged.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

CONGRATULATIONS are due the Montreal Journal of Commerce on the completion of its first year as a daily newspaper. As a weekly financial journal, it was before the people for many years, but under the direction of the Hon. W. S. Fielding, it was turned into a financial daily a year ago. Although its first year as a daily has had to encounter the conditions occasioned by a war, it has maintained its standing and continued to disseminate in an able manner the news pertaining particularly to the business world.

THE LONDON TIMES of April 21st has a long article on "Canadian Aid for Wounded." It pays a fine tribute to the Canadian Red Cross Society, the Clivedon Hospital, and the Intelligence Bureau. Canada has done much in raising men to fight, and will do more. She has also done a great work in providing for wounded, and we are glad the people of Britain recognize and appreciate Canada's efforts.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

No Pact With an Outlaw.

(Montreal Herald.)

Some of the Berlin papers say that the one thing which they hope to achieve above all others is a permanent peace, and that the only way in which a permanent peace can be assured is to come to a permanent agreement with the power which Germany is now teaching her school children to hate. As usual, no account is taken of any other view but the German one. Germany forgets how intense is the disgust and repugnance of the British people towards a nation which can act with such brutal savagery as the Germans are acting. She forgets that by her fiendish cruelty and her calculated violations of every law of God and man the German nation has become in the eyes of the world a nation of moral lepers. Britain and Germany join forces "to preserve the peace of the world!" The only way which permanent peace can be secured is to make it impossible for Germany again to break the peace. And that will not be by Britain grasping in friendship the hand which every day is becoming dyed a deeper crimson with the blood of brave men and innocents foully murdered.

Will There Be an Election?

(Ottawa Le Temps.)

For nearly a year, all the editors and all the speakers of the Liberal party, in the newspapers and on the platform as well as in the House of Commons, have defied the party in power to appeal to the people. Every indication today is that the Government is prepared to accept the challenge. And now the Opposition cry that this would be a scandal. But if there is any scandal at all it is to be found in the Liberal defiances so often repeated. The Liberals must swallow the pill that they have prepared for several months.

Canadian Heroes.

(Le Progres Ouvrier.)

The Canadian soldiers who are fighting in Belgium have fulfilled the magnificent task of placing our country among the great nations, careful of their honour, jealous of liberty, and now in France, in Belgium, in England and even in Germany they will know the Canadian race, with all her resources of endurance, loyalty, courage and energy.

Sir Charles Tupper the Right Sort.

(Montreal Mail.)

Sir Charles Tupper has sent another generous donation to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, with a characteristic message. The old political fighter has the kind of heart needed for a conflict like this one.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Southeast winds with rain today. Saturday, fresh westerly winds, mostly fair and moderately warm.

"Hesitate" to Win

Italy May Stay Out of War Following Austrian Concessions

Paris, May 7—Despatches from Rome indicate that the crisis is not yet at hand in the Austro-Italian negotiations and that there is still a possibility of Italy's continued neutrality. An important communication from Vienna is on its way to Rome, and it is rumored that Austria may make sufficient compensation to appease the demands of Italy.

Britain Seizes Cotton

Many American Cargoes Will be Purchased in British Ports

Washington, May 7—Secretary of State Bryan has been informed by the British foreign office that Great Britain proposes to buy portions of cotton cargoes on vessels now detained in British ports. This is under the recent cotton agreement and affects many large cargoes.

Nothing Stops Botha

Cape Town, May 7—It is announced officially: "General Botha has occupied the important railway junction of Karibib and other stations (German Southwest Africa). Seven locomotives were taken.

"The town was occupied after a forced march of 35 miles over a waterless waste, under conditions of heat, thirst and hunger which called for the greatest resolution and grit."

Premier Hearst Better

Toronto, May 7—"Premier Hearst's condition is very satisfactory," was the encouraging report given by Dr. Adma Wright, the Premier's physician, late last night. "So far as we can tell," the doctor continued, "all the danger symptoms have disappeared."

Hon. W. H. Hearst is suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

This is Bugler Banks of the 45th Regiment, who enlisted in Lindsay when the call for recruits for the First Contingent was sent out. He has been a resident of Omemee for twelve years, and was attached to D Company of the 45th Regiment.

BOWMANVILLE, May 7. — The casualties from the front include the names of two of this town's well-known and popular citizens. One is Lance-Sergeant Charles Romans, of the firm of Culley & Romans, building contractors. He enlisted for overseas service with the 46th Durham Regiment, and is a member of "H." Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Brigade.

The other Bowmanvillian reported wounded is Pte. Daniel Maldock Douglass, who is a member of the Bowmanville Foundry Company's staff. He is a splendid singer, and is a leading member of the Methodist Church choir in this town.

Mr. W. J. Jones, retired banker, received word yesterday from Major W. Beattie, Chaplain of the 2nd Battalion, that his son, Lieut. R. W. Fisher Jones of the 3rd, Prince of Wales' Dragoons, now with the 2nd Battalion in France, is safe and well.

The following resolution was passed at a recent meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment:

The officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th Regiment, "Peterborough Rangers," in attempting to give expression to their heartfelt sympathy with near relatives of the late Major G. W. Bennett wish also to place on record some expression of their respect and esteem for their gallant comrade and leader and of their appreciation of his valued services as an officer and citizen soldier.

The many useful years he spent in the ranks and in commands have closely identified him with the success of the regiment—its interests and activities, and it is fully realized that that success was in no small measure due to his ability, zeal and fidelity. He ever typified the exemplary soldier in his commanding personality and in the efficient manner in which he so thoroughly discharged his manifold duties.

His fellow-officers and men mourn his loss but glory in the ready response he made to duty's call, and in that heroic courage with which on the 23rd of April last he laid down his life on the battlefield of Langemarck.

Henry C. Frick has purchased Holbein's picture of Thomas Cromwell for $200,000 for his New York residence.

IF ROOSEVELT WERE PRESIDENT

A Paris Interview Said He Would Have Rushed to Help Allies

Syracuse, N.Y., May 7—Theodore Roosevelt last night followed the example of President Wilson by repudiating an alleged interview attributed to him by Gabriel Alphaud in the Paris Temps in which the Colonel was represented as saying that had he been President of the United States at the beginning of the European war he would have protested the German violation of Belgium's neutrality and would have asked the United States to take its place with the allies.

Cares For 50 War Babies

London, May 7—If her fond hopes are realized Mrs. Pankhurst is about to become a mother to 50 war babies, according to interviews published this morning. Her only desire now is to take care of as many war babies as possible and prove by example the injustice of existing laws governing illegitimacy in England.

Rome Blames Germans

London, May 7—A despatch from Rome says: "A mysterious explosion occurred yesterday in the government powder factory at Fonta Naliri, a portion of the works being destroyed. Ten workmen were killed and 30 others seriously injured. It is suspected that the explosion was caused by German emissaries."

American Fears Germany

New York, May 7—M. P. Cushman, a mechanical engineer of San Diego, Cal., returned to-day from a sixteen months' visit in Germany, fully convinced that Germany has her eyes on a conquest of America.

Paris, May 7—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has forbidden her husband to continue his automobile rides across the frontier with the object of dining German officers, says the Cri de Paris, the visits constituting a breach of Holland's neutrality.

Sarnia, May 7—John Goodison, founder of the Goodison Machine Works died last night at his home here after a few minutes' illness. He was 65 years old.

St. Paul's Church clock chimes at Paterson were stilled for the first time in years at the request of Billy Sunday.

New York will have public golf courses on a 450-acre tract on Long Island.

GRITTING THE TEETH.

Pressure the Operation Exerts and the Damage It May Do.

"Probably you don't know that there is a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch on the teeth when the average citizen grits his molars together at a ball game or because rent day comes so often," said a dentist. "The pressure may be less or it may be greater, but 250 pounds is the average.

"And think of the damage that may be done. One of my customers cracked off a porcelain tooth in his sleep one night when he crunched his teeth together, probably dreaming about a business deal. What did he do? He came around the next day and told me I was an all around no good dentist and that the tooth which I had put in a short time before was a fake.

"I told him all about the 250 pounds pressure and that probably no artificial tooth would stand such a strain. But I don't think he believed a word of it, because he went away angry, and I have not seen him since. I have figured out that that particular tooth was a rather artistic piece of work too."—New York Sun.

FROZEN FOODS

Meat will stay fresh if kept at a temperature of 32 degrees F. Not so fish. Putrefaction is due to two causes—micro-organisms, which are present everywhere, and certain ferments normally contained in the flesh, which cause changes in composition and flavor. A temperature of 32 degrees checks the action of the former, but has little effect upon the latter. In the case of meat this has merely a "ripening" effect that improves the flavor and does no harm, but in the case of fish it makes the flesh taste disagreeable, although it may not be unwholesome.

This is why fish that is not marketed perfectly fresh is frozen. In practice 25 degrees F. is regarded as the proper temperature for storing frozen fish. Oysters should not be frozen, and it is held that they may be kept six weeks at a temperature of 40 degrees. [illegible] United States department of agriculture speaks as follows of the possible dangers from eating fish:

"The formation of ptomaines quite generally, although not always, accompanies putrefaction (being greatest, it is said in its early stages), and therefore great care should be taken to eat fish only when it is in perfect condition. Fish which has been frozen and, after thawing, kept for a time before it is cooked is especially likely to contain injurious ptomaines.

"In general it may be said that fish should be considered unfit for food when the eyes have lost their sheen, the cornea is somewhat cloudy, the gills pale red, when blubber shows at the gills, when the scales are dry or easily loosened or when the meat is so soft that if pressed with the finger the indentation remains. Laying fish in water has been recommended as a means of judging of their condition. Those which sink may be considered undecomposed and wholesome, while those which are decomposing will float."

The New Style in Collars

The tall collar has come back. In its various forms it is seen on new gowns and in fine neckwear. While high, it is cut on lines that will not inconvenience you or spoil the appearance of your neck, provided, of course, you choose the right kind of collar. The correct collar is only tall across the nape of the neck. Behind the ears, not under them, nor a hair's breadth in front of them, it stops short, and about the throat goes a band which is scarcely more than a finish for the neck of the blouse or frock. The built up portion of the collar must be very ornamental, of white satin, top bordered with an entre deux in black and white or with an edging like that used elsewhere on the costume.

GOWN WITH HIGH COLLAR.

A collar of this kind on the chiffon bodice of a striped silk frock has an entire back of the sheer fabric and only a layer of chiffon to cover the lower half of the throat. It has a tie, of course, but that tie does not add bulk to the throat by forming a bow under the chin. Instead, it floats loosely to the hips and aids in making the face look oval.

Black satin ribbon ties give a false appearance of height to a certain type of collar which is good in either white satin or pique. The foundation, encircling the neck evenly, is divided from the top downward by the black ribbon, which across the back is covered by a wide flap and flares outward. Under the ears it tapers into tabs, which lie flat against the tie. At times the necktie is omitted, and wisely so, too, if the face is a bit too plump.

A collar of stiffened net, whose turnover of net lace joins beneath the chin under a spray of tiniest flowers and then spreads itself into triangular ends, is very distinctive. It looks tall all round, but in reality it is enough depressed in front to be becoming to a full chin.

At last something to suit the thin woman has been designed. Her first choice is the black satin crush stock, upbuilt with white. It surmounts a chemisette, and the two fasten invisibly thereby differing from rival models, closing—or pretending to close—with tiniest buttons.

The striking afternoon gown of black pussy willow taffeta which is illustrated above shows a fetching development of the high collar. The costume is made with a vest and sleeves of black and white striped taffeta. The collar, which is comparatively low in the front, is quite high in the back. Gowns with collars of the material are shown by many leading designers. The wide belt and the flaring lines of the skirt mark its extreme modernness though suggesting styles of long ago.

Sanitary Workbag.

The sanitary workbag, made from guest towels, is the very latest. These little bags are very pretty indeed.

Double the towel so that the ends come together and seam the two sides so as to form the bag. Double, with the right side of the towel in. When the seams at the sides are made the bag is turned with the right side out and the seams in.

Buttonholes or eyelets are made all about the top of the bag, and through these is run a double drawstring ribbon.

Good Form

Novel Evening Party.

A family of fun loving girls recently gave an amusing entertainment. It was called a nose and goggle party. Each guest wore a false nose and goggles. The noses were purchased or made of heavy cardboard covered with chamois and were not removed until after refreshments were served.

As the guests arrived each was given a card perforated with ribbon run through in order to wear the card around the neck so that every one could see it.

The cards had on one side a number by which each guest was known, on the other side a list of figures—1, 2, 3, etc. (as many figures as there were guests)—with a space opposite each figure for a name.

In the course of the evening each person guessed who the others were. Of course, with intimate friends the familiar voices revealed the personality. In many cases if the voice was disguised this was not easily done, and much amusement and many absurd guesses were made.

As each guess was made the name was placed opposite the number on the card of the guesser corresponding to the number of the person whom he or she was trying to identify. For instance, if some one thought he knew No. 4 he turned his card and wrote the name opposite No. 4, etc. It was voted by all who were present as a most original and amusing way of spending an evening.

Take Off Your Hats, Ladies.

While in these days an audience of women knows hats should be removed when they are likely to obstruct the view of those sitting in the rear, occasionally there is some one who either forgets or is regardless of the rights of others. Then it becomes the unpleasant duty of ushers, perhaps solicited to act as such only for the occasion, to notify the women who have forgotten. Often—too often, indeed—the request is met with an air of haughty disdain and a distinct refusal.

Always in these cases the ugly note should be avoided, and the saner, pleasanter method of the request in a conciliatory tone will be the more likely to receive prompt and polite response. Sometimes a woman of tact sitting behind an offender, may accomplish the end by saying in a soft voice and with great courtesy, "Madam, I am so sorry to inconvenience you, but I cannot see the stage and am going to ask you as a great kindness to remove your hat."

Of course, any one can call an attendant and turn the unpleasant job over to him. But this is not always practicable. There may be crowded seats, where it is difficult for him to make his way to the offender's side and a commotion results.

If the wearer of the hat is a woman of good manners and breeding, but has simply forgotten, she will make an excellent reputation for graciousness by instantly removing the hat, turning slightly and saying, "I am so sorry I have inconvenienced you and hope you will pardon me."

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. Yorke, at Bellrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 15 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 15 years with my Kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulders and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a rod or more, the pain was so great. A neighbor advised me to take GIN PILLS. I did so and six boxes cured me. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My back is all right; no pains and no more backache. I thank GIN PILLS for it all—they are worth their weight in gold." D. A. YORKE.

BISHOP OF LINCOLN PRAISES ATHLETICS

"Thank God for our English games! They have taught us how to be good-tempered in defeat, generous in victory; they have taught us how to play the game.

"I am of opinion that the warfare of the football and the cricket field has to a very large extent proved the equivalent of the discipline of war, and a training ground for the exercise of the noblest qualities that make manly men."

This is not an extract from a letter from the front though there have been many closely resembling it. It is a statement made in the course of an address recently given by the Bishop of Lincoln at Bow Church, London.

Thunderer Warns Japan

London, May 7—The Times in an editorial says: "We believe Japan will be hardly less ill advised than China were she to permit matters even now to proceed to extremities. Nothing could prejudice the nations more than the suspicion that while most of them were involved in a life and death struggle she had seized the occasion to press private interests to their hurt."

Pekin, May 7—A general exodus of Japanese is about to take place. The consular of rs sent out by Japan have resulted in a general flight from Mukden, say despatches from there. The Japanese barracks at Hankow has been prepared for a siege an many Japanese have left the city.

AUSTRALIANS WIN GLORY

Reckless Charges Gain Ten Miles Advance Against Turks

Lemnos, since May 7—Fighting on the Gallipoli Peninsula has been of the fiercest possible character with the net result that the allied troops have spanned the Peninsula along the line of trenches some ten miles from its tip. Further northeast they have dug themselves in near the sea at a number of other points. They have also forced their way six or eight miles inland and attacked the Turkish fortresses. These operations have been costly for the ground is extremely difficult and the Turks are employing the yest German trained and led troops.

The Australian troops displayed extraordinary daring. At one spot two companies leaped from the boats without waiting to get into formation and stormed the trenches 300 yards away in the face of a scathing fire. The Irish and Welsh troops, working in concord on a coast swept by shrapnel and picked off by sharpshooters as they sprang ashore, gradually beat back the Turks.

The fighting throughout resembles closely the more sanguinary encounters of the South African campaign. Hill after hill had to be taken at the point of the bayonet under a sniping fire and the artillery positions are most difficult to locate.

The Australians and New Zealanders have shown themselves splendidly fitted for this kind of fighting. The difficulty has been to curb them.

Extraordinarily fine work has been done by the battleship Queen Elizabeth. With the very first shot she fired at the commencement of the land operations she wiped out two companies of Turks.

Failure of German Campaign of Last Fortnight Asserted

Paris, May 7—A report by the official observer with the French army issued yesterday evening says: "The Germans y sustained a complete check with terrible losses as a result of their offensive of the past fortnight which was undertaken for transparent political reasons. Our losses were small, poisonous gases alone causing the death or capture of our men. We have suffered no tactical check, the rapidity of our counter-strokes stopping the enemy's progress on the left bank of the Yser Canal and regaining our lost ground. We inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy."

Canadians Get Holiday

Bryan's Statement on Present Crisis Insists on Open Door

Washington, May 7—Secretary Bryan last night made a statement on the position of the position of the United States in the China-Japan troubles as follows: "This government has not only had no thought of surrendering any of its treaty rights with China, but it has never been asked by either Japan or China to make any surrender of these rights. There is no abatement of its interest in the welfare and progress of China."

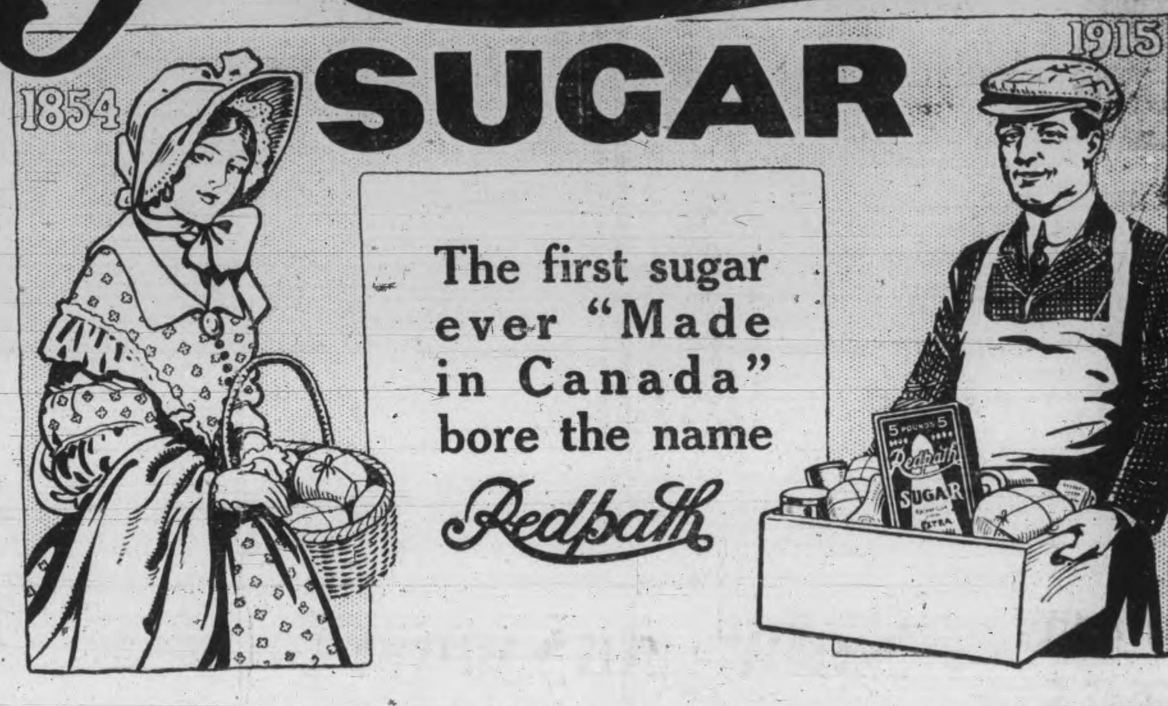
1854 SUGAR 1915



The first sugar ever "Made in Canada" bore the name Redpath

That was Sixty Years ago, when John Redpath started Canada's first Sugar Refinery on the banks of the Lachine Canal, in what was then a field outside Montreal.

Not content with introducing the industry itself, the Redpath Refinery has been the first to adopt the successive improvements in refining and marketing, such as Redpath Granulated Sugar in 1880, and the modern Sealed Cartons in 1912.

This unique combination of experienced skill and keen progressiveness, with a fixed determination to turn out only the best, has kept Redpath Sugar always in the lead, and has established it firmly as Canada's favorite.

JUDGMENT FOR HARRY BICKELL

Plaintiff Wins in Suit for Damages to Buggy

The action brought by Mr. Harry Bickell and his wife of Smith Township against John Murphy for damages to his buggy and injury to his little girl as a result of a collision with Mr. Murphy's automobile on the Smith Township road on the evening of April 16th, was tried before his honor Judge Huycke and a jury at Lakefield on Tuesday. The town hall at the northern village was crowded throughout the day and espesially in the evening when the addresses to the jury were being made. Both Mr. Kerr on behalf of the defendant and Mr. O. A. Langley on behalf of the plaintiff made earnest and eloquent appeals to the jury on behalf of their respective clients. It appears that Mr. Bickell and his wife with two children were driving home to their farm about 9 o'clock in the evening when Mr. Murphy was coming towards the village with his car, in which besides himself were five other persons. When at the foot of the Amys Hill on the Smith Township road, the vehicles collided and considerable damage was done to Mr. Bickell's buggy and his youngest daughter was thrown forward over the dash-board and received bruises, which kept her home from school for over a week. After a clear explanation of the law from his Honor Judge Huycke, the jury brought in a verdict with one-half hour's deliberation in favor of the plaintiff for $25.00.

ACTIONS IN THE DIVISION COURT

In the case of Harvey against Lilico in Division Court today, in which Harvey was claiming $56.25, judgment was given for $6.25 on the grounds that whilst it was contended by the defence he was paying under agreement monthly there was no mention of it in the agreement and therefore it was said by the judge to accrue from day to day as it would in that case have been paid and not be due in the future, the judge contended it should have been paid. He also said Harvey was not dismissed but left of his own accord.

The second case was that of Ambrose Keane vs. Thomas Nelson, both of Otonabee.

The plaintiff's claim against the defendant was for work done, goods sold and delivered and damages for breach of contract contained in a lease. The following were the particulars:—

Damages to fences in removing 500 or more rails, $25.00. Damages for removal of 200 feet of silo timber left on demised premises, $3.40. Damages for removal of gate $2.50. Damages for removal of boards from the granary and from the roof of the pig pen and from the barn off the demised premises, $15.00. Damages for removal of new timber left after construction of the silo and referred to in the said lease $3.00. Damages for destruction of 10 lights of glass in the house on the premises 80 cents. Damages for destruction of a window in granary $2.50. Damages for breach of covenant to seed down ten acres of the demised premises in each year, being damages for neglect to seed down 5 acres of the 10 acres covenanted to be seeded down during the years 1913 and 1914 $40.00. Total, $116.50, less abandoned excess over $100.

According to the defence the only work done by the plaintiff was in connection with drawing peas for 2½ days at $2.00 a day for which the plaintiff would be entitled to $5.00.

The defendant claimed not to be liable for the rails and he removed them to repair fences on other sections of the premises. He also claimed that he removed only 90 feet of silo timber, the value of which was $2.70. Defence denied removing the gate and boards off granary but did remove some boards from the pig pen to repair the premises elsewhere. The defence denied breaking the windows.

The defendant also had a counter claim of $31.30.

Judgment by consent was allowed, plaintiff agreeing to accept $20.

SOUTH CENTRAL CADETS

The annual inspection of South Central Cadet Corps took place yesterday afternoon before Major Gillespie of Kingston. The cadets, in charge of Company Commander Allan Stevenson and sub-alterns. Frank Fuller and Walter Bailey, presented a neat soldiery appearance in all their manoeuvres and won in their march past a hearty applause from the spectators. Major Gillespie congratulated the boys on their drill and discipline and wished the boys success in the corps. Great credit is due Drill Instructor Munro for the efficient standing of the boys at their first inspection. The Board of Education was represented by Messrs. Crane, Eastwood, Denne, Miller and City Inspector Mowat, all of whom expressed appreciation of the work.

One on Father.

"Mamma, what is an annakissed?" asked little Eleanor.

"You mean anarchist, dearie," replied mamma. "An anarchist is one of those naughty persons who make bombs that kill innocent people."

"And is that what Anna is?" persisted little Eleanor.

"Why, no, dearie! Anna is just our maid. What put such silly notions into your head?" asked the doting mother.

"Well, I heard papa say to Anna last night, after he had kissed her in the hall, 'Now, you're my little Annakissed!'"

MEMORY OF FALLEN HEROES HONORED

Citizens Gather in George Street Methodist Church to Pay Tribute to the Dead and Wounded

"Canada mourns today. Her head is bowed, but her heart is proud. We do not mourn as those without hope. Canada has more of a meaning in it." These words, expressing so well the sentiments of all the sons and daughters of the Empire living in this fair Dominion, were uttered last evening by Rev. R. G. Peever, B. D., pastor of the George Street Methodist Church at the memorial service in honor of the men from Peterborough who have fallen for the cause of liberty and righteousness, on the blood-stained battle fields of Europe. Rev. Mr. Peever's words were by way of introduction to the service. He spoke of the appropriateness of such a service and such an occasion in connection with the brave soldiers who have fallen. He recalled the words of a celebrated Grecian writer, "Greece shall cease to be great when she shall cease to remember her dead." So the brave deeds and heroism of the past becomes the soul food of the present generation with inspirations to similar deeds and greater achievements. Canada mourns today. Her head is bowed but her heart is proud. We do not mourn as those without hope. Canada has more of a meaning in it. We have entered into the experiences of the Motherland as never before. It is quite true what Dr. Falconer said, "That which our brave soldiers have died to save, we should live to maintain," and as Canon Cody remarked in Toronto on Wednesday, "Though the cup of sorrow is pressed to our lips we shall drink it with calm courage, with endurance and with triumph."

The large edifice was almost filled to capacity by citizens of every denomination to do honor to the fallen heroes and to show deepest sympathy for the afflicted families. Disraeli once said, "The sympathy of sorrow is stronger than the sympathy of prosperity." The warm heartedness of the large gathering, the manner in which the contagion of devotion and earnestness swept over it proved the wisdom of the words of the Earl of Beaconsfield. There was a feeling deep in the hearts of all that cannot be described while Rev. Canon Davidson, in true military voice, read out the list of killed, wounded and prisoners from Peterborough's quota. To each, the list had personal interest and although steeped in sorrow, as Rev. Mr. Peever had remarked, their hearts were proud. The greatness of the heroes confronted many of the listeners for perhaps the first time. All realized that "a noble life, crowned with heroic death, rises above and outlives the pride and pomp and glory of the mightiest empire of the earth."

Rev. Jas. Rollins.

The principle speakers of the evening were Rev. James Rollins of St. Andrew's Church and Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray Baptist Church. The former spoke of the feeling of citizens of Peterborough at the present time. There is sympathy for the families of those who have fallen and praise for the men who made the supreme sacrifice and laid their lives on the altar of need of their country. There is also the great praise for the father, the mother, the sister, and the wife who said to them, "Go in the hour when your country calls."

Mr. Rollins made reference to the fact that Canadians have the inheritance of those who do their duty. We are not of the breed of those who desert their task. This is the day when all sanctities are trodden under foot by armed men, on land and on sea. The sanctity of childhood, of womanhood, of old age and of the wounded is ruthlessly trampled upon by German militarism. They have trampled upon our liberty and we must be free. Free, to keep our pledged word; free, to defend our institutions and friends. These are days when men of peaceful pursuits in life are called upon to take up arms. The Empire has given Canada her chance and Canada has answered. Her answer is the first, second, third and fourth contingents. Bennett, Rogers and a hundred thousand others is the reply and the end is not yet.

The speaker remarked how all do not interpret the feelings of the men in the same manner. Some think the idea is revenge, others think it is a lofty ethical conception but for him it was simply the desire to be associated with these brave men to share with them the comradeship of danger and [illegible] able to answer all the demand in enlistment and the demands of the future will be answered with even more readiness than those of the past.

Rev. J. R. Webb.

Rev. Mr. Webb opened his remarks with reference to the quotation of a stateman who heard what his fellow man did not hear and saw what his fellow man did not see. His words were: "God's policy with nations is to lure them into the wilderness that he might speak comforting words to them." Taking up that thought the speaker pointed out how amid all the sorrow and glory one can and should hear the comforting voice of the ever present God. Peterborough has been smitten, the city has been wounded, the crepe is on the door yet the comforting voice of God is with us.

God speaks comforting words to us when he reminds us that we are no longer a mere colony but rather a part of the great British Empire. The eldest child of the Empire is of age. The mother delights to take her son into counsel. Britain expects the men of Canada to do their duty and they will, with determination, until despotism is dead. The speaker likened the British Empire to a family. Son and daughters are far apart but when the news that a parent is dangerously ill is sent out, all gather to the bedside in an effort to pay part of their great debt. The rich and poor, the Prince of Wales and the scavenger all stand together welded into one invincible unit because they are conscious of the righteousness of their cause, the lifting up of the fallen and saving even Germany from herself.

Rev. Mr. Webb quoted the inspiring words of Lowell:—

Once to every man and nation, comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side.
Some Great cause, God's new Messiah, offering each the bloom of blight,
Parts the goats upon the left hand and the sheep upon the right,
And the choice goes by forever, twixt that darkness and that light.

The 57th Regiment accompanied by the band was in attendance as were several volunteers home on furlough. The other clergymen assisting were Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, Knox Church; Rev. R. B. Grobb, All Saints; Rev. W. H. White, St. Lukes, and Rev. James Clarry of St. James. Rev. J. P. Wilson, Charlotte Street, and Rev. E. E. Johnson, Bethany Tabernacle, were unavoidably absent while Rev. L. Philps, Mark Street, and Rev. R. Pogue, St. Paul's, were absent through illness.

EXCELLENT WORK BY ORCHESTRA OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Youthful Musicians Delight Large Audience at Conservatory Hall

Unmistakable appreciation of the Conservatory of Music children's orchestra was displayed last night by the splendid manner in which the public turned out to hear their concert given in the Conservatory. The large hall had very few vacant seats, despite counter attractions and unanimous endorsement of the program was shown by the liberal applause which greeted the efforts of the juvenile musicians. It is quite safe to remark at this juncture that perhaps no where in Ontario is there a more clever and well balanced juvenile orchestra than right here in Peterborough.

Under the leadership of Mr. R. Gliddon, and assisted by Miss E. Palmer and Miss L. Logan, the orchestra supplied an extremely classy program. Had not one the evidence of the eye to convince him of the juvenile diminutiveness of the performers, it would have been easy to believe the music was emanating from an adult organization with years of experience supplementing their playing. There was an utter absence of embarrassment or nervousness on the part of the youngsters, who impressed one as being eager to demonstrate just how well they could perform. The ages of the youngsters ranged from fifteen down, and in many cases the piano stool was too high to permit the youngsters' feet to touch the floor. Miss Isobel Baird was undeniably the most confident and able little pianist on the program, contributing all accompaniments with grace and ease. Her individual selection was also excellent. Little Miss Agnes Logan was also in the same class and drew a goodly share of the applause.

Master Jim Matthews' clarionet solo took the hall by storm, and for a lad so youthful he shows great promise.

The other artists who contributed were, Freddy Morrison, Ellsworth Deyell, W. Mowat, Jean Kidd, Otto Gliddon, Gladys Graham, Sam Swartz, D. Carmichael, Harold Lancashire, Edna Hewson, Paul Gliddon, Agnes Logan, Paul Gliddon, Isobel Baird and Otto Gliddon.

The accompanists were B. Mowat, Agnes Logan, Isobel Baird, Jean Elliott, Helen [illegible]

SOME HENS.

Miss Gladys Thorne has five hens of the White Wyandotte variety that she has kept tab of for twelve months and in that time they laid 955 eggs; four of the hens mothered 45 chicks for eight weeks, and then commenced to shell out again. That is osme record from December 26th, 1913, to December 26th, 1914. Taking from December 25th to May 1st, thirteen females have produced 850 eggs. It is wonderful how many eggs a small bunch of hens will produce when well cared for. Miss Thorne is proud of her performers, and well she might be, for she has some very profitable birds. — Bobcaygeon Independent.

One of Bad Gang Now in Custody

Man Who Held up Toronto Office Staff is Arrested

TORONTO, May 7. — Arthur Connolly, gunman, burglar and leader of the gang which several weeks ago entered the offices of the Sterling Actions and Keys, Limited, Noble St., and held up the office staff and robbed the company of $2100, has been arrested at Niagara-on-the-Lake. He will be brought back to Toronto today by Detective Twigg.

Besides holding up the Noble street company, Connolly is wanted on several other charges.

His companions in the Noble street robbery have only been heard from once, and that was near London, Ontario. They were in company with two women, and had stolen an automobile. They were chased in another auto, and after indulging in a revolver duel with their pursuers, they escaped across the country. They have not been heard from since.

In spite of the fact that Connolly got about $700 from the Noble street robbery, he was penniless when arrested. He was also unarmed, although he had a pocket full of cartridges. Connolly was out on parole when he began to terrorize the west end of the city. He had served six years of a ten-year sentence for robbery.

OPPORTUNITY OFFER IN CONTEST ENDS TO-MORROW

Salesmanship Applied to the Subscription Garnering Helps — Room for More Candidates in all Districts — Take Lead in Your Section it Means Much— Lower Votes Next Week

Everybody has heard the old saying, "Where there's a will, there's a way." The women who mean to win the Transcontinental tours offered by The Review not only realize the truth thereof, but are putting it into practice, and any women who will take the full meaning of this precept and will act on it cannot help but win.

A number of subscriptions are being overlooked each day because the candidates show timidity in approaching some men by reason of their standing in business circles. Your request for the subscriptions will be met with courtesy, at least. In the majority of cases the persons you approach will gladly help you. Do not be discouraged because some one in your district appears to have a greater number of votes than you have. Be determined.

As some may not understand that the contest is still open to any eligible lady who may wish to enter, The Review again calls attention to those who may be hesitating, that a fertile field still exists in different districts. No one has a lead that could not be overhauled. If you are still considering the advisability of such a procedure, act at once, for the earlier one starts the better it will be for her.

No matter how far behind you are, the race is still young, and you may easily catch the district leader. Perhaps your friends have not as quickly caught the spirit of the affair as the friends of others, but when they do your score will shoot skyward, too. Perhaps you have not asked friends to help you. If not, do so at once. Do not be afraid to ask for votes and subscriptions.

Be a leader in your district if you possibly can. The prestige such a position gives you arouses the interest of those who are watching your progress. Once you get your friends interested in your welfare, there is no end of surprising developments.

Notice to Contestants.

When turning in subscriptions it is positively necessary plainly to indicate whether the subscriptions are new or old. An old subscriber is one who is regularly receiving The Review by carriers, newsdealer or mail.

Opportunity Period.

Opportunity period will close Saturday night. Candidates should get every possible vote while the best offers are in effect. Next week the schedule will be much lower so do not fail to cash all your promises this week.

BRITISH REGAIN KEY TO CHANNEL PORTS

Berlin's Silence Confirms Importance of Certain Setback --- Great Issues in Balance in East

London, May 7—Berlin reports do not mention the fighting for Hill No. 60, the key to Calais and the Channel ports. Neither do they attempt to deny that the British forces, as reported by Sir John French, have regained at the point of the bayonet a number of the trenches at this point which were lost two days ago. The Germans, however, make large claims, both in the Ypres fighting, along the French front, and especially in the eastern arena.

Fighting in the Ypres neighborhood continues desperate, according to all reports.

Along the French front the Germans have not been able to make attacks worth noting during the past thirty-six hours. Last night's official bulletin from Paris merely says: "The day was calm. There is nothing to announce."

Official Berlin makes no comment upon the losses at Hill 60. German army headquarters said last night: "In the western theatre, over the whole of the front, artillery duels have occurred. We have made further progress near Ypres, taking Vanhelpe and another farm near the Ypres-Messines railway.

Berlin's Big Claim

"In an attack Wednesday on the Ailly wood we achieved our objective, forcing the enemy to evacuate their positions. Over 1,000 French- [illegible] were extremely heavy. The enemy attacked us north of Flirey and near the Croix-des-Carmes. North of Flirey they pushed forward as far as our trenches. At one point on the sector the fighting continues.

Vast Scale in East

London, May 7—From Bukowina to the Baltic the Germans and Austrians are attempting the greatest offensive movement of the war. Battling desperately the Russians in Western Galicia have fallen back to their second line of defensive positions.

Meanwhile, according to Vienna and Berlin, strong Russian forces in the Carpathians are menaced on the flank by a German army under Gen. Marwitz, co-operating with a strong Austro-Hungarian force.

Passes Threatened

Both Teuton capitals state that the Russians are being driven from Lupkow Pass. The Austro-Germans also have obtained, they claim, a strong foothold in the Dukla Pass, and are battling desperately to press their advantage.

Petrograd admits the retreat to the second line, but adds that the Berlin and Vienna reports are "greatly exaggerated."

Thousands Don't Matter

The hottest fight is proceeding in the region east of Tarnow and in the Carpathians. Day and night the Teutons and Muscovites are at death grips. During the Russian retreat in Western Galicia the Germans report that they and their allies have taken 40,000 prisoners. Vienna makes the number between 50,000 and 60,000.

Vienna, May 7—Last night's official: "At 4 o'clock this afternoon the last Russian position on the heights east of the Dunajec and the Biala rivers were gained by our troops. Tarnow was captured by us at 10 o'clock this morning."

Petrograd, May 7—The separate artillery engagements along the Dunajec are now merged into a great fierce infantry battle.

Noyes Warns States

Poet Respects America's Neutrality But Fears German Designs

New York, May 7—Declaring that Germany intends, if victorious, to smash the Monroe doctrine, Alfred Noyes, the noted British poet, addressed the Pilgrims yesterday. He [illegible] was published by a prominent firm in Germany, in which more than a score of places on the map of South America were designated as German colonies.

Mr. Noyes praised the neutrality of the United States as a real and dignified neutrality, and declared that it is thoroughly respected by Englishmen who understand.

Germans Lose 35,000

Paris, May 7—The Eye-witness asserts that German losses in the past fortnight in the Meuse fighting total 35,000 men.

New York, May 7—The National Woman Suffrage Association issued a call last night for conference to be held in June to discuss plans for the suffrage fight before the next congress.

Copenhagen, May 7—A telegram from Sweden says that four German cruisers and eight torpedo boats were observed last night heading east in the Baltic towards the Russian coast.

company for a swim in one of the artificial brooks in the park. They had a grand time. The water was a little cold but the sun was bright and warm and it did us a world of good. Our real test has not been made yet however and I may say that I have every confidence that we will make good when it does come. We will soon be called the flower of the British army and such a name is to be envied I assure you.

The Peterborough boys are in splendid trim and never felt better. I am very pleased with them and can assure you that they are quite up to the mark.

Good bye old boy, with kinds regards to Mrs. Rogers and yourself and do write me again. I will try and have more time when I get back from the trenches to write freely.

Yours,
G. W. BENNETT.

SPORTING NEWS

LOOK TO GOOD SEASON FOR CANADIAN LEAGUE

OTTAWA, May 7. — In two weeks' time the Canadian League will usher in its season. Six clubs toe the scratch this year, Toronto, Erie and Peterborough of the 1914 circuit being dropped and Guelph added. The league is more compact, and from a business standpoint should progress much more favorably than a year ago. The jump to Erie, which proved a poor town for visiting clubs, is eliminated, and the dropping of Toronto, where the smaller class league had little chance of competing with the International, removes another non-paying card for the travelling clubs. In addition the season has been set back two weeks, which will probably do away with the excess of postponed games caused by bad weather at this time of year. The league has been one of the best minors of its class in organized baseball, and there never has been a kick on the quality of ball supplied the fans. Many class it up with the International, and in point of contest it is quite the equal, though lacking perhaps in the same quality of pitching and team work developed through the presence of more experienced players.

It is apparent that the Canadian will be quite as fast if not faster this year than at any time since its inception. The number of high class players left on the market through the cutting of the major league clubs to twenty-one men and the Class AA clubs to sixteen. In past years the rosters of the big league organizations have varied from thirty to thirty-five men each and the International and American Association to twenty-six at least. This leaves myriads of capable men free and the higher class leagues are having the greatest difficulty placing the men they wish to keep strings attached to. Many of these players are coming to the Canadian. The league can take them at Class C salaries because they have no other place to go.

BOWLING CLUB AT MILLBROOK

Millbrook, May 7.—The Bowling Club met on Tuesday night, a very enthusiastic meeting being held. General business was attended to and the following skips were elected. Mr. J. C. Kells the president, was in the chair.

Skips—John Dawson, S. E. Eakins, R. Deyell, Rev. W. D. Lee, John Steele, M. Carry, G. W. Sayles, C. W. Richards.

At an early date vice-skips will be selected and the eight rinks formed. It was decided to offer a silver trophy for the winners of the inter-rink matches to be held for one year, and to go to the succeeding winning rink each year, the managing committee to purchase the same. Everything in connection with the prospects of the club for this season is very encouraging, and a good summer's sport may be expected.

Willie Objects.

Among the representatives in congress is one whose lack of personal comeliness is the basis of personal banter from his facetiously inclined colleagues.

"Why, Willie," said one of them to the four-year-old son of the congressman, "how much you resemble your father!"

"Yes, sir," responded Willie, with an air of resignation. "Everybody says that, but I don't think I deserve it."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Eagle.

"As free as a bird in the air," we say. Now, of all the birds of the air the eagle is king and, therefore, of all birds he is the freest. This fact, coupled with the eagle's independence, self reliance and unconquerable courage, caused it to be chosen as the emblem of our republic.

What's In a Name.

"There's a gentleman in the parlor, sir," said the maid.

"Did he give you his name, Katie?" asked the man of the house.

End of the Locomotive.

When railroad locomotives have served their time of usefulness or are badly damaged through accidents they are ordinarily scrapped and disposed of as salvage. [illegible] practice followed by many of the companies which turn over their obsolete equipment of this kind to firms which junk it. After the sheeting is removed from the sides of the locomotive the cutting is done with oxyacetylene torches. Castings, malleable iron and the different grades of metal are separated as the work proceeds.—Popular Mechanics.

Independence.

"Johnny," queried the teacher, "do you know the meaning of independence?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered the little fellow. "It's when you don't owe nobody nothin' an' can look 'em in the eye and tell 'em to go to blazes."—Chicago News.

Handed Him a Jolt.

The bride was attired in white shadow lace over white silk mull and wore the customary bridal veil caught by lilies of the valley and ferns. The bride carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and lilies of the valley and ferns.

The bride's sister, Miss Lizzie, made a charming bridesmaid. She wore a flowered voile dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses and ferns.

The groom was ably supported by J. O. Pue. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome necklace set with epearls, and to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent. To the best man a pearl tie pin and to the organist a gold bar pin.

Only the intimate friends were present, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Wickett of Fraserville.

Parcel Post Sale Rewarded With Success

The Ladies' Aid Society of Charlotte Street Methodist Church are feeling elated over the successful outcome of the sale of parcels they conducted yesterday afternoon and evening from which they emerge with net proceeds of $100.45, which sum is to be banked until required by the building committee who are looking after the new church. The sale was absolutely new in Peterborough, the idea being imported from Virginia by one of the members. Consequently while not bearing the made in Canada label, it was responsible for keeping money in local circulation, which is all that matters.

Dozens upon dozens of parcels were collected from various sources in the shape of donations, and these were labelled with their price and placed on sale, being supposed to sell at the figure marked. A tea room in which all manner of delightful edibles were obtainable was presided over by Mrs. Green and Mrs. Cruickshanks.

During the evening Chief Howard was agreeably surprised by being made the recipient of a handsomely finished head and bust of Lord Kitchener, as a reward for his assistance in making the sale possible.

The post office was in charge of Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Downey and Mrs. Bookout.

LETTER FROM MAJOR BENNETT TO R. B. ROGERS

"Our real test has not yet been made however and I may say that I have every confidence that we will make good when it does come."

In this strain wrote Major G. W. Bennett in a letter to Mr. R. B. Rogers which he received this morning and which is probably one of the last letters ever penned by the late lamented officer.

It reads as follows:—

Dear Dick,

I enjoyed your newsy letter very much.

You have got the right spirit old boy in this great mix up and your boys are solid chips of the old block. When my commanding officer asked me to select a couple of men for the important task of handling machine gun I remembered Heber as one of the best—no work or situation was too difficult for him and when I recommended him I felt that he must fit the job and things have turned out quite to my expectations. The M. G. is one of the most important factors in this war as a defensive weapon. Two things the Germans cannot go up against are the machine gun and the British bayonet.

In some of their trenches the Germans have as many as one machine gun to every 50 yards of trench and every window of a house in their rear has one of the guns.

My dear old chap, it's us who should sympathize with those who stayed at home or at least those who do not offer to serve their country in such dire distress and if I am a judge there is ample time ahead for many who have not as yet got their minds made up to show their metal. This thing is only getting started. Of course there are many things which will hasten the end but from one point of view there is a giant task before us and not much signs of advantage on either side up to the present.

We are gradually getting into the firing line, after a long rest up. We are going forward tomorrow to resume a section of trenches.

I like the Belgians very much, they are by far the best people we have been billeted with so far. Their hearts are clean and the people are agreeable to us in every way.

It is a beautiful country about here. I enjoyed an hour's ride today through a large park around a beautiful chateau and took my whole

BATTLES AND RAIN AN ANCIENT MYTH

No Amount of Gun or Canon Fire Would Have Any Appreciable Effect Upon Either the Humidity or the Temperatnre of the Atmosphere

"It is one of the extraordinary things of warfare," says a recent writer in Pearson's Weekly (London), "that a big battle invariably produces rain."

Once in the early stone age somebody remarked to somebody else that rain frequently occurred after battles. The author of this casual statement was probably not a psychologist, else his conscience would have smitten him for having set afloat in the world the germ of a particularly fatuous fallacy. The evolution of the idea was probably complete long before the age of bronze. Big battles are often followed by rain. Big battles often produce rain. Big battles invariably produce rain. Even the modern penny-a-liner cannot improve on the statement. The myth is fixed—crystallized—and probably imperishable.

Had we enjoyed the privilege of personal acquaintance with the Neanderthal gentleman just mentioned we should have courteously entreated him to start another ball rolling down the ages, to wit, "A big sneeze is often followed by rain." The infinitesimal increase in the humidity of the air occasioned by a sneeze is a simple and obvious fact, whereas the infinitesimal amount of water vapor produced by the explosion of a few tons of ammunition can be hunted down only by an excursion into the fields of chemistry.

Since, however, we must put up with the myth in its present form, let us see how it happens that rain has so often followed battles as to suggest to uncritical people that there was a physical relation between the one and the other.

First of all, no such relation exists. Rain is the result of the active condensation in the atmosphere, and this is purely a question of humidity and temperature. If the humidity be sufficiently increased, or the temperature sufficiently lowered, condensation is inevitable—provided certain nuclei of condensation (dust particles or molecules of hygroscopic gases) be present, and outside of the laboratory they always are present.

Now, it is conceivable that a warring army might produce a local rainstorm by setting fire to a great city. If the air be rather moist, a large conflagration invariably builds up great cumulus clouds above it. The heated air rises and cools by expansion, just as its does from the sun heated earth on a summer day, and condensation results. Under favorable conditions a very big fire might cause a smart shower, or even a thunderstorm, though usually the process goes no further than to form clouds.

A battle, however, cannot be supposed to have any appreciable effect upon either the temperature or the humidity of the air. Two explanations of the alleged production of rain by battles have been offered, one nonsensical, and the other pseudo-scientific. The nonsensical explanation is the popular one—viz, that the condensation of moisture is promoted by the concussion due to cannonading, or that the drops already condensed and constituting the clouds are jostled together by the same process, with the result that they coalesce and fall as rain. As was once pointed out by Professor Newcomb, the effect of a violent explosion upon a body of moist air a quarter of a mile away is exactly the same as that of the clapping of one's hands upon the moist air of the room in which the experiment is performed—i. e., absolutely nil. Or, again, if we stand in the steam escaping from a kettle and clap our hands we shall not produce a shower, though we jostle the water drops just as the explosion does at a distance of a quarter of a mile.

The pseudo-scientific explanation is that the gases and smoke produced by explosions increase condensation by increasing the number of "nuclei" in the atmosphere. The nucleation of the atmosphere, as affected by ordinary dustiness, by hygroscopic gases, by radioactive discharges, by ultra violet light and what not, is still an obscure subject. An outstanding result of recent investigations, however, appears to be this: The lower atmosphere normally contains more than the minimum number of nuclei necessary for the process of condensation, and this process cannot be made more active by a mere increase in the number. Thus various and abundant nuclei, in the form of gases and smoke, are given off to the atmosphere by great manufacturing centers, yet these places do not have a heavier rainfall than the surrounding open country. Pittsburgh, for example, is one of the driest places in Pennsylvania. The suggestion that explosions may produce rain by furnishing nuclei to the atmosphere is, in fact, a mere speculation, and probably could be easily refuted by laboratory experiments.—Scientific American.

GRAIN GROWERS ASSOCIATION PROVIDE BOOK

Studies in Rural Citizenship Raises Many Questions for the Farmer to Answer and is Intended to be Used for Winter Evening Classes in Rural Organizations

Following out their policy of "education hand-in-hand with better financial return," the great Grain Growers' Association of western Canada have had issued a bulletin entitled, "Studies in Rural Citizenship." This blooklet, prepared by Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, of the Canadian Welfare League, is virtually a textbook for a course of study now being carried on by scores of small branch organizations throughout western Canada. It is divided into sixteen "studies," each one of which may form the basis for discussion at one or more meetings of the local organization deciding upon the course of winter study. Many of the questions brought out by the author are of national import, and might very profitably be considered and debated at meetings of our Farmers' Clubs, Women's Institutes, and High School agricultural classes.

A few extracts from this bulletin may serve to introduce it to Ontario readers who may desire a more intimate acquaintance with its contents. In the first "study," entitled "Changed Conditions," the author takes his readers on an imaginary journey across the Dominion. This is what he has to say of the eastern portion of the Province of Ontario:

"Another drive, this time along an old settled concession in eastern Ontario. My companion had been visiting his old home, and during this somewhat lengthened visit had learned of all the changes and happenings in the countryside. 'Do you know,' he said, 'I feel very lonesome now in these parts where I used to know everyone. . . . In my younger days there were a dozen families on this and the next concession that formed the rural aristocracy of this district. Our grandfathers had come into the forests and cleared their farms. Then our fathers were well-to-do. . . . The church was strong, and the centre of the whole life of the community. Now,—well, I went to church on Sunday, and there were only a handful present. They say that the 'renters' won't support the church, and the English people don't care about church.'

" 'English?'

" 'Yes; I visited the old school. Not nearly as many as in my day and half of them home-children. The servant girls are home-girls, and the hired men are all green Englishmen; don't know the first thing about farming.' "

So much for eastern Ontario! How does it measure up with the situation? One cannot but feel that the "companion" was some blatant individual who—himself one of those who had moved away, probably to the west—had returned to "sum up" conditions in his old neighborhood with only a most superficial investigation. But throughout the whole extract certain facts thrust themselves through the rather amusing verbal drapery; facts that even we, who know conditions in eastern Ontario cannot dispute with very much success.

Study No. 6, "The Rural Home—Yesterday and To-morrow," touches upon a phase of life that must be common to all parts of Canada. Regarding farm life, this extract is worth while:

"Farm life is good. It can easily be made much better. First of all must come the realization that the chief end of man is not money-making. Living is first. Many a farmer slaves from early morning to late at night; his wife slaves from earlier in the morning to still later at night. The boys and girls slave until their eyes are opened to the situation, and then they run away from it. And what is it all for? Often just to buy another quarter section, and then another, or to add to the bank account that is to be of doubtful value to the next generation, or to more quickly be able to sell out and move to the city, to live an aimless, dissatisfied life. Prematurely bent and broken-down men and women may have been a necessary result of pioneer conditions, but to-day all is changed, or may be changed. For years country children have been sent to the city to 'finish' their education. The time is coming when city children will be sent to the country to receive a grounding in the essentials of true living."

This is the author at his best, and here he strikes a higher note than that of his nameless "companion" of the opening quotation.

The succeeding chapters deal with the Rural School, the Rural Church, Rural Communities, the Tariff, Land Values and Taxation, and several other vital topics. In the Rural Church the author quotes Goldsmith's immortal description of the village parson and thus soliloquizes:

"How different the ideals and work of a Canadian country minister! He remains but a few years in one place. His ambition is probably to pass from the country 'circuit' to the town charge, and thence to the city pulpit—and that as quickly as possible. . . Then what is the work of the country minister? He preaches three times on Sunday—often the same sermon. If only twice, he probably teaches a class in the Sunday school. He visits in the homes of the people, and on occasion baptizes a child, performs a marriage ceremony, or conducts a funeral. Outside of these regular duties, he may carry on 'special services' or assist in a local option campaign. If he does all this, he is considered an all-round minister—a preacher, a pastor and an organizer, and fitted to minister to a larger congregation. Aye! there's the rub! His whole ideal is to minister to a congregation—not to lead the congreation in ministering to the community.—Timothy Spray in Toronto Globe.

ALBERTA'S TAR SANDS

Great Wealth Will be Developed by Opening up of Areas.

The existence of deposits of bituminous sands in the McMurray district of Northern Alberta has been known for many years. The absence of transportation facilities has, however, prevented the utilization and even the prospecting of these deposits.

Anticipating the building of the Alberta & Great Waterways Railway into Northern Alberta, a preliminary examination of the deposits was undertaken by the Dominion Mines Branch in 1913 and continued in 1914. Meanwhile, the construction of the railway, which will open up and render these deposits available, is being rushed, and its completion is expected in 1916.

The investigation revealed the fact that the tonnage of bituminous sands in the McMurray area is very large, and, although much of the material is low grade and, in some cases, the overburden so heavy that mining by open-cut is impracticable, it is found that some 20 per cent of the material, representing many millions of tons, may be considered as of commercial value.

Bituminous sands have for a number of years been used in the construction of various classes of pavements in the United States. The extent to which the material has been used appears to have been largely determined by the freight rates. The greater portion of the bituminous sand used at the present time in California for paving purposes comes from the Santa Cruz quarries, and is, in many respects, similar to the Alberta material. The bitumen contained in the McMurray rock is, however, much softer. It is believed that, with proper manipulation, such as heating, and the addition of hardening flux, the penetration of the bitumen can be reduced to meet the requirements of standard specifications for its successful employment in the laying of pavements in substitution of imported asphalt.

In view of the fact that the bitumen contained in the tar sands of Alberta is softer than the bitumen of the California material, arrangements have been made by the Mines Branch for the laying of an experimental pavement in the city of Edmonton with the Alberta material, the city government having agreed to construct the concrete foundation. Upward of sixty tons of suitable material has been assembled for transportation to Edmonton, and it is expected that the pavement will be laid next summer.

The City Commissioner states that: "If this work is successfully carried out it will be of greater value to the city of Edmonton and Alberta generally than the bringing in of half a dozen industries . . . at the present time, we are absolutely suffering for the lack of cheap pavement and for the lack of good road material, whereby the farmers may haul their products to the city on well built roads. The solution of this problem will be worth millions of dollars. . ."

At present, all asphaltic paving materials used in Canada are imported from foreign countries. In 1913-14 the value of these imports reached a total of nearly $900,000 and the consumption is rapiddy increasing.

The bituminous sands may also serve as a source of pure bitumen, which may be extracted either by disulphide of carbon, the lighter petroleum distillates, or by the use of hot water and steam.

Floating Docks.

A floating dock may be likened to a box with neither ends nor lid. It is built of steel throughout, the largest type having a length of 680 feet and a width of 144 feet, while the walls are 66 feet in height. The dock is first submerged by admitting water into the ballast tanks or pontoons forming the base of the structure. When it has been sunk to a sufficient depth to receive the vessel the latter is warped into its correct position on the keel blocks of the dock and is then made fast. Powerful pumps are set to work to eject water from the pontoons, causing the structure to rise gradually with its burden. To lift a battleship of the largest size 46,000 tons of water has to be pumped out of the pontoons. So perfectly, however, are these floating docks constructed that one man can control every movement from what is known as the valve house.—London Tit-Bits.

Strategic Value of Constantinople

Controls Sea-route More Important Than Panama Canal

To get an idea of Constantinople's relation to the eastern world, imagine the continents of North and South America curled and twisted in such fashion about the Panama Canal zone that the best sea and land routes are within range of its guns or of a fleet operating from its harbor. Imagine further a harbor at the canal so large that 1,200 vessels can ride at anchor in it, ride safely and approach its shores without the need of dredging or wharf building. Imagine a harbor hidden up-country between two lofty rocky promontories that [illegible] dreadnoughts and have hurled back all but three of hundreds of assaults by the greatest powers of every age. That is Constantinople, immeasurably more strategic politically and commercially to the continents of Europe, Asia and Africa than Panama can ever hope to be to the Americas.

The feature of Constantinople's situation which makes it vital in the present war is its command of the passage to and from the Black Sea. This means control of over one half of the trade of European and Caucasian Russia. With the Baltic closed by Germany the great Empire has only the long route to Vladivostok across Siberia and the frozen route over one line to Archangel. The Trans-Siberian line leads directly away from the markets for Russian products and means a long sea haul back to western Europe. From Archangel on the White Sea in the Arctic circle ships can go only six months in the year. Russia must have the warm salt water or Dardanelles route for her foreign trade. She has been in the position of the British Columbia fruit grower who would have to ship to China via the Hudson Bay or Montreal. At all times the Dardanelles route is vital to the trade of the southern half of Russia, to her Caucasian provinces, to Roumania and Bulgaria and to all the country which ships via the Danube river. Southern Russia is one of the world's greatest wheat producers, a vast prairie or steppe country with the wonderful shipping port of Odessa. Roumania is the same. The Danube is a fine highway for a rich agricultural and mining country as far northwest as Belgrade in Servia, and the Danube empties into the Black Sea. To show the importance of the country north of the Caucasus mountains and east of the Black Sea coasts it is only necessary to mention the great petroleum industry of Baku. Northern Asia Minor also ships to the Black Sea to get out to the world and this country while now held back by Turkish rule has been productive and will be again. Constantinople is at the neck of this large, well-filled bottle. If its guns can keep away foreign warships and seize all merchantmen trying to pass each way the mastery of Constantinople is worth having.

HOW WOUNDS HEAL

Nature's Processes Play a Large Part in the Operation.

Few people have any idea of the wonderful process by which wounds heal. Stitching, dressing, etc., are important operations, but none of them can make good the damage or replace the loss of tissue in a wound. This is the work of our good friends in the blood, the white corpuscles, the "scavengers," so called because they destroy disease germs.

When a wound is made, a bone broken, a nerve torn, etc., it is chiefly by these corpuscles finding their way out of the blood vessels into the surrounding tissues that the injuries by bullet or bayonet are repaired. The union of broken bones, nerves, etc., is effected by the corpuscles finding their way into the coagulated blood which surrounds the injured parts.

They throw out what are called "processes," become fixed and join each other. A new tissue is thus formed, which becomes endowed with blood vessels. Fibers follow, and these serve to keep the torn tissues of the wound in what is surgically called "opposition."

In this tissue, in the case of a broken bone, bone salts are deposited; where nerves have been torn by a bullet nerve fibers grow, and so on. These fibers in the course of healing contract, and it is by that power of contraction that the edges of a wound are brought together and united.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Western Soldier

Major Jarvis Had Long and Honorable Career With Mounted Police

Major A. M. Jarvis, C.M.G., who was appointed Provost-Marshal to the Canadian troops at the front, has a long and distinguished career as a military man in Western Canada. For thirty-one years Major Jarvis was in the R.N.W.M. Police, and made a name for himself that is part of the history of the west as a trail breaker. He was in the Yukon in the first rush of 1879, and through his excellent work on the Dalton trail established the international boundary between the Yukon and the Alaska. He was selected by the late Commissioner Laurence Herckmer, then in command of the R.N.W.M. Police, to open up the Peace River district in view of future settlement of that country, and as a result of his report a treaty was made with most of the northern Indian tribes and the Peace River district became a safe, habitable district.

Major Jarvis [illegible] years in the Yukon, and, besides playing a prominent part in the work of the R.N.W.M. Police, was [illegible] magistrate for a number of years. While in pursuit of his duties in the Yukon, he was called by General Steele to an appointment in the Lord Strathcona Horse in South Africa, where he served in the field, and was twice mentioned in despatches for bravery, and was created a Companion of the most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, and at the close of the war was made an honorary major in the British army, and also a major on the reserve officer list of the Canadian Militia.

As an explorer, Major Jarvis' operations have extended into the barren waste of the Arctic. In 1907 he had a unique experience, having travelled from Moosomin to take command of the R.N.W.M. Police at Herschel Island. On this trip he went the farthest north of any member of the R.N.W.M. Police office up to that date, having travelled 150 miles north of the magnetic Pole, in latitude 72.25 north of Manx's Land. On this trip he was in pursuit of Captain Klinkenberg, a whaler, who shot and killed his first mate.

Major Jarvis, with a small party of men, sailed up the northwest channel to find Klinkenberg, across the fields of ice in the barren wastes of the Arctic, to learn that the elusive Klinkenberg had left for Kotzebue Sound, Alaska. The major, not disheartened, hot on the trail of the criminal, retraced his steps to Kotzebue Sound, to find the United States revenue cutter, Beon, in command of Captain Jarvis, a cousin of the major's, had captured Klinkenberg, who was afterwards taken to San Francisco for trial.

THE 31TH OF OCTOBER, 1793

By F. A. MITCHEL.

In the autumn of 1893 Charles Goodwin, an American bachelor who had been spending an evening at a students' ball in the Latin quarter of Paris, on his way to his hotel in the Rue Rivoli crossed the bridge leading into the Place de la Concorde. Just as he reached the fountain midway between the two obelisks a clock in deep tone struck the hour of 1.

Something like a shudder came over the young man. Perhaps it was the loneliness, for the Place was deserted—that is, at the moment, since this central location can never be said to be deserted for any length of time even in the small hours of morning. Perhaps it was the contrast between his surroundings and the gay scenes he had just left, a contrast heightened by his knowledge of the history of the location where stood the fountain he was passing. He stopped and mused.

During the reign of terror where the fountain is now stood the guillotine. Every day a succession of carts brought victims to this Moloch of the revolution. At first the nobility of France were in process of removal; then when factions became jealous of each other the party in power removed those who were its rivals. For awhile Robespierre was virtual dictator and decided who should be executed. The leaders of the Conservatives, the Girondists, he sent after those of royal and noble blood. Then a new faction gained the supreme power and sent Robespierre after the Girondists.

While Goodwin mused there was no sound but a distant cab rattling over the stones or a shout of laughter from a cafe on the Champs Elysees. And even then came at intervals the thought that he was alone. But suddenly he caught sight through the spray of the fountain of a woman's figure on the other side of the basin. Impelled by curiosity he moved around to where she stood. What was his astonishment to see one whose features indicated that she was a lady. Her dress also bespoke her rank. The costume was in the directoire style which was in vogue some time ago. She was very pale.

It has never been permitted to Parisian ladies to be on the street alone even at midday. As for a lady being out unattended at 1 o'clock in the morning, such a thing was unthinkable, and yet the American was positive that the person he saw on the other side of the fountain was a lady. Her features were French. As to her costume, though it was in a style in vogue a hundred years before—a style that had been revived—the collar and cap were those worn at the close of the eighteenth century.

"Madame," exclaimed Goodwin, "surely you have been, through some error on the part of your escort or your coachman, caught out alone. Will you permit me to call a carriage?"

"What day is this?" asked the lady.

"Day of the week or the month?"

"The month."

"This is the 31st of October."

[illegible] son and, having eluded her keeper, had wandered forth in the night. Goodwin was at a loss to know what to do—whether to call the police or a cab.

"There are only three voices now," continued the woman. "Mine was one of the first to be stifled."

"Won't you take my arm, madame?" said Goodwin, extending it. "The night is chill, and you do not seem to be sufficiently clad."

"Now there are two," was the only reply.

"I beg of you come with me—for a little way—to the Rue Rivoli. We will find a cab there."

"Now there is one."

Goodwin was badly upset. Alone in Paris with a crazy woman between 1 and 2 in the morning, he would have left her, but this would be desertion. He could not bring himself to do it. Fortunately a cab came across the bridge. When it arrived opposite the fountain he ran out to call the driver. As he started the lady he was leaving said:

"Now, there is none."

The cabman stopped, and his cab was empty. Goodwin returned for the lady.

She was gone.

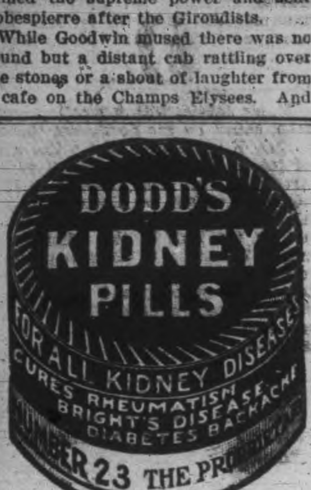
All in a shiver, Goodwin got into the cab and was driven to his hotel.

The next afternoon he walked out through the Place de la Concorde. The day was bright and the space was filled with carriages and pedestrians. He stood by the fountain on the exact spot where he had stood the night before.

Had he been dreaming?

Three years later he was reading a history of the Girondists. The last pages of the book gave an account of how they died on the guillotine singing the "Marseillaise," the volume of sound growing less till the last one sang alone. That single voice stilled, all had perished. Turning to the date of this one of the most dramatic scenes of history, Goodwin noticed that it occurred on the 31st of October, 1793.

Up to the time of reading this account Goodwin had frequently spoken to his friends of his adventure that night in the Place de la Concorde, which a century before had been called the Place de la Revolution. After having informed himself of the fate of the Girondists he never again mentioned it. His friends noticed, too, that he was changed.



Mitten Money.

Sometimes when the weather is very cold and the pilotboat is rolling in a heavy sea off the Ambrose channel lightship the old pilot will think twice about the precarious ride in the small boat and the icy, strenuous climb up the ship's side on a sea ladder. And the [illegible] fellow may give one of the younger pilots a chance to take his turn. Should this bargain be concluded in the snug cabin the younger man receives besides the regular fee the sum of $4 and this is called mitten money.—New York Sun.

Why the Hired Girl Left.

"Why," asked the weary looking woman, "do you constantly refer to yourself as the goat of this household?"

"Because," replied the irritable man, in a loud tone of voice, "a goat is supposed to be able to eat any old thing and act as if he enjoyed it."—Washington Star.

"Why, what did he do?"

"You know how superstitious she is. Well, when she started to throw a plate at his head during a quarrel the heartless wretch stood square in front of a mirror."—Boston Transcript.

Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 9, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xx, 32-42. Memory Verses, 42—Golden Text, Prov. xvii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our lesson topic today is "The Friendship of David and Jonathan," but the lesson verses give only one incident out of many. As our next lesson will be in chapter xxvi, we will consider the David and Jonathan incidents in chapters xviii to xxiii. In chapter xiv the name of Jonathan is mentioned twenty-four times, and in chapter xx it is found twenty-seven times. His name may mean the gift of Jehovah, and he surely was such to David, a real friend and comforter, making us think of Paul's words concerning some of his helpers, "Fellow workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me" (Col. iv, 11). In our first introduction to Jonathan (chapters xiii and xiv), in which we find his name just twenty-eight times, we see him as a brave soldier, relying upon Jehovah to fight for him and with him (xiv, 6, 7). The next mention of him is after David's defeat of Goliath, when we read that his soul was knit with the soul of David, for he loved him as his own soul. He stripped himself of his garments and [illegible] 1, 26). They were truly kindred spirits, both strong in the Lord. We cannot but think of Him who emptied Himself for us, laid aside all His glory, that He might redeem us, clothe us with His righteousness and share with us His Kingdom. We think also of the disciple whom Jesus loved, who leaned upon his bosom, but we remember what is written in John xiii, 1, of all true disciples, "He loved them unto the end, to the uttermost" (R. V., margin).

The next incident is in chapter xix, 1-7, where Jonathan pleaded with his father for David, reminding him that through David the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel, and so David was for a time restored to Saul's favor, but we saw in last lesson how worthless and uncertain it was.

In our lesson chapter we see David returning from Samuel (to whom he had fled) to interview Jonathan and to tell him that when near Saul he felt that there was but a step between him and death and to ask him to find out if he could just how his father really felt toward him, for it would seem as if David could scarcely believe that Saul hated him as greatly as these sudden outbreaks of temper would indicate. One may give way to temper again and again and yet really love the person spoken or acted against. How beautiful was Jonathan's reply to David, "Whatsoever thy soul desireth I will even do it for thee" (xx, 4), or as in the margin, "Say what is thy mind, what thy soul speaketh or thinketh, and I will do it." What a friend to have and yet listen to Him who calls us friends, "If ye shall ask anything in My name I will do it" (John xv, 15; xiv, 14). Jonathan seems not to have believed up to this time that his father meant any real harm to David, probably attributing all to his fearful temper, for he said, "If I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee would not I tell it thee?" (xx, 9.) They went out into the field alone with the Lord and with prayer, and, as in His sight, they made a covenant the one with the other and arranged a plan by which Jonathan would find out certainly what his father's attitude to David really was (xx, 11-23). When the plan was worked out and Saul's anger against David became so manifest that he tried to kill Jonathan for taking David's part, then Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David. So he arose from the table in fierce anger, for he was grieved for David (xx, 32-34). Then Jonathan in the morning went out into the field and communicated with David by a prearranged plan (xx, 18-24, 35-40).

It was a three days' interval (verse 19), reminding us of so many three days' stories [illegible] had (verse 35), reminding us by analogy and contrast of so many morning stories. The statement in verse 39 that the lad who gathered the arrows knew not anything of the significance of his doings nor of the real meaning of Jonathan's words to him has often come to me with power, as I have given His message from His word from time to time, simply knowing that I was seeking to be faithful to him, but not knowing anything of what He might be accomplishing by the message, but sure always that He knew what He was doing and that His word will always accomplish His pleasure (John vi, 63; Isa. lv, 11). How pathetic the farewell of these two after the lad had gone—the kissing, the weeping, the committing of each other to the Lord, and Jonathan's "Go in peace" (verses 41, 42). In the morning to which we look forward we shall be "forever with the Lord" (I Thess. iv, 17). What contrast to this sad parting and all partings! They met once more, and Jonathan strengthened David in God and they spoke of the kingdom and renewed their covenant (xxiii, 16-18).

What God does or permits to be done is often to us a great mystery, but there is comfort in His words "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter" (John xiii, 7).

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

GRIM BEAUTY OF BATTLE

Translation of Article in Russian Newspaper Shows How Russian Writers View the Great War

The master — a small, shrivelled old man—can hardly get up from his filthy bed; and the mistress — a wrinkled, ill old woman—weeps unceasingly. Somewhere far away are her children—for she does not know where they are. There is nothing to eat, and she is ashamed to have to beg from the soldiers, who are so willing to share with her. Besides this, there is the ever-present terror that from the trenches, which are so very, very close, there may appear a German to fire the last remainders of her once-prosperous farm.

Crowded Quarters There.

And with these two, in their half of the hut, there are billeted eight orderlies; in the other half, in which there are two low, minute bunks like those in a ship's cabin, there are living five doctors and three organizers of an automobile unit. In these rooms are two officers — a kitchen and a store of provisions — and here is carried on the business interwoven with the life of every day.

Towards the evening it becomes hot and stuffy in the hut from the number of persons gathered in it, the tobacco smoke, and the stove on which the evening meal is being cooked. So everyone goes out for a walk in the road by the woods.

There is a moon, and the evening is bright and quiet. From here can be seen troops advancing, orderlies galloping to and fro, and a long line of field kitchens on its way to the front stretched over the surface of the sparkling snow.

The Strange Time of Quiet.

Now is a strange time, when everything along the front is quiet and the war ceases for an hour or two; for the men must rest and eat to be able afterwards to carry on as before.

At nine o'clock everything is as it was; shrapnel bursts close by, and the heavy boom of artillery can once more be heard. Sometimes rifle firing will start, to continue intermittently throughout the night.

Having returned to the farm, where a lamp is burning and newly arrived papers are lying on the table, we drink tea with lemon juice. A young Caucasian doctor smokes now and then to lessen the numerous smells. Some lie on their narrow folding camp beds, some on crates, which once held provisions, and the rest simply on the beaten earthen floor. The conversation is of the war, of our birth places, and of the possibility of a night attack by the enemy. Some are all asleep. In the little hut it is warm, quiet and and snug, and only occasionally it shakes from the force of the exploding shells. It seems that here there is and can be no danger.

Sleep Through Night Attack.

Close on 3 o'clock we are awakened by a series of shocks which by the rattling of the furniture seem to be so great that the flimsy hut is having great difficulty in keeping to one spot. Someone speaks excitedly: "Do you hear it?" It must be a night attack."

An incessant artillery rattle now begins. The bursts of shells come one on top of another; they are quite close, next to us, almost upon us, right under the walls of the hut; surely it must fall. And now we can hear a sound as of a person tapping persistently, untiringly, irritably at the wall with an enormous dry hard fist. This is the rifle firing beginning.

We hurriedly dress and go out.

It is terrible, but wonderfully beautiful.

Short red flames burst out one after another, the searchlight throws its strange, long, pale beams as far as the horizon, and the screaming shrapnel fall on the ground in bright, meteor-like sparks, and in the air there is the ceaseless crack of rifle fire, bursting of shells and clatter of shrapnel, the constant, untiring business of a battle.

Then everything begins to quieten down like a storm that has exhausted its fury. But hardly have we started towards the hut, when again . . . It starts slowly, quietly, far away. Then clearer, more persistently, shriller. Rifles, quick-firers, howitzers, all once more enter the lists. The farther away, the fiercer it seems. Now it becomes hard to distinguish one sound from the other, for the rifles and the big guns seem to make the same amount of noise.

I have an unconquerable craving to go and see what is happening a verst or two away, where the battle is being fought. But from the peat bog on which the hut stands a fog has risen, and, in spite of the bright moon, it is impossible to see anything in the damp mist.

And then suddenly a drawling, low, distant roar arises, grows, approaches. I can clearly hear amid this tornado of sounds the tones of many men's voices. Afar away, "A—la—la—!" getting louder every moment. "Again, again!" Here it is quite close to me, then, farther off again, from this side, then from the other.

Imagination in a Fog.

My heart beats with excitement and agitation. I imagine—as I cannot see anything in the cold, dark mist — that something is approaching, that in a minute out of that darkness there may appear foreign soldiers. And, again, although I am encircled by a blanket of fog, I imagine I can see something. But that is impossible.

Then, again, the long-drawn-out "A!—a!—a!" Now somehow louder, more convincing, more triumphant. But suddenly everything almost at the same moment grows calm. One or two more shots are fired by rifles and guns. . . . And by seven o'clock in the morning, when a slow, dull, drowsy dawn comes up from the north, there is complete silence all along our front.

The day in the trenches begins. Baggage carts make their way along the road, orderlies hurry hither and thither. On the plain and in the woods the artillery fire at intervals. Some wounded are being brought in to the bandaging point and someone says that last night there was a night attack on our trenches, but by the strong, well-aimed thrusts of our brave men's bayonets it was repulsed.

AN ABRUPT PROPOSAL.

Abernethy Was Too Busy For Romance and Courtship.

The reported fashion of the famous Dr. Abernethy's courtship and marriage is very characteristic. It is told that while attending a lady for several weeks he observed those admirable qualifications in her daughter which he truly esteemed to render the married state happy. Accordingly on a Saturday, taking leave of his patient, he addressed her to the following purport:

"You are so well that I need not see you after Monday next, when I shall come and pay you a farewell visit. But in the meantime I wish you and your daughter to seriously consider the proposal I am about to make. It is abrupt and unceremonious, I am aware, but the excessive occupation of my time by my professional duties affords me no leisure to accomplish what I desire by the more ordinary course of attention and solicitation. My annual receipts amount to £——, and I can settle £—— on my wife. My character is generally known to the public, so that you may readily ascertain what it is. I have seen in your daughter a tender and affectionate child, an assiduous and careful nurse and a gentle and ladylike member of a family. Such a person must be all that a husband could covet, and I offer my hand and fortune for her acceptance. On Monday when I call I shall expect your determination, for I really have not time for the routine of courtship."

In this manner the lady was wooed and won and it may be added the union was felicitous in every respect.—Westminster Gazette.

KING'S FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

The fifth anniversary of the accession of King George was celebrated yesterday by the firing of artillery salutes in St. James Park, London, at Windsor, and at the big naval and military stations.

King George and Queen Mary attended a private memorial service for the late King Edward, which was held at the royal chapel at Frogmore, and the King afterwards placed a wreath on his father's grave, an act which was imitated by the other members of the royal family. The King, who is 48 years of age, succeeded his father May 6, 1910, and was crowned in Westminster Abbey, June 22, 1911. He married Queen Mary in 1893, and has five sons and one daughter.

STORIES OF FLAGS

Origins of Some of the Emblems of European Nations.

Prior to the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 the German empire was little more than a group of scattered states. When they combined into a single empire, however, traces of all their flags were combined in the resultant standard.

To be sure, the colors of Prussia—black and white—and the Prussian eagle enter very largely into it, but it must be remembered that this country became at that time the head and ruler of all the others. Besides the smaller states, there were also the flags of East and West Prussia to be included. That of West Prussia was black, white, black, three stripes of equal diameter, running the length of the flag. That of East Prussia consisted of two such stripes, the upper black and the lower white. The "jack" of the imperial navy consists of three horizontal stripes, the upper black, the middle white and the lower red. The much prized iron cross (dating back to the end of the twelfth century) is in the center. This red stripe appears in the final war ensign of the empire, in which the tricolor (black, white, red) appears in the upper quarter, with the iron cross upon it, while the remaining three-quarters are white, with the royal arms in the center. A black cross divides the whole flag into quarters.

The flag of Austria is a very complex affair. To begin with, the various Austrian provinces have their own flags. Bohemia is red-white, Tyrol is white-red, Dalmatia is blue-yellow, Galicia is blue-red, Croatia is red-white-blue and Istria is yellow-white-blue. Then again, Austria-Hungary being a dual monarchy, both Austria and Hungary must be separately represented—and fully—on the flag. Fortunately, this combination was rendered more easy by the fact that portions of the flags of both countries were already the same. Thus, the Austrian flag was red-white-red, the Hungarian was red-white-green. Compromise was effect[illegible] stripe in two, and leaving half red while the remainder was green. The arms of both countries also appear on the flag. This was decided upon March 6, 1869.

The imperial standard of the czar of all the Russias is of brilliant yellow, in the center of which is a large double headed black eagle. This flag dates from the year 1472, when Ivan the Great married Sophia, a niece of Constantine Palaeologus, and thence assumed the arms of the Greek empire. On the breast of the eagle is an escutcheon bearing on its red field in silver the figure of St. George slaying the dragon, the whole being surrounded by the collar of the Order of St. Andrew. On the displayed wings of the eagle are other shields bearing the arms of Kiev, Novgorod, Vladimir, Kasan, etc. The Russian union jack is very similar to that of England, save that the principal crossbars are blue instead of red. This is the well known Russian war flag. The cross is that of St. Andrew, the patron saint of Russia.

The well known tricolor of France is made up of three stripes—blue, white and red—running not the length, but the width of the flag. It dates from the era of the French revolution and came into existence in 1789. It has been the national flag since, with but slight variations. In 1794 the tricolor was also made the jack of the French navy.

The union jack of Great Britain is composed of the three crosses of St. George, St. Patrick and St. Andrew. That of the first was a broad red cross, dividing the white flag into four white squares; the white cross of St. Andrew, on a blue background, ran from corner to corner diagonally, while the red cross of St. Patrick ran in the same direction. If the union jack be examined it will be found to be composed of these three crosses, as stated. The flag was first unfurled in 1801, on the union in that year of Great Britain (England, Scotland and Wales) and Ireland.

The flag of Belgium is composed of a tricolor—black, yellow and red—running up and down—that is, the width and not the length of the flag. The royal standard has the arms placed in the center of the yellow strip. This was adopted as the national flag in 1831, being originally the colors of the duchy of Brabant. [illegible] 1506 Belgium be[illegible] date it fell into the [illegible] in 1795 and for some years following it was held by France, and in 1814 was handed over to the Prince of Orange, but in 1830 the Belgians rose against the Hollanders and established their independence. The flag which is now flown was then adopted.—Washington Post.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hemorrhage.

Don't neglect a hemorrhage. No matter what its source may be or what the amount, it should receive the attention of a physician. A simple nosebleed may lead to trouble. Spitting blood, even if not more than a teaspoonful, may indicate the beginning of disease of the lungs. Even if the immediate results are slight, the later ones may be serious in the way of debility, etc.

A Mournful Errand.

"The bodies of my murdered wife and three little children lie in the dead house at Cote des Neiges Cemetery. I have come back to bury them, then in all probability I shall return to Belgium to fight again for my stricken country."

Such was the comment of Robert Van Looy, reservist, who returned from the war to Montreal a few days ago. His family was wiped out at their home, 313 Beaudry street, on Jan. 5, by Mrs. Van Looy's brother, Gene Moons, a Belgian, who committed suicide the same day.

BRITISH OFFICER OUTLINES THE NECESSITIES FOR A KIT

London Times Publishes Results of Experience of One Who Has Participated in the Present Campaign

One of the first questions asked of officers who have lately returned from the front is usually what to do with their equipment and kit, remarks The London Times. It is often very hard to find somebody who can speak from practical experience, and these suggestions are offered in the hope that they may be of some assistance to those who are waiting their turn for the firing line.

As every officer knows, the trial weight allowed to be taken in the first line transport is only thirty-five pounds, while a further 100 pounds is permissible as a reserve at the base. Much ingenuity is wasted over both. The "base kit" is never seen or wanted while the valise, with its sleeping bag and other luxuries, is never used. My advice to all officers is, shortly, not to take anything but their field kit, and not to rely very much on that. A blanket and a waterproof sheet for every man are carried in the transport wagons, and used whenever possible, but the valise is only valuable for the storage of a spare pair of boots and a change of underclothing, with possibly the addition of another suit of khaki. It is far better to rely on the post for the frequent replenishment of things like socks and shirts.

Boots must be very strong and sound. The soles should be regularly shod with iron, as the going is bad and there are no chances of getting boots repaired or even nailed. With two spare pairs of socks and some laces the feet will look after themselves. Boracic powder is not an unmixed blessing, as it makes the skin too dry; in fact, few men use it at all, especially nowadays, when everybody's feet are hard to fit.

As regards equipment, a sword is a very uncommon object in the field. It is inconvenient to carry, is very awkward to tuck away in a trench, and when one is at close quarters with the enemy it is distinctly inferior to a bayonet. I would personally far rather carry a battleaxe, but as I prefer a rifle my wants are more easily supplied. Most officers nowadays have discarded the "Sam Browne" belt in favor of the ordinary web equipment. The latter does not take long to get used to, and has many advantages, the chief being that it does not make the wearer so conspicuous. This, in a war which is more than usually remarkable for the losses sustained by the commissioned ranks, is of great importance, not only to to the individual officer, but to the unit to which he has the honor to belong. The risks run by an officer are always greater than those of his men, and it is foolhardy and useless to add to them.

The field glasses are best carried on their own strap, while the revolver can be fastened on the left side of the belt, where it can be easily drawn. The haversack is usually half filled by maps and a notebook, a mug, a pipe, and a tobacco pouch, while the rest is useful for as much biscuit and chocolate as can be packed in, provided, of course, that its owner is lucky enough to have any. Many officers dispense with all but about three pouches on either side of the belt. With ten rounds in the rifle and thirty more in the right side pouches, one has as many as one is likely to want in a day, and the other three pouches can then be used for revolver cartridges, a tin of quinine tabloids, and another with beef tea lozenges or something of the kind. A few officers carry a bayonet and entrenching tool, but, though they are both most valuable, there is a limit which must be set to the weight to be carried. The entrenching tool has undoubtedly saved thousands of lives, and it is a matter for the individual officer whether he will prefer to carry it or rely on the casual protection of temporary cover. It must, however, be remembered that one is carrying a revolver and glasses in addition to the private's ordinary equipment.

Lastly, as to the "pack," that most important article of one's equipment. Opinions differ as to whether it is best to carry a greatcoat or a "Burberry," though personally I prefer the latter, together with a woolen waistcoat, as they do not take up more room and the weight is about the same. Washing and shaving requisites are carried in the pack, together with the canteen, which holds a meat ration or its equivalent. The rest is filled with odds and ends, like spare pairs of socks, a handkerchief, tape plaster, a Balaklava helmet, a short muffler, the emergency ration and a pair of gloves or mittens. That is all one can conveniently carry, and at first it is quite heavy enough. Weight is the great enemy against which one has to contend, and every additional ounce must be avoided. When one is marching and digging and fighting these are three strong inducements to keep the weight down to its lowest limits.

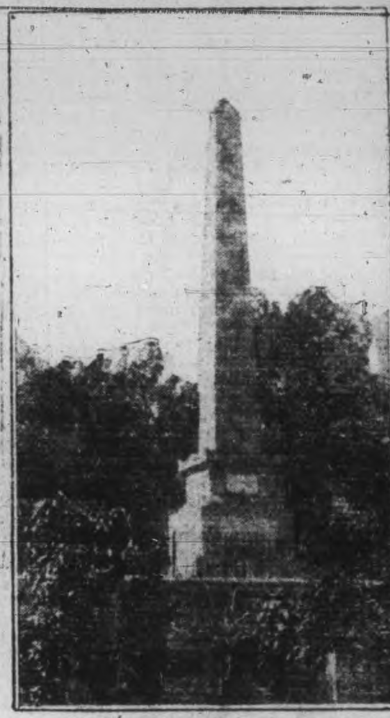
SOUS LE CAP



WOLFE MONUMENT NEAR CHATEAU FRONTENAC

It is not necessary to cross the Atlantic to see something of Old France, for in the beautiful city of Quebec many characteristics and echoes of the old French regime may still be seen. Sous le Cap Street is like a corner out of some Norman city with its narrow passages and steep-roofed houses. The Chateau Frontenac is built on the site of the old Chateau St. Louis and repeats the architecture of mediaeval France, so far as is consistent with the necessities of a modern hostelry. St. Anne is the patron saint of sailors, and St. Anne de Beaupré is the greatest pilgrim church in Canada. Several hundred thousand visit the shrine each year, and as many cures are reported as at Lourdes. Near St. Anne de Beaupré are the Montmorency Falls, which are higher than the falls at Niagara.

SUPPLY OF EXPLOSIVES

Allies Can Get All They Need and Canada Helps in the Production

"The Supply of Raw Materials for the Explosive Industry and Its Relation to the War" was the subject of an interesting lecture by Prof. J. Watson Bain of Toronto University, before the Royal Canadian Institute.

There was much that was impossible to find out about the demand and supply of the raw material for the munitions of war, the lecturer declared, but he did know that Germany had no inexhaustible supply. The supply of the allies was unlimited.

Nitric acid was, Prof. Bain asserted, the primal necessity for the manufacture of explosives. Glycerine was necessary for the manufacture of nitro-glycerine, and carbolic acid was a constituent of lyddite, the British explosive. An interesting fact was brought to light when the speaker stated that toluol, which is an important constituent in the deadly explosive, tri-nitro-toluol, is being manufactured at the rate of 600 gallons a day by a firm in Sydney, Cape Breton. Practically every manufacturing plant in Canada capable of manufacturing explosives, was turning them out with all dispatch. Canada was able to furnish at least a million of the 100,000 shells a day which Sir John French said he would need.

Germany had before the war obtained most of her nitric acid from Chili, and since that supply had been cut off, from Norway, and the demand was exceeding the supply which Norway was able to produce. Nitric acid was necessary for every explosive and if that failed, all hope for Germany was crushed. Germany's supply of glycerine was now obtained solely from the animals which she kills. Much uncertainty was felt about the quantity of explosives being used, but a French writer had estimated it as 450 tons a day for Germany, and a quantity at least equal by the allies. The manufacture of explosives had become an important industry in Canada and was keeping many Canadian workmen busy.

They were at a tea on Morningside— she extremely pretty and engaging despite the fact that she was in Teachers' college and he an earnest student of the law. They had really gone quite far along the pleasant road of romance. He inquired civilly what degree she pursued.

"I aspire to an M. R. S.," she replied demurely.

"I dare say it's hard," he answered absentmindedly. Hours afterward under the green shaded light in his own room it all came to him suddenly.—New York Post.

RISE OF THE KRUPPS.

The Great German Gun Works Started In a Small Iron Foundry.

The famous German armament firm of Krupp, which is the greatest industrial enterprise in the world in the hands of a private firm, had its beginning in a small iron foundry which Friedrich Krupp established in the early years of the last century.

For thirty years he had to cope with constant financial and other difficulties, and the reputation of Krupp, which now fills the world, is said to have originated through a block of steel which the firm showed at the London exhibition of 1851.

It was the rapid growth of Prussia into a military power of the first rank, however, followed by the unification of Germany and the consequent creation of the vast German army, which gave the firm its great opportunity, and ultimately its almost unexampled prosperity, as the manufacturers of artillery and ammunition.

Other powers, not only in Europe, but eventually in Asia and on the American continent, followed the German example in their attempts to perfect their armaments, and Krupp received a great part of their orders. The business representation of the great firm was extended throughout the world and assumed the dimensions of the diplomatic service of a government.—London Answers.

PERSIA'S DEVIL PLANT

It Is Death to the Animal It Grips With Its Claws.

The devil plant they call it in Persia, and well they may, for it is more deadly to the flocks and herds that play so important a part in their life than is the loco weed to the herds of our southwestern states.

It is in the fall that the devil plant gets in its deadly work. The flowers give place to seed pods with great belly like capsules and long, stiff claws like those of a beast of prey. These are hidden under the brown and yellow leaves, and when a grazing animal—a sheep, a camel, a wild ass or an antelope, for example—browses among the foliage the claws hook themselves into its nostrils. The animal tries to rub them off, but the more it rubs the deeper it forces the clawlike hooks into its skin. Its throat becomes so inflamed that it can neither eat nor drink, and consequently it dies of starvation and pain.

The animal's body lies in the open and decays, and into the decomposing flesh the hundreds of black seeds contained in the capsules of the clawed pod are discharged, for it seems that earth is not rich enough for them and only in decayed flesh can they find enough nourishment.

Drivers of caravans curse the devil plant, for it may cost them many of their beasts when these are turned loose to graze at night. But most of the semiwild beasts that graze in the country have learned to avoid it, even as the American herds have learned to avoid the deadly loco weed.

An Explanation.

The chairman of the program committee was embarrassed. After much choking he said:

"I am very sorry, ladies and gentlemen, I am very sorry indeed, gentlemen and ladies—it gives me deep regret, ladies and gentlemen, to be compelled, gentlemen and ladies, to come before you with an excusion; but, ladies and gentlemen, the lady who will sing next is not here. We suppose, gentlemen and ladies, that she has been providentially detained." — New York Post.

Details of Elegance.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Corntossel at the dinner party, "the table decorations were elegant, weren't they?"

"Yes," replied her husband as he pushed his finger bowl away. "There's only one little thing they forgot."

"What's that?"

"They didn't put any goldfish in the little aquariums."—Washington Star.

A LAND OF EXTREMES.

Peru's Violent Contrasts In Climate, Altitude and Scenery.

Were I to be exiled and confined for the rest of my life to one country I should choose Peru.

Here is every altitude, every climate, every scene. Coastal Peru is an Egypt, central Peru a Tibet, eastern Peru a Kongo country. The lifeless desert and the teeming jungle, the hottest lowlands and the bleakest highlands, heaven piercing peaks and rivers racing through canyons—all are of Peru.

Here one meets with the highest tillage, the highest mines, the highest steamboat navigation. The crassest heathenism flourishes two days in the saddle from noble cathedrals, and the bustling ports are counterpoised by secluded inland towns where the past lies miraculously preserved, like the mummy of the saint in a crypt.

In the year 2300, when the Tyrol and the Abruzzi, Dalmatia and Carinthia have lost their old world character, travelers may be seeking the towns hidden away in the Andes—Cajamarca, Huancavelica, Andahuaylas and Ayacucho—for rare bits of lustrous medieval life untarnished by the breath of modernism.—From "South of Panama," by Edward Alsworth Ross, in Century Magazine.

Aviator Harry Atwood said at Reading, Pa., in five years it would be possible to fly the Atlantic in 24 hours.

Up in the Garret and Down in the Basement

Do you remember that rocker you took out of the sitting-room when you got the new one?

Where is it ?

Why didn't you sell it ?

Why didn't you try to sell it? Don't you know that a few cents spent on a want ad. in THE DAILY REVIEW would have brought at least $2.50 or $3.50 for it? And there are chairs enough in the back of the house without wasting that one.

O! if people only knew by experience, as we do, what big things little ads. in THE DAILY REVIEW can do for them, they wouldn't tolerate the waste and ruin of the perfectly good household articles that are now relegated to the storeroom, to be covered with dust, and finally thrown away.

Think of the people who want them, who can use them, who have place for them. Owners of apartment buildings and flats might get a hint from this, also.

VANDERBILT AMONG NOTED AMERICANS MISSING

MANY WERE KILLED BY EXPLOSIONS

Bodies at Queenstown Bear Evidence of Havoc Wrought When Torpedoes Hit Liner.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 8. — Many dead lie in the hotels and boarding houses, victims of injuries and exhaustion. Two little children, who were brought ashore clasped in each other's arms, have not yet been identified. Women landing presented a pitiful appearance. Some of them were covered only with blankets, and many children were without their parents. Funerals of most of the British victims will be held at Queenstown on Sunday.

Two stokers have confirmed the report that the steamer was struck by two torpedoes. The first entered No. 1 stokehold and the second the engine-room. A considerable proportion of those at Queenstown are members of the crew, including Capt. Turner, with the first and second officers. All other officers are believed to have perished. Apparently every precaution had been taken against a surprise attack by a submarine. Lookouts were constantly on the alert as the steamship speeded towards the coast. Difficulty was experienced in launching boats because of the heavy list of the Lusitania. Almost immediately after she was torpedoed, several frail craft evidently capsized, as they were launched soon afterwards.

SIGHTED THE PERISCOPE.

Lookouts sighted the periscope of a submarine a thousand yards away, and the next instant they saw the trail left by a torpedo as it flashed on its course. Then came a terrific crash as the missile pierced the liner's side, followed almost immediately by another, which littered the decks with wreckage. The course of the liner was at once turned towards the shore. Four torpedoes, apparently, were fired at the Lusitania, but only two of them found their mark.

MANY WERE KILLED.

The loss of life caused by the torpedoes themselves and explosions which they caused must have been terribly heavy. Bodies taken to Queenstown bear evidence of the havoc wrought. Many of those taken ashore were seriously injured, and more than a score died after they were removed to Cork and Queenstown hospitals.

LONDON, May 8. — Of the number of survivors landed by fishing boats on Sovereign Island, many it is feared will die of injuries.

NEW YORK, May 8. — The Cunard Line stated this morning that it had received word from Liverpool crediting the Admiralty with the statement that only a few first-class passengers were saved. Three boats are reported bringing one hundred bodies to Queenstown.

LADY ATKIN RESCUED.

MONTREAL, May 8. — Lady Atkin, wife of Sir Montague Atkin, is among the Lusitania survivors. Her back is slightly injured.

DOING HER PART.

She was a little woman—one who seemed to be bearing part of the struggle in providing for the household. As she scanned the bulletin boards, a bystander unconsciously referred to some mention of the Canadians.

"They're doing their part alright," exclaimed the little woman. Then after a pause she said, "I've one son at the front, there's another leaving this week, I've a third boy at one of the camps and if I had a dozen more I'd give them all."

Hamilton, May 8.—Private cablegrams announced that Robinson Pirie, buyer for Sanford's, Mrs. Pirie, Dundas, buyer for Sandford's, Mrs. Stanley Marshall, Mrs. Dr. A. Osborne, of this city, Lusitania passengers, are safe. No word has been received yet about J. M. Young, president of the Hamilton Cotton Co. and his wife who were going to see their son Lieut. Wm. C. Young, who was wounded in action.

PTE. COPPERTHWAITE IS KICKED BY HORSE

OTTAWA, May 8. — Pte. Douglas Copperthwaite, of the 8th C. M. R., was kicked in the abdomen by a horse yesterday afternoon, and, although no bones were broken, his condition is somewhat serious. Copperthwaite, in company with a number of associates, was riding along the Merivale road in the vicinity of the Lady Grey Hospital and had stopped to fix something when he was kicked by his horse. A hurry-up call was sent to Woodburn's ambulance, and the injured soldier was taken to the Protestant general hospital.

REVIEW'S NEWS SERVICE UNEXCELLED

As a proof of the Daily Review's unsurpassed news service it should be noted that the Review was on the street first with the report of a disaster that took place over three thousand miles away a few hours before going to press. Apparently the Lusitania sank only two hours before the Review was being sold on the streets of Peterborough. This seeming impossibility is accounted for by the difference of time which amounts to five hours between Peterborough and London time and the efficiency of the wonderful organization of Canadian Press, Limited. As the Lusitania was a considerable distance from London the time of its sinking would be a little less than five hours earlier than our time and probably took place about ten or ten-thirty a.m. Peterborough time. Even at that, it is evident that the Review has a most efficient and highly organized news service that could give the news of this event five or six hours after it happened and fully four hours before the Toronto evening newspapers reached the city.

PARENTS ON LUSITANIA

Mr. Russell Copping Has Fears For Their Safety.

Peterborough mourns today the loss of the Lusitania. On every hand horror, disgust and anger are expressed. While as far as learned no resident of Peterborough was a passenger there are parties here who had immediate relatives aboard, and consequently they are fearful for their safety. Mr. Russell Copping, corner Wolsely and Aylmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Copping, Toronto, is greatly concerned over their safety as they were aboard. George R. Copping was president of the Brinton Carpet Company. Mr. Copping has received no word as to whether they are among the saved.

DEAD AND DYING IN RESCUE BOATS

Survivors United in Eulogizing Manner in Which Ship's Officers Behaved.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 8. — Among notable Americans not included in the published list of survivors of the Lusitania, and therefore believed to have perished, are Alfred Vanderbilt, multimillionaire; Elbert Hubbard, Charles Frohman, and Charles Klein, famous theatrical men; Dr. F. S. Pearson, a celebrated engineer, identified with Mexican and American electrical enterprises, and Herbert Stone, a prominent publisher and founder of the Chap Book and The House Beautiful.

WILSON PLAYS GOLF.

WASHINGTON, May 8. — Following his usual Saturday custom, President Wilson went to the golf links. Important details regarding the Lusitania incident will be forwarded to him. There is every indication that the President, while deeply shocked, is determined to await a thorough investigation before determining upon the course of action for the United States.

SURVIVORS LANDED.

LONDON, May 8. — Official advice from Cork says that forty-five more survivors of the Lusitania have been landed at Queenstown. At the same time the Admiralty gave out the announcement that no more reports regarding the Lusitania had been received, and the list of survivors given out at six o'clock this morning, or 658, may be regarded as approximately correct. These two announcements , suppose a total of 703 survivors, which, deducted from 1,251 passengers and 816 members of the crew, making a total of 2,067, leaves the death list at 1,364.

LINER NOT ARMED.

The Government announced today that the statement appearing in some morning papers that the Lusitania was armed, is false.

QUEENSTOWN, May 8. — Variou.s craft that yesterday afternoon went out from here to the scene of the Lusitania disaster, returned to Queenstown last night and early this morning. All of them brought survivors in greater or lesser number. It is now estimated that six hundred will be the outside number of those saved. The latest rescue boats to arrive are bringing mostly the bodies of dead picked up fro mthe water at the scene of the disaster. The dead now here number 124, many of them women. Both men and women rescued, if they are able to walk, refuse to remain in their hotels. They haunt the docks, waiting and watching for friends and relatives. Many of the survivors are still bewildered from their terrible experiences, and their accounts of the sinking of the Lusitania are not entirely clear, but one and all unite in eulogizing the manner in which the ship's officers behaved. Five minutes after the Lusitania was hit with a second torpedo amidships, she had listed to such an extent that lifeboats on one side could not be launched at all. The work of getting as mnay people as possible, mostly women and children, into the only boats that could be got clear, was at once undertaken and performed efficiently and with heroism.

HEARTRENDING SCENES.

The scene as the big liner went down is described as heartrending beyond words. Battling for life, the passengers called to relatives and friends or bade each other good-bye. Small boats, which had gotten away from the side of the liner, picked up a good many survivors, who, with life belts or clinging to wreckage, were floating on the surface of the water; but soon the boats were crowded. These boats were in turn picked up by rescuing steamers coming at full speed from shore points, but in many cases four and more hours elapsed before rescuers reached the scene. In many cases, the only work left for rescue workers to do was to collect from the water the floating bodies of the dead. Several passengers were taken aboard trawlers severely injured, only to die before they could be transferred ashore.

WASHINGTON, May 8. — The United States Government will today direct Ambassador Gerard to make inquiry of the German Government for its report of the facts concerning the sinking of the Lusitania. This became known after conferences between high officials, who said privately that the situation was very grave.

EARLIER REPORTS.

QUEENSTOWN, May 8. — Bodies of victims of the Lusitania are arriving on every incoming boat. The Cunard Line warehouse, being used as a temporary morgue, already has been filled, and sixty more bodies have been taken to the town hall.

LONDON, May 8. — Fifteen hundred persons lost their lives, the British Admiralty estimates, yesterday afternoon. The known survivors number only 658, while there were 2,160 souls aboard. Of those who were saved, 595 were landed at Queenstown and eleven at Kinsale, while 52 others are reported to be aboard a steamer. There is slender hope that fishing boats may have rescued a few more. Bodies of 455 who died of injuries or were drowned have been landed at Queenstown. Five are at Kinsale. It has been reported that an armed trawler, accompanied by two fishing boats has picked up one hundred others.

LONDON, May 8. — A statement issued by the British Admiralty says the total number of survivors of the Lusitania is 650. It is believed that only the first-class passengers were saved.

WASHINGTON, May 8. — A despatch received at the State Department early today from Consul Lauriat at Queenstown put the number of rescued of all nationalities from the Lusitania disaster at 643. An earlier despatch from him said 700. The consul's latest message added the names of four Americans saved to those mentioned in his previous despatch, making a total of 51 Americans saved. Few others were rescued, he said. Several unidentified bodies had been recovered, the consul reports.

WHAT WILL THE UNITED STATES SAY?

DESPATCHES are confirmed that the great Cunard liner Lusitania has been torpedoed off the coast of Ireland. This event ought to set Washington by the ears. If the United States is going to stand by and see her citizens murdered by German pirates without a more effective remedy than a strong protest, we much mistake the temper of the American people. What is Woodrow Wilson going to do with the United States navy?

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

THE BATTLES around Ypres brought glory to Canada. The whole country resounds with the name of Langemarck. Following the news of the battle came the casualty lists. Now, in many a Canadian city and town memorial services for fallen heroes are taking place. The sound of mourning arises, due to roughly-made graves away across the seas, where men sleep that died for honour. Do not think that a memorial service is the last remembrance of the fallen. Such an impressive and eloquent service stamps itself indelibly on the public mind. There are those who have a clear remembrance of memorial services conducted during the South African War. Such occasions are important events in the life of the country, and, though sad, they preserve in living memory the record of heroic sacrifice.

> "Remember, O Lord, all those, the brave and the true, who have died the death of honour . . . Look with pity upon all those whom war makes desolate and broken-hearted . . ."

WAR SCANDALS IN FRANCE.

LATELY, scandals in connection with the army supplies have arisen in France, and Paris newspapers have been full of denunciations of those guilty. In view fo the fact that similar scandals arose in England, and that the British Government found itself so unable to cope with the problem that it appointed an official investigator of graft, it will be seen how unfair and unjust it is to blame the Borden Government, as some Liberals did, for the scandals that took place in Canada. If a clerk, on his own account, cheats a customer of a store, no one would accuse the proprietor of the store of the cheating. If a man robs an express company, the heads of the company are not held to be guilty of the crime. Neither should the Borden Government be held to account for the crimes of individuals doing business for the Government. Comparing conditions in Canada with those in Great Britain and France, it is clear that the Borden Government has accomplished a great work in a most commendable manner. It has been done expeditiously, so that the sending of men to the front has not been interfered with, and, at the same time, measures have been taken to eliminate graft in the future. The weaknesses of human nature are world-wide.

A LAW ONTARIO NEEDS.

IN SPITE OF all that has been written in the newspapers and spoken about in all parts of the Province, neither Peterborough nor any other city in Ontario, so far as we are aware, has adopted a city plan. The supervision of parks, streets, new subdivisions, has been left to municipal politics, and has consequently been treated in a very desultory fashion. More and more it seems to be apparent that municipal bodies are not a success at passing constructive legislation, that they can administer laws better than they can make them. For that reason, all this constructive legislation that is needed for the more efficient operation of the modern city ought to originate in the Provincial Legislature. Ontario is falling behind the Maritime Provinces in this respect, which, in conjunction with the Commission of Conservation, have already taken very advanced steps. A town planning act has been passed into law in Nova Scotia which will revolutionize the methods of developing real estate and controlling building operations in that province. The act is to a large extent compulsory, and is in advance of anything of the kind in the world.

Under the act, a local town planning board must be appointed in every urban and rural municipality, and a town planning controller has to be appointed for the whole province. No street can hereafter be laid out, nor any subdivision made, unless the plans are approved by this board. Within three years every board must either prepare a town planning scheme or a set of town planning bylaws, with the following minimum requirements:—

(1) The distance between buildings to be not less than 60 feet and up to 100 feet on opposite sides of existing streets, both in respect of new buildings and reconstructed buildings, and to be not less than 80 feet on new main thoroughfare, whatever the width of the street.

(2) Land to be reserved for new main thoroughfares not less than 60 feet in width, and provision made for allowing narrow streets of from 24 feet to 40 feet, where not required for through traffic.

(3) The number of dwellings to be limited on each acre, all windows of dwellings to have adequate light and air, separate areas to be prescribed for dwellings, factories, stores, etc.

Property is not to be deemed to be injuriously affected for purposes of compensation by reason of the following restrictions on its use, if the Commissioner of Public Works is satisfied that they are reasonable for the purpose of securing amenity:—

(1) Prescribing space about buildings;
(2) Limiting the number of buildings to the acre;
(3) Limiting the height of buildings;
(4) Prescribing the use or character of buildings, i.e., whether the land shall be used for dwellings, factories, etc.

It is an essential part of the act that there shall be co-operation between municipalities and owners and between adjacent municipalities. Ample safeguards are provided to prevent any person erecting buildings or sub-dividing land so as to contravene a proposed scheme or bylaw, while either is being prepared. The local board has power to buy land up to 200 feet in depth on the frontages of new roads or reconstructed roads. The price of any land to be expropriated must be the market value, and no extra allowance is to be made for compulsory purchase. The act has been drawn up in consultation with the Commission of Conservation, and immediate steps will be taken to put it into force in the province.

It should be added that New Brunswick passed a town planning act in 1912, and a plan for the city of St. John is likely to materialize this year. It is to be hoped that Ontario will deal with this problem in the near future.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

TOGOLAND was once a German possession, but is proving an easy conquest to the British. Reporting on the capitulation of the Germans, Colonel Bryant said that the enemy were well supplied with ammunition and arms. About 320,000 rounds of ammunition were surrendered, with over 1,000 rifles, three Maxim guns, the entire rolling stock, with four engines, of the Togoland railway, and a quantity of European and native stores. The number of European prisoners is 206.

"SIR ROBERT BORDEN is Canada's ideal statesman for leadership during the war." There will be few Canadians of any party who will dispute this statement made by the Ottawa Citizen, which recently declared it was not a Conservative newspaper. Our Liberal friends should make a note of this.

A DESPATCH says there are now 80,000 men employed in the Krupp Works at Essen, making war material. If all the shops in Canada and the United States making war material were added to those of Britain, we think Britain could surpass this many times over.

Opinions From Other Newspapers

The Sobs of a Nation.

(Canadian Courier.)

A philosopher has said, "Bitter grief is loud, calm grief is silent." There is no bitterness in Canada's grief and the sobs of the nation will not be heard from without. Many of our bravest sons, native and adopted, have paid the price of our liberty, our honour and our imperial obligation. Others have given a part and are willing to pay more. Still others await an eager opportunity. To those of us who sit at home in grief there is no bitterness, therefore no loud lamentations nor bitter recriminations. We sorrow, but not as those without hope.

Five thousand casualties in one battle is so startling and so unusual that the nation might reasonably be heard in bitterness. For a hundred years there has been no battle in whch the Canadian casualties reached up to a hundred. This new experience, therefore, is so startling, so out of proportion to all previous experience, so overwhelming, that the nation might reasonably be excused if there were other grief than that which goes with a glorious achievement.

But Canada falters not. The great sacrifice demanded begets a spirit of greater sacrifice. Canada is now even more desirous of contributing to the defeat of the common enemy of mankind. With this grief and these dry, dull sobs, comes a more vigorous determination to do our part, whether in suppplies of ammunition, food, hospital equipment or larger armies. There should be no other thought in our minds. While we suffer and grieve, let us be more active in the measures we are taking to bear our part in scotching the serpent which threatens the existence of all that western civilization holds dear.

The Supply of Shells.

(London Chronicle.)

No doubt it is true that the consumption of shells has been far greater than anyone anticipated in the early weeks of the war. But that is simply because the unforeseen conditions of trench warfare have made a heavier call on artillery. These new conditions have now been in operation for six months, and presumably during that time the War Office has not been idle. It is, of course, possible that more might have [illegible] particular we might have followed the excellent lead of the French and brought back from the front all the skilled metal workers who went out as recruits or reserves, to work at their own trades.

The Nation's Duty Clear.

(London Daily Mail.)

Sir John French makes it perfectly clear that enormous casualties must be faced in the modern battle, whence arises an overwhelming need for men. The casualties can be lessened and the enemy's power of defence — which is, in other words, the duration of the war — can be reduced by "an almost unlimited supply of ammunition." We are left under no doubts. Men and shells, more men and more shells, are the requisites if this war is ever to be ended. In proportion as they are forthcoming will the conflict be abridged.

Whisky and Bad Whisky.

(Toronto Telegram.)

There will be a prohibition of the sale of immature spirits.

That means that the Right Hon. David Lloyd George is of the belief that there is one thing worse than whisky—and that is bad whisky.

The theory is worthy of the consideration of the Ontario License Commission. They might well investigate how much havoc is caused in this Province by fusel oil concoctions and home-made distillations.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Fresh to strong southwesterly winds, fine. Sunday, fresh west and northwest winds, fine, with about the same temperature.

MILITARY NEWS

Writing from Shorncliffe, Kent, England, to a friend in Millbrook, Capt. Calvin P. Fee says:—

We arrived here on March 6th, after a very successful trip across from Halifax, having stopped at Queenstown, Ireland, before proceeding to Liverpool where we disembarked.

The Canadians are coming in rapidly and are at present taking up most of the available space here, the weather is beginning to get much better and all are hard at work doing their best to get over to the front.

We are seeing plenty of the chaps who have just returned from the firing line, and I have been fortunate enough to get up to London a couple of times on short leave, was there for Easter, and had a look through Westminster Abbey, Tower of London, Houses of Lords and Commons, St. Thomas Hospital, St. Paul's Cathedral, Horse Guards, War Office, Admiralty, Buckingham Palace, Wellington Barracks, Wax Works, etc., saw Earl Kitchener.

Had the pleasure of placing the King's Colour, which was presented to the 22nd Battery at Kingston, Ont., in Westminster Abbey on Monday 19th inst, for safe keeping until the end of the campaign.

Sincerely hope all Millbrook friends are keeping well. With kind regards to yourself and many other friends.

Faithfully yours,
CALVIN P. FEE.

Mrs. R. H. (Major) Bonnycastle of Campbellford, Ont., has written and composed a new patriotic song entitled "The Canadian Volunteer," which she has dedicated to the boy scouts. Mrs. Bonnycastle is the widow of the late Major Bonnycastle, who figured prominently in the Riel rebellion. The new song, which has a stirring air and inspiring words, has provoked compliments from Col. W. S. Hughes, commander of the 21st Battalion, C.E.F., and other military men. Copies have been sent to the officers of the Canadian forces at the front.

Mr. Thomas Wyatt, East City, who has two boys at the front, has received no news as yet regarding them since the battle of Langemarck. Enlisting with the Lindsay boys, they were drafted into the Montreal Rifles, who fought in the memorable mix-up. A Montreal paper shows a picture of their company before departure, mentions the names of those since fallen, in which list Mr. Wyatt's sons do not appear, though they are included in the group. Their last letter home told of being within 30 yards of the German trenches.

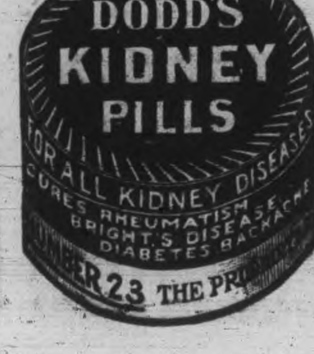
8th Mounted Rifles.

More recruits are needed now to fill the ranks of the regiment in Ottawa. Major Medd has instructed Lieut. Harry G. Rogers to remain here until midnight of Tuesday, and he will be in the Armouries in the 3rd Dragoons' quarters from ten to twelve o'clock on Monday and Tuesday.

Wilfrid Wilson, of Victoria Harbor was seriously wounded in the recent fighting in France, when so many Canadians were killed, wounded or captured. He is a Fenelon Falls boy.

In the list of casualties, appears the name of Pte. Turner, who is re[illegible] Pte. Turner enlisted in Lindsay at the outbreak of the war and is a native of England.

Lt.-Col. H. C. Buller, who succeeded the late Col. Farquhar in command of the Princess Patricias, has been slightly wounded, according to cable advices.



PLAY BALL IN CITY LEAGUE

With the weather man behaving beautifully the City League opening this afternoon at Riverside Park promises to be favored with a very large attendance. Mr. J. McNaish has been selected as umpire. Mayor Buller who is billed to twirl the opening ball stated that he has been practising of late on a few cats which disturb the midnight peace in the vicinity of his home.

Bugler Sharpe of the 39th Battalion at Belleville, who was one of those selected for immediate overseas duty, is home for a short furlough.

Several members of the 26th Overseas Battery encamped at Kingston are home for the week end.

Pte. Charles Jefferies, reported wounded, was a member of "G" Co. Capt. Higgins and he went away with the 57th men. He worked for Geo. Armstrong in Smith, and is unmarried. His brother, George Jefferies, is located near Indan River with a farmer. Pte. Jefferies, his brother says, will certainly make a big effort to get square with the Germans when he gets to the firing line again.

A very impressive memorial service was held in Campbellford in memory of Lieut. W. J. Doxsee, of that town, who was killed in action in Flanders. Every community in the county was represented, and also the various corps of the district. Lieut. Doxsee was exceedingly popular and deservedly so with all walks of life and his loss will be felt by all classes in Campbellford.

Colonel Smart, second in command of the 39th Battalion, Belleville, and the medical officer are in the city today looking over the Peterborough recruits for overseas service. All recruits are requested to attend a parade which will be held this evening at 7.15 at the Armouries when the two visiting officers will review them.

RUSSIANS TRAPPED?

Vienna Says They Are Between Teutonic Columns.

London, May 8—The Russian army in the Carpathian passes in the Dukla Rymanow district is trapped between two Teutonic columns according to the Vienna official statement received last night. Meanwhile, according to this official statement Austro-Hungarian and German forces have crossed the Wisloka river and are now in the district to the south of Pilsno and Jaslo, to the east of the Wisloka. Terrific fighting of the character of a rearguard action still is proceeding, the retreating Russians giving way only after the most stubborn resistance. Petrograd reports fighting by the Russians of the most desperate character and states that the action has approached the proportions of a great battle. The arrival of several German corps of reinforcements on this front is reported by the Russian staff. Both Berlin and Petrograd claim varying successes on the whole stretch of battle front from the Baltic provinces to the Bukowina border.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Mrs. Jos. Desrosiers, St. Alphonse, Que., writes: "I cannot say too much in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, as they saved my little one's life. Before givng him the Tablets he was greatly troubled with worms and was like a skeleton and cried day and night. The Tablets soon expelled the worms and now baby is the picture of health." Baby's Own Tablets break up colds and simple fevers, cure constipation and indigestion, and make the teething period painless. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Hundreds of People Have Found "Fruit-a-tives" Their Only Help

READ THIS LETTER

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 Dovercourt Road, Oct., 1st. 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvellous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TWO TORPEDOES SANK THE VESSEL

First Story From a Survivor Says the Ship Sank in Fifteen Minutes.

London, May 8—The first story by survivor came from a ship's steward who was among 150 landed by the tug Stormcock at Queenstown. Many women were in this party. The steward said: "The passengers were at lunch when a submarine came up and fired two torpedoes which struck the Lusitania on the starboard side, one forward and the other in the engine room. They caused terrific explosions. Captain Turner immediately ordered the boats out. The ship began to list badly immediately. Ten boats were put into the water and between 400 and 500 passengers entered them. The boat in which I was approached the land with three other boats and we were picked up shortly after 4 o'clock by the Stormcock. I fear that few of the officers were saved. They acted bravely. There was only fifteen minutes from the time the ship was struck until she foundered, going down bow foremost. It was a dreadful sight."

Lusitania's Cargo

The cargo of the Lusitania was valued at $750,000 and fully covered by insurance. It contained various munitions of war and other supplies for the allies including 189 packages of "military goods," valued at $62,221 and 1,271 cases of ammunition appraised at $47,624, both consigned to Liverpool and 4,200 cases of cartridges and ammunition valued at $152,400 consigned to London. Other items and their value were: Precious stones, $13,350; sheet brass, $49,565; furs, $119,220; leather, $47,000; copper, $20,995; geese, $33,334; bacon, $1,502; copper goods, $21,000, and dry goods, $19,086.

The Lusitania's passengers were listed as follows:

First-class	291
Second-class	599
Third-class	361
Crew	816
Total	2,067

There were 184 Americans on board the Lusitania. The other passengers included 961 British, 27 Russians, 6 Persians, 6 French and 5 Greek and 2 Mexicans.

Sunk Without Warning

Liverpool, May 8—S. J. Liston, general manager of the Cunard Steamship Company at Liverpool, gave the following statement last night: "We have received information that the Lusitania was torpedoed at 2.33 o'clock to-day when ten miles south of Old Kinsale Head. Just previously the Lusitania had sent out a wireless call, 'Come at once, we have begun to list.' That was the last heard from her. It is apparent that the Lusitania was sunk without any warning."

Could Accommodate 2,605

New York, May 8—Life boats and rafts carried by the Lusitania were said to accommodate 2,605, the Cunard Line stated. She had 22 life boats with a capacity of 52 to 69 each, twenty collapsible boats, with a capacity of 49 each, twelve rafts with a capacity of 24 each, an two rafts with a capacity of 43 each.

Subs Were Waiting

London, May 8—Kinsale is a town on the southern coast of Ireland, 13 miles south-southwest of Cork. It is southwest of St. George's Channel through which the Lusitania would have to pass in order to reach Liverpool. For several days German submarines have been operating in the waters along the south coast of Ireland. At first the public were skepti

TRANSYLVANIA GOES ON HER REGULAR TRIP

Steamer Sails From New York in Wake of Lusitania—Twelve Passengers Left The Ship.

New York, May 8—Daring the German submarine blockade, despite the disaster to the Lusitania, the Anchor Liner Transylvania, leased by the Cunard Line, sailed last evening for Liverpool. The Transylvania, which is a new steamer, got under way at 6 o'clock. Of her total of 879 passengers, twelve cancelled passage because of the sinking of the Lusitania. The liner carries 117 first cabin passengers, 310 second cabin and 452 third. Her crew numbers 535, a grand total of 1,414. "I have no fears of submarines," said Commander John Black, as the Transylvania prepared to get under way. "I won't fly the American flag either, but will have the British flag up all the way across. I think I'm a good enough seaman to outmanœuvre any German submarine." Among those on board were a number of Canadians. Twenty-three nurses from the Royal Victoria Hospital of Montreal, were among the passengers. Several of the nurses called Montreal up on the long distance phone when the disaster to the Lusitania became known and asked for instructions whether or not to sail. They were told to follow their own judgment and all decided to go. The passengers were all depressed upon sailing.

London is Jarred

London, May 8—It is also apparent that the sinking of the giant Cunarder has jarred the British capital as severely as any incident of the war. Fear that all the horrors of the Titanic disaster are again to be recounted with fresh coloring lent by the tragic glint of war time events, seemed to still the crowds that packed the corridors of all the leading hotels until long after midnight. Awe-stricken watchers hovered about the sources of official information grasping eagerly at wild rumors and authentic bits of information alike.

Lusitania Described

The Lusitania was one of the largest of transatlantic liners, as well as one of the speediest. She was built in Glasgow in 1906. She was 785 feet ong, 88 feet beam and 60 feet deep. Her gross tonnage was 32,500 and her net tonnage 9,145. She was owned by the Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., of Liverpool. Her Captain was W. T. Turner. She cost about $7,500,000 to build. The Lusitania and her sister, the Mauretania, were built under British subsidy for the purpose of wresting from Germany the speed record across the Atlantic. Their entry into the trans-Atlantic passenger service was Great Britain's final challenge to German overseas supremacy.

Hubbard Was Jocular

New York, May 8—Elbert Hubbard, just before he sailed on the Lusitania, said, laughingly: "Speaking from a strictly personal viewpoint, I would not mind if they did sink the ship. It might be a good thing for me. I would drown with her and that's about the only way I could succeed in my ambition to get into the hall of fame. I'd be a real hero and go right to the bottom."

Punched the German

New York, May 8—The next time Henry Schultz does any cheering, he will do it at home. Schultz was standing in front of a Park Row bulletin board to-day when the news of the torpedoing of the Lusitania was posted. With a wild "Hoch," he threw his hat in the air, and indulged in the German version of an Indian war dance. A bystander caught the hat and began tearing it up. Another halted Schultz's gyrations with a straight left to the jaw. Schultz dropped, and about ten others forgot all about their neutrality and began kicking him in the face and ribs.

What Will Uncle Sam Do?

Washington, May 8—As there were 188 American passengers on the Lusitania, Secretary Bryan was pressed for information as to the attitude which this government would take on the ship's destruction without search or warning. "The department will have nothing to say until it knows all the facts," was the only statement Mr. Bryan made.

Unheeding.

"What are you trying to do?"
"Me?"
"Yes."
"I am trying to think."
"Dear me! Didn't the preacher preach last Sunday morning against the folly of wasted effort?"

BIG DEATH LIST IS GENERAL FEAR

According to Officer Jones the Lost Might be Greater Than First Estimated---Survivors Being Hurried to Hotels and Hospitals For Treatment.

New York, May 8—The belief prevailed at the Cunard offices early this morning that the dead in the sinking of the Lusitania would eventually prove to be nearly 1,000. This belief was based on the fact that 14 hours had elapsed since the sinking of the Lusitania and that practically all of the boats had had plenty of time to come ashore and be heard from. Assuming that 700 had been landed at Clonakilty, 500 at Queenstown and possibly 100 at Kinsale, this would leave nearly a thousand still to be accounted for. All the reports indicate that many injured and some dead have been brought ashore.

First Officer's Statement

It was impossible early this morning to obtain a reliable estimate of the number of persons saved from the Lusitania. The following cable message received at midnight, from the company's offices in Liverpool contained the only authoritative information which the officials of the line had received. "Queenstown wires: First Officer Jones thinks about 500 to 600 were saved. This includes passengers and crew and is the only estimate we are able to make. In the meantime we are going through the hotels and lodging houses to-night and will wire to-morrow the fullest possible list. Meanwhile the injured and dead are taking all our attention." This message was sent from Liverpool at 9.17 p.m. When the attention of the Cunard officials was called to the fact that they had previously reported 300 landed at Clonakilty and that the London Times had received a despatch from Cork saying that 700 had been landed at Clonakilty, they replied: "This estimate by first officer Jones is the only authoritative one we have been able to get. The statement that 300 had been landed at Clonakilty was merely a report which had been sent to our offices in Queenstown. We have no information as to its accuracy and we know nothing about the report from Cork that 700 were landed at Clonakilty. To-morrow we hope to have definite information but until that comes we can make no estimate of the number saved." Another cable message timed 9.45 p.m., at Liverpool, said: "Queenstown wires as follows: The tug Stormcock landed 150 passengers and crew. It is reported by the Admiralty that the trawlers Dock and Indian Empire have about 200. The tug Flying Fish has about 100. Three torpedo boats have 45 and four dead. We are putting those landed up at the hotels and boarding houses but we cannot get a list of survivors before morning, as the passengers are in such a state that their immediate wants must be our first consideration." The Cunard officials were unable to say whether the rescued enumerated in this despatch were in addition to those reported by First Officer Jones or not but they were inclined to believe this was merely confirmatory of Jones' despatch.

Suffering Hinted At

London, May 8—Suffering and hardships for passengers and crew on the disaster were hinted at in a message to the Admiralty from Queenstown reporting that between 500 and 600 passengers had been landed there. This despatch stated that "many hospital cases were included, some of whom have died." A later despatch to the Admiralty from the Admiral in command of the fleet at Queenstown stated that the injured were being sent to the naval and military hospitals for treatment. The Admiral's report gave no names of victims nor did it state their number.

The first ominous warning that the loss of life might be heavy came from the Cunard office in the following bulletin: "There is reason to hope that many passengers have been saved." Cablegrams flooded the offices of the line inquiring for the safety of hundreds of prominent persons aboard. Throughout the night there was a steady stream of callers at the Cunard offices. Many of them were in evening dress. The crowd in Cockspur Street assumed such proportions that a special staff of police was employed in directing the long stream of motor cars and guarding the doorways.

Atrocious Criminals

London, May 8—The following messages were received this morning on the sinking of the Lusitania from prominent men of Great Britain: Lord Weardale, "Language is inadequate to condemn the atrocious criminals." Admiral Cyprian Bridge: "This outrageous crime outdoes the acts of the cruelest pirates ever known." Lord Sydenham: "Americans will now realize the depth of German barbarism and respond to the call of humanity." Sir Gilbert Parker: "Germany has reached a point where the nations of the world must take action or the name of civilization will be stained forever. Germany will atone for this crime in blood and tears." Sir Hiram Maxim: "Civilization demands that German imperialism shall be crushed."

"Titanic" Weather

London, May 8—The Admiralty received a report from Queenstown that several boats, supposed to belong to the Lusitania, had been sighted nine miles southeast of Queenstown. At the time of the disaster the weather was fine. The sun was beating down hotly and a gentle breeze was bloming. Weather conditions were similar to those prevailing at the time of the Titanic disaster.

The Shadow of War

Washington, May 8—The Times last night said: "No surprise would be caused if the President should issue a call in the next 24 hours. The shadow of war with Germany looms on the horizon."

MISS L. LOGAN'S VIOLIN RECITAL

Miss Loro Logan, violinist, added another success to her already lengthy list last night when she gave a recital in the Conservatory of Music hall before a small but thoroughly appreciative audience who braved threatening weather to be present. Miss Logan, who is a pupil of Lina Drechler Adamson, supplied a really delightful program. She was assisted by Miss Ada Richardson, soprano, and these two artists left little to be desired. Miss Loganhas ingratiated herself into the favoritism of local music lovers as a violinist, a position which seems to be strengthened following her each appearance before the public upon the concert platform and judging by her present reputation and skill she has a brilliant future in the musical field. Miss Logan has the happy faculty of expressing her temperament through the medium of her instrument, a gift which is readily apparent. This and youth and a pleasant personality are rapidly bringing her ahead in her profession and ensure an evening of pleasure whenever she is billed to appear.

Miss Ada Richardson has already won unanimous praise wherever she has sung, and is also one of the soloists in Peterborough from whom great things may be expected. She sang last evening with customary sweetness, and her choice of numbers was well adapted to display her unusually strong, clear and beautifully controlled voice. The program was as follows:—

1. Violin solo—Sjoren — Sonato Op. 24.
2. Sarasite—Zigeue Nerweisen — Miss Logan.
3. (a)—David Slater—A Sheaf of Memories. (b) — David Slater — Bells of Gold—Miss Ada Richardson.
4. Friml—(a) Rezeda; (b) Melodie.
5. Drdla—Rezinka—Miss Logan.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp, stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgatives — you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WITH THE MOVIES

"The Battling British and The Kaiser's [illegible]" [illegible] of a three-reel military film that may be seen at the Tiz-It Theatre next week. It is a mighty spectacular picture and is one of the most exciting military dramas in circulation. Mr. Clayton has secured this film by special arrangement, feeling that it was the kind of picture that appeals to people in war time. It will be shown the first three days of next week.

An element of particularly appealing human interest runs through "The Country Boy" a four feel motion picture that drew large audiences to the Empire Theatre Thursday and Friday. It is a story of a youth who starts out to make a name for himself in New York but whose unsophistication leads him into perilous paths, but eventually he is won back, through the influence of a newspaper man, whom he befriended. It all ends happily. Tonight is the last opportunity to see the picture.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. STAPLES.

(Millbrook Mirror.)

It was with deep sorrow that the news of the sudden death of Margaret Howden, beloved wife of Mr. J. F. Staples, was received in Millbrook.

Mrs. Staples had been quite well up to the time of retiring on Sunday, but awakened about midnight, feeling unwell. Mr. Staples gave her some stimulant and had his son go to the 'phone for a doctor, but Mrs. Staples had passed beyond all earthly assistance before the arrival of the physician.

Deceased lady was born on Concession 11, just a few lots from where she died. She was in her 52nd year.

She was one of the most active and faithful workers in the Fairmount Methodist church and Sunday chool. She was a life member of the ladies' auxiliary, and had been much interested as a member of the Women's Institute, and of the Millbrook Fair, at which she was an extensive exhibitor in the women's departments. All these will miss her greatly, but in the home where she was a happy wife and mother of a happy husband and children she will be doubly missed. In the one case her place can be filled by others, but in the home—never.

The family were contemplating celebrating the 25th anniversary or silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Staples on February 18 next, and considering means of giving their friends a good time, but this expected pleasure has been dashed aside by the grim reaper—Death.

Besides the sorrowing husband, one son, Samuel Sanford Staples, and two daughters, Luella, attending school in Millbrook, and Helen, at home, survive her; also four sisters, Mrs. Thos. Morrow, Peterborough; Mrs. Alex. Walsh, Perrytown; Mrs. Joseph Storey, Peterborough, and Mrs. G. Lowes, Millbrook, and two brothers, Richard, of the 12th Line, Cavan, and Robert, of Peterborough. Two daughters, Mildred and Margaret, and one brother, John, predeceased her.

The funeral on Tuesday to the 9th Line cemetery was very largely attended. Rev. J. R. Butler conducted the solemn and impressive services and spoke in the highest terms of the splendid qualities of heart and mind of the deceased lady.

The Mirror joins wth a host of friends in extending sincere condolences to the bereaved.

ROBERT THORNTON.

Death claimed a venerable resident of South Ops yesterday morning in the person of Robert Thornton, who passed away at the family residence, aged 76 years and 2 months.

The deceased, who has been an invalid for three years, was born in the township of Emily, but about twenty-five years ago he took up residence in Ops, where he resided ever since. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James Wilson, of Sonya, Mrs. Joseph Howden, of Ops, and the following sons: David and James McIntyre, of Saskatchewan, George, W. R., and Albert in Ops, and Wallace, of Manvers township, also one brother, David Thornton, of Peterborough. The late Mr. Thornton was a Presbyterian in religion.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, lot 13, con. 8, Ops, on Sunday afternoon at 2.30. Interment at Riverside cemetery, Lindsay.

CARNATION SALE WELL PATRONIZED

Supply of Real Flowers Was Soon Sold Out.

That the general public will support any worthy and popular movement was illustrated by the generous manner in which they opened their pocket books today to the pretty flower girls who were selling their wares to raise funds for the supervised playgrounds. Over three thousand flowers were sold around the city in an incredibly short time, and the report from the headquarters on Charlotte Street was that "we have not begun to fill all the orders we got."

The supply of the genuine flowers was so quickly sold, that the vendors had to resort to artificial plumage, with the result that there was not quite so keen a demand. The ladies started to skirmish for more of the real blooms, and were successful in getting a small supply.

The flower girls were out bright and early, carrying baskets of carnations and tulips and few citizens could resist their requests to buy. Consequently Peterborough looked as if "en fete" for some hours.

The ladies were unable to state the amount of their proceeds as many of the cash boxes were not returned. However they feel especially grateful to the public for their liberal response.

An optimist is a man who is certain his salary will be raised next year.

"Never Again,"

Said the housewife," will I waste money on cake soap when, by cutting up a bar of N.P. SOAP, I get more and better soap than by buying other kinds in cakes. One bar of N.P. SOAP at 15¢ contains more by weight than four or five 5¢ cakes of any other kind—It's Made in Canada too."

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by Official Scribe

The attendance of delegates this week was again very good, most of the locals being represented; there were some, however, who probably felt that it was time the garden was planted, thereby causing their organization to be unrepresented. For instance, one hotel in the city has the business cards of a cut-price non-union barber shop posted around its bar-room, and there was not a representative of the Bar Tenders' Union present on Wednesday to meet the charge and investigate, as per union fair wage principles. Likewise, a certain clothing firm who makes a great point of its union-made clothing, could not produce, when asked for, a pair of overalls with the Garment Workers' label affixed. Customer had to leave, and consequently found the goods labelled as desired in a store further up the street. Here was a case the representative of the Tailors' Union could have enlightened by his attendance at the meeting.

The Municipal Committee.

The chairman's report was very interesting this week, inasmuch as it described the stand taken by the Mayor and aldermen on the point raised by the Labor men, viz.: that since a non-resident day laborer could not work for the city, then the same principle should apply to those higher up. Aldermen Langford and Evans were the only ones who refrained from speech, and, although Alderman Stratton did not vote, yet he was of the opinion that the motion was just. Now it will be the municipal committee's duty to follow up other officials who pay township taxes while taking the city's money as pay, but these come under other influences outside of the Council proper. The Police Commissioners and the Board of Education will be the next authorities to visit.

The municipal committee told of the Health Association's demand for assistance — $50 a month — for necessaries, tents, bedding, medical attention, etc. This report, coupled with the testimony of a member who had been helped in time of need by the association, caused the council to loosen up, and $5.00 was voted the good cause.

Income Tax Delinquents.

The municipal committee expressed their gratitude at the manner in which City Clerk Armstrong had met their request for a list of those who paid income tax. That obliging official took a lot of trouble, as evidenced by the lengthy copy now in the hands of the committee.

A Voice of Cheer.

Representative Wm. I. Lucas, of the International Molders 'Union, is again a visitor to the city, being called chiefly to adjust a slight difference in a local shop. Mr. Lucas always gives a good line of talk, and his message was one of good cheer. He had abundant proof to show that things were looking up, and the present slump would soon come to an end. The Westinghouse people of Hamilton have lately put on three hundred more hands, owing to the awakening of the West; therefore, that should also be felt by the Canadian General. Galt was also beginning to feel the boom. The Niagara belt is promising great things. As to his own profession, pig iron is regarded as the barometer of rising and falling business. There are only four blast furnaces in Ontario—one in Port Colborne, the other three in Hamilton. The one at Port Colborne has been working full blast for some time now, and two out of the three at Hamilton are in the same happy state, and a prominent official had told him (Mr. Lucas) that the third would shortly follow suit.

Labor Educational Association.

President Charles Hammacott was chosen to represent Peterborough's Trades and Labor Council at St. Catharines on May 24th. Chas. Crowe, of the Molders, is alternate.

The Helen Brown Case.

The representative from the council who attended a meeting of the Local Council of Women at its request, gave his report, which was to the effect that the matter had been thoroughly gone into with the assistance of expert advice from Toronto, and the result was that insufficient evidence was found to be the reason the case could not be gone on with [illegible]

Different.

"Do you like to work?"

"Yes."

"I can't make you happy, then. Come along with me."

"I will tell you why I like to work."

"All right; go ahead."

"Everywhere I labor they give me triple pay."

CLAIMS $36 AS SICK BENEFITS

Wm. Kemp Takes Action Against Canadian Order Foresters

Judgment was reserved by His Honor Judge Huycke at the sitting of the Division Court yesterday in the case of William Kemp. vs. Canadian Order of Foresters for $36 which plaintiff claimed was due him for 12 weeks' sick benefits. Mr. J. Weading acted for Mr. Kemp and W. A. Hollinrake of Brantford represented the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Mr. Kemp was the first witness called. He testified that he has been a member of the C.O.F. for 33 years and it is 14 years since he drew sick benefits from the order. This illness, for which the claim was entered, began about the middle of May, 1914 and is still ill. He was not sure about the first date of his illness, it might have been the first of June. Questioned by counsel for the defence, witness denied that he was at work in his shop during June and July. He admitted that he was well enough to go to the attending physician's office and the physician never had to call at his home. He also admitted being an ardent ball fan and a consistent rooter for Curley Blount and his paid help.

Witness stated he was chief ranger of the Foresters when the by-laws of the Court were drawn up. He knew it was according to the rules to notify a member of the sick committee. He did not, but notified Mr. J. Metheral. His wife also notified Mr. Metheral.

Dr. Morgan, the attending physician, gave evidence to the effect that Mr. Kemp was ill. His trouble was an ulcerated stomach. Questioned by Mr. Hollinrake, witness said Mr. Kemp was suffering from a more serious illness than dyspepsia. He did not think that going to ball games or to his shop occasionally would signify that he was well. He [illegible] week or so during the period in question.

Mrs. Kemp, Mr. Bruce Kemp, Mr. D. H. Kerneghan, Mr. S. Kerneghan and Rev. F. A. Conners all gave evidence that Mr. Kemp was ill.

Mr. W. Wilson, a member of the C.O.F. sick committee, testified that he saw Mr. Kemp in his butcher shop several times during the period in question. The plaintiff never told him he was ill. Other members of the C.O.F. testified that they had spoken to Mr. Kemp on several occasions and he never mentioned being sick. Mr. J. Metheral, the financial secretary, gave evidence to the effect that he was conversing with Mr. Kemp one day and he remarked that he wasn't feeling very well. Mr. Kemp said, "Neither am I." That was all the notification he received. Other witnesses were called and testified that Mr. Kemp was at his store during June and July.

Mrs. Kemp was recalled and she swore to giving Mr. Metheral notice. Mr. Kemp also was recalled and he testified as to giving Mr. Metheral notice.

Mr. Wearing in his address to the bench referred to the good reputation of the plaintiff and how he must have been held in the esteem of fellow members when he was elected to the high office of Chief Ranger. When the dues are paid to such an organization, they are paid with the specific intention of receiving benefits when benefits are due. As to giving notice, Mr. Wearing pointed out how it was not usual to give special notice.

Mr. Hollinrake in his address emphasized the necessity of sick members notifying the lodge so as to enable the investigation committee to look into the case. He remarked how the C.O.F. did not want to get out of paying benefits but the organization does not want to pay money out when there is no claim. He submitted that Mr. Kemp was not incapacitated but merely indisposed and therefore had no claim.

His Honor Judge Huycke pointed out how the by-laws of the Court required the attention of a solicitor as they are by no means plain. He remarked that he thought Mr. Kemp was ill but as to notifying the Court there was some doubt. He reserved judgment to permit him going over the by-laws of the Court more carefully.

CALL TENDERS FOR PAVING

Council Will Proceed With Paving Operations

The Committee of the Whole Council discussed the pros and cons of the paving question and decided to call for tenders. Two representatives of Foley and Gleeson were heard, and the aldermen were assured that everything possible was being done to make a good job.

Faulty rock was responsible for some parts of the pavement chipping. This was the first trouble experienced by the contractors.

The following motions were passed:

Moved by Aldermen Dobbin and Saunders, that tenders be asked for [illegible] commended to be paved in the report of the Board of Works, except Park street, from Charlotte street to Brock street, and McDonnel, from Water to Aylmer street; tenders to be asked for asphaltic concrete and bitulithic pavements on Water street from Brock to Dublin; George street, from McDonnel to Smith; McDonnel, from Water to Park; Park, from Charlotte to Brock, and Hunter, from Water to Sheridan, and that it be a condition of the tenders that 30,000 yards of pavements shall be constructed and as much more on the streets named as the city shall at its option require to be done.

Moved by Aldermen Dobbin and Saunders, that notice be given of the intention of the Council to pave George street from McDonnel to Smith street; Water, from Brock to Dublin; McDonnel, from Water to Park, and Hunter, from Water to Sheridan.

MR. BAILEY AS A LEGAL LIGHT

Pleads His Own Case in Division Court and Loses

The action of W. A. Bailey against A. H. Stratton and Co. for $155 was dismissed with costs by His Honor Judge Huycke at the sitting of the Division Court yesterday. The case did not come up till five o'clock and lasted till nearly nine. All through the proceedings the audience consisted mostly of men of the legal profession who were interested in Mr. Bailey's effort to plead his own case. He was suing the defendant for the above amount because of a stock market transaction in October, 1913. It appears that Mr. Bailey gave $155 to Mr. Stratton on the understanding that he would pay for 2000 shares of Bailey-Cobalt stock which Mr. Bailey was purchasing through H. P. Wills of the Standard Stock Exchange of Toronto. According to Mr. Bailey, the defendant refused to pay the draft when it arrived. Evidence for the defence went to show that in the meantime Mr. Stratton had been authorized by Mr. Bailey to invest the money in other stocks. The stock Mr. Bailey's money was invested in took a slump and Mr. Bailey was notified to pay up his margin. This he declined to do and the shares were sold and the balance remitted to him.

The first witness called by Mr. Bailey was Mr. Robinson, the secretary of the Standard Stock Exchange. He testified that the 2000 shares of Bailey-Cobalt were purchased by Mr. Wills on the day mentioned. Mr. Bailey expressed his surprise at the witness not offering expert evidence on stock exchange matters when between one hundred and three hundred thousand shares were bought daily on the Toronto exchange.

Mr. Bailey called the defendant as one of his witnesses. The first question was, "You were the postmaster?" [illegible] ative.

"What are you now?"

"I'm a broker."

"Doing anything?"

"Yes, occasionally."

At this point Judge Huycke advised the plaintiff that it would be wise, in event of an appeal, to have a shorthand report of the case. Mr. Bailey did not think it necessary and he proceeded to cross-examine the defendant. One object of his attack was in regard to the daily report from Mr. Stratton's board which appears in the Evening Examiner. Witness explained that he gives it to the paper as news and as a benefit to the public. Mr. Bailey commented: "I don't think you know what you are talking about, you do it to deceive the public."

"Are the quotations correct?"

"Unless there is a typographical error."

"Where do you get the reports?"

"From Buffalo and Pittsburg."

"Who from?"

"The Paul Lambert Co."

"What are you?"

"I am their representative."

Mr. Bailey ventured to inform Mr. Stratton that he had a letter

ALL EXCITEMENT THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION

Over One Hundred Passengers From Ontario on the Torpedoed Liner.

Toronto, May 8—Not so much excitement has been seen in Canadian cities since war was declared as yesterday afternoon when the sinking of the steamer Lusitania was bulletined in the newspaper offices. The arrival of the news that the giant liner had been torpedoed was met with incredulity, which quickly gave way to grave fears for the safety of her passengers. The Canadian passengers of whom about 115 were from Ontario were principally from Toronto and Montreal. Among them were the following: Mrs. Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson and daughter, Laura, are mother and daughter of the late Captain Ryerson, who was killed in the recent battle of Ypres. Mrs. Ryerson and her daughter made the voyage to join Lieut.-Col. Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, who is in England. Leonard McMurray was making the trip in the interests of the Gutta Percha Rubber Company.

William Dale was on leave, and was on his way to visit his brothers and sisters, who reside at Castle Dawson, Ireland. George Scott was returning home to live. He was bound for Belfast to visit his parents, and his intention was to remain at home, as his father owns a factory in Belfast.

Two of the faculty of Trinity College were on the Lusitania. They are Rev. Carlton Morris, lecturer in divinity, and Prof. O. Wordsworth, lecturer in classics. The latter is English, had been on the faculty of Trinity for one year, single, about 28 years of age, and was returning to England for a vacation. Miss Wordsworth, returning from Japan to England, was with him. Rev. Carlton Trinity for a year, and was to spend Trinitf for a year, and was to spend his vacation in the old country. Farmers Too Busy to Come to Market

There was just an average market today. Eggs have taken a little jump and 21 cents and 22 cents were asked by a few vendors. Butter was plentiful selling at 30 cents chiefly The outer market was rather slim, most of the trading being in potatoes and smaller vegetables. Farmers are extremely busy and consequently unable to patronize the market. Buying was brisk though and everything was cleaned and fairly early.

Cleaning a Watch Chain.

Gold or silver watch chains can be cleaned with a very excellent result, no matter whether they be matt or polished, by laying them for a few seconds in pure aqua ammonia. They should then be rinsed in alcohol and finally shaken in clean sawdust, free from sand. Imitation gold and plated chains should be cleaned in benzine, then rinsed in alcohol and afterward shaken in dry sawdust.—St. Louis Republic.

A Floral Murderer.

The mocassin plant is a wanton murderer. Its flowers are so shaped as to lure ants and other wingless insects to them. Once inside they have small chance to escape. There they stay, struggling until they starve to death. These orchids are not considered insect eaters, but they undoubtedly draw a certain amount of nourishment from the decayed bodies of their insect prey. Many other flowers trap insects, which they kill and gradually digest as food.

Life Insurance in a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1,500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was laboring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policyholders upon application.

Today, when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas, and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is today saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment, but actual failure.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

SPORTING NEWS

"PLAY RUGBY," SAYS JOE WRIGHT.

TORONTO, May 8.—"This talk about the Interprovincial Association abandoning rugby this fall because of the war is all rot at this moment," remarked Joseph Wright of the Argonauts yesterday. "The matter has not even been discussed. Who knows when this war will end? It may end in a month or six weeks. Of course there are many of our own men and their opponents on the firing line, and a few of them will not come back, but where will the benefit come in abandoning the game now. My idea is to go ahead with what material is available. Even if the war goes on, the game should not stop, for the training of a rugby field is of great value to a fighting man. Let them play rugby and get big and strong for the call to arms that will come if the great struggle is not ended by fall. Rugby will toughen them and brighten them for the battlefield. Time enough to talk about quitting rugby when disaster is upon us, not when we are fighting a winning fight."
